Prayer breakfast observance set for Thursday

Reese's observance of the National Prayer Breakfast will be held Thursday, 6:30 a.m., in the Officers' Open Mess.

Annually, the National Prayer Breakfast has continued to address individual spiritual needs.

This year's guest speaker is Retired Army Lt. Gen. (Dr.) Bernhard T. Mittermeyer.

Other assignments included division surgeon and medical battalion commander for the 101st Airborne Division.

The cost of the breakfast is $3.

The menu includes scrambled eggs, ham, sausage, hash-brown potatoes, biscuits and gravy. Tickets for the breakfast may be purchased from any first sergeant or the base chapel. Deadline for reservations is noon Monday.

Services Squadron best in command

By Sgt. Greg Spraggins
Roundup

The 64th Services Squadron has been selected as Air Training Command's Outstanding Services Unit of the Year (small category) and will now represent ATC in the Air Force competition.

"This recognition attests to the squadron's many outstanding and professional contributions to Air Training Command and the Air Force," said Lt. Gen. Joseph Ashy, commander, ATC.

"From food service to billeting, honor guard to commissary, base exchange to furnishing management, all have qualitatively or quantitatively improved the work they do and how they do it," said Capt. Steven Governale, 64SVS commander.

"Every single facet of our service to our community has improved."

According to the captain, the Caprock Cafe was completely remodeled, discarding old furniture and dinnerware, updating the decor and adding over $15,000 worth of new equipment and china. Also, during the frequent checks by the base health inspector, no defects were noted.

All these things did not go unnoticed as the 64th Services Squadron won Air Training Command's "Outstanding Food Service Program of the Year" for 1990.

Currently, over half of the Temporary Lodging Facility is being completely renovated, with the entire renovation scheduled for completion in the upcoming year.

Unaccompanied housing quarters are being renovated with over $1 million worth of improvements scheduled for fiscal year 91.

"These facilities rival those found anywhere in the Air Force," stated Captain Governale.

"Best furnishings management office in ATC for 1990, and also for 1989," boasted the captain. "One hundred percent inventory checks on all their assets, as well as superior customer service, was the reason for their selection."

Additionally, Rocky Shaw, who works in furnishings management, won the "1990 Civilian of the Year" award at Reese, as well as "1990 Outstanding Services Technician of the Year."

During a recent deployment to Cannon AFB, N.M., six services members prepared over 3,000 hot meals in four days during their operational readiness inspection. "Commanders and troops could not say enough about the outstanding efforts of our people," said the captain.

The military clothing store was relocated from a 1930s vintage building to the Base Exchange Mall, within schedule and budget.

During the award period, the commissary added a fresh fish section and supplemented existing stock with new products as they came in.

The Honor Guard completed several hundred functions this year and were invited to join the Texas Tech Drum and Bugle Corps during their nationally televised half-time show.

SrA. Andy Gilliard, who is the NCOIC of the Honor Guard, was Reese's "Airman of the Year" for 1990.

"These accomplishments haven't come easily, or quickly," said Capt. Governale.

"They are made every hour of every day from every member of the staff. That is why we are the best."

DO heads for headquarters

Col. John Block is commended during his farewell reception Feb. 22. Colonel Block wore every rank at Reese and served four tours (7.5 years total) spanning over four decades. Colonel Block leaves Reese today to take over as Director of Assignments, Headquarters ATC. The new DO, Col. Robert Negley is scheduled to arrive at Reese at the end of the month. See farewell address, page 2.

From my perspective

by Lt. Col. (Dr.) Joseph Contiguglia
64th FTW Hospital commander

The Dependents Dental Plan is a good basic dental insurance program. It is only available to the family members of active-duty members. The Department of Defense and the service pay most of the cost, while the service member pays $4.57 for one family member and $9.14 for the entire family. The yearly cost is less than most dentists charge for two regular checkups.

Coverage under DDP

DDP will pay the entire cost of dental exams, cleanings, X-rays, emergency care, sealants (with some exceptions) and space maintenance (with some exceptions). It will pay 80 percent of the cost for fillings, crowns for baby teeth (stainless steel or resin) and repairs to dentures. The plan also offers a partial payment allowance for some crowns on permanent teeth.

The program does not pay for braces, root canals, dentures and so on. Premiums for an insurance program that paid for these services would be prohibitively expensive.

If you see a dentist who is enrolled in DDP, he or she will complete all of the forms for you and only charge you for your share of the treatment. You may see any dentist you wish, but if he or she is not enrolled, you will be left to complete the forms, pay the entire fee and collect from DDP (based on the allowable fees). A list of dentists enrolled in DDP is available at the patient affairs office in the hospital.

Reese Dental Clinic's services

The Reese Dental Clinic's services vary with their staffing and the dental work needed by the active duty members. Since the departure of the maintenance squadrons, the clinic has been able to provide a majority of the services DDP provides. A list of services they provide non-active-duty people is available in the clinic.

Enrollment considerations

Discussions on the decision to enroll or not will vary greatly from one family to the next. Some aspects of the Dependents Dental Plan worth considering are:

- If your family is enrolled in DDP and has developed a personal rapport with their civilian dentist, they will probably want to continue this relationship.
- Families with small children who need dental care can benefit financially by being with DDP. The Dental Clinic does not provide crowns for baby teeth or space maintenance — both of which are among the benefits provided by DDP. Civilian dentists often have greater expertise in working with young children.
- Families whose children do not live with them and see a dentist at that location will probably be financially ahead if they are enrolled in DDP.

To enroll or disenroll is a difficult decision to make. If you would like to discuss your family's participation in the Dependents Dental Plan, please call Lt. Col. (Dr.) Wright at 3711.

If you would like to enroll or disenroll from DDP, you will need to go to the customer service desk at the Reese Consolidated Base Personnel Office, Bldg. 920.

Easy-to-do tips aid conservation efforts by 2nd Lt. Frank Wilson

Reese Energy Steering Group

The past decade has brought about many changes in the way energy is conserved.

Heat recovery ventilators, low-E glass, and microchip technology have all had a significant effect on the energy efficiency of homes and appliances.

But is all this enough?

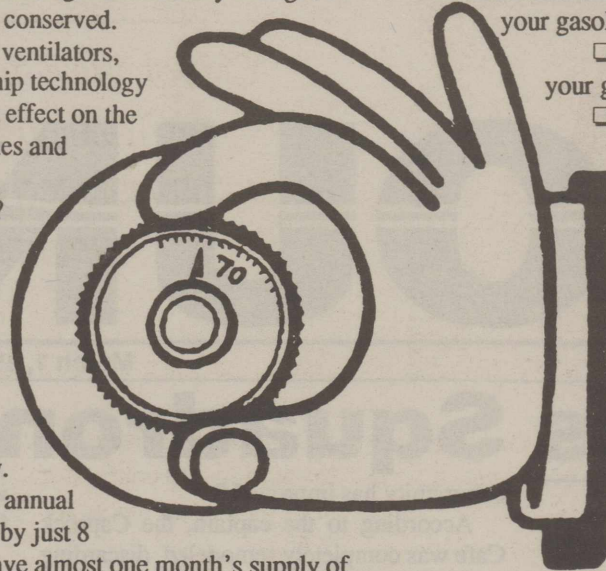

It's been hinted that President Bush's new National Energy Policy will call for more Americans to conserve energy as a means to decrease dependency on foreign sources of energy. In fact, if America cut its annual oil and natural gas usage by just 8 percent, the U.S. could save almost one month's supply of crude oil.

Following are 20 easy-to-do conservation tips that we can all use to save energy — and money — in an effort to increase our energy security.

- Lower your thermostat. The average homeowner can save over $80 a year by lowering the thermostat from 72 degrees to 68 degrees during heating season. Even more money can be saved if you raise your thermostat during cooling season.
- Carpool. It not only saves gasoline, it saves money too. For more information, contact the base energy manager at 3927.
- Proper refrigerator setting. Check your owner's manual for proper temperature settings. Extreme cold wastes energy.
- Drive smoothly. "Jack Rabbit" starts and stops can waste up to two miles of gasoline per gallon.
- Showers vs. baths. Heating water is the second biggest energy user in your home. Taking a shower requires just half the hot water of a bath. And a shower with a flow restrictor gives you even greater efficiency.

- Use car air conditioning sparingly. This could save you up to two miles per gallon.
- Use radial tires. You could save up to 10 percent on your gasoline bill.
- Have a regular tune-up. This could cut your gasoline costs by 8 percent.
- Insulate. Proper insulation of your attic can reduce your annual fuel bill by as much as 50 percent.
- Eliminate drafts. Proper use of storm windows and weather stripping can have a significant effect on your energy costs.
- Avoid wasteful idling. Letting your engine idle more than one minute wastes up to one gallon per hour.
- Use fluorescent lights. They last 10 times longer and give four times as much light as incandescent bulbs.
- Properly inflate your tires.

Underinflated tires waste up to one mile per gallon.

- Check your air filter. A clogged filter can decrease your fuel economy by up to one mile per gallon.
 - Run full loads. Running your dishwasher or washing machine for partial loads wastes hot water and energy.
 - Drive within speed limits. Speeding can increase your annual gasoline bill by 20 percent.
 - Tune-up your heating system. An annual servicing can increase efficiency as much as 20 percent. That could save you up to 140 gallons of heating oil in a season.
 - Pipes and ducts. Proper insulation of these can reduce your energy bill by up to 10 percent.
 - Don't carry unnecessary weight. Every additional 100 pounds in your car can waste up to one-fifth of a mile per gallon.
 - Close the damper. An open fireplace damper can increase your annual energy bill by as much as $36.
- These estimates are based on data from the U.S. Department of Energy, U.S. Census Bureau, API and major utilities.

ROUNDUP

One on One

*CMSgt. William K. Workman
Air Training Command
Noncommissioned Officers Academy commandant*

(Editor's Note: This week's One-on-One features CMSgt. William K. Workman, commandant, Air Training Command Noncommissioned Officer Academy and assistant for ATC NCO Professional Military Education. Interview by Amn. Jose Alejandro)

Q: Recently, there's been a lot of publicity over changes recommended by the Air Force noncommissioned officers professional military education review panel. How do the changes affect PME?

A: We originally started out with 11 recommendations. These recommendations were sent to Air Staff and then to the Air Force DP for review. After being reviewed, the recommendations were sent to the chief of staff for approval. Eight recommendations were approved. For example, one of the recommendation that was approved was reorganizing noncommissioned officer professional military education into a three-tier system, similar to the way we arrived at our three-tier rank structure. This action would combine the NCO Preparatory Course and NCO Leadership School, and the Senior NCO Academy and NCO Academy would stand alone. Senior Airman and sergeants would attend the combined preparatory course and leadership school. Staff and technical sergeants would attend the academy and master and senior master sergeants would attend the Senior NCO Academy. The changes would not take effect for another two to three years.

Q: Since you've been in the Air Force 27 years, what are some of the biggest changes you've seen in PME?

A: The biggest change was the top to bottom review we had a few years ago. The curriculum was changed and the amount of time we devote to drill and to the area of world affairs was minimized. We maximized speech and technical writing and counseling. This is the biggest change I have seen since the time I was first exposed to PME in 1968.

Q: On a similar note, what are some of the biggest changes you have seen in the enlisted corps during your career?

A: I think the biggest change in the Air Force that occurred in the past 10 or 15 years is that NCO's responsibilities have increased. Jobs that are being done today by mid-level and senior NCOs were previously held by officers. For example, the job that I currently have was held by a lieutenant colonel a few years ago. Another big change is the tremendous number of NCOs who have pursued higher education.

Q: What do you think are some important aspects of leadership?

A: The most important attribute of any leader is integrity.

Every one of us has to establish a value system that says we are truly honest and have unquestionable integrity. The Air Force chief of staff has said that integrity is a vital element of leadership.

Q: What advice would you give to a young NCO who wants to make the Air Force a career?

A: When an opportunity approaches and you're not willing to take a chance, you're going to miss out on a lot. You may miss out on something you won't even know about. In order to succeed, you also have to volunteer. When you get an opportunity to go to school, and I don't care what school it is, take it and further your education. By doing this, you make yourself more valuable to the Air Force. It also lets them know you are capable of doing more. This action can help you advance and it certainly works to your benefit.

Q: Do you see any future changes in PME?

A: Yes. Just as the Air Force is going to get smaller, the NCO PME community is going to also get smaller. With this change, we're going to have to consolidate and make better use of limited resources. As a matter of fact, there is an Air Force audit being conducted that will probably do that for us. As a result, we will have to combine some schools. We will also have to forsake sending some people to our own command academies because it is costly. Proximity regarding other academy locations in relationship to student-load must be considered.

Q: Anything to add?

A: PME is probably more important today than it has ever been. In a dynamically changing world, making the effort to become more knowledgeable about one's profession is the key to growth and advancement.

Black History Month events highlight observance

The observance of Black History Month was marked with several cultural, spiritual and recreational events throughout February. All wing members were invited to attend events by the Black History Month committee.

Events began with a hot shot and free throw shooting contest held at the Reese Physical Fitness Center, Feb. 2. Everyone got into the spirit with a gospel jubilee held Feb. 3 in the Reese Chapel.

Over 100 wing members and their guests attended the Black History Month banquet in the Enlisted Open Mess, Feb. 16. Entertainment for the event featured guest speaker Col. John Culver, a Pentagon official. SSgt. Karen Montague, Sgt. Charles Hunn and Sgt. Derrick Mosely put on a skit in observance of Martin Luther King, Jr.

A five-kilometer fun run was held Feb. 20 and T-shirts were given to all participants. The Caprock Cafe held a Black History Month Luncheon Feb. 21. The month also featured soul food tasting Feb. 22 in the Mathis Recreation Center. Foods included fried and barbecued chicken, greens, barbecued brisket and peach cobbler.

Over 30 Reese members presented the wing with today's modern styles during a fashion show held Saturday. The theme of the fashion show was "Attitudes." The "half-time" entertainment was highlighted by Sgt. Derrick Mosely who sang "My, My, My" by Johnny Gill. A team of three youngsters danced to the music of "Bell Biv DeVoe."

Monday morning, Col. Bill Henny presented four students at the Reese Elementary School with $50 savings bonds. The bonds were awarded to students who answered the most correctly on a 25 questionnaire put out by Capt. Sandra King, TSgt. Dereld Jones and SSgt. Aliane Glenn. The winners were Jennifer Ann Hennigan, 1st grade, Yon Hui Richter, 2nd grade, Kristle Byrd, 3rd grade, and Robert Saenz, 4th grade.

We're here to help

by SSgt. Mike Breslin
editor

When she was 22, 1st Lt. Abbie Luck, then a jewelry salesperson, decided she didn't want to sell jewelry anymore.

Instead, she started "selling people on themselves."

The lieutenant started on a road that, at present, has taken her to the Reese Mental Health Clinic.

A clinical social worker there since January, she's quick to downplay the apprehension that some people have about going to the clinic.

"We might not have the same confidentiality that the chaplain has, but we do work as discreetly as possible," the 27-year-old Louisiana native said.

She explained that notations made in the medical records of clinic patients are done in general terms. More specific records are in separate Mental Health Clinic files.

One of the problems that is often seen in the clinic is stress. The rigors of military life coupled with events in the Mideast can make for a tense mood at times.

Lieutenant Luck said the clinic can,

"Having an emotional problem is just like having a physical disease. Early detection is the key."

among other things, help people cope with stress.

She added that people who might be wary of seeking help should be even more wary of the possible consequences of not doing so.

"The key to most problems is early detection and intervention," she said. "People who think they could benefit from our services should act now, before things get blown entirely out of proportion."

She also said that the clinic staff — which consists of Capt. Larry Friedt, clinical psychologist, and SrA. Donald Knolles, who provides administrative and clinical support — does individual and group therapy on problems ranging from depression and domestic violence to smoking cessation and family separation.

Lieutenant Luck is also the base family advocacy officer, and she oversees the Exceptional Family Member Program here.

In working with patients, the lieutenant brings several years of experience to bear. Before the joining the Air Force, she did social work in the private sector and at a Veterans Administration hospital.

Going back to the stigma that sometimes is attached to seeking mental health counseling, the lieutenant re-emphasized the value of getting help.

"Having an emotional problem is just like having a physical disease. Early detection is the key."

"When people don't 'ventilate' their problems by talking to someone, the problems build and build to a point where they can have severe consequences," she said. "We offer people a way to vent their feelings, but it's up to them to take advantage of our service — we're here to help."

Lt. Abbie Luck

The clinic can be reached at 3739.

SSgt. Jim Draughn, 3567th Recruiting Squadron, installs new registration decals on his vehicle.

Security Police encourage people to update vehicle registrations

Is your base vehicle registration current? After March 31, individuals with expired registration decals on their vehicles will be detained and/or denied access to the base. The SPs will also be removing the expired decals from the vehicles.

"The number of expired vehicles has made the job of base security tougher," said MSgt. Julian Duran. "Security is everyone's job."

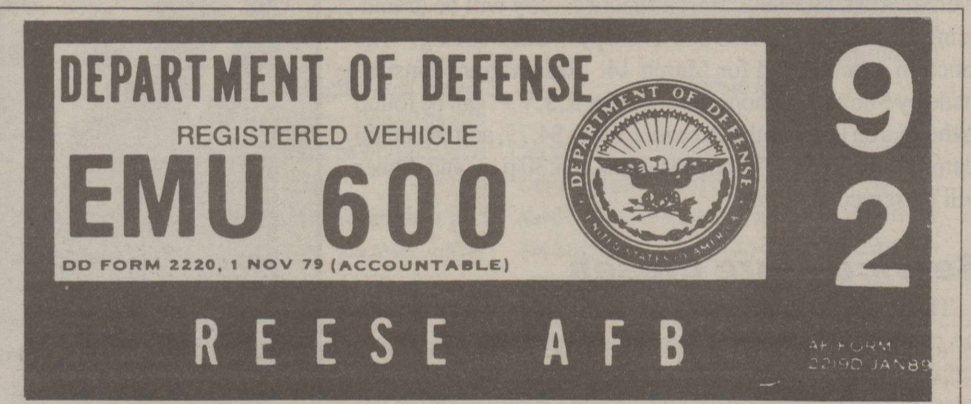

According to Sergeant Duran, an expired vehicle decal is one that has a 90 or below numbered sticker. It must be a 91 or 92 sticker.

The security police will set up a renewal station Saturday, 9 a.m. to noon, in the parking lot across from security police, Bldg. 500.

The decals can also be renewed at Pass and Registration, Bldg. 920, Monday - Friday, 7:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

During the registration update, the security police will need to know the vehicle's license number and current decal number to verify records.

For more information, contact Pass and Registration at 6261.

SAVE THE EARTH

Local youth club aims to increase awareness

The Youth Activities Center at Reese is not wasting any time in support of "saving the earth."

A Kids for Saving the Earth Club has been formed at the center. Club goals are promoting recycling, conserving, preserving endangered species, rain forest, ancient forest, protecting land and preventing damage to our atmosphere and environment.

The Reese chapter has been named "Genesis" and meets on the third Friday of each month from 4-5 p.m. All children ages 5 through 18 may participate and become club members.

Cindy Mitchell, youth center director said "we are concerned about the general health and well being of the earth and we know children can make a difference."

Reese youth have become very active in earth saving projects. Several earth expos have been planned at the youth center. During these expos, children will present exhibits and projects to the public on saving the earth topics. Club members may earn merit badges for participating in special projects such as collecting recyclable items and program presentations. Badges earned are worn on recycled t-shirts. Small projects earn buttons in various colors which are sewn on the shirts.

Currently the "Genesis" club is involved in the following programs:

□ Kids for saving the earth clubs all over the world are preparing their entries for "Earth Expo 91" which will be held at the United Nations Expo in March of this year. The "Genesis" club is preparing their entry for the competition. The club has created a flag with the motto "Defenders of the Earth" and a "Save the Earth" banner which are on display at the youth center.

□ A mini earth expo is planned at the youth center on April 25, from 4-5:30 p.m. Parents and guests are invited.

□ An adoption and feeding program is being developed to protest Lubbock's endangered prairie dogs at MacKenzie State Park.

□ A paperback book recycling/exchange program will begin during "Earth Week" April 21-27. Books will be donated and exchanged for children's paperback at the Reese Library. These recycled books will create a library collection for the center.

□ During "Earth Day Week" the children will police the areas around the base and Reese Village for litter and recyclable items.

□ On earth day (April 22) each club member will receive a tree to be planted in a pre-approved area.

For more information 3820.

Basketball playoffs begin

The playoffs were scheduled to get underway Wednesday with eight teams qualifying: 52nd Flying Training Squadron "A"; 64th Mission Support Squadron; 64th Flying Training Wing Hospital; 54th FTS "A"; Resource Management; 1958th Communication Squadron/64th Security Police Squadron; 33rd FTS; 41st FTS. Resource Management won the National League title with a record of 15-2.

The American League winner was 52nd FTS "A", 17-0. The 52nd "A" team will try to go undefeated all year, but RM and some of the other teams can spoil that for them.

Feb 21

□ 54th Flying Training Squadron "A," 54 — 41st FTS, 48. In this close scoring game, 41st FTS Avert McGee (21 points) was not enough for the victory. Thomas Hallett led the 54th "A" team with 19 points.

□ 64th Mission Support Squadron, 41 — 64th Civil Engineering Squadron, 34. Even though CES Kevin Evans led all scorers with 15 points. Tony Friday's 13 points were enough to get the victory for MSS.

□ 52nd FTS "A," 56 — 33rd FTS, 54. In a game that was close throughout the game. The 33rd ran out of gas with a few minutes left in the game. Walter Diener led the 33rd with 18 points, while Mark Slimko led the 52nd "A" team with 17 points.

Monday

□ Resource Management, 74 — CES, 35. This contest was never close from the beginning as RM was too much to handle that night. RM's Marvin Davis led all scorers with 25 points.

□ 1958th Communication Squadron/64th Security Police Squadron, 48 — 33rd FTS, 47. In a game that was led by the 33rd for most of the game. The 33rd's David Rogelstad (17 points) and Walter Diener (11 points) combined for 28 points. Andre Harley led COMM/SPS with 16 points.

□ 64th Flying Training Wing Hospital, 7 — 52nd FTS "B," 0.

□ 54th FTS "A," 7 — 35th FTS, 0.

Tuesday

□ 54th FTS "A," 58 — COMM/SPS, 43. In the final game of the regular season, Thomas Hallett scored 20 points to give the 54th "A" team the victory. Joseph Kirby led COMM/SPS with 19 points.
