Lockheed manager brings experience

24 years aircraft maintenance, 10 in Air Training Command

Lockheed's new contract manager brings 24 years of service in aircraft maintenance to the 64th Flying Training Wing.

Geary Wallace took over operations for Lockheed Tuesday. He comes to Lockheed after being in charge of Jet Engine Maintenance Programs for Continental Airlines.

"I was very pleased with the way I was treated when I arrived. Everyone has been helpful in getting me settled," he said. "I was excited about coming to the 64th FTW since I had been here before on temporary duty assignments."

Mr. Wallace retired as an Air Force colonel in December 1989 after serving 23 years. Some of his jobs included: Air Training Command's director of maintenance engineering at Randolph AFB, Texas; deputy commander for maintenance for the 12th Flying Training Wing at Randolph; and assistant deputy commander of maintenance at the 47th Flying Training Wing, Laughlin AFB, Texas.

Mr. Wallace has 10 years of ATC maintenance experience. "My goal is for Reese maintenance to be the best in ATC while supporting the requirements that Lockheed has," he said. "I am totally dedicated to providing well-maintained and safe aircraft for our pilots and student pilots."

"With the knowledge I've acquired over the years, I feel that I can contribute to the support being provided by the many dedicated Lockheed employees," Mr. Wallace said. "In order to succeed in my position I will emphasize the need for our personnel to work as a team, not as individuals."

"I also want Lockheed to be an essential member of the 64th FTW team and to take part in, as well as support, all the activities in which the wing is involved," he said.

Mr. Wallace has three sons, Paul, Lee and Micah.

From my perspective

by Col. Ford Barrett

64th FTW deputy commander for Logistics and Resource Management

The Air Force Suggestion Program works — and it is a great way to help meet the challenges of today's budget shortfall. In fiscal year 1990, Air Training Command suggesters saved over $4.4 million, and received almost $181,000 for their efforts.

The Suggestion

Program provides a formal channel of communication between the work force and management and encourages our people to suggest practical ways to increase the effectiveness and efficiency of government operations. Suggesters are the big factor in this program — because they know their job better than anyone else and know where the hidden costs lie, where duplication exists, or where production is delayed.

Participation

Suggesters participate when they know they'll receive complete, fair and timely evaluations — and, with greater participation, there are more savings for your government.

During the first quarter of the current fiscal year, suggestions were submitted by the following wing members:

SrA. David W. Fields, 1958th Communications Squadron
Maj. Gary B. Tucker, 64th Flying Training Wing
Capt. Vernon A. Swanger, 64th Civil Engineering Squadron

Sgt. Kevin A. Sukdolak, 64th Air Base Group
MSgt. Joseph C. Slack, 41st Flying Training Squadron
Mr. Joseph R. Beaudoin, 64th Civil Engineering Squadron
TSgt. Allen W. Hasty, 64th Flying Training Wing
Mr. Joe DeLeon, 64th Civil Engineering Squadron
Mr. Neil A. Ray, 64th Civil Engineering Squadron
Ms. Leslie A. Hatchett, 64th Civil Engineering Squadron

A1C James D. Field, 1958 Communications Squadron
SSgt. James C. Bell, 64th Civil Engineering Squadron
TSgt. Jose L. Dominguez, 41st Flying Training Squadron
Mr. Barlin E. Webb, 64th Mission Support Services Squadron

Capt. Robert S. Saenz, 64th Civil Engineering Squadron
Capt. David M. Irvin, 35th Flying Training Squadron
Sgt. Patrick J. Marquart, 64th Civil Engineering Squadron

Ms. Joan A. Priddy, 64th Flying Training Wing
SMSgt. Carl A. Simmons, 64th Civil Engineering Squadron

Mrs. Erlene Stolk, 64th Supply Squadron

Stronger program

In order to strengthen the program, some changes were implemented within ATC as of Oct. 1, 1990. These changes were designed to ensure that every suggestion receives a prompt and thorough evaluation. The evaluation turnaround time changed from 30 to 10 calendar days and now requires a colonel's signature on all disapprovals. While it has not always been easy to meet these new requirements, I am proud to say that Reese met them completely during the first quarter.

The Suggestion Program is "big business" in the ATC and worldwide. The program has an illustrious history and a challenging future in its effort to return dividends to the Air Force and the taxpayers through suggestions.

Your ideas are valuable. Submit them on an Air Force Form 1000 through distribution to 64FTW/RMM/45. Better still, hand carry them to Mrs. Pat Inman, our "cracker jack" Suggestion Program Manager, in Bldg. 230, Room 330.

Each of us must do our part to ensure that the Air Force operates in the most efficient manner. Thanks.

Prevention is key to eliminating burns, scalding in the kitchen

by MSgt. Roy Napper
assistant chief for Fire Protection

Almost every family has experienced some situation in which someone was scalded or was involved in a situation which had a burn risk potential.

Scald injuries, associated with the kitchen, are very common, and children and the elderly are most frequently the victims.

Children under the age of two are injured usually as the result of some other person's actions. As the child becomes older, the cause of injury is more commonly associated with their own action. A lack of experience, knowledge and understanding are commonly associated with these burn injuries.

Adults, especially the elderly, may encounter situations which present a burn risk as a result of not knowing that such a risk may exist. This is not often true among young families or in situations where people encounter items and equipment with which they are not familiar.

Injuries can be prevented and the risk-producing situations controlled. The following are some methods of addressing scald burn risk potentials in the kitchen.

□ Keep all hot items at a safe distance from a child. Keep the child at a safe distance from all hot items by using playpens, high chairs, and the like.

□ Create a safe zone for children! Keep pot handles turned in or to the back of the stove.

□ Use pot holders. Use pot mitts when picking up hot pots and pans.

□ Secure loose sleeves with an elastic band or use short sleeve garments while cooking.

□ Test all heated food before giving it to a child or placing it within their reach.

□ Read and follow the directions especially when using microwave ovens and other appliances.

□ Read the appliance manual and the directions for heating on the food package or container.

□ Keep children out of the "traffic path" and check for their location before moving any hot or heavy item. Avoid deep-fat cooking when young children are present.

□ Be sure to inform baby-sitters as to the safe use of any cooking appliance and caution them relative to procedures to prevent burn injuries when preparing meals.

□ Elderly adults should be cautioned of the danger in lifting heavy pots of hot liquids from the stove that can fall and cause serious injury.

□ If a sleeve catches on fire, immediately cover the burning sleeve with a towel, go to the sink and run cold water over the towel and sleeve.

□ Children should not be allowed to use cooking or heating appliances until they are mature enough to understand safe-use procedures and tall enough to safely handle items and reach cooking surfaces.

□ Periodically check all handles on appliances and cooking utensils to ensure that the handle is tightly fastened and will afford proper thermal protection.

□ Where possible, arrange the kitchen so that hot items are not carried across the room or over areas where children may be present. The sink and cooking appliances should be adjacent to rather than opposite from each other.

Other fire safety items that should be adhered to are:

□ Keep all appliances in proper working order, with all electrical cords free from any damage, cracks, breaks, splices and bare wires.

□ Heat producing appliances should have the thermostat properly set for the intended heating need and be properly positioned and supervised to prevent injury.

□ Always unplug portable appliances such as coffee pots, toasters and crock pots to avoid possible electrical fires.

□ Automatic timers for coffee pots are not recommended due to the possibility of forgetting to unplug when leaving the home for extended periods of time.

□ Keep combustibles (paper towels, pot holders, food cartons) away from any appliance which produces heat.

If any of these fire or burn prevention ideas are helpful to you or your family, please give the personnel at the Fire Department a call at 3686 or 6339. We want to know if this information is helpful or not.

If a specialized class is requested, call for an appointment or educational information. Help us help you!

1958th CS welcomes new commander

Capt. James Williams assumed command of the 1958th Communications Squadron during a ceremony Tuesday in the Reese Enlisted Open Mess presided by Col. Bill Henny, 64th Flying Training Wing commander.

Maj. Gerry Brown, former commander, will be leaving for Keesler AFB, Miss to attend the Advanced Communications-Computer Systems Officer Training Course.

"I'm proud to be taking over a squadron with the pride and enthusiasm of the 1958th," said Captain Williams. "I feel that the people in the squadron can accomplish the mission, and have no doubt that they will excel."

In 1981, Captain Williams was commissioned as a second lieutenant through the Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps program and was a distinguished graduate. Captain Williams was then assigned as a computer programmer/analyst in the 1500th Computer Service Squadron at Scott AFB, Ill. Then he supported the Military Airlift Command's airlift planning system.

In October, 1985, Captain Williams was transferred to the 1936th Communications Squadron at Lajes Field, Azores, Portugal where he became chief of operations.

Captain Williams returned to the United States in February 1988. He returned to Scott AFB, Ill. where he served as communications-computer systems operation inspector for the Office of the Inspector General, Headquarters Air Force Communications Command. In July 1990, he transferred to the Officer Assignments Division, Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel.

Captain Williams' military decorations and awards include the Meritorious Service Medal and the Air Force Commendation Medal.

Captain Williams is married to the former Jill Thomas and they have one daughter, Kathryn.

Housing offers alternatives

New program provides option for NCOs in unrenovated units

Many recent questions concerning base housing have prompted officials to take actions to minimize inconvenience to residents and personnel on waiting lists.

The long standing rule of "first come first serve" has caused a situation where some families already living in base housing and therefore not on a waiting list are living in unrenovated three-bedroom units, while some new personnel with no children were moving into renovated three-bedroom units.

According to Maj. Per Korslund, base civil engineer, some categories of the base housing waiting lists are still long, but some lists, particularly the NCO 3-bedroom list, are short enough to offer some personnel a new option.

"In an attempt to improve living conditions, more senior NCOs living in unrenovated houses will have the opportunity to move into renovated houses as the units become available," said Maj. Korslund. "This will also free up some of the units that have been designated as airmen's quarters."

Therefore, any technical sergeant qualified for a three-bedroom unit who is living in an unrenovated unit and is willing to do a self-help move at no cost to the government, will get a chance to go on the renovated three-bedroom waiting list.

According to Major Korslund, anyone in this category will need to sign up at the housing office by March 15, 1991.

Those choosing to participate will be placed on the waiting list in rank order as of midnight, March 15, 1991.

"As the units become available, these people will be offered two units. If the member declines both units, the member will be taken off the list permanently," he added.

"Additionally, those families on the two-bedroom list will still have an opportunity to get a three-bedroom house, but it will most likely be unrenovated," said the major. "If personnel on the two-bedroom list would rather have a renovated unit, they have the option of waiting for a renovated two-bedroom unit."

As the renovation winds down, other adjustments will be made depending on the need and housing assets.

If you have any questions, comments or suggestions on any housing subject, call the housing hotline, 6201.

Reese Mission Maker

This week's mission maker is 1st Lt. Liesl Daniel, adjutant, 54th Flying Training Squadron. Lieutenant Daniel has been assigned to Reese since February, 1989.

Lieutenant Daniel began her military career six years ago, as an airman at Peterson AFB, Colo., working as an operations resource management specialist with a C-130 squadron.

After receiving an Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps scholarship in 1987, she attended the University of Northern Colorado, earning a bachelor's degree in English in 1988.

"I worked in a flying squadron environment before," she said, "so after I received my commission, I asked to be assigned to a similar environment."

"I do the best I can to take care of everyone in the squadron," added the Colorado Springs native, whose duties, 21 in all, include everything from executive officer to outprocessing students. "The people in the squadron work hard. Sometimes they need a little help," she said. "That's what I'm here for."

She is married to 1st Lt. Jack Daniel, a 52nd FTS instructor pilot, and has a son, Justin, who is four and one-half months old.

Legal offers more tax tips

The Reese Legal Office announced the following developments on the tax scene:

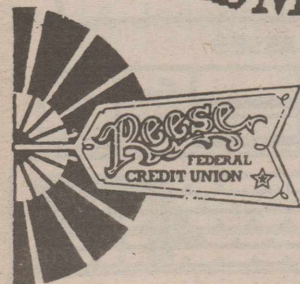

□ The phrase "Desert Storm" written at the top of tax returns, envelopes or other tax correspondence will alert the Internal Revenue Service to the taxpayer's entitlement to tax relief.

□ The IRS will no longer require the special power of attorney (IRS Form 2848) or a general power of attorney to authorize someone besides the taxpayer to file a return. The revenue service will accept a signed statement from the taxpayer that authorizes another person to act on his or her behalf, even if tax matters are specified in that authorization.

In addition, if a spouse of a person at Desert Storm cannot get a signed authorization, the IRS will accept a written statement explaining that the spouse is serving in a combat zone. Such a statement should be signed and attached to the return.

For details, call legal at 3505.

Polls show flood of support

U.S. forces deployed to Operation Desert Storm have seen countless examples of the overwhelming public support they enjoy from their fellow Americans. But how do their fellow Americans feel about the war itself?

In polls conducted before the cease-fire by major American newspapers, the answer remains generally the same. Though the war effort does not rank quite as high as support for deployed service members themselves, the marks are still impressive.

For example, a Feb. 14 USA Today telephone poll of 601 American adults on various topics dealing with the Gulf War showed strong support for the allied effort.

When asked if they back President Bush's decision to start the war, 81 percent of those polled supported the decision, while 15 percent were opposed.

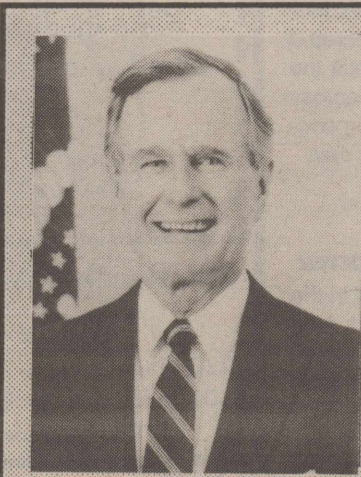

A similar Washington Post-ABC poll asked whether people approve or disapprove of the United States going to war with Iraq. Support remained steady. Seventy-six percent of those polled approved as of Jan. 16, 83 percent approved Jan. 18, 75 percent approved Jan. 27 and Feb. 10. And polls held Feb. 12 and Feb. 14 showed public approval of Operation Desert Storm at 78 percent.

Pollsters also asked about war coverage and received surprising results. When a Times-Mirror survey asked Americans whether they thought the military should increase restrictions on news reporting in the Gulf, the majority was in favor of tougher restrictions.

However, reporters protested, saying censorship could distort the public's view on what's really happening.

Seventy-eight percent believe the military is not hiding embarrassing issues, and is telling everything it can to the media. Of those surveyed, 57 percent said the military should increase control over the media. Only 16 percent said military censorship was a bad idea.

"As commander in chief, I can report to you: our armed forces fought with honor and valor. As president, I can report to the nation: aggression is defeated. The war is over."

— President George H. Bush
address to Congress, March 6, 1991

According to a poll on the media's coverage of the war, 50 percent of the people said they couldn't stop watching the coverage of the war on television. Twenty-one percent said they had trouble concentrating on their work and normal activities and 18 percent said they were suffering insomnia.

Approximately one-third of Americans restricted how much coverage of the war they let their children watch. Public opinion on broadcasting news from Baghdad censored by the Iraqi government showed 45 percent disapproved and 43 percent approved.

The support by the American people has been overwhelming, according to Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney. In a recent press conference, he said, "It has been, frankly, more extensive than I would have anticipated a few months ago. The extent to which the country has sort of pulled together behind the force that have been deployed to the Gulf, behind our young men and women in uniform, and President Bush's policy, has been something truly to behold." # Sweetheart ball raises over $5,780

The anticipation and suspense built to a peak as the Enlisted Wives Club crowned the 1991 Reese Sweetheart during the Sweetheart Ball March 2 in the Reese Enlisted Open Mess.

Nancy Medlin, Lockheed supply clerk, raised over $2,400 to win the event. SMSgt. J.T. Washington, 64th Mission Support Squadron, was the first runner-up while Sgt. Susan Stephenson, 64th Civil Engineering Squadron, was the second runner-up. The sweetheart is chosen based upon the amount of money he or she raises for the EWC scholarship fund.

"Over $5,780 was raised for scholarships for military and Lockheed dependents, as well as the EWC welfare fund," said Mrs. Paula Coakley, EWC president.

"I am excited to be the Reese Sweetheart, but I'm mainly happy about the money raised for the scholarships," Miss Medlin said. "It was great to know that I got so much support from the Lockheed employees."

"Overall, the project went well," said Mrs. Coakley, mentioning that donations exceeded last year's total by $250.

Seniors interested in applying for the scholarship should contact their high school counselor. For more information, contact Mrs. Coakley at 797-0864.

"The EWC would like to thank the entire Reese community for the support we received," Mrs. Coakley said.

Base model knows business of 'style'

by Amn. Jose Alejandro,
Roundup staff writer

As she walks down the runway, hundreds of people watch. She wears the latest styles for the coming year, sometimes with a price tag as high as $16,000.

She is a model, Towanda Harrison. Mrs. Harrison, Reese information, tickets and tours director, modeled not only in the United States, but in Europe as well.

Mrs. Harrison got started while attending college. One day she was approached by Nancy Bound's Modeling School. "When Nancy approached me, she made a comment about my lips being full and I got embarrassed," Mrs. Harrison said. "Nancy said that in modeling you have to have full lips to look good.

"Nancy gave me her business card and told me to call her if I was interested. I was scared at the beginning because I was in Arkansas and I would have to move to Omaha, Nebraska"

Mrs. Harrison decided to drop out of college and attend the school. After being in class for only three months, she began working for some national chain department stores.

She graduated in 1988, and was the top runway model in her class. "After I graduated, I was offered a one-year modeling contract in Italy," she said. During her stay in Europe, she modeled in Paris, London, Rome and Athens.

She returned to the states in 1988 with her husband, Michael, an Air Force technical sergeant. After arriving at Reese, she often traveled to Dallas to model in fashion shows.

She advises people who are interested in becoming models to begin at an early age. "Women should start early because most modeling careers come to a close at about the age of 31 in runway modeling," according to Mrs. Harrison. "On the other hand, men can model a lot longer."

Besides being ITT director and a model, Mrs. Harrison still has time to be a wife and mother as well as teach modeling courses. "Sometimes it gets hard, but Michael is understanding, which is great," she said.

"As far as being a modeling teacher, I've had two students sign contracts with national modeling agencies," she said. "That makes it all worthwhile."

"If I was offered a chance to model in Europe again, I think I would go back. There is more work in Europe and the pay is a lot better," Mrs. Harrison said.

"Someday I would like to open my own school in Virginia," she said. Mrs. Harrison has been involved with the Black History Month Fashion Show since she has been at Reese.

Maybe one day she will be back in Europe modeling for some of the best fashion designers. Until then, she will continue to excel in the states.
