No more new 'buck' sergeants after May 1

Change is the result of enlisted rank structure study

A comprehensive study of the enlisted rank structure to meet the realities of fewer enlisted people in the 1990s will now make E-5 staff sergeant the first NCO-level grade.

As the Air Force moves into the next decade, force restructuring changes call for a change in the enlisted grades as a result of end-strength reductions. Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Merrill McPeak approved the change in the NCO structure March 19 with an effective date of May 2.

Senior airmen appointed to sergeant on May 1 will be the last to be appointed to NCO status. They and all other E-4 sergeants will continue to wear the sergeant stripes and retain the title of sergeant.

There are 231 E-4s at Reese; 170 of those are already sergeants, according to the Reese Military Personnel Office. The number of wing members who will be appointed to NCO status May 1 was not available at press time.

CMSAF Gary Pfingston attributed the change to several factors, among them the fact that roughly 77 percent of the Air considered in the decision, including: Force enlisted members are NCOs.

"One area that I think is really impor-After May 1, senior airmen will retain tant is it realigns responsibilities of NCOs commensurate with their grade," Chief Pfingston said.

The chief said several other factors were

From my perspective

by Col. Ray Bean 64th ABG commander weathered another winter here in West Texas, and spring is here — dust and all. It's time for us to show off our base and housing area again.

By the end of last fall, the housing area looked excellent.
The pride you took in making sure your lawn and garden areas looked nice paid great dividends. Remember — it's our neighborhood. Let's make it a place we enjoy coming home to.

Spruce-up weekend

This year, we are going to kick off the spring spruce-up weekend April 20 and 21 to coincide with Earth Day. With the recent warm weather, we already have a good start in our housing area, and now we can really turn Reese into a show place.

The 64th Civil Engineering Squadron Pride Store is gearing up for spring with all the lava rock, fertilizer and other things you will need to start your lawn on the right track. They are open from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 4 - 5 p.m. Tuesday through Friday. They will be open from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. on April 20, and from 1 - 6 p.m. on April 21.

MWR Logistics ready

Morale, Welfare and Recreation Division's Logistics Branch is preparing all their yard equipment, such as mowers, edgers, hoes and a host of other items, to be available for you this spring, too. They will be open for your convenience from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. April 20 and 21 and on Saturdays thereafter.

The yard of the week and the yard of the month competition will be kicking off the weekend after our spruce up, and that is your chance to get those reserved parking places in front of the Main Exchange and Commissary.

Start looking at your area and get a good head start on things. Let's make Reese a place we can be proud to show our visitors and friends.

Upcoming rummage sale

One final note. Be sure to mark your calendar for May 4. That is when you'll have a chance to get rid of all that stuff that has been accumulating in your garage, carport or storage areas. The annual wing rummage sale that day is sure to draw plenty of customers for all participants. In addition, MWR will have its boat and camping show that day between the BX and commissary. Come out and see what's available to you and your family for summer outdoor activities.

From YOUR perspective

As wing commander, I need to hear things "from YOUR perspective." Your input and suggestions can help Reese maintain its position as a pacesetter in the command.

If you see something good, call me. If you have a problem that you feel needs my attention, call me. First, however, consider using your chain of command. You may remain anonymous if you wish, but those who leave their name and number can get a direct response to their call.

Calls can be made to the Careline 24 hours a day at 3273.

Parking tickets near dumpster

People have received tickets for parking in the dumpster area near Bldg. 420 because the dumpsters cannot be emptied. I feel that if "no parking from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m." signs were posted, this problem could be eliminated.

Thank you for your interest in this area. The dumpster area on the south end of Bldg. 420 is not authorized for parking at any time. This area was established for the dormitory dumpster and as a fire lane.

Due to the increasing amount of illegally parked cars, a "No Parking" has been requested in the prohibited area. Allowing timed parking in this area was considered, but the area does not meet required standards for anything other than what it was designed for.

Easter egg hunt idea

I have an idea for Easter. Last year during the Easter egg hunt, there were so many kids that eggs ran out very quickly and my five-year-old didn't even get one. I was thinking maybe we could get enough money to buy enough candy eggs for all the kids if we put out boxes and asked for donations.

Thank you for your interest and concern about the Easter egg hunt. This year's hunt promises to be better organized to include a sufficient number of candy eggs for all of the children.

The Reese Youth Center will host the egg hunt March 31. As in prior years, the Officers' and Enlisted Wives' Clubs will be asked to co-host and support the hunt.

Children will be separated according to age. The youth center will assign a hunting area for each age category.

We welcome the donation of plastic eggs and sealed candy, as well as adult volunteers to assist with the hunt.

Parents can also help by notifying the youth center staff of the age and number of children who will attend the egg hunt. Again, thank you — we appreciate your ideas.

Kudos to hospital

I would like to express my appreciation for the prompt and courteous service my family and I received from the 64th Flying Training Wing Hospital.

From the optometry to the dental clinic, from primary care to the emergency room, the health care providers at Reese are extremely professional and attentive.

Waiting has never been a problem; not even at the pharmacy counter. Thank you!

Thank you for your comments. It has been a standing practice at the hospital to give the best possible care to the Reese community. The men and women at the hospital are proud of what they do, and your comments reflect their pride. Thank you.

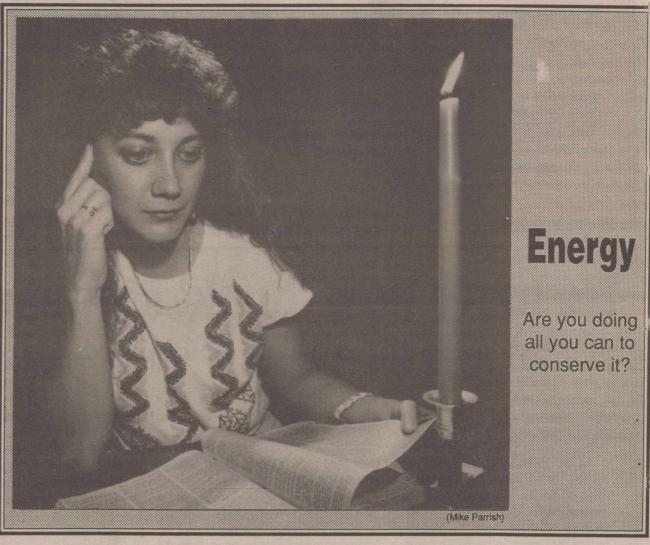

Loud dorm music

I'm tired of all the loud music being played in the dormitories. It goes on every day, every weekend. It's a real pain in the neck. Can something be done about it?

Our policy is to maintain quality of life for all of our people. In order to do this, all dormitory occupants must care about and work with each other.

Politely ask the person playing the music to turn it down, and if they don't comply, then inform the dormitory manager of the constant problem.

The second step would be to contact the security police, who will notify the offender's first sergeant.

Desert Storm demonstrates B-2's worth

DOD, Air Force officials laud capability of stealth technology

by SSgt. David P. Masko Air Force News Service

The proven success of stealth technology in the Persian Gulf War and the importance of maintaining high readiness are just two of the reasons why Air Force leaders support the B-2 Stealth Bomber Program.

"The bomber gives you the ability to launch and recall, to generate and disperse, to be used conventionally as well as with nuclear options," said Maj. Gen. Stephen B. Croker, Air Force director of strategic, special operations forces, and airlift operations. "It's a pretty remarkable achievement... probably as revolutionary as radar or the airplane itself.

"The Air Force is committed to the B-2 to modernize its strategic bomber forces," General Croker said in an interview March 14.

The B-2 was initiated in 1981 to help counter Soviet air defense modernization and, along with B-1B bombers, replace some B-52s which are approaching the end of their useful life.

Although the B-2 program has widespread support in the military community, outside critics charge that the Air Force no longer needs the B-2 to update its strategic forces, and that it's too expensive at a flyaway cost (the cost not including research and development) of almost $500 million a plane.

General Croker believes one cause of the criticism is misunderstanding about the stealth bomber. He said he is confident the B-2 program will ultimately be executed as planned.

"It's had bipartisan support for three administrations. I think everyone agrees the airplane area. The main criticism we get is the cost."

Recently, however, critics have used sweeping international changes and defense budget limitations to justify stopping production of the aircraft.

Last year, for example, the B-2 program was threatened with termination by Congress, which would have stopped B-2 production at only 15 aircraft.

Although Congress has approved plans to go ahead with the B-2, the current buy profile falls far short of the original plan to produce 132 B-2s through fiscal 1997.

"I think it's absolutely vital that we complete the B-2 program," Defense Secretary Dick Cheney told Congress last month. "If we stop now, as many have suggested, we will have spent close to $40 billion for 15 airplanes.

"For a relatively modest additional investment, relative to what we have already spent, we can reap the benefits of that investment and go ahead and complete the buy of 75 that we recommended last year."

"So anyone thinking of challenging U.S.

interests stays awake at night [because of

F-117A stealth fighter in the Persian Gulf will help demonstrate the value of continuing the stealth bomber program and allow the Air

Force to buy its recommended total of 75 B-2s,

the B-21."

The secretary of the Air Force also believes the issue of B-2 cost needs to be kept in perspective.

"To show you what we're getting out of this next generation of stealth, we will be buying about 10 times the ton miles per dollar with the B-2as we get with the F-117," Secretary Donald Rice told the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce

He said this figure represents all the costs used in both the F-117 and B-2 programs, and comparing them on an "apples-to-apples basis" in today's dollars is a bargain.

Aditionally, large aircraft are expensive, but after B-2 development and testing is paid for, it will cost about as much to build a B-2 as to buy two commercial 747s, which don't have the B-2's combat capability or the benefit of a production run of 700 aircraft.

Aside from the cost, Secretary Rice said the B-2's value in light of Desert Storm will keep it "on center stage" for deterrence against all conflict, and will render opposing air forces obsolete.

"So anyone thinking of challenging U.S. interests stays awake at night."

On the basis of performance, the secretary said the B-2 captures the essence of airpower:

☐ It's lethal, with up to 10 times the payload of the F-

☐ It's fast. In hours, B-2s can project conventional power to any spot on the Air Force secretary

☐ Its range is unrivalled. From three secure bases, it can cover the Earth with one refueling.

☐ Stealth technology has proven its element of surprise in combat as demonstrated by the performance of the F-117A in Desert Storm.

The Air Force chief of staff also acknowledges the vital role stealth aircraft played in winning the Persian Gulf War.

"Stealth, in combination with precisionguided munitions, has certainly the potential to revolutionize warfare," Gen. Merrill A. McPeak said during a Pentagon briefing March 15. "I think the B-2 will make a tremendous difference when fielded."

The principal value will be to take conventional weapons long distances and attack very quickly, he said. The B-2 has been the subject of occasional questions about its design, largely because of its all-wing configuration.

The B-2 is about the size of the B-52 wingspan. And due to the fact that there's no body to induce drag, its design is ideal to fly a long way and carry a lot of weight, General Croker said.

"We're combining the best features of the B-52 and the F-117A and putting them together in a pretty impressive airplane."

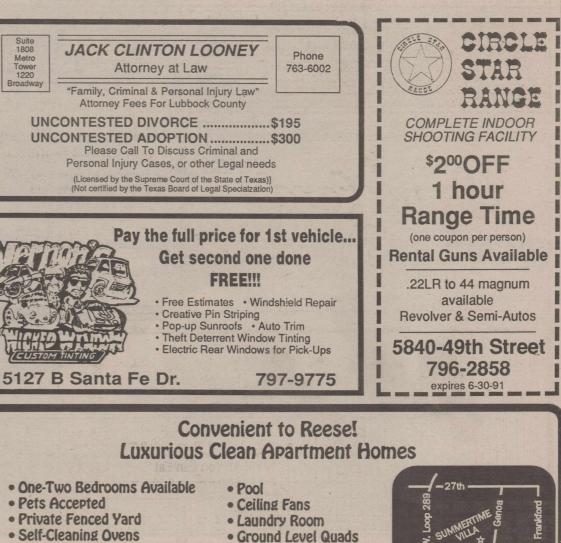

Currently, B-2 flight tests on two aircraft have logged more than 150 hours, and demonstrate the B-2 is working as predicted, General Croker said. Furthermore, the first B-2 stealth tests have been completed and will be released to Congress in the near future. The Defense Science Board saw no indications "that would indicate that B-2 survivability is in jeopardy."

The Air Force eventually will have six airplanes flying in the test program, and two more that will do static and durability testing "where we bend and twist and shake and try to wear them out."

"On the durability article, we've just come very close to reaching the first lifetime of the airplane, and found no cracks or flaws. It's coming through like gangbusters," General

The goal is to have the 75 B-2 bombers operational before the year 2000 at Whiteman AFB, Mo. "The first airplanes will start to arrive there in 1993, and about three years later they'll have their first squadron," General Croker said.

Precautions can curtail cantankerous 'kite' crashes

"Whoosh!!!" was a familiar sound in July of 1990, as a group of Mississippi Kites— distant cousins of the falcon-staked a claim on certain area's of Reese.

When the kites arrived that spring, they made one thing perfectly clear. They like their privacy.

The kites, which have a wingspan up to three feet and weigh about eight to 12 ounces, were noticed in 1990 on the High Plains Golf Course, Reese Village, the 64th Flying Training Wing Hospital main entrance and in a tree between the Consolidated Base Personnel Office and the Operations Complex parking lot.

The kites have already started to build this year's nests in some trees on base, said Stephen Jones, 64th Civil Engineering Squadron Environmental Planning Section. Once they build their nests, they become protective of their area because they may have their young with them.

"Since the kites are migratory, it is illegal to harm them in any way," Mr. Jones said. "The federal game warden

The kites are expected to be in the area until they head south sometime in October. Until then, entomology officials advised wing members to take the following precautions:

☐ Avoid areas around their nests as much as practical during July and □ Look at the bird as it dives. This will intimidate it.

☐ Wave your arms or a stick. This causes the bird to pull out of its dive.

☐ If it is necessary to go into one of these areas, try walking parallel to the line of trees. Also, as strange as it may sound, stay close to the trees. The kites are more apt to swoop into

Bioenvironmental officials also said people should wear hats when they are in kite areas, since kites tend to strike at the highest point on their

QAE captures maintenance award

Quality Assurance Evaluator Division captured the 1990 Air Training Command's Maintenance Effectiveness Award. The award was presented Saturday in the Reese Officers' Open Mess.

This was the first time the award was presented to anyone in the command, said Lt. Col. Robert House, chief of QAE Division. "Since our division was created in 1990, it was very satisfying to win this award the first time out.

"It took a lot of hard work to get quickly," the colonel said.

The QAE division evaluates a $17 million annual maintenance services contract on a fleet of 183 assigned aircraft supporting 35 maintenance work centers, which are responsible for over 80,000 ATC and Strategic Air Command training sorties annually.

"I feel we earned the award based on the quality of people we have and how well we got ourselves organized," the colonel said. "Our division members were selected from > the division were: ☐ Development of internal QAE safety, training and self-inspection programs that became command standards. ☐ Accomplishing 260 scheduled and unscheduled evaluations each month. They kept the wing leadership and the command apprised of contractor performance.

☐ Developing and implementing 47 observation guides that insured detailed, standardized performance maintenance.

☐ Producing a surveillance plan that became the model for subsequent wings which support an accelerated copilot enrichment program.

The Functional Check Flight joined the division and was actively involved in contract surveillance by monitoring ACE, FCF release rates and post-dock trends while flying 700 sorties annually. An "innovative" training program under the guidance of the contracts division continues as evaluation proficiency is developed.

"FCF continues aggressive involvement in the wing prevention effort, by briefing the wing staff on issues which can prevent FOD mishaps," Colonel House said.

"The division has focused on technical expertise and surveillance technique development during its first year," Colonel House said. "It was a challenging year of change for all of us, and I'm extremely proud ATC recognized the dedication and commitment of all our QAE's and FCF pilots."

Getting to know your back

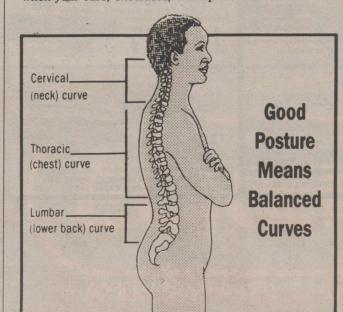

Your back is the main supporting structure of your entire body. Along with your muscles and joints, it allows you to move (sit, stand, bend, etc.) and to bear weight. But the back is also a delicate, finely balanced structure that can be easily injured if we don't care for it properly. Knowing the basics of back care can make the difference between a healthy back and an aching one!

A Healthy Back

The back (or spinal column) is composed of twenty-four moveable bones called vertebrae. Between each vertebra is a cushion-like pad called a disc which absorbs shock. These vertebrae and discs are supported by ligaments and muscles which keep the back properly aligned in three balanced curves. When any of these various parts becomes diseased, injured, or deconditioned, back problems and pain are almost certain to follow.

A Balanced Back

A healthy back is a balanced back—your cervical (neck), thoracic (chest), and lumbar (lower back) curves are all properly aligned. (You know your back is aligned properly when your ears, shoulders, and hips are "stacked" in a straight line.) A healthy back is also protected and supported by flexible "elastic" discs and well-conditioned muscles.

An Aching Back

A number of physical conditions, such as curvature of the spine (scoliosis), arthritis, and herniated (ruptured) discs, can cause back pain, but the majority of backaches are due to poor posture and weak supporting muscles. Improper posture places excess stress on the spinal column. Over time, poor posture can lead to sudden or recurrent back pain. Weak muscles contribute to, and are often responsible for, poor posture since they cannot adequately support the spinal column.

Preventive Back Care

Once you understand how your back works, and what can go wrong, you're ready to start taking care of your back—for the health of it. By using proper posture (when you sit, stand, lift, recline, and move) and by exercising the muscles that support your back, you can prevent the most common causes of back aches. The result is freedom from back pain, and a stronger, healthier back.

Reese tops goal for 1991 AFAF drive

The Reese community has given $18,800 to the 1991 Air Force Assistance Fund Campaign — 120 percent of the local goal — as of Wednesday morning.

As the campaign ends today, everyone should have been contacted and should have made their final decision on contributions, according to Capt. Robert Saenz, Reese campaign project officer. Anyone who was not contacted should call their squadron representative to get information

One beneficiary of the AFAF is the Air Force Aid Society. AFAS is chartered to assist in relieving financial emergencies of eligible active-duty, retired and reserve members on active duty.

Qualifying members are given interest-free loans or grants during personal and family emergencies. Aid is given for such things as food, rent, utilities, dental and medical care, transportation and essential services. The AFAS also assists individuals with moving assistance and budget restructuring programs when need exists.

Reese mission maker

This week's mission maker is A1C Angela Williams, information manager, 1958th Communications Squadron Plans and Programs Section.

The 19-year-old has been at Reese since January 1990, joining the Honor Guard in April.

"I joined the honor guard to meet people I wouldn't have otherwise met," said the Ft. Worth, Texas, native. "It also keep me up on my customs and courtesies."

In April of last year, she also became a security police augmentee.

"I love working the main gate," said Airman Williams. "I think the SPs are great people to work with. Even with the responsibilities and the hours, it's worth it. Representing Reese gives me a good feeling."

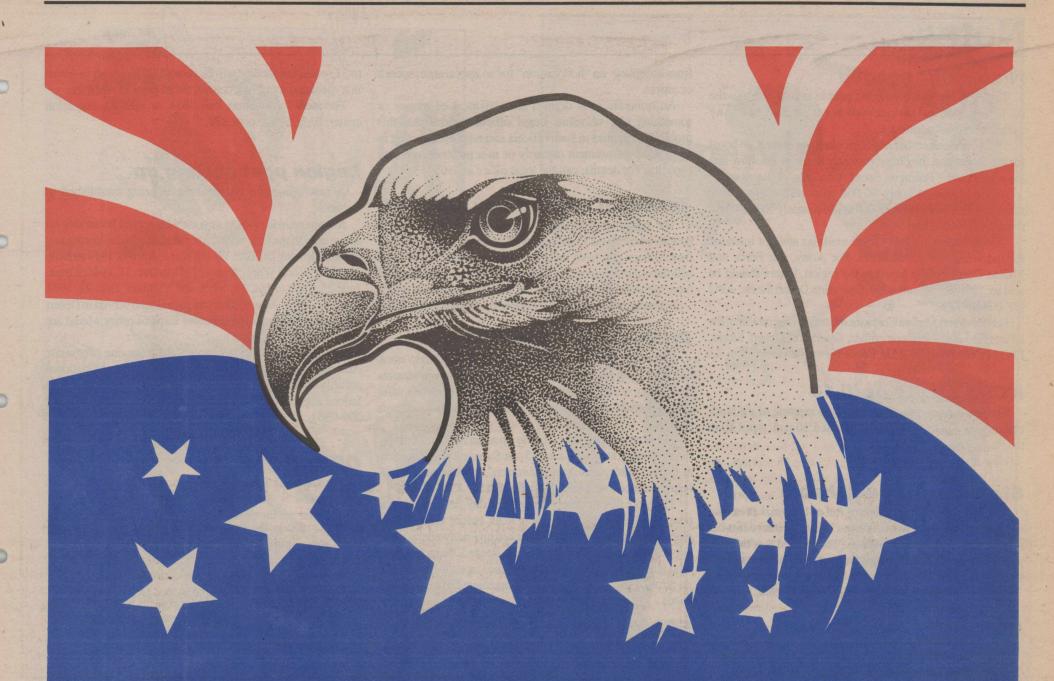

Airman Williams keeps busy in her off-duty time enjoying softball and scary movies.

Notes

"Fan mail" needed

The Pentagon is encouraging people to continue to write to Desert Storm servicemembers, using the "Any Servicemember" addresses.

"Any servicemember mailings were a great morale boost for the forces and they have naturally dropped off, now that the war is over," Pentagon Spokesman Pete Williams said.

As of March 21, only 90,000 men and women have returned to their home bases and approximately 351,000 still remain in the gulf region.

The addresses are for generic mailings and not intended for individual servicemembers. For Army, Air Force and Marine Corps people based in the region, letters should be sent to: "Any Servicemember, Operation Desert Storm, APO NY 09848-0006."

For Navy and Marine Corps members serving on ships, the address is: Any Servicemember, Operation Desert Storm, FPO NY 09866-0006. (Air Force News Service)

Steroids use punishable

The Anabolic Steroids Control Act of 1990 makes steroid use punishable under the Uniform Code of Military Justice, according to Reese legal officials. They added that this act, which amended the Controlled Substances Act, became effective late last month.

For details, call the Reese Legal Office at 3505.

Honorariums prohibited

Public law is in effect that, according to the Reese Legal Office, prohibits any Air Force officer or civilian employee tension Course Institute will be virtually closed from May 1

from accepting an "honorarium" for an appearance, speech

An honorarium is defined as a payment of money or something else of value. Legal officials added that this prohibition applies to such officers and employees acting in an official government capacity or in a personal, off-duty capacity. For details, call the legal office at 3505.

Taxing of combat pay affected

The majority of states, following federal policy, allow people who served in an approved combat zone to exclude that military pay from their reportable income. Reese legal officials said that most states that do not offer such tax relief have legislation in the works that would provide that relief.

For more information, call the Reese Legal Office at 3505.

Pride store can help

The Reese Pride Store, also known as the self-help store, can help wing members make quality-of-life improvements where they work, live and play. Store officials said they offer both materials and guidance on both indoors and outdoors projects.

The store places orders every Thursday, so they ask that people put in their orders each week before then. Orders placed before Thursday can be picked up Friday afternoon or between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Saturday. Reese Village residents who want to order shrubs, trees or landscape timbers should go through the Reese Housing Management Office for those needs.
