Torchlight support 'phenomenal'

Support officer lauds efforts of units throughout base

By Sgt. Mike Breslin
editor

With all the emphasis on the maintenance and operations aspects of the wing's 1989 Torchlight team, some people may not realize the amount of Torchlight support activities going on.

According to 1st Lt. Ron Smith, the support team captain, organizations from all over Reese have pitched in to give this year's team the edge going into competition.

"The support from around base has been just phenomenal," the lieutenant said. "When we go to Randolph (AFB, Texas), it won't be just operations and maintenance competing — everyone in the wing and its associate units are a part of the effort."

Many organizations on base, such as the 64th Civil Engineering Squadron; 64th Security Police Squadron; Reese Federal Credit Union; 1958th Communications Squadron; and the Morale, Welfare and Recreation Division have raised funds and/or donated goods to the team.

Other agencies who've helped out include the Community Service Council, 64th Mission Support Squadron, and 64th Supply Squadron. Of course, the operations and maintenance complexes have also held fund-raisers.

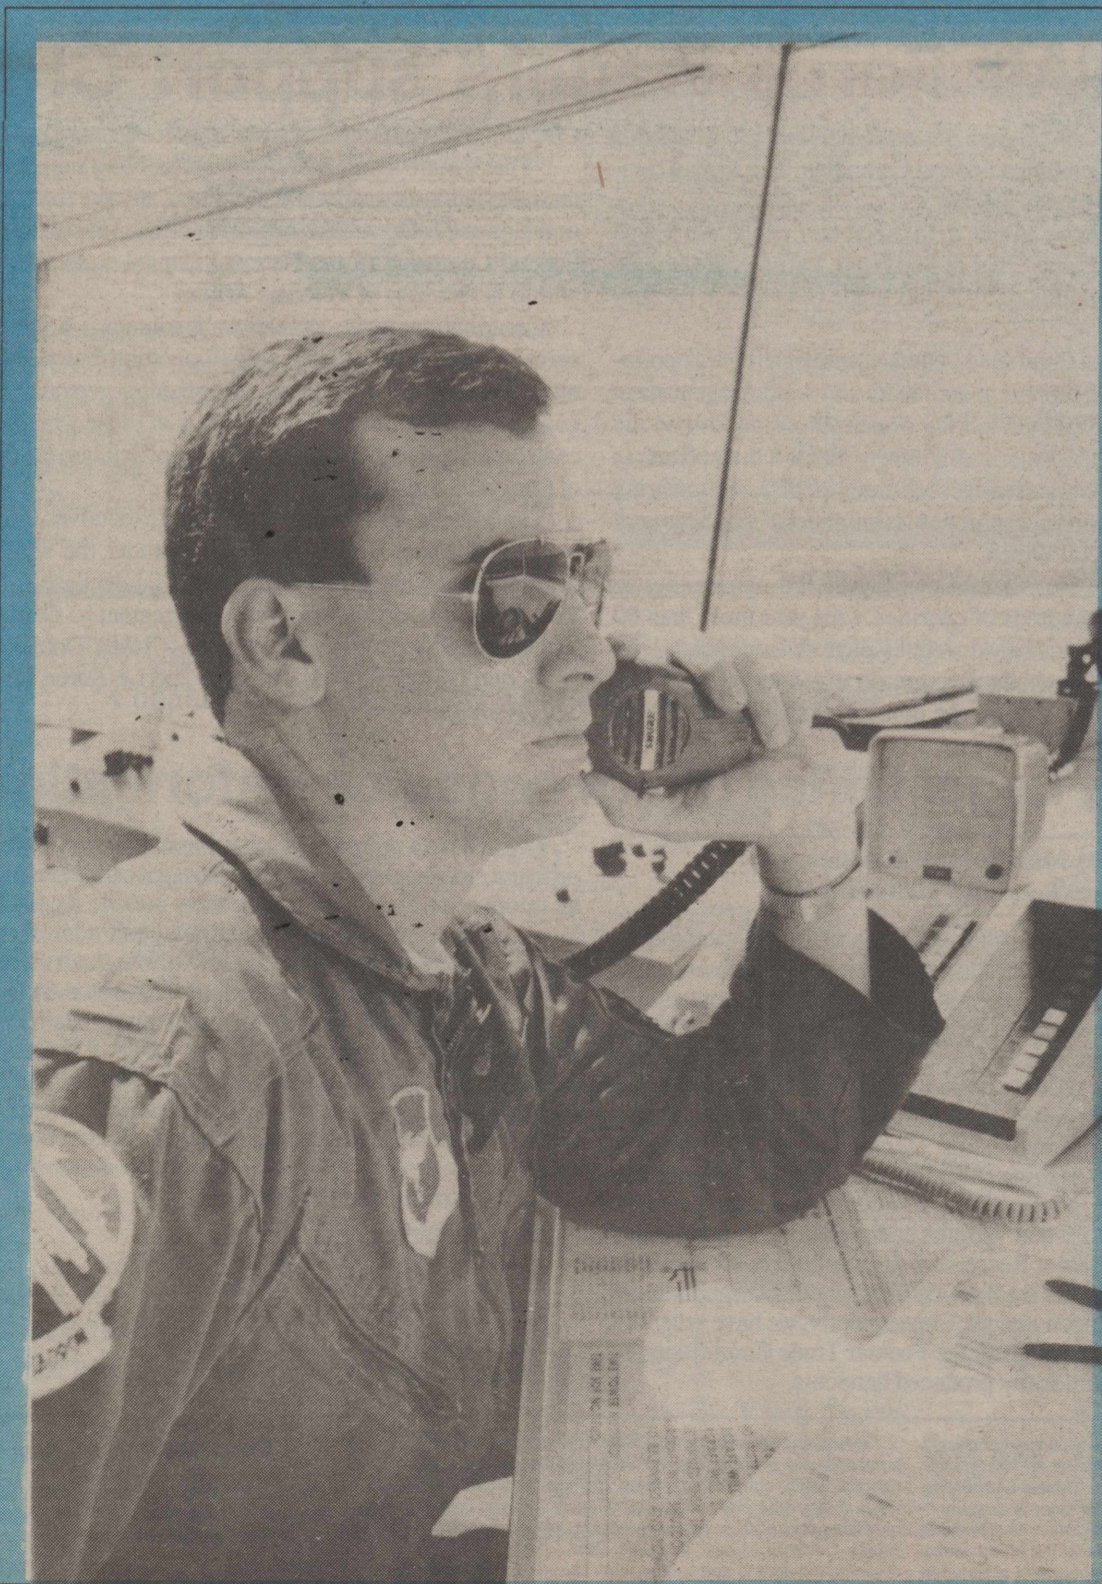

One support effort that has received a lot of attention is the construction of the team sign, which was done by Lieutenant Smith and Joe Rodriguez from the Reese Transportation Division.

"After the suggestion was made that we have a sign to identify our area at the competition, I came up with a design and took it to Mr. Rodriguez," Lieutenant Smith said. "He improved the design and then spent about 25 work hours completing the project."

Future support efforts include:

Operations keeps pace

First Lt. Mike Turley, 54th Flying Training Squadron, surveys Reese flight line traffic from a runway supervisory unit Monday. Flying operations in the wing have greatly improved since weather caused problems at the beginning of the summer. Col. Jerry Deakin, 64th Flying Training Wing deputy commander for operations, recently took time to talk about how the operations complex is doing. For details, see "One on One," page three.

UPT Class 89-15 graduates tonight

Twenty-seven of the Air Force's newest aviators will receive their wings today as Undergraduate Pilot Training Class 89-15 graduates tonight in a ceremony at the Reese Officers' Open Mess.

The guest speaker for the graduation will be Brig. Gen. Ronald W. Iverson, vice commander of the Air Force Military Personnel Center, located at Randolph AFB, Texas.

The evening gets underway at 5:15 p.m. with a parents' social. The graduation ceremony follows at 5:50 p.m., and that will lead into a reception and dinner dance beginning at 7 p.m.

In addition to wings, several students will be honored for their performance during the past year of training. Awards will be given for: Commander's Trophy (top overall graduate), Distinguished Graduate, Leadership Award, Outstanding Second Lieutenant, Top Stick (best in flying training) and Academic Excellence.

Awards will also be given to the outstanding academic and flying training instructor pilots in each training aircraft, as well as to the top crew chiefs on each trainer.

Seven members of UPT Class 89-15 have been given follow-on assignments to Reese as instructor pilots. The returning IPs are: 2nd Lts. John Boyd Daniel, Carl Michael Mag-nell, William James Miner, Gregory Scott Myers, Tyson Allen Rhame, Chad Russell Sevigny, and Michael Ivan White.

Other graduates are: Capts. Charles Duane Black and Jonathan M. Ellis, and 2nd Lts. Christopher Scott Anderson, Darril C. Bill, John R. Boyd, Dean Eric Bray, Jeffrey L. Butler, Peter W. Ching, Scott Thomas Crase, Christopher Michael Ermandes, Michael R. Frankel, Joel Patrick Harveaux, Kirk Patrick Johnson, Michael Andrew Kirchoff, Monte James Kleman, Thomas Michael Sexton, James B. Sisler, Grant A. Snitker, Jr., Kevin A. P. Thompson, and Dean Edward Webb.

The class looks back on their year of training on page four.

Commander's perspective

By Col. Monroe S. Sams Jr.
64th FTW commander

Today there are many celebrations going on at Reese — milestone events which help highlight the special quality of Air Force life. Beginning with our monthly NCO Status and Enlisted Promotion Ceremony this morning at the Enlisted Open Mess, these events also include promotion ceremonies for two of the wing's rising leaders, and a retirement ceremony for four chief master sergeants from the maintenance complex. Our Torchlight team will also have the opportunity to "show their stuff" during a demonstration open to all base people on the flight line in front of Base Operations this afternoon. Added to all these events are all the tours and activities for families and friends of UPT Class 89-15, whose graduation ceremony and dinner at the Officers' Open Mess this evening will culminate the day's activities.

It's a big day for many in the Reese community — and since we've used up our quota for flying hours for the fiscal year, the flightline won't be buzzing at its usual hectic pace. Hopefully, this will give more of us a chance to participate in these special events.

Receiving his colonel's eagles at Reese Manor at 2 p.m. will be our Assistant Deputy Commander for Maintenance, Bill Duncan. The operations officer for the 35th Flying Training Squadron, Gary Praesel, will be promoted to lieutenant colonel at 1:30 p.m. in the squadron headquarters. These two represent many Reese officers, NCOs and airmen who will advance in rank during the next month — part of the natural progression of an Air Force career.

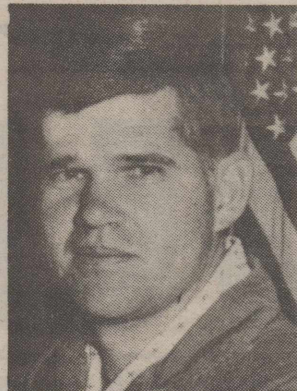

The retirement of four chiefs, representing more than 110 years of combined maintenance experience, is a particularly significant ceremony, being held at 4 p.m. on the flightline. In this case, we're celebrating the accomplishments of some dedicated professionals, supported by their very special families, who have been mainstays on the flightline and maintenance shops of Reese. As they transition to yet another phase of Air Force life, we bid "Best Wishes" to CMSgts. Joe Dykes, Leonard Minzer, Harry Salyer and Larry Wittich and their families for a happy retirement.

Immediately preceding the retirement ceremony, at 3 p.m., our Torchlight team will provide a demonstration of the maintenance skills that will bring home the trophy next month after the competition at Randolph AFB, Texas. This event will be marked by the return of the Torchlight operations crews to Reese from their deployment to England AFB, La., where they have been practicing the flying skills that are going to capture the operations trophies at Torchlight '89. If you haven't already guessed — we're planning to bring home all the bacon for Reese this year. Last year's fine team garnered many honors for the wing, and raised our expectations. The team is ready!

And finally, the graduation of 89-15. With graduations occurring roughly every three weeks throughout the year, it would be easy to consider them routine. But each class is unique and special, and we want to make their day special, too. After all, each graduation serves as a reminder to all of us at Reese of why we're here in the first place: to train the world's best military pilots. All of us support that mission and share the pride that the members of 89-15 feel as they achieve a milestone in their Air Force careers.

Let me close with a word of thanks to all of you who answered the call for support for our Torchlight Team. The response of all Reese units in conducting car washes, food sales and all kinds of creative fund-raisers have made it possible to send our team off in style — allowing them to worry about the competition, not about raising money. More importantly, you made it clear that they represent the entire wing and the Reese community. Your support means a lot to them. Whatever happens down at Randolph, we know they will represent us well.

A special day at Reese. Enjoy!

Reese: Excellence into the '90s

By Col. Bill Henny
64th ABG commander

Last week, we sent a package to Air Training Command nominating Reese for the Department of Defense Installation Excellence Award. As I reviewed the ten pages highlighting Reese's accomplishments over the last year, I was struck by the commitment of our people to both the mission and to making Reese a better place to live and work.

By selecting just a few of the items from this list of achievements, I would like to share with you where we have been and where we are going:

□ We no longer live in an Air Force where the men go off to work and the women stay home and raise families. We recognize this and have spent a great deal of time renovating and upgrading the Reese Child Development Center.

Our improved facilities and expanded weekend hours now provide both working and single parents with a comfortable, modern educational center where children can be cared for and developed while the adults in the family fulfill the many requirements of job, education and life.

□ For the last two years, the Reese Enlisted Open Mess has been a "club" in name only. This year, Reese people undertook a massive facility renovation and program change that has resulted in a first class EOM. The change in services are just as important as the improvement in the facility.

In these days of shrinking manpower and shrinking budgets, the new EOM recognizes that providing quality services to our people requires the willingness to find a better way to serve all the people.

This better way is also seen at the Officers' Open Mess, which is now open to the whole Reese community every Saturday night, and once a month for Sunday brunch, providing first-class dining for all.

□ Last year, we completed the first phase of the family housing renovation and have just received work from ATC that the second phase (188 units) can be started as soon as the contractor is ready.

These improvements to old facilities recognizes the need in the 1990s to provide a comfortable and modern place for our people to live. At the same time, the support we have received from Reese Village residents in caring for and improving their homes reflects our people's commitment and pride in their community.

□ During the last year, we also completed a major project to improve working conditions on base. For years, many of our people have been working in second-rate World War II buildings. These buildings sent a subtle message to the individual worker and customer about the emphasis the Air Force put on their job.

At Reese, we took action to correct this problem by taking a dormitory which was excess to our needs and turning it into a modern Consolidated Support Center. We now have a place where both workers and customers feel comfortable that they are recognized as professionals because they are being treated like professionals.

A common theme in all of these projects has been the commitment of Reese people. Every project I have mentioned is the direct result of the extraordinary work of our men and women in the 64th Civil Engineering Squadron. In every case but family housing, CES not only designed the project but also did the lion's share of the work. In family housing and at the EOM, people from every unit on base have added their talent to achieve a goal — making Reese a better place.

What of the 1990s? Where do we go from here? Reese faces some new and important challenges with the start of the new fiscal year on Oct. 1.

Within six months, the military and civil service men and women who have maintained the mission since flying started at Reese in 1942 will leave and be replaced by civilian contract employees. This is a sad time for the people at Reese when so many of our neighbors leave. This is also a challenging time when we need to continue to find better ways of supporting the people who remain.

It is also an exciting time as we welcome our new co-workers into the Reese family. I look forward to the future here at Reese as we continue to improve the quality of life in our community. We may not win the Installation Excellence Award this year, but we can all be assured that it won't be because we aren't winners.

Top Air Force leaders support CFC

"Help Someone Have a Better Tomorrow" is the theme of the 1989-90 Combined Federal Campaign. The 39-day campaign began Monday locally.

In a joint letter to the field, Secretary of the Air Force Donald B. Rice and Chief of Staff Gen. Larry D. Welch said the Air Force traditionally rallies to the CFC appeal for contributions.

"The annual Combined Federal Campaign is our opportunity to provide support to the health and welfare agencies in the community. These worthy organizations depend on the generosity of the American public to support their efforts to alleviate pain and suffering, seek cures for diseases and bring hope to thousands of people across the nation," said Secretary Rice and General Welch.

The CFC gives federal employees the opportunity to contribute to hundreds of charities. Last year more than 80 percent of all funds raised were by payroll deduction.

"This year, the challenge is greater than ever before. In just the past 12 months alone, the number of charities under the CFC umbrella has increased by an unprecedented 37 percent.

"That's more than 1,000 charities receiving support from our contributions, nearly 300 more than any previous year," said Edward J. Derwinski, chairman of the 1990 Combined Federal Campaign of the National Capital Area. Mr. Derwinski is secretary of Veterans Affairs.

Contributions to the campaign are voluntary. Setting 100 percent participation goals, compiling contributor lists for other than routine collections, establishing personal dollar goals and quotas, and developing lists of those who did not contribute are not allowed, according to officials in the Office of Personnel Management.

The 64th Flying Training Wing "loan executives," or key-workers, for each major organization under the wing are: Operations — Capt. John Reidy, 3878; Maintenance — Capt. Rusty Richards, 3424; Resource Management — Capt. William Peek, 3953; 64th Air Base Group — 1st Lt. Doug White, 3655; and USAF Hospital Reese — 2nd Lt. Karen Fischer, 3723. (Air Force News Service)

Reese Legal Office offers consumer information

By Maj. Howard R. Altschwager
Reese staff judge advocate

One of the most frequent areas of inquiry our office receives involves credit and consumer protection laws. Unfortunately, there are occasions when the many remedies a consumer may be entitled to have been lost because of untimely action.

On other occasions, an individual may still be entitled to the appropriate remedy, but has already suffered weeks and even months of unnecessary mental anguish over the situation. Another nagging characteristic of this type of problem is its potential to follow you anywhere and persist for years.

We recognize that with the upcoming departure of many service members at Reese, and the day-to-day schedules of most, a visit to the legal office on a scheduled appointment basis may be inconvenient. Consequently, we have ordered a series of fact sheets from the Federal Trade Commission to supplement our locally produced handouts.

If you have a problem, or what eventually may become a problem, do not ignore it. Drop by the legal office and pick up an information sheet. These brochures include factual summaries of the law, statutory references, and addresses and phone numbers of appropriate agencies throughout the nation. If you are planning to move, the best time to stop by is now. Knowing your rights could help you avoid problems which devastate your credit rating.

Below is a list of some of the brochures we have available. Remember, if you continue to experience problems after reading them, we are available on an appointment basis for consultation.

 - Solving Credit Problems

ROUNDUP

One on One

Col. Jerry Deakin
64th FTW deputy commander for operations

(Editor's note: This week's One on One is with Col. Jerry Deakin, 64th Flying Training Wing deputy commander for operations, and was conducted by Sgt. Kimberly Nelson, Roundup staff writer.)

Q: In an article in the June 16 Roundup, you stated that Reese was behind the timeline. Where does Reese stand now?

To recap on the past, the T-37s were in good flying standing in June, while the T-38s had fallen behind the timeline. Since that time, we have maxed-out the daytime schedule and flown some Saturdays. Because of the tremendous efforts of the entire Reese team, the T-38s are now only one day behind the timeline. This is a significant accomplishment because of the adverse weather and considerably more hours flown this year when compared to a year ago.

Q: What has been the most significant factor in catching up with sortie flying?

Although Saturday flying has contributed, the real effort is in the day-in and day-out hard work put forth by everybody on base. Reese has been gaining gradually and, with continued effort, we will continue to gain. It is not something that can be accomplished overnight.

Q: With the coming of fall and fewer daylight hours, what effect, if any, is that likely to have on flying?

The decrease in daylight hours will result in a corresponding decrease in sorties. This is a definite factor in keeping up with the timeline and, therefore, we place great emphasis on getting as many productive sorties as possible within our daylight hours.

Q: What are Reese's requirements for the Accelerated Copilot Enrichment Program, and are they being met?

The number of hours Reese is required to fly in support of the ACE program is determined by the number of copilots enrolled in the program. Through the dedicated efforts of our IPs assigned to the three bases, we have consistently met our commitments. Though the flying hours accumulated in the ACE program are high, when you consider the small number of IPs and aircraft assigned, they are a minor factor when compared to the overall scope of operations here at Reese.

Q: Over the past weekend, snow has been reported in some of the northernmost states. North Dakota is one of the states in which Reese has ACE detachments (Grand Forks and Minot AFBs). What effects have the recent cold fronts had on the ACE program?

The weather has not yet been a significant factor. However, as fall brings on the cold weather, our ACE detachments will be well prepared and ready for it. The only real impact is the falling snow and high winds associated with the upcoming months. Our detachments in the colder states are used to dealing with that type of weather and have hangars large enough to protect and prepare their assigned aircraft until conditions improve. During the actual snowfall, or when there's heavy snow accumulation, the aircraft aren't flown. But once the snow stops and is cleared, our maintenance personnel and aircrews work hard to make up for lost time.

Q: About the new undergraduate pilot training student assignment program [the program that places the follow-on assignment selection process in the hands of the wing commander], how effective would you say the program is for getting the students the assignments they want?

Reese is extremely pleased with the program's student assignment process. Placing the decision-making at the wing level has allowed us to effectively mate students' capabilities with available aircraft.

In the long run, we think this process better provides for the needs of the Air Force as well as satisfying the desires of the students.

Q: Do you have anything you'd like to add?

On behalf of the operations people, I'd like to thank the entire wing for their tremendous support and hard work in accomplishing our mission — a direct reflection of the tremendous teamwork and spirit of Reese.

I'd also like to extend a special thanks for the hard work of CMSgts. Joseph Dykes, Leonard Minzer, Laurence Wittich and Harry Salyer, who will all be retiring today. I wish them the best of luck in the years to come.

They came from all over, but they had a common goal...

Wings

2nd Lt. Darril C. Bill

2nd Lt. John R. Boyd

2nd Lt. Dean Eric Bray

By Capt. Jonathan M. Ellis
UPT Class 89-15

We came together on Sept. 27, 1988...thirty young men from all over. Some the sons of farmers, some the sons of colonels, and one, the son of the chief of naval operations in Nevada. We were a diverse group with one common goal: to earn our wings.

Our first obstacle — 30 days of academics from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. with occasional breaks for lunch at the Officers' Open Mess and weekends off. We made it through the first month okay, and we even managed to fit in a party or two. By the end of the first month, we were beginning to think we had this program licked. Then we hit the flight line.

It was like something right out of a Marine Corps training film — 4:50 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. every day, with no break for lunch. These guys were determined to mold us into the flying fighters we came here to be. After the horror of the first basic simulator rides, we came out convinced we would never be able to fly a jet. But we persevered.

Some had directional difficulties at first. Second Lt. Joel Harveaux, on his first check-ride, forgot that the sun rises in the east. Second Lt. Tom Sexton got so lost one time that the approach control had to guide him all the way back to the runway.

Some were more comfortable than that. For example, Capt. Chuck Black, who had already distinguished himself by receiving an Air Force Commendation Medal, decided that the best way to get an F-16 assignment was to show total devotion to the Air Force and named his first born son after the base.

All in all, though, we did well. We lost some of the group early on, and they have been sorely missed. Good luck to you guys.

Off we went to the supersonic sports car of the skies, the T-38. "Hey, guys, look at me in my G-string!" "No, Lieutenant Sisler, that's a G-SUIT." Having had some success in T-37s, we again began to feel that we had the program licked (oops!)

Along came the contact check ride, though, to slam us ever so harshly back into reality. After less than half the class passed that check ride, we started taking things seriously once again. This was especially true when the weather got bad, the class got behind, and some students began to wash back one class. The ones who joined our class turned out to be great guys, and we were glad to add them to our group.

The ones who left our class were also great guys, and we wish the best for them. We got to know the "foster children" in a hurry, too, what with flying every Saturday and all. But even that ended...for a while.

Finally arrived the night we all came here for — assignment night. Our "Day at the Races" theme was a huge hit, and many thanks to Capt. Brad Jones for being the most awesome master of ceremonies in the history of assignment night.

Afterward, people started to call our class the "OPEC Connection." We got enough tanker assignments to keep the entire Air Force aloft. Everybody walked away smiling.

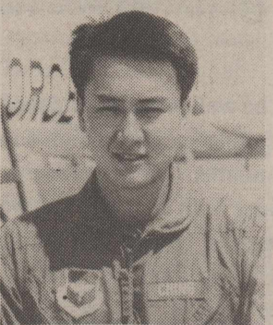

It's been a rocky road, but one we wouldn't trade. The rewards far outweigh the effort required. We met a lot of people, made a lot of friends, learned a lot about airplanes and life, and managed to have some fun along the way.

We couldn't have made it without the constant support, friendship, motivation and help of the wives, fiancées, and girlfriends of the group in the class. They worked as hard for us as we worked for ourselves. Thank you all.

Excuse us now, we've gotta fly...

Through history and here at Reese, one group strives for the good of the community

Volunteers

The heat and humidity was unrelenting; even after sun-down, the air was still and heavy, and there was no relief from the stench of spilled blood and rotting wounds.

At night, moans of injured men were interrupted at times with piercing screams as another battlefield amputation was performed. This was not a scene for the faint of heart; even battle-hardened soldiers avoided the tents housing the wounded.

Yet there was comfort offered and care was rendered to thousands of "boy soldiers" of the Civil War. It came because a certain patent office clerk by the name of Clara Barton believed it was important to help.

America's Red Cross is born

Ms. Barton and a dedicated corp of volunteers confronted the reality of need and accepted the challenge. As everyone knows, this was the fledgling American Red Cross, an organization that runs only because people choose to share their time and talents without pay — they volunteer.

We are a people accustomed to the concept of "volunteering," but perhaps we are too comfortable with this and have forgotten just how significant the volunteer has been to America. This nation's very birth was the result of volunteer energy, as militia in our colonial towns united against unbelievable odds to fight for independence.

This rag-tag volunteer force was the embryo of the Army. If we examine the inception of such organizations as the local fire department, scouts, hospices, and even animal shelters, we see not only their origin in the volunteer concept, but also that their very existence today is dependent on people sharing their time.

People devote time to others

At Reese, we are fortunate to have many services because some people are willing to share their time and energy for our community. Our children can join scout troops and play little league ball. A new family can borrow the basics to set up housekeeping. One can locate information on a new assignment, and a first-born baby can receive a newborn layette all because we have a family services center.

You can get your prescriptions filled at our pharmacy faster because some of our retired members volunteer their time for you. Your family will see a friendly smile and be efficiently assisted in some of our clinics because of Red Cross volunteers.

Benefits of volunteer efforts

Your children can attend Sunday School or CCD because some of our people share their time through teaching. You can sell that unusual gift from your mother-in-law and shop for winter jackets for the kids all at our thrift shop. And the small thrift shop profit turns right around into our Reese community in the form of Officers' Wives Club donations to such groups as our scouts, chapel, and child development center.

After the holidays you can buy homemade tacos and lunch from aspiring "sweethearts" as the Enlisted Wives Club sponsors the fund-raiser for scholarships which they will award an Air Force son or daughter.

The commitment from these people is amazing. Their co-ordinators spend many hours planning and adapting for our community needs.

Family services is the most recent example of this in their well-organized effort for our maintainers during the long anticipated assignment week.

Each one of these organizations contributes to the overall quality of life for all of us. Even if you do not utilize these services, you reap the benefit of the support they provide the community because they are the background fabric of a real community life. Can you imagine Reese without these services?

Reese faces challenge

We face a challenge in order to offer the Reese community the benefits of these organizations. With our maintenance people moving into other commands, we will lose a large number of volunteers and this will seriously impact these services.

Because we are a people with such a rich history of striving to meet a challenge or improve a bad situation, we've the ability to confront this current problem as long as we remember two things.

"Just a volunteer?"

First, the man or woman who chooses to share their time is one of our most valuable resources and their time should be treated as precious.

Second, remember our history and look at what we have today so that you can recognize that there is no such thing as "just a volunteer!"

Pinning-on ceremony today

A pinning-on ceremony marking Lt. Col. William Duncan's promotion to colonel is scheduled for 2 p.m. today in Reese Manor.

All wing members are invited to attend.

NCO status ceremony set

The Noncommissioned Officer Status Ceremony is scheduled for 11 a.m. today in the Enlisted Open Mess.

Claims can be made

Anyone who owes money to or has claims against the estate of the late Col. Allan K. McAulay should contact Capt. Patrick A. Catt at 6209/6212.

Public trials to be held

Trials will be held on base for two civilian aviators whose flight certificates have been ordered suspended or revoked and whose medical certificates have been refused by the Federal Aviation Administration, according to the Reese Legal Office.

The trials will be held Wednesday and Thursday in the base courtroom, Bldg. 230. They are open to the public.

BASH program set to begin

The 64th Civil Engineering Squadron Entomology Section will soon be kicking off their Bird Air Strike Hazard Prevention Program.

The program involves shooting off "scareaway" cannons [a noise-firing device] to scare away the migratory birds soon to be arriving in the Reese area. This is done to protect pilots and aircraft from injury/damage. The cannons produce a loud noise, but are totally harmless to people or wildlife.

A test "shot" will be fired Monday to ensure that the cannons are operational. Beginning Oct. 9, the cannons will be fired from 5-7 a.m. Monday through Friday for four weeks. On Nov. 13, the devices will be fired from 5-7 a.m. Monday through Friday every other week until May.

For more information, call 3663.

NCOA offers assistance

The Noncommissioned Officer Association offers a Project Transition Assistance Service to military members being transferred to another base.

People interested in this service need not be a member of the NCOA. To receive assistance, stop by the nearest NCOA service center and provide the following information: name, rank, date of permanent change of station, date of arrival at the new base, type of quarters needed (such as the number of bedrooms and square feet), need (if any) for spouse employment assistance and desired proximity of home to new base.

The information provided will be sent through a computer network to the receiving base for action.

For more information, call Dan Webster at 795-3502 or stop by 7419 W. 19th Street.

Checks should be cashed ASAP

U.S. Treasury checks issued after Saturday will have "Void after one year" printed on them.

The Competitive Equality Banking Act of 1987 limits the negotiation of treasury checks to one year from the date of issue, therefore they should be cashed as soon as possible.

For more information, contact the Reese Accounting and Finance Office at 3573.

Roundup wins ATC award

Eight bases within the command entered the August contest. The Vance (AFB, Okla.) Airscoop took second place.

Command news

B-52 accident report released

The Air Force cited the failure of workers to remove an improperly manufactured vent plug from a B-52 fuel tank as the cause of a July 24 fire that killed one civilian worker and injured 11 others at Kelly AFB, Texas.

A Sept. 19 Air Force news release said the accident investigation also showed that while written directives on maintenance training and work procedures were adequate, some were inadequately implemented.

The aircraft, valued at more than $15.7 million, was destroyed while being refueled. It had been at the center undergoing depot maintenance since February and was scheduled to be delivered to the 2nd Bombardment Wing, Barksdale AFB, La. (Air Force News Service)

AIC Ronald Nines, 64th Security Police Squadron, offers directions to a newcomer at Reese. The INTRO Program on base aims to help new people

(Sgt. Kimberly Nelson)

INTRO provides insight to Reese's newcomers

By Sgt. Kimberly Nelson
staff writer

"Welcome to Reese AFB, home of the 64th Flying Training Wing As a newcomer, there are a few things you will need to know to help make your stay here a prosperous one. That's how Sgt. Keith Filmer, base manager for the Individualized Newcomer Treatment and Orientation Program, officially welcomes people into the Reese family.

Sergeant Filmer is behind the planning, coordinating and preparing of the Consolidated Base Personnel Office's introduction to Reese. He ensures that when a person arrives, the arrival is smooth and the first impression received is a positive one and that even the pre-arrival impression is positive.

The overall objective of the INTRO program, according to Sergeant Filmer, is to provide information to make newcomers welcome, comfortable and aware of available facilities. Student assignments and manning control are being combined to provide better overall support, he added.

The INTRO program is designed to tell newcomers about the base and local areas. The three phases to this process are:

□ Sponsor program — "One of the central aspects of the INTRO program is sponsorship, in which the unit assigns a sponsor to a newcomer to assist him or her, and the family (if accompanied), get settled," explained Sergeant Filmer.

"The manager acts as a liaison for unit and family services INTRO monitors, providing information for the sponsor on how to effectively perform the duties required of a sponsor," he said.

Once the sponsor is notified, that person prepares a letter. This letter along with a base INTRO sponsor package and the unit commander's "welcome letter" is sent out by the unit orderly room to the newcomer.

It is the sponsor's responsibility to coordinate the arrival time and lodging arrangements of the newcomer. Although, it's up to the unit to ensure all that's required is done, the sergeant added.

□ Newcomer orientation briefings — there are three distinctive briefings a person can attend at Reese: unit-explains the mission of the squadron, squadron expectations and policies. During this briefing, the person meets their squadron commander and first sergeant.

Second is the work center — the gaining supervisor explains what the office expects, its policies and specialties and the chain of command.

Last is the first duty station — this is for persons new to the Air Force (those from technical school, direct duty and Reserve Officer Training Corp, to name a few). This briefs more in-depth about the base, Air Force and policies.

□ Consolidated newcomers briefing — this briefing consisting of people from around base explaining the various facilities available at Reese. Briefers include the wing or base commander, wing inspector general, chief enlisted advisor and representatives from the USAF Hospital Reese, the family support center, chapel, office of special investigations, disaster preparedness branch, 64th Security Police Squadron, fire department and the Lubbock Greeter Service.

Also, the Morale, Welfare and Recreation Division provides a slide presentation.

"Consolidated briefings are for everyone except undergraduate pilot training students, who are informed about the base during their 'blast-off,'" the sergeant commented.

Along with the sponsor program and briefings, the base INTRO manager also handles:

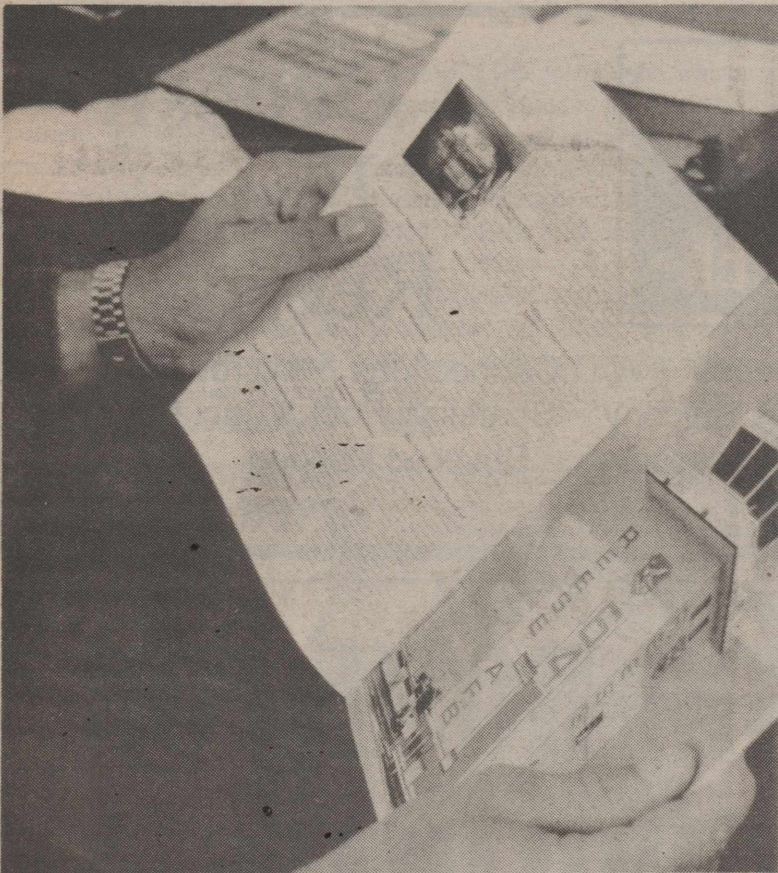

□ Monitoring the projected arrival of newcomers.

□ Evaluating the base and unit INTRO programs. The unit INTRO monitor administers the program on behalf of the unit's commander at the local level, overseeing incoming and correspondence related to the inbound member.

□ Scheduling newcomers' appointments, such as: improcessing (personnel) from the dental clinic, military/travel pay, personnel affairs and the post office, to name a few, will be the to update records, traffic safety, social actions (first-duty-station members only) and the education center.

□ Acting as a point of contact for losing base INTRO managers.

"The end result of the program is well-prepared team member ready to meet job and mission requirements," concluded Sergeant Filmer.

(Sgt. Kimberly Nelson)

The Reese Base Guide is a valuable tool for new people on base. It's included in sponsor packages.

The Texas Special Olympics recognized the contributions of several Reese people for their support during the year.

Sharon Donnell, Area 17 Special Olympics director, said, "I don't know what we would have done without Reese's dedication. We've always been able to count on them to help in so many ways."

Sexy legs contest set

Funds generated will benefit several base projects and agencies.

Registration deadline is Oct. 6. For more information, call TSgt. Mary Washington at 3716 or Sandy White at 885-4215.

Three Reese youngsters have captured awards in the quarterly Morale, Welfare and Recreation coloring contest.

The winners are: (4 to 6 years old) Christine Nelson, daughter of SSgt. David and Nancy Nelson, 64th Organizational Maintenance Squadron; (7 to 9 years old) Chris Boatright, son of SSgt. Deborah Boatright, 64th Student Squadron; and (10 to 12 years old) Roberta Duddleston, daughter of Ssgt. Robert and Candace Duddleston, 64th Civil Engineering Squadron.

This quarter's theme was "Back to School" safety.

Each winner is entitled to a lane of bowling, hamburger, fries and soft drink at the Windmill Lanes and a T-shirt and choice of in-stock transfer from the Arts and Crafts Center.

Letters authorizing winners to receive their prizes may be picked up in the Public Affairs Division, Bldg. 800.

Owned & Managed by experienced local professionals

(Becky Pillifant)

MSMgt. Richard Coakley (right), USAF Hospital Reese, and MSMgt. Joseph Slack, 64th Student Squadron, were among the base first sergeants who grilled steaks at the Enlisted Open Mess opening.

EOM membership booms at opening

The Reese Enlisted Open Mess increased their membership by 151 people during their grand opening held Sept. 22. The EOM now has 970 members.

Members and non-members alike were on-hand to take part in the many festivities of the evening. A ribbon-cutting ceremony, marking the beginning of the grand opening, was followed by a two-for-one steak dinner special from 6 - 9 p.m.

Volunteer first sergeants from around the base prepared the steaks in a grill-to-order fashion with all the trimmings.

After dinner, the evening's participants danced to their favorite disco, rock and soul sounds presented by disc jockeys located in the casual lounge and ballroom.

The Reese Child Development Center, open Fridays until midnight, offered child care at a 20-cent discount.

Coming up Oct. 14, the EOM will be holding an "October Fest," and a Halloween Bash Oct. 28.

For more information about the EOM and what it has to offer, call 3156.

MWR quiz

This month's Morale, Recreation and Welfare Military Heritage Quiz sports a new format.

Participants in the quiz will not have to wait until next week to find the answers to the 8 trivia questions. The answers are provided on page 19.

The only question people need to answer to enter the monthly contest, and possibly win an MWR coupon book worth more than $25, is the special contest question.

Entrants should either submit their answers for the entry question to the Public Affairs Division, Stop 9, Bldg. 800, before noon Tuesday or call the division at 3410 between noon and 3 p.m. today.

The winner will be announced in next week's Roundup.

Q-1: What does GLCM stand for?

Q-2: The economic impact region for Reese includes how many Texas counties?

Q-3: Articles 77 through 134 of the Uniformed Code of Military Justice are what type of articles?

Q-4: The responsibility for overseeing the entire organization and operation of a Dining-In belongs to what member of the mess?

Q-5: Of the last 10 U.S. presidents, how many have not served as a member of the U.S. Department of Defense team prior to becoming president?

Q-6: What was the first aircraft to fly non-stop around the world (with in-flight refueling)?

Q-7: What was the longest military conflict in U.S. history?

Q-8: What are the only North Atlantic Treaty Organization member countries that share a common border with the Soviet Union?

Contest entry question: How old was the last Civil War veteran (Union forces) when he died?

Reese names athletes of year

Supplier and pilot named base's best for 1989

by Sgt. Mike Breslin
editor

Athletes from the 54th Flying Training Squadron and 64th Supply Squadron have been chosen as the base's female and male athletes of the year.

Nancy Ryniak, 54th FTS, Quincy Roberts, 64th SUPS, selected by the Reese Sports Advisory Council for their athletic accomplishments during the past year.

Quincey Roberts

Male athlete of the year

Roberts, a master sergeant and a native of Florida, said one of the things that helped him win the award was the fact that he's been a part of his squadron's intramural softball, football and basketball teams, as well as the base varsity softball and over-35 softball teams.

The 37-year-old-athlete was a key player on the Reese varsity softball team during the regular season. He batted .525, with 22 RBI and three home runs.

He was also credited with helping the team to first-place finishes in five tournaments. During one tournament, he overcame a strained back to drive in the winning run in the title game.

Roberts, an 18-year service veteran, has been active in sports for as long as he can remember. He cited his competitive nature as the reason. He makes no bones about the fact that he likes to win; however, it isn't the most important thing to him.

"It's not important to win all the time, so long as you go out and give 100 percent," he said. "It (sports) wouldn't be as enjoyable for me if I were strictly out there for the fun of it — I like the competitiveness."

Nancy Ryniak

Female athlete of the year

Ryniak pointed to her success in long-distance events as much of the reason for her selection. During the year, she competed in five triathlons, a 100-kilometer bike race and several long-distance races. Along the way, she picked up four third-place finishes, two seconds and a first in the women's division of the Reese Mini-Triathlon Aug. 15.

"They (the long-distance events) are the things I focus my energy on," the 26-year-old instructor pilot said. "I'm usually more successful in those kind of competitions."

She added that bicycling is her favorite distance event, while she only runs to maintain her running form. Her favorite sport is skiing. She attended last year's Air Force Ski Invitational in Utah.

The Pittsburgh native recently started working with weights again after a prolonged layoff.

"You get burned out doing the same type of workout all the time," she said. "Now that winter's coming up, I'm starting to get back into weight training."

All games will be played on the field on the west side of the Youth Center.

Over-35 softball action

The Reese Rattlers over-35 men's softball team will take on the Anderson Concrete team at 8:30 p.m. Monday at MacKenzie Park Field Two, located by Fourth Street and Avenue A.

Falcons to face Rams

The 24th-ranked Air Force Academy Falcons face intra-state rival Colorado State Rams Saturday at Fort Collins.

Air Force enter the game with a 4-0 record, including three wins in Western Athletic Conference play. The Rams are 1-2-1 and will open the WAC season against Air Force.

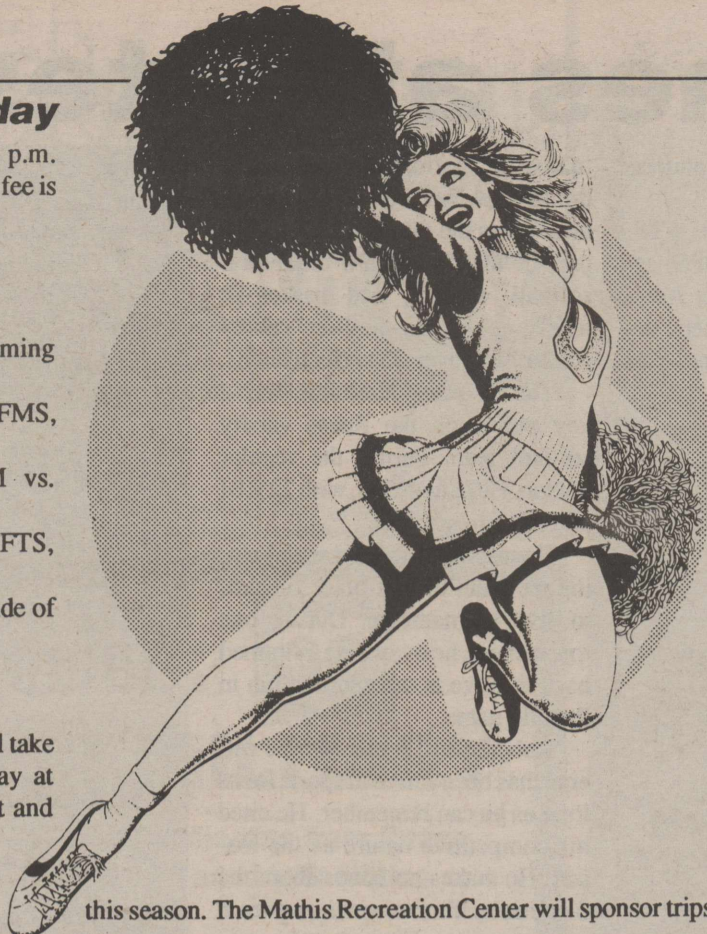

The Falcons continue to be among the nation's leaders in rushing behind the Heisman Trophy-contending efforts of senior quarterback Dee Dowis and senior tailback Greg Johnson.

While only posting one win in four outings, the Rams have still averaged nearly 28 points per game and have matched last season's victory total.

Last year, the Falcons held off a fourth-quarter rally by the Rams to win 29-23. Overall, the Falcons are 18-8-1 against the Rams and have not lost since a 21-11 setback in 1982.

Dallas Cowboys tour planned

Two tours to Dallas Cowboys football contests are set for this season. The Mathis Recreation Center will sponsor trips to:

Dallas vs. Miami: Tour departs the center at 7 a.m. Nov. 18 and returns at 11 p.m. Nov. 19. Registration costs $80 and is due by Oct. 17.

Dallas vs. Los Angeles Rams: Tour departs the center at 7 a.m. Dec. 2 and returns at 11 p.m. Dec. 3. Registration costs $80 and is due by Nov. 1.

Cost includes game ticket, transportation, double-occupancy accommodations and a free breakfast.

Registration fee is non-refundable. For details, call Ruby Thomas at 3787.

Windmill Lanes offer special

The Windmill Lanes Bowling Center has a birthday bowling special for Reese children.

For $40, the center will provide hamburgers, french fries, small drinks, cake and one game of bowling for 10 children.

Reservations are required at least two weeks in advance.

For more information, call the center at 3116.

Tech tickets available

Discount football tickets for all Texas Tech home games are available at the Mathis Recreation Center's Information, Ticket and Tour Office.

For more information, call Ruby Thomas at 3787.

Coaches needed

The Reese Physical Fitness Center is looking for people to coach men's varsity football and men's and women's varsity basketball.

Football coaching resumes are due to Jake Trevino, center director, by close of business today; basketball resumes are due Oct. 15.

For more information, call the center at 3207/6021.

Global IX Volksmarch

The Global IX Volksmarch, a non-competitive walking/running event, will be held at 8 a.m. Oct. 21 at the Reese Picnic Grounds.

There will be 10- and 20-kilometer distances for the event. Awards will be given. For more information, call SSGt. Randy Pratt, Reese Physical Fitness Center, at 6020.

Frenship plays Randall tonight

The Frenship Tigers go after their second straight win tonight at home against Randall.

The game starts at 7:30 p.m. at the Frenship High School football field.

Frenship enters tonight's district matchup riding the crest of last week's upset over Lubbock Dunbar, 34-13.

Reese gridder Chris Boudy helped spark the win, catching three passes for 46 yards and 1 touchdown. Boudy is among the the area 4-A leaders, averaging 14.4 yards per catch and four receptions per game. Boudy has more than half of Frenship's receiving yards.

Frenship must guard against a let down tonight. Dunbar was rated as a co-favorite with Lubbock Estacado and Hereford to win the division crown.

Frenship's only loss this year was to 5-A power Lubbock Coronado.

Hurlwood Baptist Church
