

SGLI increasing to $100,000

Members who don't want extra coverage must act soon

People who do not want the new $100,000 Servicemen's Group Life Insurance coverage, or who want reduced coverage, should change their SGLI election by the end of April to avoid paying May's premium, Air Force officials said.

SGLI coverage increased to $100,000 April 6 when the president signed the Persian Gulf Conflict Supplemental Authorization Act of 1991. The act contains a permanent provision to automatically provide $100,000 of SGLI to all eligible members of the Armed Forces.

All servicemen and women automatically had their coverage increased to $100,000 April 6, no matter what their previous coverage had been, officials said. Congress provided the automatic $100,000 coverage for all members to protect the beneficiary of any member who might die before having the chance to sign up for the new increase.

The recent changes to SGLI also apply to reservists eligible for full-time or part-time coverage.

The legislation that increased these benefits also increased other benefits for servicemembers in Operation Desert Shield/Storm. Some of these changes require retroactive payments to some members, according to the Reese Accounting and Finance Branch.

Imminent danger pay increased from $110 to $150 per month, retroactive to Aug. 1. This increase will cease to be effective the first day of the first month beginning on or after the end of the war.

With the automatic increase in coverage comes a premium hike. Premium rates for the new coverage remain at the rate of 8 cents per $1,000, meaning a person will now pay $8 a month for the $100,000 coverage instead of the old maximum premium of $4 for $50,000 worth of coverage.

For those wishing lower coverage, officials in accounting and finance said the reduced coverage and premiums take effect on the first day of the month following the date the person made the election change at their local base personnel office. This means a person desiring lower coverage should make the election before the end of April to avoid being charged the full premium for May.

Reduced coverage is available in increments of $10,000. A person may change the coverage by filling out a VA Form 29-8286 at the Reese Personal Affairs Office, Bldg. 920.

Air Force finance center officials are reprogramming their computers to handle the new coverage, and expect the new premiums to be reflected in end of April paychecks.

For people who are paid twice a month, $2 has already been withheld from their mid-April pay. To make up the difference for the total of $8 due for April's coverage, another $6 will be deducted from the end-of-

Class on T-1 marks milestone toward jet's arrival here

Beech contractor conducts session for wing members

The integration of the T-1 Jayhawk into the wing fleet came one step closer April 19, as contractors from Beech Aeronautical Systems Inc. conducted an aircraft familiarization class for Reese members.

The class was designed as a "quick look" at the T-1's systems, according to Capt. Ellen Sigler, maintenance supervisor for the T-1 Test Team here. She said that instructors provided an orientation of the new aircraft's major systems.

"They didn't go into too much detail on the different components of each system," she said. "They did cover the engines, avionics, layout of the jet and so on."

In addition to people from the local test team and Site Activation Task Force, representatives from the Reese Safety Division, Fire Department and Lockheed were also on hand for the familiarization class.

The class went very well, according to Lt. Col. Bob Futoran, SATAF commander.

Future plans call for more detailed classes, which will be geared in large part at the maintenance side of the test team.

From my perspective

by Col. Ford Barrett
64th FTW deputy commander for Logistics and Resource Management

The watchword for fiscal year 1992

and beyond is "decline."

Congress appropriated $20.9 billion in operations and maintenance funds for the Air Force in 1991 and the fiscal 1992 request is for $20.4 billion. Considering inflation and new programs that the Air Force must foot the bill for, there is a real decline of 10 percent. We can expect a continued downward funding trend, considering the real cutbacks in defense.

ATC in same boat

Air Training Command has a similar fate in store. For example, the 1992 ATC program calls for training considerably fewer pilots than in 1991. At Reese, we expect 202 student pilots to enter training in 1992, compared with 350 in 1991.

Fiscal 1991 training funds were $933 million. The fiscal 1992 planning number is $871 million, and we've heard rumblings that it may be reduced further. To make matters more critical, it now appears that ATC must absorb some new programs — such as T-1 — out of this planning number.

Some concerns locally

Halfway through fiscal 1991, the financial picture at Reese is okay in most categories, although there are two areas of concern. The reduction in civil engineering supplies could affect the maintenance of base facilities toward the end of the fiscal year. Work will still continue, but if there were a rash of unexpected and expensive requirements, some repairs may have to be postponed.

The other area is flying hour supplies — essentially spare aircraft parts. We've overspent on spare parts because of price increases and other maintenance conditions.

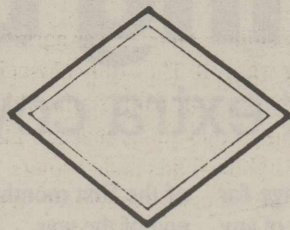

With increased emphasis on financial management, there has been a noticeable improvement. In the past, we could count on funds being freed up to cover overruns as we approached the year end, but this year is different. This year, ATC distributed all funds to the bases, without withhold.

On the home front, we've had to "rob Peter (CE supplies and temporary duty funds) to pay Paul (civilian pay)." However, we have a windfall of sorts — $250,000 for a simplified acquisition-based engineering requirements, or "SABER," contract for additional civil engineering projects. Contracting and CE are working feverishly to finish the paperwork to put SABER into motion as we must break ground on every project before Jan. 1. That seems like a lot of time, but planning and designing and the lead times for advertising and evaluating the contract bids all take time.

The net result will help take up the slack caused by the budget deficiency.

Each of us must help

Mentally, we are still transitioning from the expanding Air Force of the 1980s to the "build down" of the 1990s. We have to accept this fact. Each of us — active duty, civilian, contract employee or family member — must try to conserve the resources we have control over. Your suggestions and assistance are essential.

First sergeants They're here to help

by SSgt. Aliane Glenn
Reese Social Actions Office

First sergeants are some of the most misunderstood people on base. In the eyes of some, they are seen as bearers of bad news and disciplinarians.

Being a first sergeant is an extremely important and necessary position in every squadron. They are the link between the commander and the enlisted people in their squadrons. It is their responsibility to ensure everyone understands their commanders' policies, but that is just one side of them.

They are also there to help us, and it is up to us to use them. I can personally say that all first sergeants at Reese would prefer to have people come to talk with them, as soon as possible, after realizing they are experiencing either professional or personal problems.

First sergeants are put in a difficult position when unit members wait to be called in for directive counseling in order to correct a problem. It is just as unpleasant for them as it is for us.

This is not to say that all of the first sergeant's duties are unpleasant. For example, A1C Smith wrote five checks to various creditors after payday without receiving an end-of-the-month leave and earning statement. She knew how much she normally received each payday.

After she didn't receive her LES, she consulted military pay. To her surprise, the money deposited in her account was $200 less than normal. Consequently, the checks she had written would bounce. She became concerned because of the "horror stories" she had heard about people getting Article 15s for writing bad checks. She didn't know why her check was so small and she was too afraid to talk to her supervisor.

Nevertheless, Airman Smith confided in her roommate about what had happened. Her roommate told her to see her first sergeant and to tell him everything. Reluctantly, Airman Smith visited her first sergeant, who patiently listened to her situation. He then called military pay.

The first sergeant was told that accounting and finance had made a mistake and had taken out too much money for savings bonds and savings account allotments. They apologized and said they would write a letter to Airman Smith's bank explaining the situation in order keep her from incurring service charges for insufficient funds. The first sergeant was also told that Airman Smith could expect to see the money in her mid-month deposit.

The first sergeant explained to Airman Smith the importance of waiting until she receives her statement to ensure she has sufficient funds to cover debts. Needless to say, she thought the first sergeant handled her problem superbly.

Give first sergeants a chance. Go see them, talk with them and ask for help if you need it. Don't wait and let the only time you see them be when they call you in for direct counseling.

Re-"cycling" could be answer

by 1st Lt. Mark R. and Judy Hubbard
52nd FTS

Earth Week's theme is to recycle, to conserve energy and resources and to save the environment for future generations. We all know about recycling programs for our cans, glass, paper and plastic, but have you considered what a "cycling" program can do for you, your community and your country? Consider these points:

□ About 17 million barrels of oil are consumed in the United States each day. Nearly half of that is consumed in the act of driving.

□ For the amount of energy and resources it takes to produce one medium size car, we can build one hundred bicycles.

□ The automobile is the No. 1 source of air pollution in the U.S.

Not impressed yet?

□ The number of deaths in the U.S. attributed to automobile emissions exceeds 30,000 annually.

These facts present a clear case for driving less. While many large cities across the nation provide great incentives for using mass transit systems or car pooling, some are realizing how bicycles can help reduce the problems of traffic, parking and pollution.

Many haven't ridden a bicycle since grade school, but there's no time like the present to "recycle" those legs and get back to it. Beyond the larger scope of worldwide and national savings in emissions and gas consumption, our personal lives could benefit as well.

If you live in Reese Village and don't have to haul large or heavy objects during your duty day, there's really no reason to drive and have your car sit at work all day. More than half of all Americans live within five miles of their work place, yet less than 2 percent of all commuters do so by bike. According to studies, if everyone commuted by bicycle just once a week, we would be almost entirely free of dependence on Mideast oil (currently 11 percent of all U.S. oil imports). Yet less than 2 percent of all Americans pedal their way to work.

By now you are probably thinking of all kinds of excuses why cycling to work isn't for you. But keep reading. You may be surprised.

Why not sell that second car? This would not only "save the earth," but save your wallet as well. Bicycles are a good investment and can last 20 years or more with minimal maintenance costs.

Also tipping the scales in your favor — the energy that powers bicycles is renewable and non-polluting. The more you ride, the more efficiently your energy is used and the healthier you'll be.

Earth Day through May 31 has been declared National Bicycle Month by the League of American Wheelmen. The highlight is "Bike-To-Work Day" May 21.

ROUNDUP

by MSgt. Roy Napper
Reese Fire Department

Once again, spring has arrived and most people are already cleaning out closets, attics, garages and more.

After filling a dozen garbage bags with old rubbish, newspapers and magazines, on the umpteenth trip to the trash bin, you'll probably say to yourself, "Next year, I won't do this because I won't save all this stuff." But, most likely, we all will.

So let's look at the closets first. Get rid of old newspapers, rags, books and other debris you don't need. If there are flammables stored there, get rid of them immediately. All unneeded rubbish just adds to a fire load that can easily burn.

Now let's go to the kitchen. There's probably a lot of aerosol cans that can be thrown away. Many of these pressurized aerosols contain hazardous products that will easily ignite and explode under the right conditions.

There's probably all types of empty cans in the utility closet where the dryer and washer are. Get rid of those you don't need. Keep in mind that just because the original product may be gone, there may still be hazardous residues. These residues can be just as harmful to you as when the container was full. The utility closet is a good catch-all area where there are probably flammable aerosol cans, and perhaps some other items that are also flammable, like thinners, lighter fluids and cleaners.

Do not throw empty aerosol containers into a fire. Assume they contain flammable residue and can explode, producing severe injuries.

Keep all aerosol cans out of children's reach; most children are naturally curious and will attempt to experiment.

Take a look in the closets where the water heater and central heating unit are located. By all means, if there is something stored there, get it out now.

Now, let's go to the garage. Clean out empty oil cans, and get rid of oily rags. Ensure that all cans with flammable liquids are in good condition and there are no leaks or spills. Remember, this area should be a "no smoking" area.

Talking about flammable liquids brings up another important point. Parents should teach children about the dangers of gasoline and other flammable liquids. If they find these dangerous items, they should know that they should tell mom or dad, who can correct the problem.

Accidents are responsible for half of childhood fatalities. Burn injuries rank second behind motor vehicle accidents as a major cause of accidental deaths in children up to 15. Burns are also a leading cause of death in the home for children 1-4.

A one-gallon can of gasoline has the explosive force of 13 sticks of dynamite. This is because the vapors spread out and fill all available spaces. If an ignition source is present, the vapors literally explode.

Feel free to call the fire prevention section at 3686/6339 to arrange for safety lectures.

Your help in preventing fires is greatly appreciated and required. Let's have a safe, fire-free summer.

Dog disease can be real 'heartbreaker'

Pet owners warned of potential problem

Once a regional problem, heartworm disease is now a deadly threat to dogs nationwide. But it can be prevented by dog owners.

Heartworm disease is transmitted by mosquitoes, so dogs become infected fairly easily. According to the Reese Veterinary Clinic, the disease is particularly prevalent this time of year.

The cycle of transmission begins when a mosquito feeds on an infected dog and picks up microfilariae — the first stage larvae of heartworms. Over the next two to three weeks, these larvae develop into the infective form in the mosquito. They then move from the mosquito to another dog when the insect feeds again.

Once in the dog's system, the worms migrate to the heart and lungs, where they can grow to up to 14 inches long. However, outward signs of the disease — diminished appetite, weight loss, fatigue, and a chronic cough — may not appear for some time and after damage to vital organs has already occurred.

Prevention, therefore, is critical according to veterinary officials. Once a dog is infected, treatment can be complex and expensive, particularly as the disease becomes more advanced. To avoid that, owners should take their dogs to their veterinarian for annual testing and advice on preventing heartworm disease.

While dogs that spend a majority of their lives outdoors have a greater chance of mosquito bites and heartworm infection, even dogs taken outdoors for short walks or time in the yard have the potential for exposure to heartworm infection.

Dog owners in areas where heartworm disease traditionally has not been common should know that an increasingly mobile dog population has helped spread the disease beyond the South and Southeast. In fact, heartworm disease has now been reported in virtually every state of the United States and in Canada.

Just one infected dog can be a reservoir of the disease. When that dog is taken to a part of the country where owners do not take steps to prevent heartworm disease, mosquitoes can rapidly spread the disease to unprotected dogs.

The bad news is that heartworm disease is spreading. The good news is that prevention is easy. For details, call the base veterinarian at 3535.

Reese mission maker

This week's mission maker is SrA. Laura Holt, an information management specialist in the 64th Supply Squadron Orderly Room.

After finishing her associate of arts degree from Cape Cod Community College, Mass., in 1987, Airman Holt joined the Air Force. She has been assigned to Reese for the past two years.

Airman Holt is currently seven classes away from earning a bachelor of science in business management from Park College.

"I like the job I'm doing now because I get to interact with a lot of people," said Airman Holt. "I hope to go into accounting soon."

The 25-year-old enjoys reading and horseback riding.

April check.

The SGLI contract with the insurance underwriters does not allow prorating the premium for less than a month's worth of increased or new protection. Therefore, everyone will pay the associated $8 premium for April.

Another reason for the automatic increase is the fact that more than 98 percent of eligibles have elected full coverage in the past. All members will remain fully insured until they make a written election at personal affairs to decline or reduce that coverage.

No action is required for those wanting to keep full SGLI coverage. For more information, call personal affairs at 3402 or accounting at 6323. (Air Force News Service)

UPT class helps heart patient

Reese Undergraduate Pilot Training Class 91-13, as part of an effort to help a local man in immediate need of a heart transplant, will hold a car wash from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday near the Firestone dealer in South Plains Mall.

The man, Walter Voight, has been waiting one year for a transplant. The delay has been the $30,000 cost. In addition to the money they plan to raise at the wash, the class is also accepting pledges individuals and units; the pledges are being based on the number of cars the class is able to wash.

For details, call 2nd Lt. Tony Bukata or 2nd Lt. Chris O'Neil at 3883.

NCOLS graduates Thursday

Reese Noncommissioned Officers Leadership School Class 91-E will graduate Thursday in the Enlisted Open Mess. Social hour begins at 6:30 p.m.; dinner follows at 7.

Power outage planned

Power outages are planned May 5 throughout the base and Reese Village. The outage is part of an upgrade and maintenance.

The outages are broken down into in three phases:

- Phase one (1-4 p.m.) — Base and Reese Village.

- Phase three (1-8 p.m.) — Hangar 82.

The Caprock Cafe will operate on generator power during the outages, and hot meals will be served from 7 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and 4-5:30 p.m. 64th Services Squadron officials said that the basic surcharge for that day has been waived, and that the dining hall will be open to all wing members and their families.

For details on the outage, call SMSgt. Carl Simmons at 6238 or Kay Don Habbinga at 3580.

VIOLENCE: Base program works to ensure quality family life

by SSgt. Mike Breslin
editor

The song says "You Always Hurt the One You Love."

Unfortunately, that's often true. Violently true.

Because there is the potential for family violence in even the best of communities, the Reese Family Advocacy Program exists to prevent maltreatment in the home. However, not everyone knows that it's there to help.

"When we last checked with people on base, 64 percent of the enlisted force and 84 percent of the officers didn't know that the program existed," said 1st Lt. Abbie Luck, base program officer.

The lack of recognition doesn't mean the program is small in scope. The program deals with problems such as spouse abuse, child abuse, neglect and sexual abuse to help prevent maltreatment. Although there are different factors that can contribute to an abusive attitude, one in particular is frequently seen in extreme cases.

"A lot of people pick up their abusive tendencies from their parents," Lieutenant Luck explained. When you're raised in an environment where all you know is violence, it starts to seem "normal."

Of course, other factors can be involved in home violence.

"Getting caught up in your problems, job stress, lack of experience as parents — all these things can lead to domestic violence," said Capt. Larry R. Friedt, a clinical psychologist with the 64th Flying Training Wing Hospital. "People who don't handle these things well can end up taking it out on their families."

The captain added that the parents he deals with are often surprised to learn of the number of alternatives to physical punishment. Taking a "time-out" to let tempers cool, giving rewards for positive behavior and taking privileges away for negative actions are just a few.

Citing education as "the key" to preventing family violence, Lieutenant Luck said that the family advocacy program offers several classes that can aid in parenting. They range from prenatal classes to courses on stress management.

In talking about physical punishment, the lieutenant cautioned people not to automatically equate forms of discipline like spanking with abuse.

"It can be real hard to define abuse sometimes — where do you draw the line?" she said. "Part of answering that has to do with the parent's intent, but it still can be a difficult question." She went on to say, however, that spanking should be a last resort.

Domestic violence isn't the only family matter that the program handles. They also handle the Exceptional Family Member Program, which ensures that the needs of children with special medical or educational requirements are being met.

No matter which part of the program it is, Lieutenant Luck emphasized that she and other program people were ready to help anyone who needs their assistance.

"One of the biggest problems with raising a family is inexperience," she said. "People want to do the right thing, they just don't know how sometimes."

"After all, families don't come with a set of instructions."

For more on the family advocacy program, call Lieutenant Luck at 3739.

"One of the biggest problems with raising a family is inexperience. People want to do the right thing, they just don't know how sometimes."

Sprucing up!

Wing officials express thanks for weekend beautification effort

Spring is abounding in the West Texas area, and nowhere is it more evident than on Reese and in Reese Village.

In an effort receiving high praise from wing officials, people throughout Reese pitched in for "Spruce-up Weekend" Saturday and Sunday. The effort was particularly noticeable in the housing area.

"I was just absolutely impressed with the job that people in Reese Village did," said Col. Ray Bean, 64th Air Base Group commander. "Every street you look on, there's evidence of the work people did to get the village looking sharp. Everyone owes themselves a pat on the back — my hat's off to them!"

Several base agencies lent their support to the weekend activities. The Morale, Welfare and Recreation Division Logistics Branch let housing residents have free use of a variety of landscaping tools, while the Pride Store supplied people with items like grass seed, landscape timbers, plants and trees.

Logistics has an ongoing project for wing members who want to improve their "green thumbs." Garden plots of varying sizes are available across from the Veterinary Clinic, and water hook-ups are available. Stop by logistics, Bldg. 2107, or call 3815 for details.

Rattlers smash local team

The base's men's varsity team was in action Monday night as they defeated "DBT Jr." 23-0 to improve their record to 3-4.

The first inning saw the Rattlers shut down DBT Jr. offense. The Rattlers held them to one hit.

Reese exploded for 19 runs in the bottom of the first. Thomas Duke led the attack with a single. Ernest Young batted next and reached first base on an error by DBT Jr.

A double by Leo Jones brought in Duke to make the score 1-0. Mose Simmons reached first base on a walk.

Simmons was followed by Michael Harrison who hit a single and brought in two runs.

Timothy Givins and Brian Moore both hit singles to get on base. Milton Rice hit a triple and brought in three Rattlers to home plate. The Rattlers held a commanding 7-0 lead with no outs.

Marvin Davis started the second attack by reaching first base on a walk.

Terry Reilly, Kenneth Cathey and Duke hit singles to reach base. Duke's single brought in Davis. Jones hit his second double of the night which brought in Reilly. Harrison's single for the second time scored two runners to increase the lead to 15-0.

With the bases loaded, Davis hit a grand slam to score Rice, Moore and Givins.

Once again, the Rattlers were able to shut down DBT Jr. offense in the second inning.

Reese was held to two runs in the second inning. Harrison's single brought in Young and Simmons. The Rattlers led 21-0.

The rest of the game saw the Rattlers continue their domination of the local players, who failed to bring anyone around home plate.

Outstanding players of the night were:

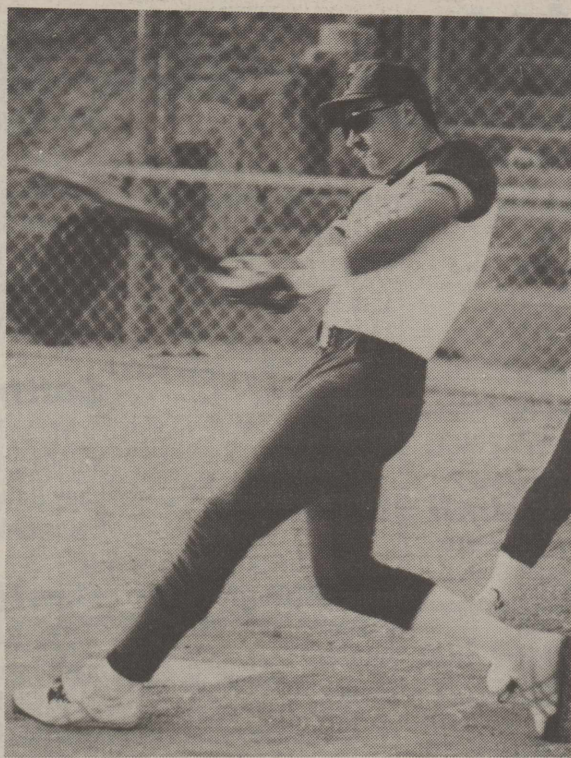

□ Harrison went 3-4 and had six RBI. He increased his batting average to .765 for the season.

□ Jones was also 3-4. He had one RBI.

□ Moore was 2-3 and managed two RBIs.

□ Rice was 2-3 and had three RBIs.

□ Davis hit a grand slam and was 1-2.

Reese Rattler Terry Reilly doubles in the U.S. Slow-Pitch Softball Association Tournament April 20-21 at the Berl Huffman Fields.

Three flying units leading IM chase

Teams are jockeying for position in the Reese Intramural Volleyball League as the season starts to wind down.

In the National League, the 41st Flying Training Squadron is in first place at 8-2 (as of Wednesday morning). Resource Management, 5-4, and 64th Mission Support Squadron, 4-4, has gained some ground on the 41st FTS with the playoffs getting closer. The 64th Flying Training Wing Hospital "A" team is in fourth at 5-5.

With a record of 7-1, the 54th FTS "A" and 52nd FTS "A" teams remain tied for first place in the American League.

Hot on their trail are the 35th FTS, 6-1, and 33rd FTS, 7-2. One game is the difference between first and fourth place in the American League.

April 17

□ MSS defeated Hospital "A," 12-9, 13-15 and 15-13. In the first game, time was a factor as MSS won. Hospital "A" proved they could play with MSS, though as they took the next game by two points. In the third and final game, a rally by MSS earned them the victory.

□ RM defeated 64th Civil Engineering Squadron, 15-3 and 15-7. RM came out scoring fast as the CES team couldn't get into their rhythm in the first game. CES stayed close in the second game, but RM turned to be too much that night.

□ 33rd FTS defeated 41st FTS, 10-8 and 15-4. The first game was called due to time and the 33rd prevailed with a two-point win. In the second game, the 33rd ran away with it.

□ 33rd FTS defeated Lockheed, 15-5 and 12-8. After two games against the 41st FTS, the 33rd took another match against Lockheed.

April 18

□ Hospital "A" defeated Hospital "B," 15-9 and 15-2. In a battle between squadron teams, the "A" team proved to be better that night. "A" team pounded the "B" team in the second game in their first match of the night.

□ Hospital "A" defeated Lockheed, 15-0 and 15-3. Three points was all Lockheed managed to get from the Hospital "A" team.

□ 41st FTS defeated CES, 16-14 and 15-9. The 41st FTS squeaked by CES as the game went into overtime. The second was not as close as the first one.

Tuesday

□ RM defeated Lockheed, 15-0 and 15-6. RM ran away from Lockheed in the first game.

Lockheed managed to score six points in the second game, but RM still came away with the victory.

□ Lockheed defeated Hospital "B," 15-6, 6-9 and 15-4. The Lockheed team jumped to a big start, winning the first game. Hospital "B" managed to win a low-scoring second game, but the match went against them.

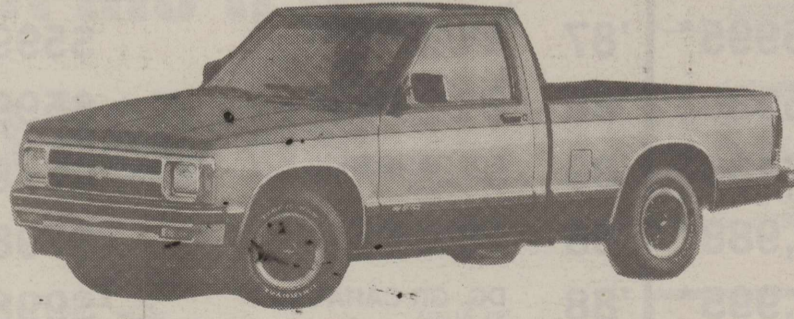

□ Hospital "A" defeated 54th FTS "B," 15-7 and 10-8. Two quick defeats gave Hospital "A" the win against the 54th FTS "B" team.
