Reese flooded with visitors at open house

by SSgt. Mike Breslin
editor

Despite rainy weather that threatened to cancel parts of the event, Sunday's open house was attended by about 40,000 people.

People from throughout the South Plains turned out to see the Thunderbirds, Army Golden Knights, F-15 demonstration and a variety of aircraft on static display. In addition, several demonstrations and displays on military history, current programs and Reese people and units were set up in Hangar 82.

One other highlight, the "Red, White and Blues" rock and blues concert, was part of the Reese open house for the second year in a row. Area performers went on later than planned, but were able to "rock the house" once weather improved at mid-afternoon.

Of course, the Thunderbirds were the main attraction of the day. Worries about cloud cover cancelling the program went away as the skies cleared after a morning of rain. The Thunderbirds dazzled the crowd with their high-speed, aerobatic maneuvers.

Their performance was preceded by the traditional inspection party of wing and local officials. It included Col. Bill Henny, wing commander; Joe Price, president of the local Air Force Association chapter and a Friend of Reese; Don McBeath, Lubbock County judge; Byrnie Bass, chairman of the board of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce; see "Open house", Page 9

Phase two VSI wraps up today

WASHINGTON — Bucking the odds, significant numbers of reserve officers in the 1980-1984 year-groups have apparently decided to take their chances with the pending reduction in force board as the tally shows figures well below what the Air Force needs in voluntary officer separations. Today is the deadline to volunteer for the voluntary separation incentive or the special separation bonus.

We want to make sure that when commanders counsel eligible officers they don't sugarcoat the vulnerabilities; for RIF-eligible officers in the '80 to '84 year-groups, vulnerability for a RIF remains near 95

From my perspective ...one last time

by Col. Bill Henny
64th FTW commander

That great American philosopher, Yogi Berra, was once asked by a waitress if he wanted his pizza cut into four or eight pieces. Yogi said, "Four, I don't think I can eat eight." Sounds funny, but we know what he meant.

It's a matter of perspective, which is why I changed the name of this column — each of us has one and many of you have had the opportunity to express yours.

For a few years now I've enjoyed the opportunity to offer you my points of view. My comments have been from the vantage point of the wing headquarters. Well, before I walk out the door for the last time as wing commander, I want to share my views with you one more time.

You've heard me say often that I've got the best job in the Air Force. Who's responsible for this tremendous job satisfaction? Of course, it's the people of this great wing, both blue suiters and civilian employees. I'll never tire of praising the men and women of the 64th.

A tip of my hat to our great contractors too. The camaraderie and "can do" attitudes transcend any contract.

From my perspective, and I hope yours too, the Reese/Lubbock community relationship stands as a superb example of cooperation. There is no doubt in my mind that we benefit every day from Lubbock's hospitality and genuine interest in the Reese family and our mission.

Yogi is quoted as saying, "If the world was perfect, it wouldn't be." What would life be without challenge? And we've seen our share of challenges here at the Reese air patch ... everything from bringing contract maintenance on board, to the wing reorganization, to the arrival of the T-1A Jayhawk along with several open houses. All this while many of our people deployed in support of Desert Shield, Storm and Calm.

I commend every member of the Reese team for peaking at the right times. My special thanks go to the warriors who took the high ground with me: Col. Bob Negley, Col. Larry Driskill, Col. Ken Hess, Col. Bob Brooks and Lt. Col. Ed Wright. Their friendship and loyalty have been invaluable to me during my tenure. Even more important though has been their support of you. And I would be remiss to not mention the person who has been "the wind beneath my wings" — my wife Susan.

I know this wing will extend that same friendship and loyalty to Col. Dave Love and his wife, Darlean. They are super people and very proud to be joining the Reese team.

Some people view my retirement sadly as an ending of some sort. Actually, it is the beginning of a new chapter for Reese, Lubbock and my family. I can't help but eagerly anticipate the challenges we will share together in the years to come. Our Air Force is a quality force because people like you give and expect quality service. Now as we grow smaller, it will be even more important that we work together as a team — and part of that team is the Air Force retiree.

Yogi also said, "When you come to a fork in the road — take it."

There is no doubt in my mind that I took the right "fork in the road" 25 and one-half years ago and I have no doubt that I am taking the right one now. I am optimistic about the future for many reasons — just for starters, our new telephone number: 796-0064.

Now it is time for Henny Flight to start their engines.

"Henny Flight Check!"

"Lauren."

"Buck."

"Punkin'."

"Minnie."

"Princess."

"Spook." ...

"Nine check in ... Nine, where are you?"

"Henry."

"Henny flight you are cleared for takeoff."

"Henny flight ... afterburner ... NOW!"

"Reese Tower, Henny Flight is clear of the pattern. Please thank everyone at Reese for a wonderful 3 and one-half years and wish them and their families godspeed. I am proud to have been able to serve side by side with them. See you all down the road."

percent," said Brig. Gen. Charles T. Robertson Jr., director of Air Force personnel plans.

General Robertson is urging commanders to understand the advertised vulnerability numbers and counsel accordingly.

The number of additional losses needed hasn't changed; the Air Force still needs 7,500 officers to accept either VSI or SSB to meet end strengths and avoid a RIF. As of May 18, 4,209 officers and 23,630 enlisted members had applied.

Because the officer response to the VSI-SSB offering has been slow, eligible officers in the 1980 to 1985 year-groups remain as vulnerable now as when the incentive program first started, General Robertson said. While the 1980-1984 year-groups are most vulnerable, officers in the 1985 year-group face a 75 percent vulnerability risk.

Based on the number of applications received so far, estimated vulnerability for the 1986-1989 year groups has been reduced from the previously announced 37 percent to approximately 30 percent.

When the April 15 deadline passed for the original VSI and SSB offer, the Air Force was nearly 3,800 officer applications short with only 50 percent of the volunteers needed having applied. Phase two was initiated with hopes of meeting both the officer and enlisted requirements while reducing or eliminating any reduction in force requirements.

Prior to today's deadline rapidly approaching, General Robertson said, "We are confident we will avoid an enlisted RIF." But it's a "virtual certainty" that an officer RIF will be necessary, and a board has been tentatively scheduled for July 20 at the Military Personnel Center, Randolph AFB, Texas.

The last Air Force RIF was in 1974 with those officers affected leaving the service in 1975.

While still exploring alternatives, General Robertson said the point was made right from the start that failure to meet end strength figures would probably have to result

At Reese

□ SSgt. Jim Leonard of the Reese CBPO said that about 22 officers at Reese could be affected if there is a RIF. However, there have yet to be any officer applications for phase two of VSI-SSB.

□ As of Tuesday, three enlisted members have applied for phase two VSI-SSB. All of them have opted for the lump sum payment. Approval of their applications was pending at press time.

□ For details, call SSgt. Kerry Eason or Sergeant Leonard at 3420.

in RIF actions.

"We've looked at it from as many angles as we can. About the only option left is a board."

The RIF board will consider active-duty reserve officers for involuntary separation. Selected officers will have to separate from the Air Force by Dec. 31.

Those with at least six years of total active federal military service by Dec. 31 will be eligible for separation pay. All officers selected will be eligible for transition benefits.

"The whole drawdown has obviously generated its own brand of turbulence, concern and speculation in the field," General Robertson said.

Those impacted include not only RIF eligibles but people affected by selective early retirement boards, reduced high-year-of-tenure and other early release programs — both voluntary and involuntary.

"Because of the broad range of options available, everyone's particular level of impact has been different. Commanders need to understand and deal with each case individually," General Robertson said. "The primary focus of our effort has been, and should be, on reducing the impact on that relatively small percentage of the force affected by involuntary reduction programs. For the remainder, the majority of our people, their primary concern should've been only whether or not to sign up for VSI or SSB."

The Air Force goal is to continue to "make it as painless as possible by soliciting as many volunteers as possible," General Robertson said.

Nearly 28,000 people have applied for either VSI or SSB since the program started, with more than 25,000 applications approved as of May 18. Of the 4,209 officer applications received, 3,532 have been approved, while 21,981 of the 23,630 enlisted takers have been accepted.

Officers applying for VSI total 2,191, with 2,018 opting for SSB. Enlisted SSB takers number 21,105, with 2,525 choosing VSI.

Applications for VSI-SSB are still being accepted on a first-come, first-served basis. Enlisted skills will be closed as their targets are met.

General Robertson said his concern is with the RIF-eligible officers in the high vulnerability year-groups and urged them to "reconsider the reality of the drawdown and to think twice before passing up the extra benefits of VSI-SSB and then being forced to settle for the lower benefits associated with involuntary separation." UPT awards given

Lt. Col. Howard Pierson brought class 92-09 to their feet with a sharp "Ten-hut! - About ... face!"

The graduates stood and responded as commanded, but they certainly weren't expecting an inspection.

"These are the people you should thank the most," he said. Colonel Pierson went on to emphasize the valuable help and encouragement the graduates received from their families, their peers and their instructors.

After an inspiring speech which had the entire crowd responding in unison, twenty-one of the Air Force's newest pilots finally pinned on their wings. The May 21 ceremony marked the end of their rigorous, year-long training experience.

Several members of the class were cited for their outstanding performance during the graduation ceremony and later at the evening dinner-dance.

First Lt. Craig Ash was selected as the top graduate, capturing the ATC Commander's Trophy and the "top stick" (best in flying training) award. He was also cited as a distinguished graduate.

Capt. George Schaub was recognized as another distinguished graduate. He also received the academic award for his perfect performance during academics in which he answered all 352 test questions correctly.

Capt. Jefferson Dunn captured the leadership award, while Second Lt. James Mose received the citizenship award. Second Lts. Brady Fox and Jack Saia shared outstanding second lieutenant honors.

During the dinner-dance, members of the class honored several permanent-party members for their work with the class.

The outstanding academic instructors were First Lt. Cleve Turk (T-37) and Capt. John Whitney (T-38). T-37 flightline IP honors went to 1st Lts. Roger Anderson and Eric Sherberneau.

First Lts. Paul Malenke and Kevin Edenborough were recognized as the outstanding T-38 IPs. Salvador Leyva (T-37) and Milton Sell (T-38) of Lockheed were chosen as the outstanding crew chiefs, and F.J. Runyon was selected as outstanding maintenance mission maker.

Harry Dry, a simulator console controller, was chosen by the class as the outstanding mission maker.

Colonel Pierson, the guest speaker, retired in 1979 with over 33 years of military service. He is president of Top Gun and Formation Inc., a corporation that performs leadership seminars, and is a consultant to American Airlines in crew resource management.

His message to the graduates reminded them of their important role as Air Force pilots.

"When you fail, the country dies," he said. "You can never take your flying lightly. It requires great responsibility and leadership."

He kept the audience vigilant by including them regularly in his speech. To remind the graduates of the people who were there to help and encourage them, the crowd would respond with a loud "Check Two!" whenever the colonel mentioned the inspirational "Freedom Flight."

Airman leadership school graduates

A member of the 64th Mission Support Squadron graduated at the top of Reese Airman Leadership School Class 92-B.

Sgt. Nicolas Navarro captured the John L. Levitow Honor Graduate Award. Other top graduates included Sgt. Rita Samartino, 64th Communications Squadron, who was a Distinguished Graduate; and Sgt. Jennifer Potter, 64th Operations Support Squadron, who won the Military Citizen Award.

Sgt. Alvin Nickson, 64th Medical Squadron, was presented with a "mileage club" certificate during the ceremony. School officials said the certificates go to students who run 40 to 50 miles during the course.

Other graduates were:

- OSS — SrA. Danny Sandefur.
- 64th Civil Engineering Squadron — Sgt. Susan Stephenson and Sgt. Tom Weslager.
- 64th Contracting Squadron — SrA. Leslie Randolph.
- 64th Logistics Squadron — Sgt. Carroll Burns and Sgt. Nicole Leavelle.
- 64th Security Police Squadron — Sgt. Lesley Rosser and SrA. Jimmy Martinez.

One quality that the class displayed during ALS was "teamwork."

"They did a lot of things together both on and off duty," said SSgt. Kuniyunda June, ALS director of education. "Besides things like drill practice and study groups, they would get together socially also."

Mr. Hinojos works on a T-1A.

Lockheed member is top ATC crew chief

Lockheed's Obed Hinojos, a T-37 crew chief assigned to Bronco Flight, was recently named 1992 ATC Crew Chief of the Year.

"I do this work because I like it," said Mr. Hinojos. "I don't try to impress anyone. They (Lockheed management) just see the work I do and they like it."

Mr. Hinojos feels that his experience as a flying crew chief on H-1 Huey during Vietnam has given him a better understanding of what the pilots need.

"It's a very important job that we do here for the pilots," he said. "We have to do things right. The pilot knowing the aircraft will do its job right is the most important thing."

"Before the first Top Flight competition at Vance (AFB, Okla.), I asked God to let me do my best and have a fair judge," he said. "Since then, everything has gone exceptional."

Mr. Hinojos was selected as the top crew chief during Top Flight II at Vance, the 1991 Lockheed Worker/Mechanic of the Year, Worker/Mechanic of the Quarter, July-September 1991 and top T-37 crew chief by two undergraduate pilot training classes. "I'm very appreciative of the support I get from Lockheed and the Air Force," he said. "I don't look for glory, but I appreciate the respect I get for doing my job."

Mr. Hinojos was promoted to a mechanic with the T-1A initial cadre, where he will start July 7. He is currently helping to verify technical orders on the T-1A for the Air Force. His future goal is to be an aircraft inspector.

"If it weren't for the other workers doing their jobs right,

I couldn't have been recognized for the work I've done," he said. "From top to bottom, managers and workers have pulled together as a team and still have the mutual respect needed to get the job done. I'm happy that I'm part of the team."

Mr. Hinojos and his wife Cheryl have two children: Matthew, 9, and Monica, 7.

The open house was preceded Saturday by UPT Career Day. Students and others attended briefings in the Simler Theater in the morning, and despite bad weather that day also, they headed to the flightline that afternoon to talk to pilots and aircrews from other commands.

Career day was an opportunity for students to query aircrews about their jobs and "get a feel" for what lies ahead. The morning briefings were done by representatives from several commands.

"Some of the briefings were very useful, especially the one about Air Mobility Command," said 2nd Lt. Mike Cady, Class 93-06. "They gave a list of how many hours a month you'll be flying, where the particular bases are and so on."

"They gave us a good update on how the restructuring of the Air Force is going," said 2nd Lt. Lance Avery, Class 93-02. "They also went in to what kind of assignments we could expect in fiscal 1993."

Top officers named

1st Lt. Eric Meyn

IP of the quarter

□ Unit: 52nd Flying Training Squadron.

□ Time in service: Four years.

□ Time at Reese: Three-and-one-half years.

□ Hometown: Dearborn Heights, Mich.

□ Achievements during the quarter:

Lieutenant Meyn and another instructor created a new T-38 checklist designed to parallel fighter aircraft checklists. The checklist is now approved for use throughout the Air Force.

He also served as project officer for an encampment by the Air Force Academy Soaring Team in Littlefield, Texas, coordinating meals, transportation, billeting and other support.

1st Lt. Robert Howland

Support officer of the quarter

□ Unit: 64th Civil Engineering Squadron.

□ Time in service: Four years.

□ Time at Reese: Three-and-one-half years.

□ Hometown: Webster, Mass.

□ Achievements during the quarter:

When ATC limited base funds on facility modifications, Lieutenant Howland tracked cost growth for each project on base, limiting cost growth to less than 2 percent.

He is an active participant in the squadron booster club, unit athletics and the Reese Company Grade Officers Council.

Notes

New hours for vet

Beginning Monday, the base veterinarian office will be open 8 a.m. to noon Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday. On Wednesdays, it will be open 8 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m., with a vaccination clinic from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 to 3:30 p.m.

Also, children under 10 are not allowed in the clinic beginning Monday.

Center sets 'fun' program

The Reese Child Development Center begins a summer fun weekly care program Monday for ages 4 and up. A variety of activities will take place. Call Viola Aikens at 3541 for details.

Youth camp scheduled

The Reese Youth Center will hold summer camp Monday through Aug. 18. Cost is $40 per week for full day and $20 per week for half days.

A wide variety of activities are planned. For details, call Cindy Mitchell at 3820.

Safety meeting set

The mandatory "101 Critical Days of Summer" safety briefings will be 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. June 2 and 4 in the Simler Theater.

VBS scheduled

Vacation Bible School will be offered June 8 through 12 by the Reese Chapel for children 3 through the sixth grade. Three- and 4-year-olds will meet 10:30 a.m. to noon and kindergarten through sixth grade will meet 9 a.m. to noon.

The theme will be "Together in Jesus' Name," and students will study the Bible and participate in arts, music, recreation and worship activities.

For details, call Karen Cummings or Barbara Chauncey at 3585.

Artist wanted

Anyone interested in volunteering as a graphic artist to assist in several special projects should call the 64th Flying Training Wing Public Affairs Division at 3410.

Thrift shop announces hours

The Reese Thrift Shop will observe the following summer hours:

□ June — 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Tuesdays with consignments accepted from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

□ July — Closed.

□ August — 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Tuesdays beginning Aug. 18.

□ September — Back to current hours.

For more information, call 3154.

Banquet theme sought

A theme is being sought for the enlisted award banquet in the fall. The winner will receive a $50 savings bond. Send entries to MSgt. Artie Frazier at 64 MSS/MSPPP. Winners will be selected in late summer.

Housing takes certain quarters

Beginning today, the housing office will take over assignment and termination of the bachelor officer and senior NCO quarters. People in these quarters must go to housing in Bldg. 310 to be assigned to or to terminate quarters on base.

Housing officials also said they will handle maid service, but that payments for the service should be made to billeting. For more information, call housing 3913.
