Secretary Rice cites people as AF turns 45

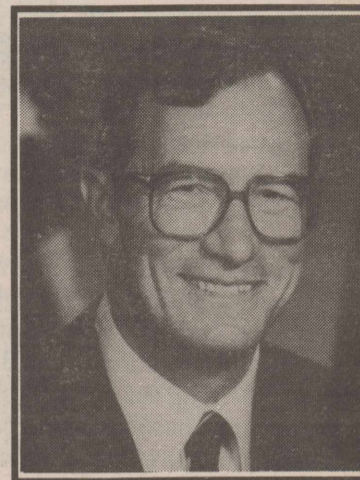

by Donald B. Rice
Secretary of the Air Force

Today the Air Force turns 45.

To some it probably seems just yesterday that the Air Force earned its wings as a separate service.

Coming out of World War II, our leaders recognized the distinct capabilities of airpower. Air Force people like you have been demonstrating those capabilities daily for more than four decades.

Take a look around today. You'll find Air Force people and aircraft patrolling the skies over Iraq to preserve peace; performing humanitarian missions in Somalia, Kenya, Angola, Bosnia, Guam, Hawaii and Florida to relieve the pain of personal suffering; and monitoring air traffic in the Caribbean to stem the flow of illegal drugs into the United States. Stateside or overseas, in the air or on the ground, you provide America's global reach and power.

Now, as we make the final turn toward our golden anniversary, we must continue to build a new, quality Air Force to meet the challenges of a world very different than the one we faced just three short years ago. As we celebrate this 45th anniversary, I share your pride in being part of the world's finest Air and Space Force.

From my perspective

by Col. David Love
Commander, 64th FTW

Contributions of $82,000 from Reese, and $168,000 from the Reese-Lubbock areas.

That's the goal for this year's Combined Federal Campaign, which kicked off yesterday. This year, campaign workers will contact nearly 1,700 wing members and another 1,800 federal employees in the Lubbock area. Backed by the support of the 3,500 folks who care, the 1992 goals are attainable.

Now is an excellent time for each of us to turn our attention and thoughts to those less fortunate. Our CFC contributions - for example, the $86,000 from Reese - will go a long way toward helping service organizations (locally and around the world) help others. All it takes to assist in this effort is our caring, compassion, commitment and contributions. I'm certain our CFC will succeed because Reese people have established a long tradition for giving and caring.

Something for everyone

I've discussed this year's campaign with

(Sgt. Greg Spraggins)

Signing up

Second Lt. Jonathan Davis (left), a 52nd Flying Training Squadron CFC keyworker, gives information about the fund-raising campaign to SSgt. Marty Bustos.

several community leaders, including David M. Harmon, the chairperson of Lubbock's 1992 United Way campaign, and Glenn Cochran, president, United Way of Lubbock. We agreed that with nearly 900 organizations to choose from, there should be a cause that appeals to everyone. As we begin this year's campaign, you'll be asked to support any one of these worthy organizations. With the numbers involved, it's imperative that you designate where you want your money to go. If you want your dollars to stay and work in Lubbock - designate. If you want your contribution to stay and work on Reese - designate. Remember, your gift can work wonders.

The local impact

During 1992, nearly $20,000 will be donated by the United Way of Lubbock back to Reese to support and improve youth center activities. Further, our on-base support to Camp Blue Yonder, primarily manpower and facilities, is augmented by $2,000 received from the United Way. By the time we factor in the emotional and spiritual payback from just these two activities, Reese is well into the plus column.

Reese keyworkers

I've assembled a team to conduct the '92 CFC with a single set objective: 100 percent of those eligible to participate contacted one-on-one by a keyworker and extended an opportunity to contribute. The wing project officer is Lt. Col. Harvey Farr, 3033, from the wing inspections office. In addition, the following "loaned executives" are working closely with unit keyworkers to make this year's campaign a success.

- 64 FTW/CC ...Lt. Col. David DiMarchi, 6592
- 64 OPG/CC ..... Capt. John Braun, 6345
- 64 SPTG/CC ..... Capt. Kate Russel, 3714
- 64 MEDSQ/CC ..... Capt. Robin King, 3130

Please work with us to help achieve the 100 percent contacted goal.

Who will you vote for this election?

by Maj Gary Tucker
wing voting officer

OK, so now you have decided to make the big move. You're committed to vote and you've sent in the absentee ballot request. The only problem is, who do you pick to lead our nation for the next four years?

Information on the various candidates is available to help you make your decision.

The best source, bar none, is the candidate himself. If already an elected official, direct contact is easy. You can call or write directly to their office. I can assure you, they are not shy about responding to your inquiries. You can also call the voting information center. Commercially, the number is (703) 693-6500; the DSN number is 223-6500. In addition to leaving your own message, you can listen to recorded messages from governors, senators and representatives.

Now the tough part: What about those attempting to gain office? By contacting the local party office of those running, you can learn their names, addresses, phone numbers and positions on issues.

For the more obscure candidates, such as minor officials in distant lands with towns yet to be listed on the Rand McNally road map, you have to dig a bit more. Your best bet in this case is to look in local newspapers and magazines. Hometown family members are also a wonderful source of information, so now's a good time to call up good ol' Aunt Sarah. Remember her? She's the one with all the answers to world problems and is not afraid to tell you. Every family has an Aunt Sarah.

Finally, don't ask your unit voting representatives for candidate information. Sound odd? It's not actually; if we advised where candidate X stood on issue Y, we'd have to do it for every single candidate known to man. We simply don't have that kind of information. We'll get you registered, but you'll be the one making the decision. Your voice can be heard — just vote.

Quality Air Force

In the Quality Air Force, the focus is on improving products and services by improving how work gets done (the methods) instead of simply what is done (the results).

An example of this is the Process Action Team recently started at the 64th Medical Squadron, led by Capt. Karen House, officer in charge of lab services. The team is looking at the procedures used to process lab results. This is a typical QAF attempt to improve the way in which work is done in order to better meet customers' needs.

We tend to think of organizations as places where countless tasks get done: putting labels on envelopes, tightening the screws on a component, calling customers and on and on. The QAF challenges us to look at these tasks in a new light, to think of them as steps in a process. Precisely how did the address get on the label? Where did the envelope come from and how did it get there?

We can define a process by grouping in sequence all the tasks directed at accomplishing one particular outcome. Examples are the steps in producing a product, hiring or training a new employee, or filling an order. In this light, we begin to see that every activity is part of a process, and there are thousands upon thousands of processes in every organization.

This idea may not seem as glamorous as other quality improvement concepts, but thinking in terms of processes is perhaps the most profound change that occurs during the transformation to quality culture. Whole new insights open up when you begin to see tasks as related series of events. You start to see how jobs throughout your organization are related. You can focus your thinking: since your organization works through processes, you can only improve your work by improving processes. Better processes mean better quality, which means greater productivity.

Workers can define starting and ending points to a process, and figure out what has to happen in between to make the product or create the service they want. They will be able to focus on errors, waste, and other problems, and determine what data will help them improve the effectiveness of this collection of tasks. And they will have a better idea of where to look for solutions. "What do we want to get out of this process? What must we do to get from one point to the other? What do we do that is necessary to reach our goals? Which steps are unnecessary? Where do we run into problems?"

People who view work as processes understand how the quality of what comes out is largely determined by the quality of what goes in. How well employees can do their jobs depends on the quality of products or services they receive: an assembler depends on the parts manufacturers, typists depend on people who write the documents, the payroll manager depends on information from supervisors, and everyone depends on the policies, methods, tools, and equipment provided by managers.

If a series of related tasks can be called a process, a group of related processes can then be seen as a system. Selling a product, for example, is a system that involves thousands of interrelated processes. If a PAT feels overwhelmed by its assignment at first, perhaps it is being asked to study a system instead of a process. Unless such a team narrows the project's focus, it stands a good chance of getting mired down and never making any progress. A PAT should study only one process at a time; the only exception is where there are two or three processes that are so closely related it would be difficult to study them separately. (Adapted from "The Basics of Quality Improvement" handbook)

New system to improve long distance service

by SSgt. Phillip Turcotte
64th Communications Squadron

Some recent changes in procedures for making long distance telephone calls will not only save the Air Force money, but will upgrade services and reliability.

One of the four scheduled upgrade projects involved moving long distance telephone service from commercial companies to the Federal Telephone Service 2000 system. The purpose of this network service is to combine all Department of Defense organizations under one long distance contractor. The new system offers the base a greater capability of conducting business using long distance service with 22 outgoing lines instead of two.

Another change is that after Sept. 8, base personnel could no longer dial 49 or 79 to receive a long distance outgoing line. The 79 access has been reinstated to make 1-800 calls. The other way to receive a long distance line is by dialing our local access of 89 plus an access code. Key personnel will receive an access code from their unit Telephone Control Office so they can dial long distance.

The second upgrade, which occurred Monday, involved grouping our Defense Switch Network, formerly AUTOVON, lines into a large capacity digital circuit. As all the bases convert their lines, customers should notice improved clarity when using DSN.

The final two upgrades will involve Internal Switch Voice Service and the Armed Forces Network.

ISVS will provide Reese the capability to call anywhere in the world. This will accommodate personnel to make necessary communications in order to take on the mission at hand.

AFNET is similar to the DSN upgrade, but deals mainly with regrouping our digital point-to-point circuits. This program will save the Air Force money and increase reliability of the system.

The bottom line is communications are moving ahead using the principles of economy-of-scale to not only save money but upgrade services.

For more information call me at 3117.

64th OPG change of command scheduled

The 64th Operations Group change of command ceremony will be held at 10 a.m. Monday in front of base operations at the "T" area. Col. Larry Driskell will relinquish command and Col. F. Randall Starbuck will assume command.

Training our own Reese leads off in T-1A PIT

Reese entered its next phase with the Air Force's newest trainer aircraft, the T-1A, when it began training instructor pilots in the T-1A Sept. 8 following the "Start Training Readiness Review" held here Aug. 28.

The STRR looked at the status of the T-1A aircraft and related equipment and support systems. According to Lt. Col. Bob Futoran, commander of the Site Activation Task Force here, the T-1A Systems Programs Office from Aeronautical Systems Center and members of the McDonnell-Douglas team briefed command officials on the T-1A's status and readiness to begin IP training.

"We discussed what needs to be done on the aircraft, as well as the maturity of the simulators and courseware," Colonel Futoran said. "The end result was that although the system is still growing, there was nothing to stop us from beginning IP training."

Reese will conduct its own pilot instructor training until Randolph AFB, Texas, takes over responsibility. PIT at Randolph is expected to get their T-1As next spring, and they should begin training instructors in fall 1993.

In the meantime, Reese will train all instructors locally. The initial instructors will come mostly from IPs already at Reese, as well as IPs from Williams AFB, Ariz., which is closing.

The review was attended by representatives from the wing, Hq. ATC Operations, Hq. ATC Plans and Programs, Aeronautical Systems Center, McDonnell-Douglas, Beech Aircraft and Quintron.

Homestead regroups in wake of Andrew

The 726th Air Control Squadron, Homestead AFB, Fla., will temporarily move to Shaw AFB, S.C., in the latest Homestead unit move following Hurricane Andrew which struck Aug. 24.

Homestead was virtually destroyed during the storm which packed winds in excess of 140 mph. The president announced Sept. 1 that Homestead would be rebuilt, however, cost figures and a timeframe for the reconstruction have not been determined.

The 726th Air Control Squadron's primary function is air defense management and air traffic identification. They also assist in air rescue operations.

The unit will continue to provide radar control for 9th Air Force operations as well as training for F-16s assigned to Shaw's 363rd Fighter Wing.

The 309th Fighter Squadron from Homestead has been moved to Shaw. Shaw was chosen as a relocation site because it has the facilities and space necessary for equipment storage and the necessary housing in the local area.

Homestead's 307th and 308th Fighter Squadrons have been temporarily moved to Moody AFB, Ga. The 31st Fighter Wing will remain at Homestead.

In its second week of relief operations, the Air Force continues to fly equipment and supplies into South Florida, which took the brunt of the storm and suffered an estimated $30 billion in damages.

Air Mobility Command C-5, C-141, C-130 and KC-135 aircraft have flown 344 missions, transporting 4,645 passengers and 7,735 tons of cargo into the area. Meanwhile, in the Pacific, AMC is ferrying tons of relief supplies to Guam, which sustained heavy damage when Typhoon Omar struck Aug. 27. (Air Force News Service)

Hispanic Heritage Month

Activities focus on Hispanic contributions

by SA Sarah Garcia
project officer

This year National Hispanic Heritage Month will be celebrated from Sept. 15 to Oct. 15. The main theme for this year's observance is "500 years of Hispanic Heritage 1492-1992: Contributions to America's Progress."

Today more than 11,100,000 Americans (about 5.3 percent of the total U.S. population) are Hispanic Americans.

Many people often stereotype Hispanic Americans as "one group of people." The fact is Hispanic American people are "distinct ethnic groups," despite some commonalities. Each group, for example Mexican-American, Puerto Ricans and Cubans, has its own cultural heritage (folklore, arts, holidays and social structure). They are white, black, red or a mixture, and practice different religious preferences.

Therefore, Hispanic Americans should be understood as who they really are and for the many valuable contributions they offer society.

Hispanics helped colonize this land, participated in the American Revolution and served on both sides during the Civil War. They fought in both world wars and served in all military units on the ground, in the air and at sea during the Korean Conflict and Vietnam War. Nearly 90,000 Hispanics currently serve in the Armed Forces. Hispanic Americans have defended our nation with deep pride and courage. In fact, 37 Hispanics have received America's highest military decoration for valor, the Medal of Honor.

Hispanic Americans have a long tradition of cultural heritage. The Reese Hispanic Heritage Committee encourages everyone, whether Hispanic or not, to make an effort to enrich their lives by sharing in the celebration and observance. Take a break from your daily routine; participate and share in the cultural awareness and learn more about Hispanic culture and contributions in our local area and around the world.

A T-38 is backed into the new Hush House, a sound suppression building recently completed. The Hush House is used to troubleshoot and check out engines on the jets. The Hush House became operational Sept. 1, and will cut down on the use of the three sound suppressors that have been operational here since the late 1960s. This is all part of an environmental push to reduce jet noise.

Quality Performer

How would you like to be responsible for the efforts of over 300 people? Some people might, some wouldn't even try it.

As maintenance operations manager, T.O. Hilley is not only trying it, he is doing it.

Mr. Hilley's area of responsibility includes all flightline maintenance activities and in-shop functions such as engines, avionics, fabrication, fuels, aero repair, inspection and some staff offices. His is also responsible for the management of Lockheed maintenance supporting Reese's T-38s located at Minot AFB, N.D., Grand Forks AFB, N.D. and Ellsworth AFB, S.D., in support of the Accelerated Aircraft Copilot Enrichment program.

"I think the key to this position is knowing your people and letting them have the room to do their job," he said. "Everyone here knows what they are doing, down to the very last person."

Mr. Hilley retired from the Air Force, where he served in assignments in Iceland, South Carolina, Georgia, Oklahoma, California and Florida.

"This is by far the best maintenance operation I have ever worked with," said Mr. Hilley. "And that's a fact."

Mr. Hilley graduated from Calhoun High School in Calhoun Falls, S.C. He has a degree from the Community College of the Air Force, and has been at Reese three years.

"We are proud to have him on the Lockheed and wing team," said David Butler, Lockheed contract manager. "His outstanding leadership skills have played a key role in the success of the mission."

In his spare time, Mr. Hilley enjoys fishing, hunting and golf. He has two children, Heather, 16, and Obie, 14.

Retiree Appreciation Days set

September 24 and 25 have been declared "Retiree Appreciation Days" at Reese.

"We're proud to once again host this annual event and to welcome our largest attendance ever this year," said Col. David Love, wing commander. "I feel every office at Reese will contribute to making these two days beneficial and enjoyable for our retirees."

During RAD, visiting retirees will benefit from a variety of scheduled activities.

On Thursday, survivors benefit plan and supplemental health care insurance counseling will be available. Lunch will be held at 11:30 a.m. at the Officers Open Mess followed by briefings covering CHAMPUS, the new retiree dental plan, and Social Security benefits. A tour of the new T-1A hangar and simulator building will also be available.

Friday begins with medical exams at the hospital. Individual counseling sessions continue throughout the day. Lunch will be held at 11:30 a.m. and a golf tournament beginning at 1 p.m. For those who don't want to golf, a tour of the Caprock Winery begins at 2 p.m.

Retirees are being encouraged to visit finance, the legal office, pass and ID and all other offices as needed. Most of the retirees attending RAD don't live within commuting distance of Reese and this is a good opportunity to take advantage of their retiree benefits.

Retiree Appreciation Days had been held on Friday and Saturday the past six years, but has been moved to Thursday and Friday.

"We're hoping two "work days" will allow the Retirees to accomplish more by interacting directly with the staff agencies here on base," said retired Lt. Col. Stanley Lindell, director of the retiree activities office. "We want to make these days the most productive possible for our retiree community."

For more information call the retiree activities office at 885-3168.

STAP grants awarded

The final selection of awards for the Spouse Tuition Assistance Program was recently announced by the base education office STAP committee.

Of the 71 total applicants, the program was able to assist 35. The total of funds available were equally split between enlisted and officer spouses, as there are equal numbers of each group.

Award of the grants was based strictly on need within each group. After adjustments for spouse's income and number of dependents, participants were ranked on the basis of total family income. Awards went to all applicants in order — up to annual and quarterly limits of the program.

Applicants will be accepted for the winter term (South Plains College and Wayland Baptist University) from Oct. 12 - 23 and spring term (Texas Tech and Lubbock Christian University) applications will be accepted from Dec. 1 - 11.

Go by the education center, Bldg. 920, Room 139, or call 3634 for more information.

POW/MIA activities scheduled

Today is Prisoner of War/Missing In Action Day, and Reese will mark the day with a retreat ceremony at 5 p.m. in front of Bldg. 800.

The ceremony will feature a four-ship T-38 missing-man formation fly-by.

Former POWs from the surrounding area will be on hand for the event.

In addition, they will receive a tour of operational facilities on base and attend a special POW/MIA chapel service at 4 p.m. Featured guest speaker at the service is the Rev. Andrew Mild, an ex-POW held by the Japanese in World War II. The service is open to the base.

POW/MIA Day is set aside each year to honor those service members who have sacrificed their freedom in past conflicts while serving their nation. It also demonstrates the country's strong commitment to resolving the question of American servicemen who are still missing in action.

Defense department officials listed 2,273 Americans still missing or unaccounted for in Indochina as a result of the Vietnam War. By contrast, there are no prisoners or casualties unaccounted for from the war in the Persian Gulf.

The DOD credits lessons learned from past conflicts for this turnaround.

A luncheon will be held at 12:30 p.m. today at the Officers' Open Mess.

Guest speaker at the luncheon is Ray Raney, senior vice commander of the Hub of the South Plains Chapter of Ex-POWs.

For more information on POW/MIA Day activities, call 1st Lt. Mike Madison or 2nd Lt. Alan Matney at 3709.

52 FTS takes IM golf title

Capt. Derrick Toney's five iron shot came to rest less than six feet from the pin on the final hole Sept. 10, increasing the 54th Flying Training Squadron's lead against the 64th Operations Support Squadron and clinching the base intramural golf championship.

"When I saw it drop I knew that the pressure was on them," said Captain Toney. "I was pretty confident on that hole (three), that's why I shot first. I think luck was on our side that day."

The shot gave the 54th FTS an increased lead to three holes, clinching the intramural championship against the previously undefeated OSS.

"We knew we had a real challenge going into the play-offs against the OSS," said

Capt. Donald A. Parkhurst, 54th FTS team captain. "Our strategy was to stay close to their A team and let our B team win it for us. Fortunately, both of our teams won."

Captain Parkhurst said the most important advantage the 54th had during the season was depth.

"On any given day either Team A or B team could shoot exceptionally," he said. "We had one of those days."

The captain noted the nine-hole format used by the intramural golf league this year made for stiff competition.

Other 54th FTS team members were Capts. Kirk Willburger and Todd White, 1st Lt. Brian Chamness and 2nd Lt. Mike Abair.

South Plains Fair sets 'military day'

Reese families will be admitted free to the 75th Panhandle South Plains Fair on Military Day, Oct. 2.

According to fair officials, military families will be admitted free upon presentation of a valid military identification card by a parent. The free admission does not cover the cost of parking. Oct. 2 is the only day military families can enter the fairgrounds for free.

The fairgrounds are located between Broadway and Fourth Streets, adjacent to Avenue A. Opening Sept. 26, the fair will run through Oct. 3. It features a variety of livestock shows, musical performances, exhibits and attractions.

Featured on Military Day are two free performances by country music star Marty Stuart at the Fair Park Coliseum. The shows are free but tickets are required. Tickets for the 7 and 9 p.m. shows will be available at various Lubbock locations. KLLL radio, the show sponsor, will broadcast the ticket locations beginning today at 7:40 a.m.

Other entertainment scheduled in the coliseum includes: Hal Ketchum and McBride & the Ride, Sept 26, 5 p.m. - $10, 9 p.m. - $12; Sawyer Brown, Sept. 27, 5 and 7 p.m. - $12;

LaToya Jackson, Sept 28, 7 p.m. - $10; J.D. Sumner and the Stamps and the Chuck Wagon Gang, Sept. 29, 7 and 9 p.m. - $5; Selena Quintanilla, Sept. 30, 7 and 9 p.m. - $5; South Plains Talent Search Finals, Oct. 1, 7:30 p.m. - free; and Tanya Tucker, Oct. 3, 5 p.m. - $10 and 9 p.m. - $12.

Tickets for these shows are available by contacting the fair office at 763-2833.

In addition to these shows, several free performances will take place at the Outdoor Stage between the Merchant's and Women's Buildings. Many special variety acts will also perform each day throughout the fairgrounds.

One of the most popular exhibits at the fair is the 4-H petting barn, located near entrance 3. Staffed by volunteers, the petting barn offers children a "close-up" look at a variety of farm animals.

The 64th Communications Squadron and 64th Operations Support Squadron boosters will operate a concession booth at the fair. The booth is normally located near the south end of the midway. Squadron volunteers will sell grilled sausages, cold drinks, etc. Proceeds are used to support various squadron programs.
