VSI, SSB goals not met AF wide

WASHINGTON (AFNS) — The Air Force did not meet its goal of 7,500 officers and 24,000 enlisted people taking either of the two voluntary separation incentives, methods designed to avoid involuntary manpower cuts, personnel officials said.

By the April 15 deadline, only 19,419 VSI and special separation benefit applications — 2,166 officers and 17,253 enlisted people — were approved.

Of the 23,260 total applications submitted, 18,131 enlistees chose SSB and 2,063, the annual VSI payments. Of the 3,066 officers who applied, 1,446 chose for SSB and 1,620, VSI.

Lt. Gen. Billy Boles, Air Force deputy chief of staff for personnel, told Congress if mandated reductions continue to grow, the military must continue to address separation incentives, thus encouraging a greater number of voluntary losses. Boles said this is necessary throughout the Air Force, but particularly among members who are approaching retirement eligibility.

"We may need to conduct an officer reduction-in-force board in fiscal 1992 to effect reductions in 1993 if there is not a significant increase in the number of officers who accept VSI-SSB."

The Air Force has said it will do everything possible to avoid a RIF, but if a RIF is necessary, it would consider sergeants and staff sergeants with nine to 14 years of service.

At Reese

There has been a total of 39 applications from the Reese community. Of those, 29 have already been approved and 10 are still pending.

According to SSgt. Kerry Eason, NCO in charge of enlistments and separations, SSB has been the most popular program for enlisted members with 36 applications. One enlisted member chose VSI.

Two officers applied for VSI.

MWR, housing topics of town meeting

Several Reese people got the chance to exchange views with commanders and facility managers during a "town meeting" at the Simler Theater April 15.

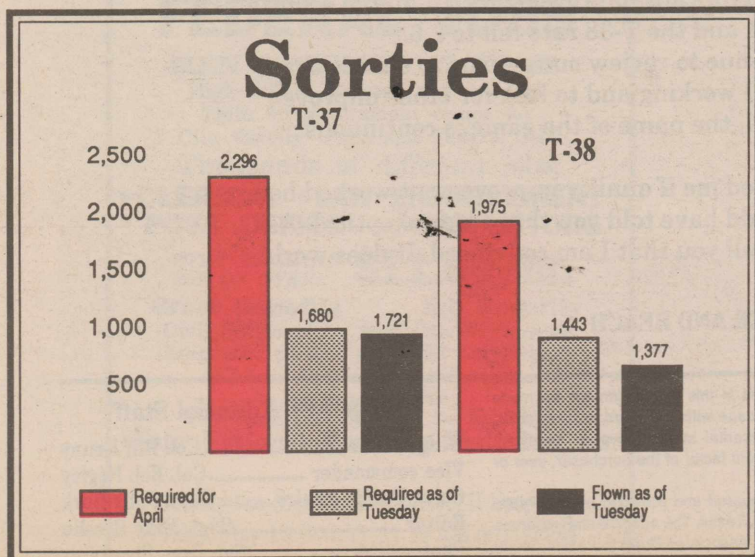

The meeting, opened by 64th Support Group commander Col. Ken Hess, included program status reports by representatives of the civil engineers, security police, hospital, services and morale welfare and recreation.

Lt. Col Per Korslund, CE commander, informed the small but attentive group, that all of the various construction programs on base are on track. However, he announced that funding for Phase-3 renovation of Reese Village has been put on hold by higher headquarters. "This appears to be the result of a 1989 housing survey," said Colonel Korslund. "We think the numbers cited are unrealistic and we are trying to get funding for Phase-3 reinstated." The colonel couldn't predict when, or if, Reese would be allowed to complete Phase-3.

From my perspective

by Capt. Gerard Jolivette

Drinking and driving is not an issue we can afford to study to death — unfortunately, death is the result in 50 percent of the cases involving drunk drivers. Determining what should be done about this public health hazard and criminal act is simple. The short answer to most of the questions that arise can be answered without much homework. Don't drink and drive! Some alarming statistics which highlight the drunk driving problem include:

- There is an alcohol-related auto fatality every 23 minutes in America. An auto accident involving alcohol occurs every 90 seconds.
 - Recent statistics indicate alcohol has been involved in over 398,000 motor vehicle crashes.
 - Traffic crashes are the greatest single cause of deaths of people between the ages of 5 and 32; half of these crashes are alcohol related.
 - Two in every five Americans will be involved in an alcohol-related crash at some time in their lives based on past statistics.
- Drunk driving threatens the lives of all Americans. Whether driving, a passenger, a bicyclist or pedestrian — whether you drink alcohol or not, you are still at risk of being involved in an alcohol-related crash. Drinking and driving is a leading cause of death in the U.S.

Reese, as with most military communities, provides a more controlled environment where the standards are significantly different and the moral climate produces formal and informal pressures not to drink and drive. "Tough," some might say, "unfair," and even "unrealistic" in the thoughts of some. The bottom line is — as military members, we are required to meet the standards by both military policy and the high leadership standards the civilian sector expects of us as role models and defenders of our nation.

We first have a responsibility to ourselves, but also to society, our families and the Air Force to avoid the indiscretion of operating a motor vehicle of any type under the influence of alcohol. The results speak for themselves when one does.

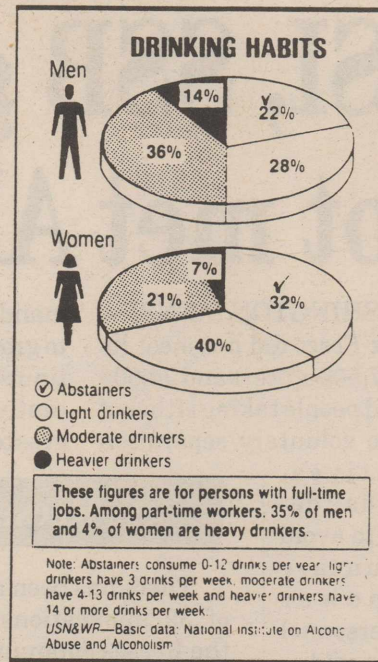

This type of willful misconduct in a period of extreme scrutiny and quality force draw down will only serve to cause unwanted problems. Unfortunately, each year at this time as summer approaches, the number of reported DUI incidents increase significantly. The results of possible license suspension or seizure, vehicle confiscation, loss of base driving privileges and a number of other economic and social problems can be avoided. Help us help you by ensuring designated drivers are identified. Look for warning signs and don't be reluctant to stop a friend or anyone you observe who may be under the influence of alcohol from getting behind the wheel of a vehicle. Take care of your fellow airmen.

Sometimes members of the security police are seen as the bad guys. Our job is not always filled with opportunities to assist in a positive light, but our goal is to help when and wherever possible. An example is the cone maze we establish on weekends at the main gate as individuals exit the installation. Our purpose is not to create problems for motorists, but to help prevent possible problems from developing. We assist several vehicle operators in getting home safely as a result of this practice and encourage anyone needing a ride home after having a drink to contact us at 3333. We'll be glad to bring you home or ensure a ride is provided if you or a friend live off base.

Alcohol has its place in society. Uniquely it is one of the few mind-altering drugs that is legally available without a prescription and is known to be the cause of a significantly larger problem worldwide. From my perspective, it does not present a problem unless we allow it to — don't allow it! Don't drink and drive.

Reese vision: "Reese people leading the way in supporting and training professional officers and quality pilots for the Air Force."

Quality improvement

by James Sellers
Aircraft Cannibalization QI Team

When we started our Quality Improvement team on the aircraft cannibalization process, we had the highest CANN rate in ATC. In November 1991, just prior to establishing our QI team, our T-37 CANN rate was 1.7 versus the ATC goal of 1.4. Our T-38 CANN rate was 4.4 versus ATC's goal of 2.7.

As we started holding meetings and looking at the process, everyone on the team said that there was not much we could do about the CANN rate — because that is the way it's always been. Initially, there was not much team cohesion. Everyone definitely had their own ideas.

Our first task was to develop a mission statement for the CANNs process and a "Team Charter" that basically stated our goals and what we expected the team to accomplish.

Once we decided on the direction we wanted to go, we developed a flow chart of the entire process. This done, we could begin to look for problem areas, bottlenecks and possible areas to improve. We also looked for areas where we could install measurements. We began looking at the high number of CANN parts on the shelf in supply, repair and replacement items and how we select aircraft for CANN.

Amazingly, as we moved further into the process, our team began to come together. As a result, we were able to make some improvements to the process.

We made some mistakes in the beginning, but in the end, we made some significant improvements. In March 1992 our T-37 rate was 1.1 and the T-38 rate fell to 2.6.

We must continue to review our actions to ensure that everything is still working and to look for other improvements — after all, the name of the game is continuous improvement.

If you had asked me if quality improvement worked before we started, I would have told you that I was skeptical. Ask me now and I'll tell you that I am convinced. It does work!

NAZI PORT BURNS
S. Farmers Nation Is Nearer Full War Footing
ce Problem British Planes In Wide Raids

Fifty years ago today, the front page of the Lubbock Evening Journal carried numerous accounts of America's involvement in World War II. Japan was looking for a quick "knockout punch" in Burma in the wake of the Doolittle raid on Tokyo, while the Nazis suffered a heavy blow at the German Baltic port of Rostock courtesy of British air raids.

On the home front, everyone was looking to pitch in for the war effort. One person with a particular urge was 1st Lt. Earl J. Cooper. An inside news story in the April 24, 1942 Journal described the Lubbock Army Flying School (now Reese) instructor pilot was eager to get back to the "front lines" of the war.

Previously, Lieutenant Cooper had been with the North Atlantic ferry command and seen the German Luftwaffe in action, and he and a squadron of six B-17 bombers had the "fortune" to be flying over Pearl Harbor on the morning of Dec. 7, 1941. All six planes were able to land, but one man was killed and seven were wounded.

As the newspaper account told, the experience "made him mad." He stayed in Hawaii as a patrol pilot until being sent stateside on sick leave shortly thereafter, and he reported for IP duty here, "chomping at the bit," April 16, 1942.

First Lt. Earl J. Cooper of the Army Air Corps has seen both of the world's big war fronts at first hand, but he has a real grievance and he wants somebody to know it. He wants action.

Lt. Cooper, who is at present a flying instructor at the Lubbock Army Flying School here, has been an Air Corps flying officer since 1940. He has been with the North Atlantic ferry command, reached Hawaii just in time to get into the midst of the Japanese attack there last December 7, and has been stranded in mid-Pacific in a rubber boat for four days.

He Wants His Chance
But all that isn't enough. The Axis has had its crack at him, and now he's waiting for a chance to pay it back.

Lt. Cooper was initiated into the war last year, when he was ferrying bombers to England. He saw the German Luftwaffe in action, but he only watched.

He didn't think much better of his chances to get into the midst of things when he started ferrying bombers to Hawaii last December. And it made him mad when, with a squadron of six bombers of the B-17 type, he arrived over Honolulu early December 7, found the Japanese Air Force at work over the island and

Butler takes over as new Lockheed contract manager

Dave Butler has taken over as Lockheed contract manager, bringing with him more than two decades of aircraft maintenance experience.

Mr. Butler replaces Geary Wallace, who served as contract manager for 13 months. Mr. Wallace is moving to Dallas where he plans to enter a business partnership.

Mr. Butler, a native of Kentucky, spent 27 years in the Air Force before retiring in 1990 as a colonel. Though he was never stationed at Reese, he said he is "excited" to be here now.

"I've been really impressed with the appearance of the base and the attitude of the people," he said. "There's an upbeat, positive environment at Reese."

Getting back into the maintenance field was another incentive for Mr. Butler to take a position with Lockheed.

"The skills and attitudes of the folks in Lockheed are really something," the University of Kentucky graduate said. "My goal is to continue the quality and responsiveness of the maintenance service that Lockheed provides. I want to ensure that the Lockheed team is viewed as an integral part of the wing team."

Capt. Gerard Jolivette, 64th Security Police commander, talked about several new programs designed to increase security police visibility and accessibility.

He also asked for feedback on whether or not Reese should implement a curfew for people 17 and under during the summer months. The curfew being considered would be from 11 p.m. to 6 a.m.

Services commander, Capt. Stephen Governale, talked briefly about the hours of operation and fees for the base swimming pools this summer.

He was followed by updates on the youth center and child development center by Mrs. Cindy Mitchell and Mrs. Viola Aiken.

Also giving short status reports were: Lt. Col. Edward Wright, hospital commander; Mary Williams, base exchange manager; and Lila Andermatt, commissary officer.

Town meeting participants had several questions for the speakers. One Reese Village resident questioned the "strictness" of the courtesy yard inspections recently conducted by CE. Colonel Korslund said the "free" inspections were designed to help residents prepare for the official inspections conducted throughout the summer.

Another resident asked if the base could extend the hours the gates remain open from the village to 4th Street. Colonel Hess noted that a recent survey did not indicate an overall desire by residents to keep the gates open longer, but that he would seek additional input by surveying the residents again.

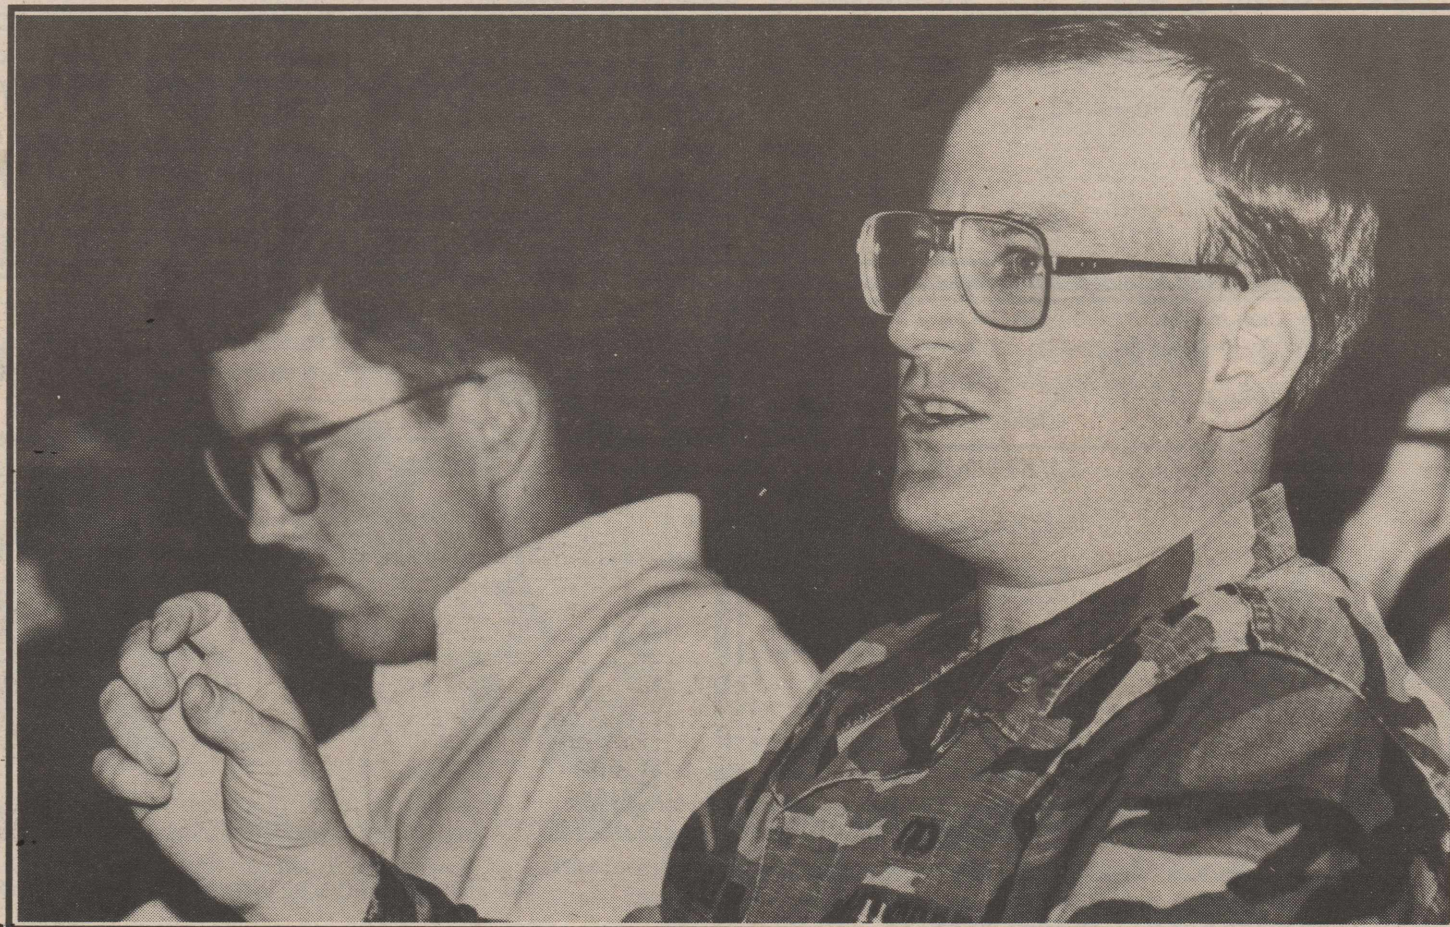

A sergeant in the audience asked why people had to continue paying the child care center if they notified the center in advance that their child would not be using the facility for one or two weeks. Ms. Aiken explained that charge policies are established by regulation, but, she would work with parents to reduce the impact of time out of the center as much as possible.

Other suggestions that were taken under consideration concerned the commissary and base exchange. Ms. Andermatt agreed to look into the possibility of keeping the commissary open later at night. Ms. Williams, said she would examine the feasibility of including clothing sales into the main store so that military apparel would be available seven days per week.

Colonel Hess closed the meeting by thanking Reese people for attending and encouraging them to solicit others to participate in future town meetings.

If you have additional questions or feedback, call the 64th Support Group at 3520.

Capt. Martin Heller, chief, air traffic control operations, asks questions during the town meeting.

'Bugs' to be removed from Reese Village

Reese Bioenvironmental Engineering Services will be visiting all military housing facilities this week to exterminate the "bugs" on the walls.

The bug-like objects are not insects, however. They are the radon samplers that were placed in the dormitories, base housing (renovated units) and billeting units to monitor the amount of radon in their areas.

Radon is a naturally occurring gas which is found in many areas in the United States. According to SSgt. Robin Michaels, a BES technician, "Our program is simply part of an Air Force-wide effort. If a problem area is located, there are ways that we can safely and successfully manage the level of radon in the area."

The collection process begins Tuesday and will continue for approximately two weeks or until all of the samplers are collected, according to Sergeant Michaels. In order to get test results as soon as possible, the samplers must be collected in a timely manner.

"Please take a few minutes to answer any questions the technician who comes to your living space may have about the sampler," said Sergeant Michaels.

"We will be especially interested in learning if the sampler has been moved from its original place."

"We certainly appreciate your patience and cooperation during the past 12 months," said TSgt. William Fowler, NCO in charge of BES. "With continued help and cooperation, we can make this as painless as possible."

CAP member saves girl's life

by SSgt. Mike Breslin
editor

When Civil Air Patrol was founded in the 1940s, its primary purpose was to help protect Americans from air attack. While that wartime threat does not exist today, one Lubbock teenager may be alive today because of the patrol.

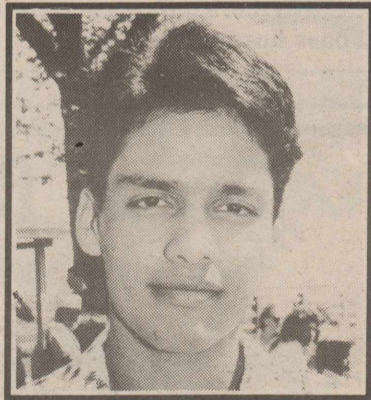

CAP Cadet Michael Vermillion, 16, was sitting in geometry class at Lubbock High School several weeks ago when a nearby classmate raised her hand to answer a question. When she then tried to speak, she began choking on her gum.

"Things happened real fast," Michael said. "We all started gathering around her. We all thought she was sick at first."

At that point, he remembered the Red Cross course he had taken just two days earlier as part of his CAP training.

"It was a first-aid course," he said. "We need a first-aid card to go on search-and-recovery missions."

By the time Michael reached the girl, within four or five seconds, she was already on her hands and knees. He quickly applied the Heimlich maneuver and was able to get the girl to cough out the gum.

"They told us (in the Red Cross course) that we may never get to use this training," Michael said. "I never thought I'd use it that soon!"

CAP carries out search-and-rescue exercises for the Air Force, promotes aerospace education and provides an atmosphere for moral growth, discipline and leadership among young people, according to Capt. Alan Shafer, deputy commander for cadets. Meetings are held every Tuesday at 7 p.m. in Bldg. 79.

For more information on the patrol, call Captain Shafer at 6552 or Capt. Debbie Cheslow at 6438.

Reese volunteers honored next week

by SSgt. Mike Breslin
Editor

You've worked hard, you've worked long. Your efforts have played a big part in office achievements over the past several weeks, and you're proud of what you've done.

So what's your reward, you ask?

Not one thin dime.

This isn't the description of a gullible loser. It can well be applied to any of the wing volunteers who take the time to help improve the base and community. They sacrifice their time on and off base for programs like Meals on Wheels, Special Olympics, Camp Blue Yonder and scouting. Also, several offices on base are staffed entirely by volunteers. They include family services, the thrift shop, the Red Cross and the retirees activities office.

Such efforts will be honored Sunday through May 2 during National Volunteer Week. An appreciation social will be held from 4 to 5:15 p.m. Wednesday in the Reese Officers' Open Mess, during which winners of Angel Volunteer awards will be recognized.

Also, different MWR facilities will offer discounts to volunteers during the week. Volunteers who have not received their discount letter in the mail should stop by the Reese Family Support Center.

While wanting to help others is a big motivator for volunteering, there are more practical reasons according to Helen Thai, base volunteer resource program coordinator.

"Although they don't get paid, volunteers can get experience that could help them land a job down the road," said Mrs. Thai. "They also get to set their own hours and meet new people."

She added that whenever she matches volunteers to positions, she tries to make sure it's something they'll enjoy doing.

"I wanted to get involved on base, helping out any way I could," said Maria Davis, family services coordinator. "It's really rewarding when people come in and we're able to help them."

Another family services volunteer, Josiane Goupie, said she sees her efforts as a way of "paying the Air Force back" for the 28 years she and her husband were part of the active-duty family.

For more information call Mrs. Thai at 3305.

Hospital using volunteer talent

The battle of Solferino, Italy, gave birth to the idea of a volunteer organization to aid the wounded left behind on the battlefield. Through Henry Dunant's concern and caring, along with the others who supported his ideas, the International Committee of the Red Cross became a reality in Geneva, Switzerland Aug. 8, 1864. Its symbol became the reverse of the Swiss flag — a red cross on a white background.

Clara Barton was in Europe during the Franco-Prussian War of 1870-71 and served as a Red Cross volunteer for the war efforts. She returned to the United States and pursued the organization of a Red Cross unit here. Her successful efforts resulted in the U.S. Congress chartering the American Red Cross in 1905. At that time, they were mandated to give immediate assistance to victims of natural disasters and to serve as a link between members of the U. S. armed forces and their families. The American Red Cross still operates under this same charter today.

Like our changing society, the American Red Cross has grown through the years adding new services to meet the needs of our populations. Programs in water safety, first aid, child care, home nursing, youth services and AIDS education are being taught today by dedicated volunteers. Other services such as nursing home and hospital auxiliaries are filling vacancies where there are shortages in paid staff. (South Plains Regional Chapter, American Red Cross)

At Reese

The Red Cross Volunteer Program is alive and well at the 64th Medical Squadron at Reese. Volunteers are assisting hospital personnel in positions ranging from receptionist to dental assistant. "Not only are these volunteers earning the respect and praise of those with whom they work, they are enjoying the fun and excitement of on-the-job training," said Sue Jones, director of emergency services, South Plains Regional Chapter, American Red Cross. "The knowledge, skills and sense of belonging are things volunteers possess wherever they are."

For more information on volunteer opportunities at the base hospital call Candace Uliano at 3230.

CE members volunteer for playground duty

Over the past 7 months, 20 volunteers from the 64th Civil Engineering Squadron have volunteered their weekend time towards a good cause: putting up playground equipment.

Shallowater Elementary purchased the new equipment, but fell short on funds to set it up. The school then called Reese asking about possible volunteers and got instant support from CES.

"It took us three years to raise the money for the equipment, and when we finally got it, it was just a pile of pipes, wood and bolts," said Lanette Branum, Shallowater Parents, Teachers, Students Organization president.

"We really appreciate the efforts of the civil engineering troops in helping us get it together."

"After looking at the project, MSgt. Thomas Williams and I decided it was something we'd like to tackle," said SMSgt. Earl Shultz, project monitor. "These kids are going to get benefits out of this for years to come. It makes me feel good to see the kids out there with quality equipment. I get a lot of self satisfaction out of it, and I think the other guys do, too."

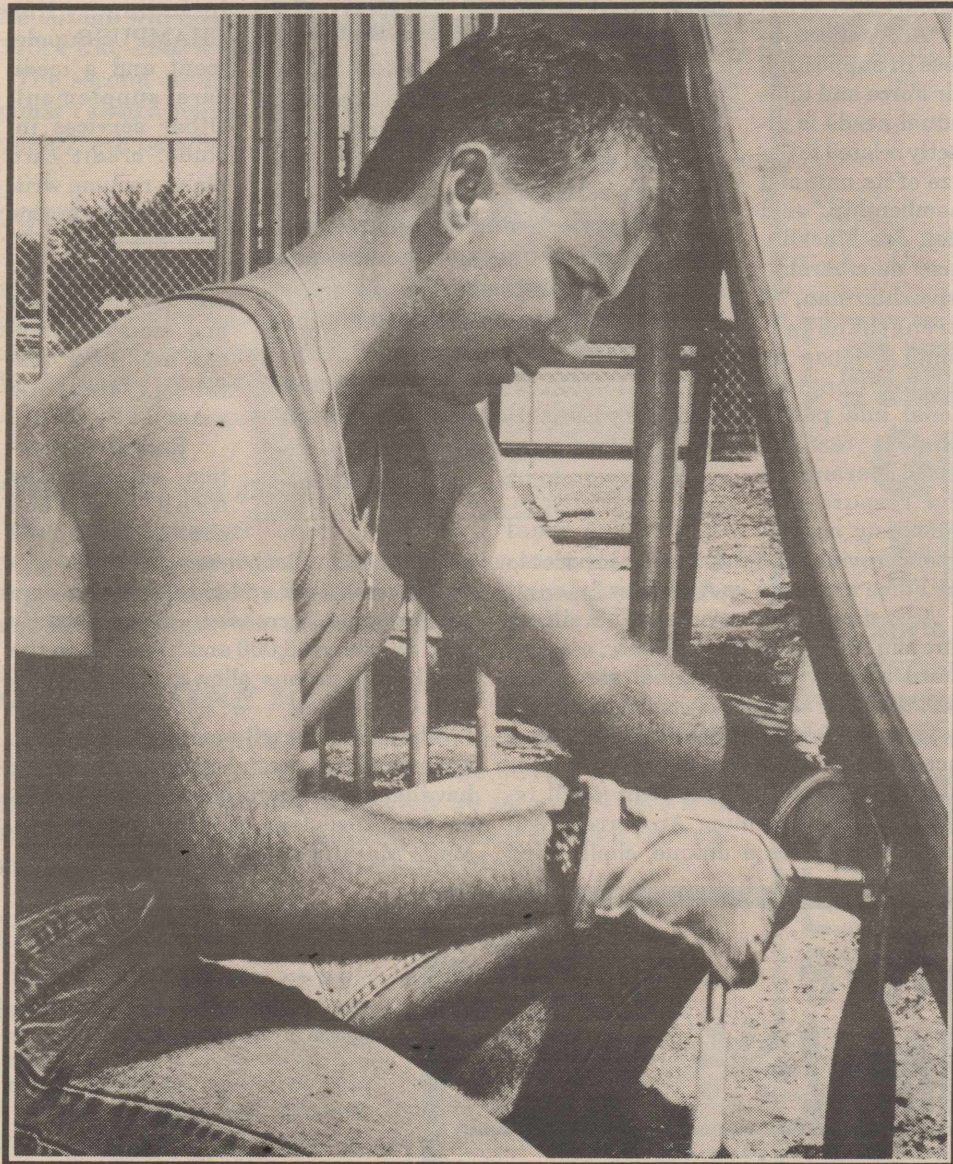

The team will have set up a total of six large pieces of playground equipment at the completion of the project, which they expect to finish within the next two weeks. The new equipment includes a two-story enclosed tower with a slide, monkey bars and a haywagon made of steel tubing and wood. The team has totaled over 200 hours of volunteer work throughout the project so far.

"We dug a lot of holes, poured a lot of concrete and tightened a lot of bolts," said Sergeant Shultz.

"The kids just love it," said Ms. Branum. "They think they've been given the greatest prize."

April proclaimed AFA month

The Air Force Association began its annual membership drive at Reese Monday while Lubbock Mayor B.C. "Peck" McMinn officially proclaimed April 1992 as "Air Force Association Month" for Lubbock.

The Air Force Association, with 200,000 members worldwide and 550 local members, support national defense and, in particular, a strong Air Force with technological superiority.

"AFA's effectiveness in supporting Air Force and individual needs is directly related to the size of its national membership," said Maj. Joe Macklin, base membership drive chairman. "It strengthens national defense by gaining Congressional and public support for Air Force personnel and resources. I doubt any organization provides as many quality services to Air Force members as AFA does."

According to the major, any U.S. citizen may join AFA, and all active duty, reserve, guard and civilian personnel associated with the Air Force are encouraged to join.

"The cost for basic membership has not increased in five years," said Major Macklin. "For only $21 a year, you'll receive the award winning Air Force Magazine monthly. It's a unique, challenging and enjoyable source of authoritative information on aerospace developments."

Additionally, he said, Air Force Magazine produces its annual "Air Force Almanac" that describes the major commands and each U.S. and overseas base with such detail that it's a "must" for any career Air Force officer or NCO's desk reference.

Members are also eligible for a variety of low-cost group insurance programs including life, CHAMPUS Supplement and a medicare supplement. Other services include: credit card plans, resume writing, AFA motor plan, discounts of 50 to 70 percent on hotels and motel rates and reduced rental car and long distance telephone rates.

Recent legislation, supported by AFA, included across-the-board pay increases, pilot bonuses, incentive programs to attract and retain health care professionals, increase in death gratuity from $3,000 to $6,000 and increases in the family separations allowance and imminent danger pay.

The local drive will run through May 29. Each unit has one or more keyworkers who have detailed information and sign-up brochures. For more information, contact Major Macklin at 3759.

Quality Performer

Ron Rush has a job many don't think about, but as he says, "It's a fact of life."

Mr. Rush is the foreman of the water and waste section, at the base sewage and treatment plant.

"It's not a job everyone wants, but I enjoy it," said the Glassboro, N.J. native. "It's an interesting process that takes a lot of work."

Mr. Rush retired from the Air Force in 1983 after 21 years of service. During his military career, he saw assignments in New York, Wyoming, Oregon, Florida, Vietnam, Germany, Japan and Texas.

Mr. Rush is a member of civil engineering's spill response team and its decontamination team. His 26 years of experience in the engineering environmental support field is the key to handling demanding situations.

Mr. Rush won civilian employee of 1991 in his wage level class and the squadron level award, too.

He and his wife Elizabeth "Bunny" have three children; Denise, Brenda and Ron Jr.

In his spare time, Mr. Rush enjoys golf and gardening.

Big Commissary savings set for May

The nation will honor America's armed forces on May 16, but the military family will be saluted by special savings at the base commissary throughout the month of May.

"We will feature more than 200 items," said Lila Andermatt, commissary officer. "Savings will be from 20 to 60 percent below normal commissary prices."

Sale items will include health and beauty aids, beverages, cereals, frozen foods, pet foods, candies and a host of other merchandise.

Noting that the majority of sale items will be national name brands, Ms. Andermatt said shoppers will be able to enjoy even greater savings by using "cents-off" manufacturer coupons.

Bob Tate, director of operations for the Defense Commissary Agency, said the Armed Forces Day sale is part of a series of savings programs planned for this year. A community appreciation sale is planned for July and the DECA anniversary sale will be held in October.

Ms. Andermatt added that these world-wide commissary sales are in addition to monthly "best buy" specials set up by DECA's regional headquarters.

Reese shot down by Cannon

Butler logs low score

A 22-member golf team from Cannon AFB, N.M., edged past, by a single point, a 22-member Reese team Monday during the 1992 Reese-Cannon Golf Tournament. Cannon's one-point win was the second tournament win in a row and increases the series to 4-1 in favor of Cannon.

"We did a lot better than last time we met," said Lt. Col. Joe Buchwald, tournament coordinator. "In July, we were absolutely killed at Cannon. It was a major accomplishment this year to lose by only one point."

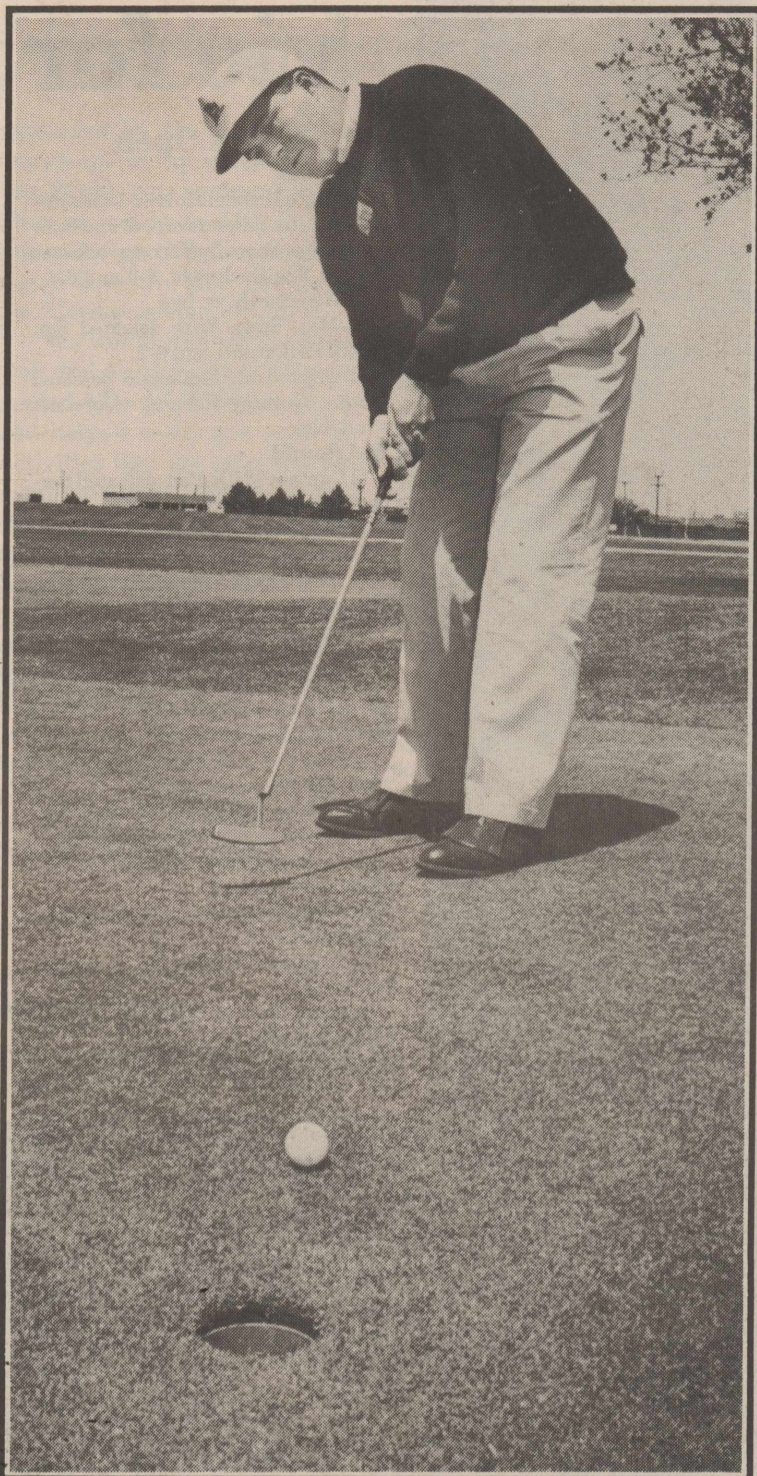

A member from each team competed head-to-head. Three points were awarded to each match. Points were awarded for the lowest first nine, the second nine and the total score of the eighteen holes.

The top Reese finishers were Dave Butler at 75, and Don Neff and Ron Boswell at 76. Cannon had five players finishing at 76.

"We are looking forward to playing them at Cannon in the fall," Colonel Buchwald said. "We seem to get closer and closer to a victory everytime we meet."

Gryphons' studs take first in crud

Friday night was membership night at the Reese Officers' Open Mess, and crud teams were out in force despite the demands of a busy Easter weekend.

The students from the 54th Flying Training Squadron "Gryphons" flight took first place. Team members were 2nd Lt. Steve Astor, Jeff Bowling, Charles Randall, Michael Venerdi and Paul Villem.

Last year's league champions, the Cobra flight instructors of the 52nd FTS, lost to the Gryphons students in the championship round to claim second place. Team members were Capt. R.B. Truesdale, 1st Lt. Roger Bishop, Jack Daniel, Greg Franklin and Eric Meyn.

Third place was shared by the students from Cobra flight and the instructors of the 54th FTS.

This weekend's tournament, organized by the 64th Operations Support Squadron Transition Flight, was again a big success, according to 64th Operations Group Commander Col. Larry Driskill, also known as the "Commissioner of Crud."

"We would like to thank the club and all the guests who attended the membership night and helped make it a success. Activities like the crud tournament help foster teamwork and camaraderie among the flights and organizations that participate," the colonel said.

"The level of competition seems to increase with each tournament," he added. "On the other hand, no team has a lock on winning, as this weekend's result shows."

The next tournament is May 22. For more information call Captain Gregory at 6337.
