SSgt. Gordon Couffer, 64th Security Police Squadron, searches Javier Moreno April 13 during one of several exercises held as part of Readiness Week. Mr. Moreno, the "suspect," helped the Base Exercise Evaluation Team test base security by attempting to enter several areas on base without proper authorization. For a look at some other aspects of Readiness Week, see pages eight and nine. (U.S. Air Force photo by Sgt. Mike Breslin)

UFT assignment process revised

Plans to revise the Undergraduate Flying Training Assignment Process for Reese and other Air Training Command UFT aviators were finalized March 28 and changes to the current system will be implemented over the coming months.

According to ATC officials, the revision involves significant modifications.

Under the new procedure the Advanced Training Recommendation Boards are eliminated and the flying training wing's wing commander will be given the sole responsibility to match aircraft assignments with each student's demonstrated airmanship, officer-ship and desires.

Prior to the change, Undergraduate Pilot Training graduates were classified by Advanced Training Recommendation Boards (ATRB) at each base as fighter-attack-reconnaissance or tanker-transport-bomber qualified. Assignments were then determined by the Air Force Military Personnel Center, Randolph AFB, Texas.

ATC is making the changes for two reasons. First, the final assignment decision is being decentralized and placed at the lowest level possible — the student's wing commander. Secondly, the "labeling" that occurred with the ATRB process was not in the overall best interests of the Air Force. It created false expectations and negative perceptions. Pilot candidates who are labeled "FAR qualified" expect to fly fighter aircraft but there are not enough fighter assignments available to satisfy everyone. On the other side, there was a tendency to refer to TTB qualified graduates as "non-FAR qualified." This negative connotation was totally unnecessary and undesirable.

The new process will raise the "top performer" rate from 10 to 15 percent for UPT graduates, giving more graduates their first choice of available aircraft.

The specialized Undergraduate Navigator Training top performer rate remains at its current level — top 20 percent. Rank ordering of Euro-Nato Joint Jet Pilot Training Program students will continue as before, based on multi-national agreements.

In announcing the new process to all ATC Flying Training Wing commanders, Lt. Gen. Robert C. Oaks, ATC commander, emphasized that the principal factors to govern the process should be demonstrated airmanship of the student, equitable shares of quality officers to all weapon systems and desires of the graduates.

"There are few decisions more important to our UFT students than those you will be making regarding assignments," General Oaks told his wing commanders.

"Needless to say, we are placing a very important responsibility at the wing level. You have the best knowledge of the potential and desires of the new pilots and navigators, and you should be able to distribute that talent to the benefit of the entire Air Force," General Oaks concluded.

The new UFT assignment process will be phased in with Reese's UPT Class 89-10, which graduates June 9. Assignment release for the class is April 28.

For more information, contact Sgt. Derrick Walker, student assignment specialist, 3525.

Commander's Perspective

By Col. Monroe S. Sams Jr.
Wing Commander
64th Flying Training Wing

Col. Monroe S. Sams Jr.

This week I spent some time at the BAR at Randolph. Let me hasten to explain that BAR means Broad Area Review and it is a comprehensive look by the command into every aspect of ATC's flying training mission. This review has a singular purpose — to provide recommendations for improving the quality of our training programs where improvement is warranted.

The Air Force flying MAJCOM's are extremely pleased with the quality of our pilot training graduates, so don't look for major changes in our training philosophy as a result of this continuing BAR process. However, as we begin our transition into Specialized Undergraduate Pilot Training and plan to field three new aircraft over the next twenty years, it is smart for the command to take a close look into every nook and cranny of our business and make sure we're doing the job right.

For instance, the major commands have identified areas for improvement in our instrument and low level navigation training. The staff at ATC, in coordination with the flying training wings, is working to strengthen the syllabus in these areas. We don't want to rest on our laurels, but continually improve the product we provide to the USAF — superbly trained military aviators.

As a result of the BAR process, we have already begun to make changes to increase the quality of flying training. One of the first changes was to restructure the student assignment process. Beginning with Class 89-10, the Advanced Training Recommendation Board (ATRB) has been eliminated. Students will no longer be classified as Tanker-Transport-Bomber (TTB) or Fighter-Attack-Reconnaissance (FAR) pilots. Instead, students will receive their assignments based on demonstrated airmanship and the ability to succeed in the training and responsibilities associated with a particular aircraft and its mission. Each MAJCOM will be assured of receiving an equitable share of quality officers, and as in the past, student desires will be considered when making the assignments. The top 15 percent of each class will be given their top choice of assignment insofar as possible.

A key element in the new process is decentralization. The entire assignment process will now be controlled at the wing level instead of at the Air Force Military Personnel Center. The people in each wing have the best knowledge of the potential and desires of our new pilots and, therefore, are in the best position to determine future assignments. Assignment decisions made at this level will ensure the proper distribution of talent to the benefit of the entire Air Force.

This is one example of change resulting from our continued review of our training program. The proposed new "Five Squadron Concept" for the Operations community is another. But, that's something to discuss in detail in a later article. For now, let me say that I'll return to the "BAR," along with the other wing commander, DO reps, ATC staff and representatives of the other flying commands and the Navy for a final session in July. I think this comprehensive review has been worth the effort.

KUDOS

While I was away this week, the 64th FTW had the distinct pleasure to host Brig. Gen. W. John Soper, ATC/DCS Logistics. While the general was here, he honored Reese with a number of awards. My hat is off to —

Mr. James Truelock, Chief of the Material Storage and Distribution Branch (MS&D) for receiving the Outstanding Supply Junior Civilian Manager of the Year for 1988 award.

SSgt. Gerald Campbell, NCOIC of Fuels Accounting and Administration for receiving the Outstanding Senior Fuels Technician of the Year for 1988 award.

The entire MS&D Branch here at Reese for being named the Best Material Storage and Distribution Branch in ATC Award for 1988.

Please accept my sincere appreciation for a job well done!

Be advised: waste of funds, resources unacceptable

By Maj. Michael J. Whitney
Wing Inspector General

Fraud, waste and abuse is a topic of importance to all of us. Anytime our precious resources are wasted, abused or mismanaged, it directly impacts our mission.

Some examples of fraud, waste and abuse are: taking government property for personal use — tools, parts and other supplies; using government equipment for personal projects — repair facilities and equipment, computers and machinery; using your position in the Air Force for personal benefit — selling products on government time, assigning subordinates to personal projects, acquiring free products and services.

Any action that results in wasting government funds or resources is unacceptable and must be stopped. If you detect or suspect an incident of fraud, waste or abuse report it immediately. Confronting the individual involved is the most immediate and direct route. If this is inappropriate, then using your chain of command is the best way to start. Your supervisor usually has the most complete understanding of the circumstances involved. They know their people and can provide immediate answers.

If abuse continues or you feel use of the chain of command is inappropriate, then contact me. As the wing inspector general it's my job to review the case and to take steps toward stopping the abuse. I'm available anytime, in Bldg 800, to hear complaints. Special permission or an appointment is not required, but appointments can be made by calling 3409. I will ensure that all facts, opinions and attitudes are held in confidence except to the extent necessary to accomplish the investigation and corrective action.

Reese doing it 'the right way'

By Maj. Turner R. Clark Jr.
Chief, Flying Safety

"I owe, I owe, it's off to work I go" is all too real this day and age. At times we may let our mind wander off the job at hand. Keeping the proper mindset and attitude in our jobs cannot be overemphasized. From turning the wrenches to pushing the throttles, we all have an attitude about the job at hand. Our "Reese Way" is the right way of doing business each time, every time. Keep that mindset/attitude as we transition into the maintenance conversion.

Be on guard for warning flags that may appear. It is human nature to let up when the job is almost done. It may take the form of: short cuts, being rushed, being pushed, afraid to speak up, or just poor mindset. We have done the job right to this point with an outstanding attitude. Our challenge now is to continue the "Reese Way" ... the right way Having trouble paying your bills?

People who are having trouble paying their bills offer a variety of excuses for their situation — a reduction in pay, the loss of a job, illness — and so on. Most often, however, the reason people can't meet their obligations is because they have taken on too much debt.

Creditors, too, are known to use a variety of methods to collect the money owed to them by people who signed a contract promising to pay. They might write letters or call the debtor on the telephone. They might even make a personal visit. If these methods are not successful they might try to seize the property used to secure the loan or take the debtor to court.

Persons who find themselves unable to make timely payments on purchases or loans should communicate with their creditors as soon as they know the default is coming. Most creditors will agree to work out a realistic payment plan in order to lessen their risk of possible loss.

The debtor should keep a record of any agreement made over the phone, and follow that with a letter confirming the understanding.

Debtors are protected against some debt-collection methods. If a debtor feels he is being harassed by a creditor, he may contact the state Attorney General's office to find out what a debt collector can and cannot do.

The Personal Financial Management Program (PFMP) is available for Reese people in need of financial counseling. Contact Capt. Russell Roberts at 3432.

Preserving our resources for the future

By Sgt. Kimberly Nelson
Staff Writer, Roundup

Electricity — possibly the greatest invention since the wheel — has given meaning and life to televisions, blenders, electric blankets, power tools and all sorts of other contraptions that help to make our lives more comfortable.

When ol' Benjamin Franklin discovered electricity, he probably never thought there would be so much future concern over conserving his discovery.

In later years, as people became more involved with enjoying this great resource called electricity, the race was on to see how much could be used.

Then one day, someone came up with a new invention, "the electric bill." This creation began to open the eyes and minds of those people who thought electricity would be a free resource, forever.

Since that day, energy conservation has caught on rather well. People didn't want to give up what they had, but they also didn't want the costly expense that was resulting from their overuse of electricity. So they began conserving. People used less and found they were still able to do basically everything they wanted, it just took a little planning.

Along with the idea of conservation came the familiar phrases "Shut that off," "Turn that down," "Close the door" and other similar reminders that energy is not a thing to waste.

Being government employees, civilian and military, everyday we see little reminders tacked, taped and stapled to almost every wall to keep us aware of the need for energy conservation. Though sometimes we have a tendency to overlook these little reminders, believing that a light left on or a window left open will make no difference. Not true. With the simple flick of a switch we can cut down energy costs.

If energy conservation had been an item on ol' Ben's discovery list, he may just have come up with weather stripping or storm windows too.

CARELINE

The CARELINE is prepared by Col. Monroe S. Sams Jr., 64th Flying Training Wing Commander, on a weekly basis. All information provided to the CARELINE will be held in strict confidence. Callers are urged to give their names and duty telephone numbers so that a personal reply may be made; however, neither are mandatory. Callers should use the CARELINE only after all possible means to air their views or complaints through the chain of command have been exhausted. The CARELINE number is 885-3273.

Dissatisfied customer

I just returned from a four-hour visit at the hospital where I find out I had the flu and was given some over-the-counter medication. I waited more than an hour and a half for the medication and would like to know, since the medication requires no prescription and is not kept under lock and key, why can't the medication and forms to obtain it be given out elsewhere in the clinic to avoid the long wait?

I agree that it took too long to get your over-the-counter medication; nevertheless, for logistical, safety and practical reasons, even though they are not under lock and key, these medications must be dispensed by pharmacy personnel. Prior to your inquiry, requests for over-the-counter medications were processed in sequence with all other prescription requests. Pharmacy personnel will now process these requests upon receipt of the over-the-counter form, which should reduce the waiting time significantly.

Education, key to child's safety

Sgt. Kevin Dye
64th Security Police Squadron

More than 2,000 families in the United States experienced the trauma of having a child abducted last year. It could happen here.

Educating your child on how to react to strangers is the key to safety.

The security police patrol bus stops and play ground areas (including two patrolmen in civilian clothes), but these attempts are of limited use without the help of the Reese community.

Family housing occupants are the eyes and ears of the housing area. Report immediately any suspicious vehicles or individuals to the Security Police at 911.

Train children to stay away from strangers and to protect themselves by running or yelling.

Be observant of strange cars in the area. A detailed description of a vehicle helps the security police greatly.

Even if children know how to avoid trouble, sometimes trouble—in the form of dangerous strangers—may find them.

Most strangers are well meaning and not to be feared, but because children are trusting and vulnerable, they can fall for offers by adults who seem kind but are not.

Simple rules that are known around the home will help your child when you're not with them. Here are a few to go by:

- * Never accept rides, candy, gifts, money, or medicine from strangers.

- * Never get close to a stranger if he or she calls out to you for directions or anything else. It is easy for a stranger to pull you into a car.

- * Never give your name or address to a stranger.

- * Never open a door to anyone you don't know.

- * Never tell callers you're home alone. Say mom and dad can't come to the phone right now, but they will call back.

- * Never volunteer family vacation plans or other information about your home.

- * Always avoid strangers who are hanging around restrooms or playgrounds and want to play with you and your friends.

Remember, children's safety is everyone's concern, so help the security police through education, notification and identification.

Performance

Evaluation system focused on feedback

Supervisors must provide performance feedback for all technical sergeants and below within 120 days of the May 1 starting date of the new Enlisted Evaluation System.

The feedback system was established in response to enlisted people's desires for more feedback on supervisors' job expectations and how they are actually performing the work.

Formal, written feedback is mandatory for technical sergeants and below and "highly encouraged" for master sergeants and above.

Feedback does not replace formal counseling for serious problems. It is intended to improve individual performance by telling the ratee what the job expectations are and how the ratee's performance is meeting those expectations.

Feedback will consist of the rater filling out a simple, handwritten form, followed by face-to-face discussion between the rater and ratee. The original copy of the form will be given to the ratee to enhance objectivity and candor.

Raters may keep copies of the form for their own records, for future feedback sessions and for preparation of enlisted performance reports.

Raters may not use the form for any other purpose now show it to anyone else.

Feedback must be provided by the rater who actually writes the performance report. Separate feedback forms will be used for airmen and NCOs. Air Force Form 931, airman performance feedback worksheet, is designed specifically to assist raters in helping first-term airmen adjust to the service.

The NCO form, Air Force Form 932, will be more specific, focusing on leadership and managerial performance.

After the 120-day initial phase-in period, mandatory formal feedback must begin within 30 days of an individual receiving a new assignment, change of rating official, or the closeout of a report by a continuing rater.

A follow-up session is required midway through the reporting period.

Airmen with less than 20 months' total active service will not receive an enlisted performance report; however, performance feedback will be required every 180 days.

Raters can provide additional sessions when needed. Ratees also can request sessions, but raters are not required to give feedback if a session has occurred within the last 60 days.

Instructions on completing the feedback form are in Air Force Pamphlet 39-15, USAF Guide to the Airman and NCO Feedback System. (AFNS)

It's A Great Day!

Reese keeps up with today's communications

By Sgt. Kimberly Nelson
Staff Writer, Roundup

Reese is expanding its communication capabilities with visualized emergency information updates and regularly scheduled programming.

Since March 1988, the command post has been able to audio override Channel 3 on televisions connected to Mission Cable in base housing and around the base to provide emergency weather condition to Reese people.

The expansion into video, planned to go into effect by Labor

Day weekend, enables the command post audio override of Channel 3 providing a more advanced weather update and also to allow the base a chance to keep Reese people informed on base related topics.

According to Maj. Russell Jenney, chief, Readiness Division, the command post has recently received a T-9 modulator—limiting the range of override and programmed broadcasting to Reese Village, the dormitories, billeting, Mathis Recreation Center and other on-base facilities connected to Mission Cable—and a VCR operation instant processing machine.

Currently the audio capabilities only allow transmission of emergency type weather situations such as high winds, tornados, thunderstorms and hail warnings. With the addition of the video equipment, graphic weather updates and non-emergency displays—similar to those used on national television—advertising of base sales and Mama Reesione's menu, newcomer welcomes with a visual tour of Reese, community events calendar, fire, safety and disaster preparedness "how to prevent hazards," contingent exercise updates and other Reese unique situations will be but a few of the capabilities that will enable the base to keep its people informed.

"The sky's the limit with what we can do," said Jenney. "All it really takes is a little imagination."

The administrative support team, located in the command post complex, has control over the audio and will obtain control over the visual presentations.

"The 64th Student Squadron's audio/visual section will develop the programs and visual tapes to be broadcast, but it will require the cooperation of all the activities involved to provide and maintain an effective video presentation," Jenney commented.

Until now, the 64th Air Base Group has coordinated with Mission Cable the audio overlay costs. Once video is established, the audio and visual funding will be provided by the STURON's audio/visual section and the command post with the 1958 Communications Squadron will cover the equipment and hardware expenses.

Audio broadcasting is done by command post controllers over the SL1 telecommunications system, located in the command post and the communications building, the the command post's centralized system. The controllers are console certified and inspected in the system for their audio broadcasting capabilities.

Broadcast information is obtained from the 24th Weather Squadron, 64th Security Police Squadron, 64th Civil Engineering Squadron and through monitoring of local and national television stations.

"A possible thought for the future would be to coordinate with Mission Cable and establish our own station, but that all depends on funding and manning conditions," said Jenney.

"As of now," he added, "it's just an idea."

In support of the broadcasting, during hazardous weather conditions, the CARELINE, 3273, will be an open line to provide additional information on storm survival.

A Trammel Crow Company

Historian extends impressive record

By Sgt. Mike Breslin
Staff Writer, Roundup

For the third time in the past six years, the 64th Flying Training Wing historian has been selected as the best in the Air Training Command.

Ruede Turner, wing historian since 1981, has compiled an impressive record of achievement in her tenure at Reese. In addition to the ATC awards, the wing history program was named best in the Air Force in 1985, and the program has stood out in every inspection since 1982.

Mrs. Turner said that one of the things that makes the Reese historical program so strong are the unit historical representatives. "Anytime we've needed facts or documentation from the various units, the representatives have come forward and given them to us. Without their inputs, the program would fall."

The history program that Mrs. Turner manages encompasses every aspect of life on Reese. As historian, she is responsible for producing an annual summary detailing the accomplishments and events that affected the base over the year.

"One of the best sources of information (for the histories) are talking papers," she said. "From them, you can get a good overview of what's happening on the base, and they can also help point areas where additional research is required."

She said that one of the most challenging parts of her job is making people realize the amount of information that is contained in the base histories. "The history shouldn't be put on a shelf to gather dust," she said. "For example when a unit is ready to write an award (nomination), we have all the documentation and dates they need. Unfortunately, many people don't realize that all that information is available at a single point."

According to Mrs. Turner, there are certain areas that call for historical documentation every year. For example, given the mission at Reese, undergraduate pilot training classes receive a good deal of attention in each Reese history. She added that the Model Installation Program is another area that's been extensively covered over the years.

Mrs. Turner has worked at Reese since 1980. Before taking over the history program, she worked in the wing public affairs office. She and her husband, Eldon, are natives of the Lubbock area. They married before he entered pilot training at Reese. Mr. Turner is now retired, and the couple reside in Lubbock.

Social actions branch named command's best

By Sgt. Mike Breslin
Staff Writer, Roundup

The 3500th Mission Support Squadron Social Actions Office has been selected as the best in the Air Training Command for 1988.

The Reese office, which is currently manned by one civilian and two military members, is responsible for the drug and alcohol control and equal opportunity treatment programs. According to Philip Thierry, social actions chief, both sections contributed to the overall success of the office.

"On the drug and alcohol side of the house, the DWI (driving while intoxicated) initiatives we've taken have helped keep the DWI rate low—in fact, we had the lowest rate in the command," he said. "We also had a good drug and alcohol abuse control committee."

"We set some real good goals for ourselves, and we basically met all of them," Mr. Thierry added.

On the EOT side, Mr. Thierry said, "I think our educational programs were good. We provided training for people arriving at their first duty station, and we also did training for other agencies that required sexual harassment awareness training."

The accomplishments of the office are even more impressive in light of some of the obstacles they had to overcome. Temporary duty assignments, on-the-job training requirements and a heavy workload which included a great deal of community-related projects added up to a heavy load for an office that was already one person short.

Mr. Thierry was quick to praise the work of TSgt. Frank Lechuga and SrA. Charles Hunn, the other two members of the office. He added that one of the most important aspects of the social actions mission is communication.

"You've got to be out there, talking to the people and letting you know you care about them," he said. "I think that's one of the big things that's happened here at Reese."

AFA membership drive continues

"Serving Our Nation...And Those Who Serve"

The Air Force Association, a 230,000-member national organization that works to build grassroots support for Air Force people and a wider understanding of the need for aerospace strength, began its local membership drive on Monday, April 17 to run through Friday, May 26.

"Every single member can have a real impact on AFA's ability to serve both the nation and the Air Force," AFA president Jack C. Price said. And he added his belief that, by joining AFA, Air Force personnel will "strengthen AFA programs that bring all Americans—particularly those in the private sector—the facts about the dangers we face and the strength we need to be secure."

Key Air Force leaders have endorsed the AFA drive including Air Force Chief of Staff General Larry D. Welch, and the Chief Master Sergeant of the Air Force, CMSAF James C. Binnicker.

AFA is open to all U.S. citizens and AFA chapters are located in more than 350 communities throughout the country and at many overseas locations. These chapters provide an important forum for building local community support for military needs. Dues are $21 per year or $48 for a three-year period. Life Membership is also available for a one-time fee of $300. AFA members enjoy many varied benefits including the highly regarded AIR FORCE Magazine, eligibility for several low-cost insurance programs, an automobile leasing program, automobile rental discounts, an employment transition service, and an AFA/VISA card.

For more information, contact 1st Lt. Dave Carrell, 3217.

World Retention Hotline

The following "Worldwide Retention Hotline" was taken from script number 209, April 7, 1989.

- Revised overseas tour extension incentive program. Enlisted volunteers for 12-month overseas tour extensions in some specialties or at certain locations may receive extra pay of $80 per month, or 30 days nonchargeable leave, or 15 days nonchargeable leave and round trip transportation to the nearest port under the new program.

- Class VI patrons may now charge their purchases on Mastercard, Visa, and Discover credit cards.

- The Air Force Chief of Staff has approved several revisions to the line of the Air Force regular appointment program. They are a part of the ongoing officer professional development initiatives. Effective immediately, the Regular Air Force Appointment Program is decoupled from Captain Promotion Boards. Reserve line officers will meet a single regular Air Force board before their eighth year of commissioned service. The next regular Air Force board is tentatively scheduled to convene Aug. 14.

- Registration is currently underway for the 1989-1990 Air Command and Staff College seminar program scheduled to begin Aug. 18. Eligible participants include captains with date of rank in 1983 or earlier, major selectees and above, and civilian GS-11s and above.

- The Air Force's Children Have A Potential (CHAP) Program has been revamped to include adults. The new exceptional family member program assures that educational and medical services are available to all families that need them. The program requires sponsors to identify exceptional dependents. Exceptional family members are those children requiring medical, emotional, or educational assistance beyond the resources of the family. The Air Force expects the program to be fully implemented by October.

For more information either call the Customer Service Desk, CBPO at 3276 or stop by to review Worldwide Retention Hotline number 209.

Model T-38 donated to Reese

By Sgt. Greg Spraggins
Editor, Roundup

Back in the 1960s, an old 8-foot-long model of a T-38 was about to be used to help fill a landfill. Al Brockopp, a civil servant at Reese at the time, asked to keep the model.

The model sat in Brockopp's garage for more than 20 years.

Brockopp, now a commercial aviator in Lubbock, recently donated the brass (on the inside), bondo, plywood, sheet metal and fiberglass structure to Reese Air Force Base.

In a combined 6-month effort, members of the 54th Flying Training Squadron and the 64th Field Maintenance Squadron's sheet metal shop molded the aircraft back into shape. Once the body of the model had been restored, 1st Lt. Bob Montgomery applied the paint, and the 64th Civil Engineering Squadron mounted the model over the north entrance of the 54th Flying Training Squadron building to welcome aviators and visitors.

News Briefs

Town Hall meeting

Col. William Henny, commander, 64th Air Base Group, will hold a "Town Hall" meeting May 4, 7 p.m., at the Enlisted Open Mess. Child care will be available at the Child Care Center during the meeting. The meeting is open to all Reese members.

Contractors

Have you ever had a problem or complaint regarding the support you received from vehicle maintenance and operations contractors? If you have and would like an answer, complete an Air Force Form 714 and send it to the Transportation Division, stop 22, or call 3357 or 3358. Transportation personnel will look into the matter and ensure the contractor provides the services required.

Symbols and titles

The Air Force-wide approval of the Mission Support Squadron (MSS) concept and conversion of all administrative functions to Information Management has generated a major change in functional address symbols and office titles. For more information, contact Base Information Management, 3252.

Montgomery GI Bill

New legislation has been passed by Congress regarding the Montgomery GI Bill. The open enrollment period is now through June 30. During this period, members who enlisted between Jul 1, 1985 to June 30, 1988 and declined to participate have the opportunity to reconsider their choice. A $100 per month pay deduction for 12 months from the member's pay is required. This deduction may not be stopped and is non-refundable. The $1,200 must be paid while on active duty. Alternate payment options are possible for members with insufficient retainability to pay the $1,200 prior to separation. The Veterans Administration will add $9,600 to the member's contribution, resulting in $10,800 for education expenses. For more information, contact the Education Center, 3634, Bldg. 920, room 139.

Volunteers

Ten volunteer airmen, grades E-1 to E-5, are needed in support of a USCINCAFLANT exercise April 28. Requirements are as follows:

- Any Air Force Specialty Code (AFSC) may volunteer.
- Member will report by government funded, commercial aircraft to the AFFOR first sergeant at Homestead AFB, Fla., Bldg. 360, April 28.
- Member will report with helmet, web belt and canteen.
- Report to Capt. Jones April 28 at the 4th Tactical Fighter Wing, Seymour Johnson AFB, N.C., Bldg. 4517, Room 202. Or call AUTOVON 488-6471, commercial (919) 736-6471.

Two individuals meeting requirements a, b and c and eight individuals meeting a and c and an option of b or d requirements are needed for a reporting date of April 28 and a release date of May 19.

For more information, contact Sgt. John Slusser, NCOIC, Personnel Readiness Unit, 3159.

Air Force News Notes

CEM crossflow

AIR FORCE MILITARY PERSONNEL CENTER, Randolph AFB, Texas — The Air Force needs stateside chief master sergeants to crossflow from surplus chief enlisted manager codes into shortage codes. There are 12 overage codes and 26 shortage codes. Chiefs with secondary codes on the shortage list are being encouraged to return to that CEM code. For more information, contact the Consolidated Base Personnel Office, customer service unit, 3276.

DDP update

WASHINGTON — Second opinions are not authorized under the Dependent Dental Plan. If a person sees a second doctor and has an examination for the purpose of a second opinion, the examination will count toward the twice-per-year examination benefit. Since second opinions are not a DDP benefit, military dental facilities may provide them for people enrolled in DDP without charge, when space is available. For more information, contact the base Health Benefits Advisor, 3581.

F-111 crash

NELLIS AFB, Nev. — Two Air Force officers were killed when an F-111F crashed into the Nellis Range Complex while conducting a simulated interdiction mission during a red flag exercise April 5.

The aircraft was assigned to the 48th Tactical Fighter Wing, RAF Lakenheath, England. The aircrew were from the 494th Tactical Fighter Wing, RAF Lakenheath.

Dead are: 1st Lt. Robert Boland Jr., 25, pilot, and Capt. James Gleason, 32, instructor, weapons systems operator.

The Air Force is investigating the accident.

Sgt. Brad Thompson, a deployed member of the 64th Civil Engineering Squadron's Prime BEEF team, enjoys his "camp-out" type breakfast prepared by services' Prime Rib team. April 11-14, 96 Prime BEEF members simulated deployment with support from the 64th Security Police Squadron and Base Chapel members.

Suited for the occasion

Prime BEEF members weren't the only civil engineers participating in Readiness Week. TSgt. Scott Seymour, dressed in full chemical gear, responded to a simulated chemical problem at Wing Headquarters, Bldg. 800, April 13.

CHAMPUS: Limited for reservists

By Carolyn Johnson
Health Benefits Advisor

If you're a military reservist, your dependents are eligible for Civilian Health and Medical Plan of the Uniformed Services (CHAMPUS) benefits only under certain conditions.

If you are called to active duty for more than 30 consecutive days, your family members become CHAMPUS-eligible on the first day of your active service and remain so until you leave active duty. The period of active-duty time stated on your orders is the determining factor.

If you should die while on active duty, your surviving dependents will continue to be eligible for military health benefits, including CHAMPUS, under the same rules as would the survivors of any deceased active-duty service members.

After you've served long enough in the reserve forces to qualify for reserve retirement (you've logged a total of 20 or more satisfactory years of service, then begin drawing retired pay and benefits at age 60), you and your dependents (if they qualify) become eligible for CHAMPUS and other military health benefits on your 60th birthday.

Your CHAMPUS eligibility will continue until you reach age 65 (or become eligible before age 65) and qualify for Medicare (Part A), which cost-shares hospital charges. Qualified dependents also keep their CHAMPUS eligibility until they become individually eligible for Medicare (Part A).

For more information contact the Health Benefits Advisor at 3581.

Your chances of being struck by lightning are 1 in 20 million...
and
1 in 20 of dying from colon cancer.

BEAT THE ODDS.

Fact 1.

Cancer of the colon and rectum is the second major cause of cancer death in the United States each year.

Fact 2.

Of the 910,000 diagnosed with colon cancer in the United States this year, 340,000 will be alive five years after treatment.

Fact 3.

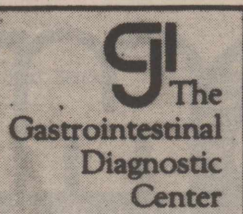

Three out of four colon cancer patients could be saved by early detection.

Fact 4.

The American Cancer Society recommends routine yearly screening examinations for colon cancer to begin at age 40 to 50, and an immediate and thorough evaluation of any suggestive symptoms (persistent change in bowel habits, cramping abdominal pain, dark or bloody stools, rectal bleeding or unexplained weight loss).

To discuss your individual cancer risk, see your physician or call for an appointment at the Gastrointestinal Diagnostic Center.

Community Notes

Reese Boy Scouts

Reese is looking for "a few good men" to help improve and strengthen the Reese Boy Scout troop. Saturday, 9 a.m., in the Wing Conference Room, Col. Bill Henny will chair a working group whose immediate goal is to fill leadership positions for this small, but expanding, program for boys. He extends an invitation to all base Eagle, Life and Star scouts, as well as any interested adult, to participate. Capt. Bob McManaway, Base Boy Scout liaison, is available to answer questions at 3385 or 4368.

New FWPM

Reese is seeking an experienced, aggressive and motivated Federal Women's Program manager. Candidates must like people, have an outgoing personality and be able to meet the public. They must possess one or more years of experience in coordinating and setting up programs and have a burning desire to be successful. It's an excellent opportunity to grow and advance in personnel matters through a collateral duty position. For more information call 3975 or 3973.

Project officer

A project officer is needed for Reese's Camp Blue Yonder, a camp for economically disadvantaged children in the Lubbock community. Camp Blue Yonder runs for two weeks in August - one week for girls and one for boys. United Way funds the majority of the expense for this camp. If interested call Capt. Sandra Gellner, 3655 or Lt. Col. Kevin Collins, 3520.

Park College

Instructors are needed to teach management and financial management courses for Park College at Reese. Classes are two nights a week for eight weeks. A master's degree is required. Classes offered are applicable to the following degree programs: management, management/human resources and social psychology. For more information, contact Park College, 6318 or the Education Center, 3634, Bldg. 920, Room 130C.

Super saver

The annual super saver catalog will arrive at the base exchange the end of April. Heavy on electronics and photo-optical selections, this mini-catalog supplements the all-service exchange mail order catalog. The 32-page catalog includes a listing of "last minute" specials and 120 preview items. The super saver will remain in effect through July 31.

Garden plot

A volunteer is needed to manage the base garden plots this year. If a manager is not found soon, no garden plots will be assigned to potential Reese gardeners. For more information or to volunteer call 3655.

Parade

This week the Month of the Military Child festivities include a parade beginning at 12:30 p.m. today. Children will march from the Child Development Center to the library, back of headquarters building and past the pool by the Enlisted Open Mess. Marchers will then proceed past the commissary and back to the recreation center.

April 28, the Child Development Center will have an open house and picnic to close out this year's Month of the Military Child events. Parents are invited to have lunch and tour the center. Lunch is $2 per plate and the menu includes hot dogs, baked beans, potato salad, chips and jello/fruit salad. For more information call the center at 3541.

Vet clinic

Did you know the Veterinarian Clinic offers the cheapest prices for rabies, canine distemper/parvovirus and feline distemper shots. All dogs and cats residing in base housing must be registered at the base vet clinic. Pets are seen by appointment only.

When visiting the clinic, remember all pets must be firmly restrained; dogs on leashes, cats in carriers.

Parents are reminded that children are not allowed in the clinic. For more information or an appointment, call 3535.

Artist/Craftsmen

Entry deadline for this year's Artist Craftsmen contest is Wednesday, 6 p.m. Entries must be turned in at the Arts and Crafts Center, Bldg. 340. Judging is April 28.

Works will be on display at the Base Library after the judging. For more information call the Arts and Crafts Center, 3241.

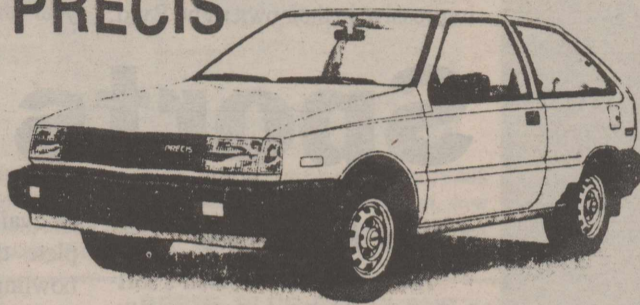

Ladies retreat

The women of St. Augustine's Parish, Reese AFB, are sponsoring an overnight retreat at Mercy Center in Slaton, May 5 and 6. Sister Mary Jane will speak on the role of women in Biblical times. Bishop Sheehan will explain the role of women in the Catholic church today. Check-in is at 4 p.m. May 5 at Mercy Center.

To make reservations, call Danni Saenz, 885-2217 (109 Yount), or Ellie Towe, 885-4369 (104 McGuire, Hurlwood 79416). Fee of $15 covers dinner, lodging and breakfast.

On the run

Larry Byrd, a chief master sergeant assigned to the 64th Field Maintenance Squadron, has logged more than 9,000 miles running at Reese. (U.S. Air Force photo by Sgt. Mike Breslin)

Byrd logs 9,000 miles

By Sgt. Mike Breslin
Staff Writer, Roundup

Certain names in sports are known by everyone who's ever picked up a sports section. Babe Ruth, Joe Namath, Wayne Gretzky and Kareem Abdul Jabbar are a few cases in point.

Another example is Larry Byrd. You'd be hard put to find even a halfhearted basketball fan who hasn't heard of the Boston Celtics superstar.

So, how many Reese basketball fans know that Larry Byrd is assigned to the 64th Field Maintenance Squadron?

Actually, CMSgt. Larry Byrd, 64th FMS, is not the world's foremost expert when it comes to the three-point shot, but his athletic accomplishments are nevertheless impressive in their own right. Byrd, a member of the Reese Runners Club, has run more than 9,000 miles over the last five years.

Byrd, a native of Tennessee, runs every day — he hasn't missed a day in more than a year. "I try to set my goals (for running) on a weekly basis," he said. "Right now, I'm running between 40 and 50 miles a week. Of course, if I'm training for a marathon, I increase that."

Byrd doesn't have a set place where he runs — he takes to the road "wherever I get the opportunity," as he puts it. He's been running regularly since 1978. He runs in competition about 20 times a year, and he's taken part in every Air Training Command cross-country championship since the competition began in 1984. Last year the 26-year service veteran was part of the Reese team that placed second at ATC.

Although Byrd has run different distances in competition, he does have a favorite race. "I prefer to run marathons," he said. "You have to set long-range goals and train properly to meet them. Once you meet them and complete the marathon, it's just a little more satisfying." He runs in two marathons a year. His most recent run was the Houston Tenneco, where he finished the 26.2-mile course in 3:40:17.

Competing in marathons isn't the only thing Byrd finds satisfying about running. "If I don't run every day, I feel like I've missed something," he said. "I run because I like it. All the other benefits, like being in good shape and not having to worry about my weight are just side effects."

Lady Rattlers

The base varsity women's softball team, the Rattlers, blasted St. Mary's Saints 17-10 April 13 to improve their record to 2-0.

Prior to the game, the Lady Rattlers defeated the Amistad Angels to open the season. The team was scheduled to play the L.R.A. Rads Thursday night. Results of that contest were not available at press time.

Their next game is set for 10:30 p.m. May 4 at Berl Huffman Field No. 1, against the Bar Misfits.

be available and people who complete the season will receive a bowling ball and a card good for 45 free games.

The "Funtime League" begins May 2. In this league, half of each week's prize fund will be distributed back to the bowlers and the other half will go toward an end-of-league cookout.

The third league, for parents and children, will begin May 3. Bowling fees will go toward a season-end trip, which will be decided on by the bowlers.

For details, call the Windmill Lanes at 3116.

3 - 8:45 p.m., Monday through Friday; 1 - 8:45 p.m. Saturday; and 1 - 5:45 p.m. Sunday.

Parents are reminded that youth must be accompanied by someone 18 years old or older to use the equipment. For more information, call the center at 3820.

Teen softball

The Youth Center is forming a teen softball team. Teens 15 - 18 years old are eligible for the team, which will play in the intramural league in the upcoming season.

Players must be center members to join. To find out more, call 3820.

Aeromania III

Aeromania III is coming May 5, 4:45 p.m., in the Heart 'N Sole aerobics room, Physical Fitness Center annex.

Entry fee is $2 per person. Refreshments will be available. Medically-trained professionals will be on hand. For more information call the Physical Fitness Center, 6020.

Name the pools

Don't miss your chance to name the pools at Reese. Today is the final day to submit your pool names to the Physical Fitness Center, Bldg. 210. Winner receives a free season pass.
