

By Nanalee Nichols Just How Stupid Do You Think I am?

I know that the people out there in marketing tend think the American public is dumb....and sometimes we prove them right. But when it comes to weight loss products, I'm not THAT stupid.

Over the past weekend, as I watched TV, read or drove down a road, here are a few of the highly touted, guaranteed to work products I've seen advertised.

The one all of us overweight folks dream of is the "fat burner". There are at least four different versions of this "miracle " pill, or drink, or vitamin, whichever way it is packaged. The ads scream that it "burns off fat".

Another version claims that it blocks fat from being absorbed.

The only true "fat blocker" is an expensive prescription that will absolutely make you sick if you take it and aren't on a fat restrictive diet! But, the ads keep trying to convince us that all this bad fat can be blocked without ever being used by our bodies, and done so with vitamins and minerals, no "harmful" drugs.

Which leads me to the vitamin and herb deal.

Another big wish fulfillment for those of us who are pleasingly plump or beyond is the vast selection of vitamins combinations or skinny plants or herbs that are 'guaranteed" to help you lose weight. The fine print almost always says that they work when combined with a moderate diet and exercise. Well, if we eat a moderate diet and exercise we probably aren't

The new millennium will mark the 51st year for the Bogata Rodeo ...

Spectators have witnessed world famous livestock and champion cowboys and cowgirls at their hometown rodeo, partly because of the quality of rodeo the Bogata Rodeo Association maintains, and partly because of the caliber of the rodeo performance put on by the Wing Rodeo Company.

Not only has the Wing Rodeo Company worked to improve their livestock quality year after year, they have also employed the best in the business to work their rodeos, as evidenced in their announcer, rodeo secretary and judges.

Doug Williams, rodeo announcer from Idabel, OK has been with the Wing Rodeo Company since day one, and has continued to provide spectators with up-to-the-minute standings in the championship ranks, as well as pertinent information regarding the action going on in the arena during all the events.

Not only has the Wing Rodeo Company garnered many and varied awards for their livestock and rodeo production, the Bogata Rodeo Association has been honored professionally as well. In 1999 they were awarded the honor of "Southern Rodeo of the Year" by the Cowboys Regional Rodeo Association, a professional rodeo sanctioning body. Their rodeo was selected from a group of over 100 rodeos in the southern part of the country governed by that association.

Rodeo 2000 marks 51st year

tors, new bucking chutes, timed event chutes and a center alley for the barrel racers has been added to the Bogata Rodeo.

Parades will be featured at 6:00 p.m. on Thursday and Saturday, preceding the performances of the rodeo.

Dates for the rodeo this year are June 22-23-24, the last weekend of the month. Performances will begin at 8:00 p.m. nightly at the Bogata Rodeo Arena.

A live band will be at each performance to keep every event in perfect time. Rodeo specialty act, Rudy Burns, Coors' "Man in the Can", will be featured this year, along with the Lone Star Riders who will be providing drill team on horseback.

This year, exciting rodeo events will include bareback riding, calf roping, saddle bronc riding, steer wrestling, team roping, bull riding, barrel racing, kids mutton bustin' and for the spectators, the Ring of Fear.

Jerald and Joan Smith have made rodeo their life's work,. And their breeding program is paying off. After many years of selective breeding, cross breeding and hand-choosing sires and mares, they now possess one of the strongest herd of bucking horses of any rodeo company in business today. The sires and mares come to the Pine Branch ranch from as far away as Canada, filtering down through generations of carefully selected breeding. Jerald is constantly looking for that "perfect bucking horse or bull". His reputation for quality livestock is known throughout the United States and Canada, as various producers communicate with knowledge of rodeo livestock is not book-learned. Only a person whose desire to reach perfection and the dedication to make it happen is able to reach this level of "savvy" where horses and bulls are involved. And you mustn't overlook the love and compassion for the animals themselves that is imperative in order to complete the package. Super additions to the Wing Rodeo Company 2000 tour include +88, "Flash", voted Bucking Bull of the Year on the Super Bull Tour and PRCA Bucking Bull of the Great Lakes Circuit Finals; #4, "Target", 1999 Super Bull Of The Year; and #18, "Macho Man", Regional Bucking Bull of the Year in 1999.

And, as always, Saturday is Frontier Day in Bogata, with the Bogata Lions Club sponsoring all day activities in downtown Bogata. The complete schedule will run in next week's edition of the Bogata News. The final performance on Saturday night will be marked with a rodeo dance at the Moonlight Jubilee in Rosalie.

Mark your calendar now for next weekend, June 22-23-24, why waste time and money on the rest, when you can see the best, right here in Bogata, Texas!!

Admission prices are $6.00 for adults and $4.00 for children, available in advance or at the gate.

going to need the herbs, are we?

Then there are all the diet drinks, and bars and shakes and stuff that we are told we can happily live on until we are thin and trim forever. Don't know about you guys, but a chocolate flavored bar that is one inch by two inches in size doesn't send me into raptures like it does that overheated model on TV!

Thrown in with all this hype are products that burn carbohydrates, block carbs or turn your body into a metabolism boosted calorie burner.

Diet products are one of the biggest selling items in the United States. The easier the weight lost is purported to be, the more it sells.

Which leads me to my question. If all this stuff works so well, why are there so many overweight people?

No one wishes it was quick and easy and effortless more than I do. But it's not and I'm not stupid enough to spend undreds of dollars a month n products that will "melt" my fat away. The only thing melting away is money!

Dear Nanalee,

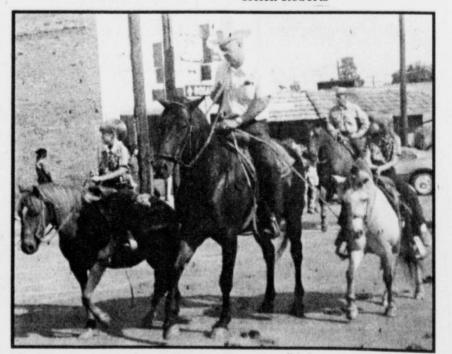

Your Nichols Worth column about "Miss Ina" inspired me to write you and pay a small tribute to Dr. E.L. Miller.

My family has been going to him for years. He seems to understand that people don't have time to be sick. You can always count on him to prescribe something strong enough to knock what's ailing you.

Dr. Miller, I know you could have made so much more money working in a large city, all these years, of course, that's just like you, to think of others and not yourself.

You mean the world to me and my family and I'm sure to many others.

What else can I say but "I love you and appreciate you so much." However, you deserve so much more recognition than this. Helen Roberts

FOOT

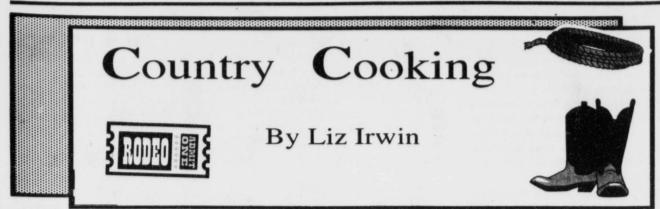

NOTES PRONATING FLAT FEET Being flat footed is a common condition that usually causes no problems if a person's feet are flat and also turn in, or pronate, however, physical difficulties could result. With pronation, the leg turns in , the heel and forefoot push out, and the inner ankle bulges. The pelvis and lower back may also become misaligned. Because of the stress on muscles, ligaments and joints, a flat footed person may experience overall fatigue and tired feet. Over time, untreated pronation can cause arthritis, bunions, irritation of the nerves and other deformities. It can also make a person more susceptible to shin splints, as the leg must work harder to compensate for the pronation. Customized shoe inserts (orthotics) are often recommended for pronation. The components of the foot and leg are designed to work together, sharing the tremendous pressures of day to day living. When they don't work properly, though, it can cause trouble for the rest of the body and it's time to get help. The specialized care and treatment a podiatrist provides can make an important contribution to an individual's total health. We provide foot care for all members of your family here at DOCTOR'S FOOT CLINIC, 784-5585. We do this with compassion and commitment to your good health.

This week's cook come to us from the Red River County Courthouse Annex building in Clarksville. They prepare dishes and continually deght the other employees with their culinary masterpieces which they bring to the office. Lorie Moose, County Clerk specializes in entrees. Shirley Anderson, County Auditor, also has her specialties and when they combine their talents, there is quite a spread for Annex officials and employees.

Lori Moose was elected County Clerk in 1998, having served as Deputy Clerk for Mary Hausler for 17 years before Mary retired. She is married to Shawn Moose and their pride and joy is their daughter Emily. Emily is a fourth grader at Clarksville Elementary. Her mother is Marveline Langston, wife of Buddy Langston. She is well known n Clarksville as a hairdresser at Anabel's Beauty Shop. Lori enjoys cooking for her family and regularly treats them and her co-workers with her specialties.

Shirley Anderson has been County Auditor for the past eight years. She and her husband Bill live in Fulbright. They raise cattle and horses. Bill is retired from Uarco and serves as Veteran's Officer for Red River County. They are the parents of three grown sons. Stan and Lasca and their family live in New Orleans; David and Toni and their three daughters live in Rosalie; and Brad and Rena and their two daughters live at Fulbright. In total, they have seven granddaughters, who keep them busy when they are not at work. Shirley has lots of family members who enjoy her home cooked meals. These two ladies are required to work long hours for the County, sometimes burning the midnight oil in fulfilling the duties of their jobs. For the County Clerk's Office, election day calls for starting early and staying late. Usually on that day, all the offices in the Annex bring food because no one has an opportunity to leave for lunch. Also, employee's birthdays are observed with the individual's favorite dish being brought for them, which could be one or more of the following.

Lasagne-Shirley Anderson-this is a favorite of everyone and takes a little time, but is not as hard to make as everyone thinks!

Wedding Reception Punch-Shirley Anderson-this recipe makes from 75-100 cups depending on the size you use. Freeze and add ginger ale right before use. Shirley's Banana Pudding-this

F. Fagan Thompson dies at the age of ninety-nine

A bright light dimmed June 16, 2000 when Dr. F. Fagan Thompson passed away after a brief bout with cancer at his home on a hilltop in Wimberley, Texas.

Minister, musician, psychologist, writer, visionary, horticulturist, teacher, choir director, Ph.D., farmer, father, husband, grandfather, great-grandfather, uncle, stepfather, friend. It seems a short list for a man who, in his 99 years of living, left a trail of light and smiles behind him everywhere he went. Sometimes, labels don't describe the

Born on October 20, 1901, to Efford Oliver Thompson and Jessie Lee Thompson in Deport, Texas, Fagan left Texas after earning an A.A. degree from Wesley College, using his fine voice and talent as a choir director to work his way to Nashville, Tennessee where he earned a B.S. in history from Peabody College for Teachers before enrolling at Vanderbilt University to pursue an M.A. in socio-economics in 1926 and a B.D. in hymnody in 1928.

During his 18 years at Vanderbilt, where he both studied and taught, Fagan directed choirs at the university and the Second Presbyterian Church, taught Religion & the Arts, Worship, Hymnody and the Psychology of Religion. From 1929 to 1931, with a stipend from Vanderbilt, he worked as a doctoral student in psychology at Edinburgh University in Scotland where

As an Assistant Professor, upon returning to Vanderbilt, Fagan taught the Psychology of Religion in the School of Religion. Among the courses were Christian Worship, Religion & the Arts, Hymnody and the Psychology of Religion. Depression hit Vanderbilt and the Hoover Foundation withdrew its funding for a new department of psychology, the arts and religion, which Fagan was to have chaired, leaving him, along with a host of other young professors, without a job.

During the Depression years, Fagan began traveling for the Methodist Publishing House, teaching the Methodist Hymnal and hymnody to groups in 17 states, some of them, small local conferences; other as large as 2,500 to 10,000 voices.

Fagan went on to minister to churches and lead choirs throughout the South, using his background in psychology to offer counseling services through the churches.

He was a pioneer in mental health, speaking on the radio and working in the Social Hygiene and Mental Health Association in Alabama. When the counseling began to emerge as his greatest strength, Fagan went back to school at Peabody College through the V.A. program, earning post-graduate degrees in clinical psychology and counseling during the mid to late 1950s.

Except for a brief stint in private practice, Fagan remained with the V.A. program, working in hospital in Tennessee and Arkansas for internships. For five years he was Director of Psychological Services Center in Shreveport, La. (private prac-

For 12 years Fagan worked mainly in th

Security's Bureau of Hearings & Appeals and Texas Rehabilitation Commission. He also served as consultant to the Rusk Juvenile Probation Department.

During his work with the mentally ill and emotionally disturbed, he focused on creating job programs through local merchants for hospital patients in a day treatment program, enabling them to earn money and to enhance their sense of self-worth.

He also wrote throughout his ministerial career for the Methodist publication "The Upper Room"

Fagan's professional credentials and organizations paint the picture of a man whose interests in the human spirit ranged from spiritual to scientific, from the very young to the very old. They fill pages and speak of a man tireless in his search for understanding and healing the workings of humankind, but Fagan is perhaps best memorialized by the words of the people whose lives he touched

His wife, Harriet, with home he moved to Wimberley in 1990, when her toxic response syndrome required cleaner air than East Texas afforded, said that, to her, he exemplified the golden rule more than anyone she ever knew. She and Fagan's niece, Jan Prichard Cohen from Bainbridge Island, Washington, described him as larger than life, a man whose life revolved least around himself.

"He was an other-centered person," says Harriet. "He never said I'

He was also a man of boundless energy, both intellectual and physical. He was fascinated by politics and in his spare time, taught swimming. Most of his life, he held several jobs at one time.

"In a sense", says Harriet, "he never retired. He was not a person to retire".

"He like to help people", says Jan. "He was like a good shepherd. His whole world was not just his family, but the people he came in contact with. He had the ability to reach out to people and put them on the right track.'

During Fagan's brief illness, his family contacted friends to tell them he would soon be passing. One friend, Kathryn Goad, had lived in an orphanage with which Fagan had worked, providing a children's orches-

"His philosophy has always been, 'If I can help a robin into his nest again, I will not have lived in vain'. I was one of those 'robins'-an orphan child-he helped me not to be afraid, smile and stand straight and tall

One of his stepsons, Geoffrey Pomeroy of Austin, who has known Fagan since Geoffrey was a child says "It's hard to imagine any man being a better role model for a child."

Jan describes him as a visionary, a dreamer whose dreams didn't always work out, but not because he didn't put the effort into realizing them. Fagan looked to the future, believing and practicing the values and techniques of the green movement long before it ever had a name. He loved the land and planted trees he would never see bear fruit because the children of the future would enjoy that fruit.

vegetables and fruit, the small green persimmons taking shape on the trees, the great green valley tumbling forth below.

Fagan and Harriet believed Sanctuary to be a blessed spot, infused with spirit and grace, a place where Fagan brought Harriet to heal from toxic exposure and put the building of his own house on hold when he saw the need for housing for the environmentally ill. Several small buildings surround the Thompsons' home, cabins where for many years, people with environmental sensitivities could come to heal. Harriet says she remembers Fagan tearing down a house in New Braunfels at the age of 97 to use the scrap wood for building. Throughout his life, Fagan Thompson taught the people around him-and there were many-how to live a better life. And, in the end, says Jan, "He taught us all how to die. I doubt that many people have had the experience we have had during his last few davs.

Fagan died without pain early on the morning of June 16. Leading up to his death, he took phone calls from friends and relatives, remembering past moments with them, reassuring them and never losing his sense of humor.

A light of that intensity never truly goes out. Fagan Thompson left behind a human legacy that will keep it burning.

Fagan was preceded in death by his parents, Efford Oliver Thompson and Jessie Lee Fagan Thompson and by his sister, Earle Thmpson Prichard.

He is survived by his wife, Harriet Lieber Thompson of Wimberly; his daughter, Jean Thompson Greenway and her husband, Harmon Greenway of Lawrenceville, Georgia; his son, Fagan Thompson, Jr. of Nashville, Tennessee; grandchildren Robert Scogin, Ann Scogin, Randy Scogin and Kathy Harvey; and great-grandchildren,

Caroline and Elizabeth Harvey. He is also survived by his niece, Jan Prichard Cohen of Washington; great niece, Anne Cohen Kiel, and her children, Miriam and Aase Marie; great nephew, Geoffrey Cohen and his children, Tess & Grace; his stepsons, Robin Pomeroy of Shreveport, La.; Geoffrey Pomeroy of Austin and Christopher Pomeroy, his wife, Sherri and children Danielle and Michael of Austin, Texas. A memorial service will be held July 21, 2:30 p.m. at the Unitarian Universalist Church, 9449 Ellerbe Road, Shreveport, Louisiana. The family reques s that donations be to your charity of choice or to the following organizations which were of special interest to Fagan:

Card of Thanks

The family of Myrtie Wilkerson wants to express our sincere appreciation to everyone for the many acts of sympathy extended to us in our time of grief. A special "Thank You" to the First Responders and EMS for the many times they have come to our rescue. With their knowledge and experience, they have helped in many ways. Thanks to the doctors and nurses, Dr. Eliz, Dr. Plummer, Dr. Zimmerman and the many nurses for the many hours they worked with and stood by mother to the end. To the pastors for their encouragement words of comfort and for such a wo derful service, we say thanks. The musicians did a great job with the songs they sang. For all the food, flowers, prayers, calls, words of comfort and all your loving acts of kindness, we shall never forget.

May God bless each of you. Thanks,

The Family of Myrtie Wilkerson

We want to take this opportunity to thank every one of our friends and relatives who registered in our guest book and came to our 70th wedding anniversary celebration. Also, thanks to all those who sent cards or called. There were 80 cards and 25 long distance calls, including many from the west coast.

COLLEGE STATION - If you can't teach an old dog new tricks, maybe you can teach him to file letters and deliver mail.

Some companies are allowing their employees to take their pets to work, a move designed to help worker morale and relieve stress. The idea is not a bad one at all, says a Texas A&M University animal behaviorist.

Dr. Bonnie Beaver, a professor in the College of Veterinary Medicine, believes the current trend may continue to grow, but it has to be monitored to be effective. While some employees may enjoy taking their pets to work and avoid a case of homesickness, for others it may mean getting sick, period.

"Some people are allergic to animal hair and having a dog roaming the office is not going to be their idea of a good day," says Beaver.

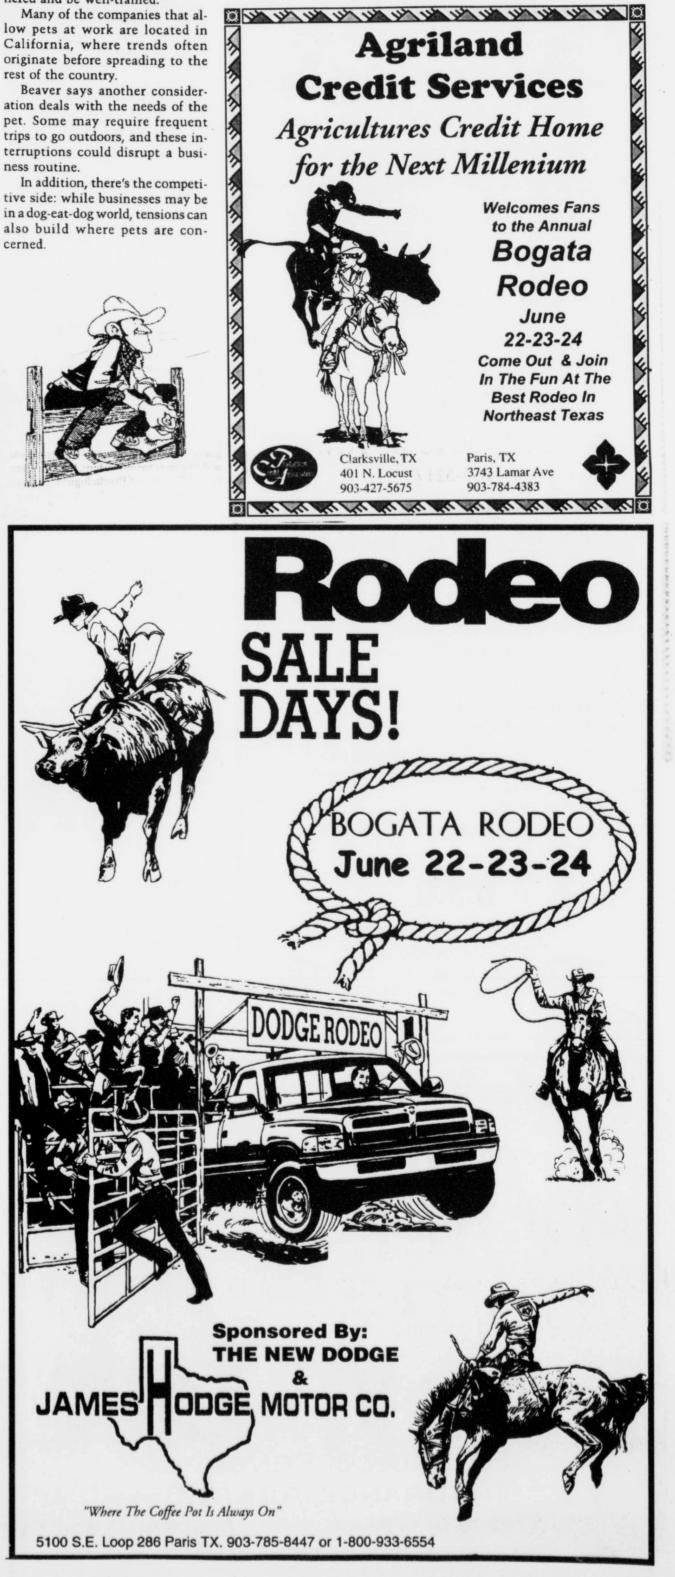

"The companies that allow pets at work need to set certain guidelines, foremost among them the well- being of their own employees. You have to consider common courtesy to one another. That means the pets must be well mannered and be well-trained."

YWCA schedules summer classes

A summer class schedule that is full of fun will be offered by the YWCA of Paris and Lamar County, according to Nicki Brown, program director.

Swimming, gymnastics, watercolor, kitchen table pottery and Tai-Bo are among the classes offered.

Swimming classes will meet the needs of babies as young as six months through adults who would like to learn to swim. All lessons are sanctioned by the American Red Cross and are offered at the indoor pool at Aerofit Fitness Center.

Swim classes are scheduled in four two-week sessions throughout the summer. Lessons are for Red Cross Level I (for those who are just learning to be comfortable in the water) to Level IV (for those who can perform a combined front and back crawl). All instructors for swim lessons are Certified Red Cross Water Safety Instructors.

Gymnastics classes will be offered for girls and boys as young as three years to young teens. Kindergym classes are designed especially for pre-school children. Progressive classes for girls and boys help children age six and up to develop skills.

Girls and boys who participate in gymnastics classes will work on floor, bar, beam, vaulting and trampoline skills. Gymnastics classes are held in the YWCA Activity Center at 7 Lamar Avenue.

Watercolor classes are structured to meet the needs of children as young as six year old through adults. Only two students per class are scheduled, which gives the instructor the ability to spend much time with each individual student. Beginners, as well as those who have been painting for some time are invited to register.

Watercolor classes are scheduled hourly from 1:00 p.m. until 6:00 p.m. each Monday through Friday. All classes are held in the Watercolor Art Studio overlooking Bywaters Park at the YWCA Main Building.

Kitchen Table Pottery classes are especially designed for adults and older teens, although a children's class may be developed upon demand. The benefit of learning to create pottery at the kitchen table is that students can continue to practice their skills at home with no special equipment re quired to turn out beautiful pieces.

Kitchen Table Pottery classes will be offered in a five-week session. Classes will be held each Tuesday, June 6, 13, 20, 27 and July 11 from 7:00-9:00 p.m. Kitchen Table Pottery will be held at the YWCA Main Building

Tai-Bo classes are led by a facilitator and focus on commercial Tai-Bo tapes. Classes are free to YWCA members and will be scheduled three times a week on demand. Tai-Bo classes will be held in the small ballroom at the YWCA Main Building.

For more information about YWCA classes or to register, please phone the office at 785-5221.

COLLEGE STATION - Techniques pioneered by Texas A&M University's Archaeological Preservation Research Laboratory (APRL), initially intended for use on artifacts, may also play significant roles in areas such as education, medicine and industry, said C. Wayne Smith, a co-inventor of the processes.

While Smith, a professor in Texas A&M's Department of Anthropology, sees the importance of preserving artifacts such as corn cobs from the 1870 provenance of Yorktown, Pa., and fragile glass bottles from the 1600s, it is the wider applications that excite him, he said.

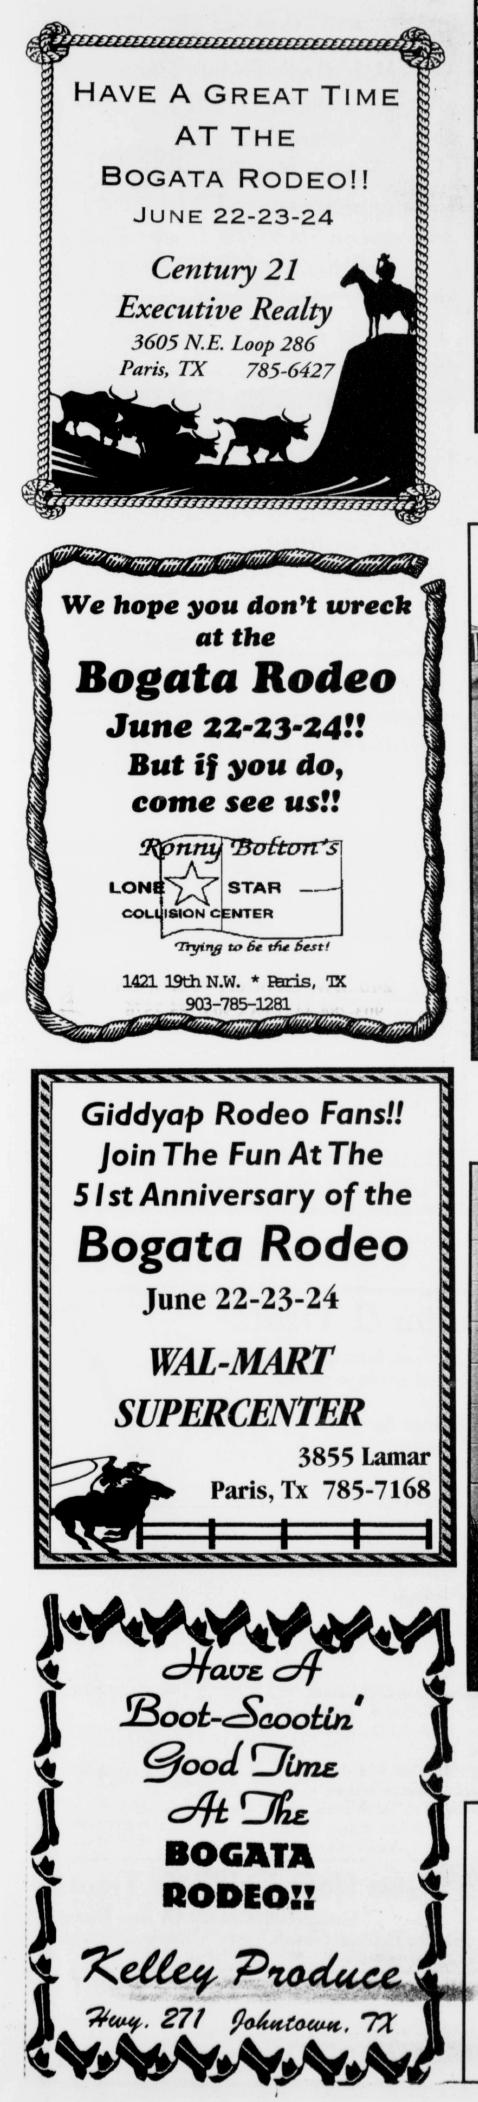

"That's a neat thing in research - that you can do something that's beneficial within your discipline and then go further to put it into other industries," said Smith, who is APRL's founder.

The processes Smith has helped develop, in conjunction with Dow Corning Corp., are preservation methods aimed at the conservation of organic and inorganic materials. Through the uses and combinations of agents such as silicone oils, APRL has not only improved upon existing preservation techniques, but also invented better ones – innovation that has resulted in the first, second and third patents for Texas A&M's College of Liberal Arts, Smith said.

"The use of resins, silicone oils and other polymers for stabilization and consolidation of anatomical and biological specimens has nearly unlimited possibilities," Smith said.

To most people nothing is more troublesome than the effort of thinking.

EPA decision to protect East Texas forest landowners

Congressman Max Sandlin has applauded a decision by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to delete forestry provisions in the Total Maximum Daily Load regulations to be finalized by the agency this summer.

In August of last year, EPA proposed rules that would have subjected forest landowners to costly new federal regulations. The EPA's proposed regulations would have reversed the 27-year statutory interpretation of the Clean Water Act and case law by eliminating the designation of forestry activities as a "non point source" activity for water pollution. Currently, non-point source activities are not regulated by the federal government.

Earlier this year, Congressman Sandlin wrote to the EPA to express his opposition to the proposed rules. Sandlin also wrote letters to the President and Vice President to voice his disagreement with the rule and urge them to reconsider their support for the EPA's position. Foresters in East Texas and the surrounding area were also given the opportunity to learn more about the problems with the proposed rules at a public meeting Congressman Sandlin helped organize in Texarkana. As a final measure, Sandlin introduced legislation that would have prevented the agency from imposing the rules on forest landowners. "I believed the Administration was wrong on this issue, and I did everything I could think of to stop the EPA, said Sandlin.

"Texas has developed a highly successful, voluntary approach to pollution control and a "bad actor" law to enforce the provisions where necessary," said Sanldin. "Since 1991, the Texas Forest Service, in cooperation with EPA, the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board, the forest industry, Texas Logging Council, and forest landowner associations, has conducted extensive training of foresters, loggers and landowners to understand Best Management Practices and how to implement them."

"I appreciate the efforts of my consitituents in the forestry community, my colleagues in the House and Senate, and the officials at EPA to address the problems with the agency's proposed rules. This is a great vic-

Humane society to hold fundraiser

The Red River County Humane Society will hold an "all you can eat" fundraiser on Saturday, June 24 at the Dairy Queen in Clarksville.

The event will be an all you can eat biscuits and gravy contest with the prize being a VCR.

Entry fee for the fundraiser is $10.00 with sign up at the DQ. Everyone is invited to support this very worthwhile cause by having fun at the Dairy Queen.

TEAM ROPING

"A team consists of two cowboys, one header and one heeler. The header ropes the steer, pulls the steer away from the heeler, giving him the opportunity to rope the steer around the hind legs or heels.

TEAM ROPING PENALTIES

The team roping header must ride from behind a barrier to give the steer a head start. If the header breaks the barrier, a 10 second penalty is added to the team's total time. In average ropings, the teams are usually allowed three loops, meaning that the header can miss with his first loop and rebuild, or the heeler can rope the head and let the header rope the heels. Usually at one-headers, tv loops are allowed, should either team partner miss, the team will receive a no time. If the heeler catches only one heel, a five second penalty is added to the team's time. A total of 15 seconds in penalties can be added to the team's time, the highest penalty allowed for a broken barrier and picking up only one heel. A disqualification can also occur if the team doesn't "face" the steer to the judge's satisfaction; if the team undallies and rides up on the steer before the judge is allowed to make a decision; or if the head loop is in a figure-8 around the steeer's head or horns. When you hear the announcer say "hold your dallies", this point of order is what they are referring to.

Checking hay for fire danger

Phone calls to the Lamar County Extension Offic reminded agents of some important points that should be considered in baling and storing hay to prevent losses. Extension specialists contend that the biggest losses are caused by delaying harvest past the optimum development stage. Tests have shown that bermudagrass digestibility declines 0.2 percentage points per day from four to eight weeks of age.

The next greatest cause of hay loss is rain. Amount of loss depends on the amount, duration and timing of the rain in relation to cutting time. Purdue University found that one inch of rain reduced the TDN content of field-cured hay five percent. In general, losses are much greater for direr hay than for fresh cut hay. Often rain soaked hay must be re-raked which increase leaf loss.

With these possible haymaking losses in mind, producers strive to cut hay at the proper stage of maturity, cure is as fast as possible, minimize excess manipulation of the hay, bale promptly when dry and store properly. Nutrient and drv matter losses can occur during storage. The percent of hay moisture at storage is directly related to nutrient and dry matter losses. The usual moisture for baling is from 10 to 20%. The greater the moisture content at storage, the greater the losses.

High moisture condition permits hay to undergo heating that results in losses of quality. In addition to loss of quality the hay may catch on fire. According to Southern Forages, hay temperature can be monitored by making probe out of a 10 foot piece of 2-inch pipe. One end of the pipe should be sealed with a sharpened plug. The pipe can be driven into a stack or large bale followed by lowering a thermometer into the pipe. Readings should be taken at several locations and depths, leaving the thermometer in place 10-15 minutes at each location =before the reading.

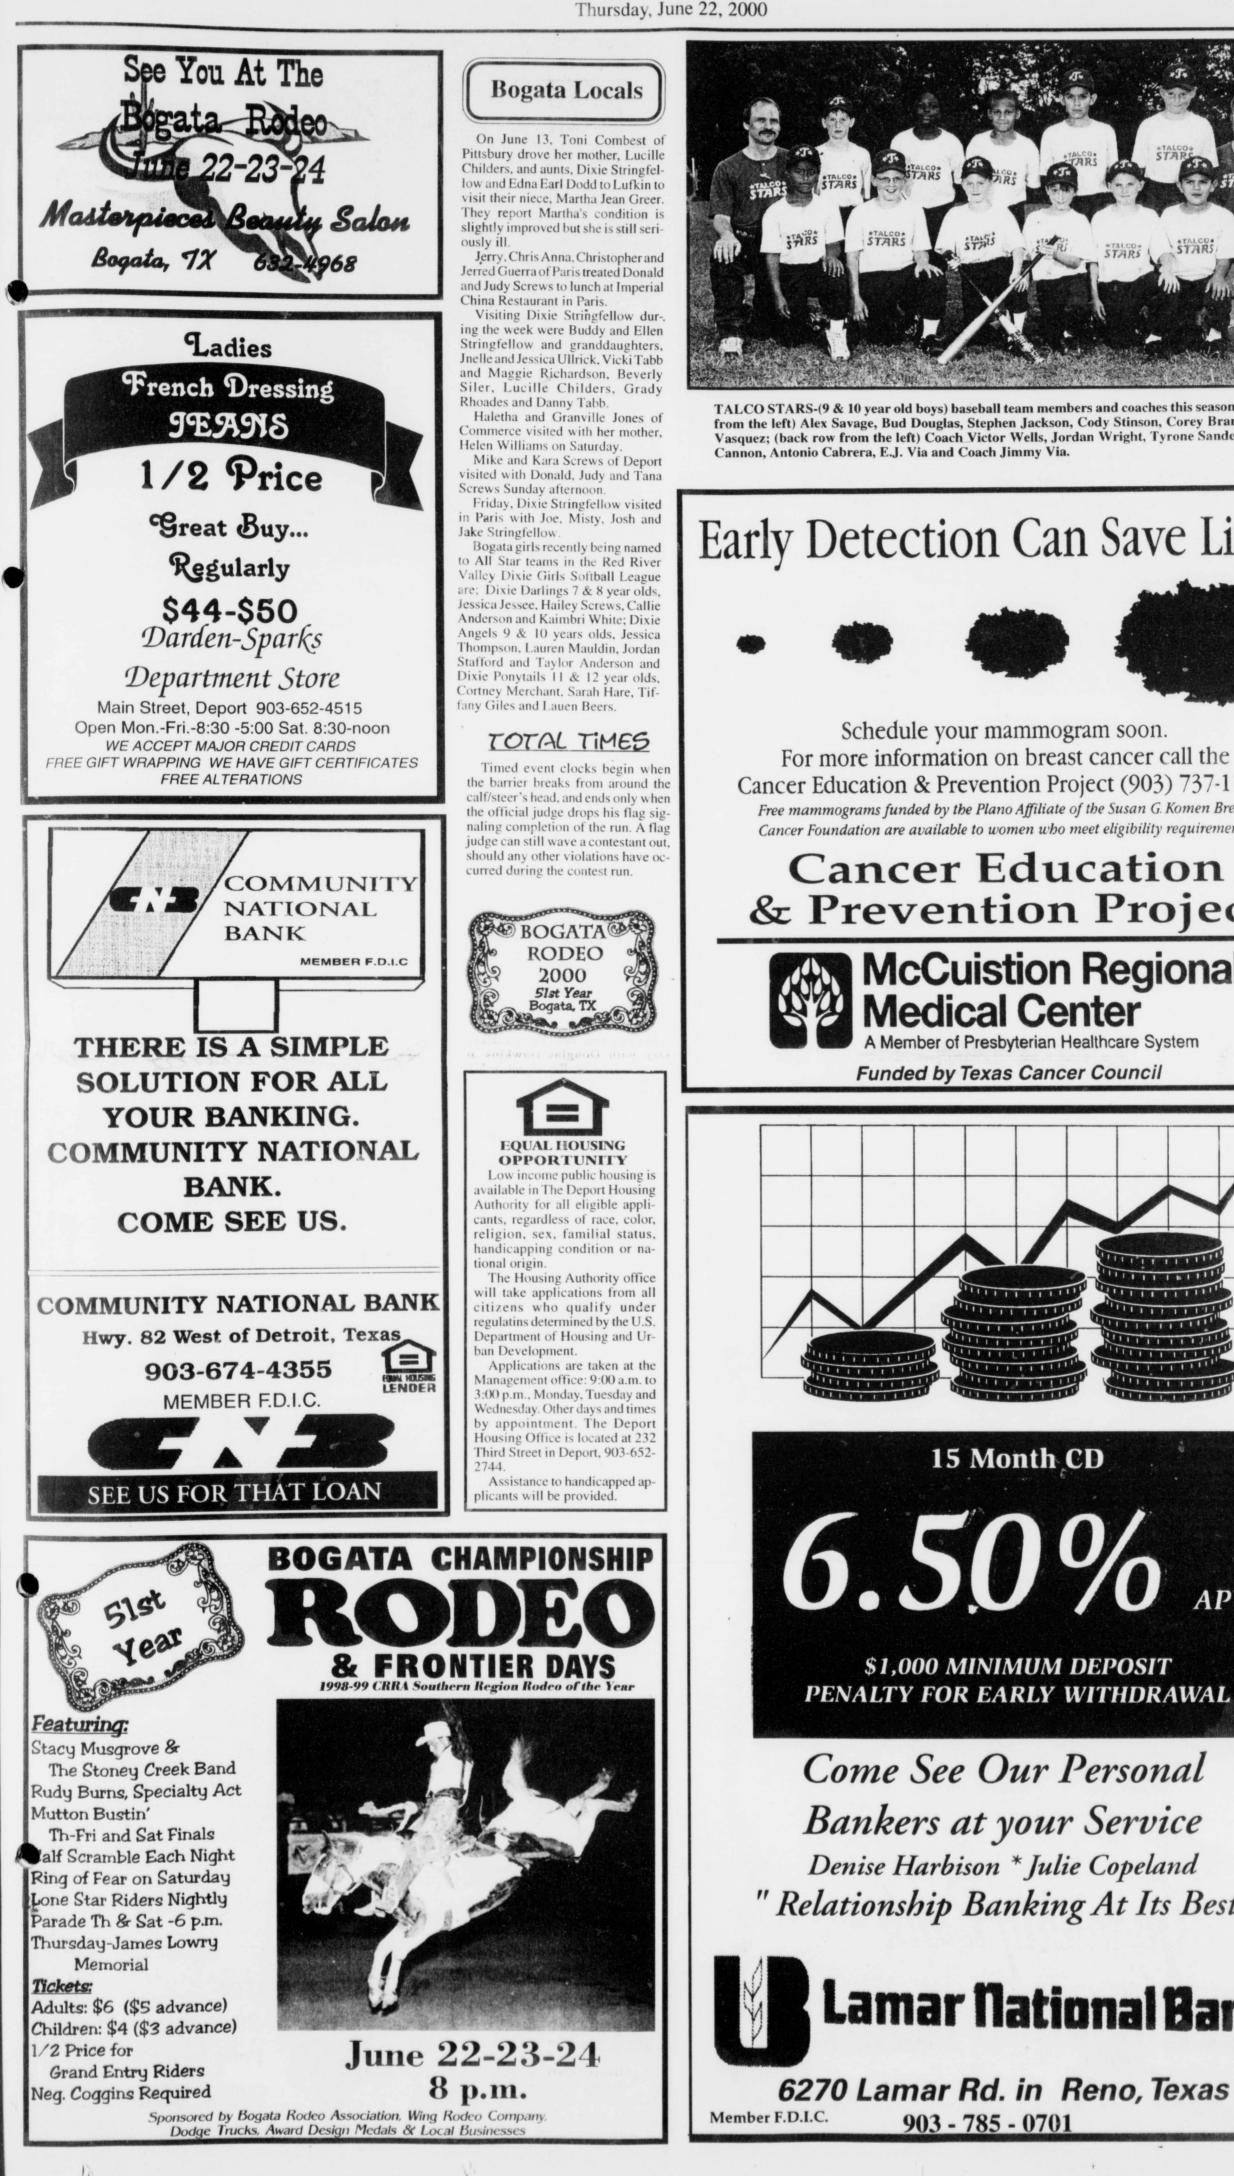

The books states that when hay temperatures remain below 120 degrees, it is considered safe. Between 120-140 degrees is considered a danger zone and the hay should be closely monitored. If the temperature goes above 160 degrees, a fire is likely.

City of Deport 201 Main Street Deport, Texas 75435

To All Interested Agencies, Groups and Per-

Seventeen (17) days after this publication, the City of Deport, Texas intends to request the Texas Department of Housing and Community Affairs (TDHCA) to release Federal funds under Title 1 of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 (P.L. 93-383) for Project No. 720201. Environmental Assessment Activities: Improvements to the City's wastewater collection system and its water distribution system. Finding of No Significant Impact: It has been determined that such a request of release of funds will not constitute an action significantly affecting the quality of the human environment and accordingly the City of Deport has decided not to prepare an Environmental Impact Statement under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (P.L. 91-190). The reason for such a decision not to prepare such a Statement is based upon the fact that all environmental concerns could certification is that upon its approval, the City of Deport may use the Block Grant Funds and it will have satisfied its responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969. TDHCA will accept an objection to its approval only on one or more of the bases and the procedures described in 24 CFR Part 58.75. Objections are to be addressed to the Texas Department of Housing and Community Affairs, PO. Box 13941 Austin, Texas 78711.

Objections to the release of funds on bases other than those stated above will not be considered by the TDHCA. No objections received later than thirty-three (33) days after this publication will be considered by TDHCA. Charles Foster, Mayor
