From YOUR perspective

(Editor's note: The following note is from wing commander Col. Roger Brady, addressing his concerns for future Carelines.)

Dear Roundup readers:

A Careline column provides one of the many opportunities for a commander to find out what people are thinking, what's bothering them, what they like, etc. If you've wondered why we do something, or just want to make a comment, don't hesitate to call.

If you leave your name and telephone number, we'll get back to you and answer your concern by telephone.

Calls of interest to the Reese community will be published, without the caller's name, in the Roundup the following week. I look forward to hearing from you.

Calls can be made to the Careline 24 hours a day at 3273.

Roads and parking

I am retired from the Air Force and work for McDonnell Douglas here on base. I have two concerns/questions; one is the road next to the base exchange parking lot. About 20 feet of it has been uncompleted for well over a year. I can't imagine why it would take more than a year to fix 20 feet of road, and I'm wondering if there really are plans to fix it or if we're just going to leave it like that forever.

My second concern is that of reserved parking spaces. It seems to me that the approach has just been for someone to go around and say, "There's a good parking space—we better reserve it." For instance, in front of Bldg. 930, the operations group commander has two reserved parking spots within 40 feet of each other, plus a government vehicle slot.

There are also numerous other reserved parking spots for people who are very seldom here, and even some for office symbols that I don't even understand. It seems to me that the parking spots ought to be reserved when people need them, not just because they seem to be a decent parking spot.

You're correct! The BX and commissary road construction has been an inconvenience for our people and I apologize for that. The delay was caused by an environmental issue surrounding the removal of an underground tank at the old auto hobby shop area. Now that the cleanup involved with that lengthy process has been completed, phase two of the road project has begun. As a matter of fact, the 20 feet of roadway in question has been temporarily paved and opened to accommodate shoppers at both the BX and commissary. The entire project is scheduled for completion in March.

In reference to the second part of your inquiry, the space reserved for the operations group commander in the large parking lot adjacent to Bldg. 930 has been removed. It was reserved originally for the operations group commander's privately owned vehicle when a higher headquarters policy prevented him from driving his government vehicle between work and his on-base quarters. With a change in policy, there is no longer a need for the second space.

The other reserved spaces for commanders immediately across from Bldg. 930 on J Street are necessary for rapid response to situations which require battle staff assembly.

Incidentally, we have just "decommissioned" reserved parking spaces in the lot south of the BX. This should alleviate some of the congestion until the road construction is completed. Thanks for your questions.

Youth center

I have a 7-year-old daughter in the second grade who utilizes the youth center after school, even though she is not a member of the before- and after-school program. What I would like to know is, if the youth center hours are from 3:00 to 7:00 p.m., why is it that a little girl who gets there about 3:45 cannot get any kind of attention whatsoever, or is able to play on the playground or other parts of the youth center without being in the way of the children who are in the after-school program.

If these are their hours, this should be for all children, not just for children who are part of this program. We pay her yearly dues and we would like her to be able to reap the benefits as appropriate.

Your concern is valid. Children enrolled in the after-school program participate in organized youth activities which are closely supervised by two youth center employees. The after-school program runs daily from 3 to 5 p.m. and costs an additional $20 per week. If your daughter is a member of the youth center, but not a part of the "before- and after-school" program, she will still be supervised and may use any of the regular equipment. However, due to staffing constraints in the afternoons and the large number of children enrolled in the program, it is extremely difficult to include "non-program" children in the activities of "program" children during program hours.

I am looking into the possibility of hiring extra youth center staff during these peak hours to better meet the needs of all children using the youth center. Thank you for your feedback.

No more free ads

I'd like to complain about the new policy of charging for classified ads in the base paper. I think the military should still be getting ads in there for free and the merchants should be charged for it. I'd just like some feedback on this.

The Roundup is printed each week at no cost to the government under a contract between Reese and the civilian publishers of the Roundup. That agreement stipulates that the publisher has control over all advertising in the paper.

The free ads were started several years ago as a courtesy by the publisher. However, decreases in advertising revenue has required the publisher to resume charging Reese personnel.

Let yourself be heard...VOTE!

by Maj. Gary Tucker
Wing Voting Officer

Does your home state have your current address? "What do I care? They can't do anything for me." Well, that's where you are wrong.

If the state can't locate you, then you won't be notified of upcoming elections. Major elections don't just come every four years with the presidential election. In fact, there are major national elections every two years, with all of the House of Representatives up for grabs, and one-third of the Senate.

In addition to that, there are numerous local elections going on all the time — voting on new taxes, choosing state holidays, replacing local officials, etc. But up to 33 percent of the "registered" voters are not getting an opportunity to vote simply because they can't be located. Combine that with those who have let their registration lapse, or who have never registered, and you have a big chunk of people not speaking up.

The fix is easy; see your unit representative and you can get the best customer service imaginable. One on one, we'll get your address, help you fill out the forms, and even mail it off for you. But please act soon. The following 12 states will have primaries between March and May: Arkansas, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Nebraska, North Carolina, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Texas and West Virginia.

My phone number is 3284; don't hesitate to call me.

Staying warm in winter

by Capt. Miguel Solis
64th Logistics Squadron

With winter and cold temperatures already nipping at our noses, we have a tendency to crank up the thermostat. It is at this time, however, that we can also save a lot of energy.

During the winter, setting back your thermostat at night and when the house is unoccupied is an easy way to save a substantial amount of energy. In most parts of Texas, you can save between 15 and 20 percent of your heating costs by setting your thermostat back 10 degrees at night. Set back the same 10 degrees for 24 hours while the house is unoccupied, and you can save up to 35 percent of your heating costs.

One good way to ensure that the thermostat is always set back at the right time is to invest in a programmable thermostat (cost $125-$250). Check the thermostats that are available to see how compatible they may be with your heating system.

Remember that regardless of the thermostat you purchase, the more you're willing to set back, the more energy and money you'll save.

Editor's note: "One on one," a periodic feature in the Roundup, gives wing, command and Air Force leaders a chance to air their views and offer insights on the news and issues that affect Air Force people. This week, the Roundup goes one on one with CMSgt. Thomas Sanford, AETC senior enlisted advisor.

From what you see while travelling around the command, how is the morale of the enlisted force?

The morale has changed from what it was a short year ago, as we were in the middle of a rapid downsizing. Quite frankly, the people are cautiously optimistic. Downsizing has sloped off, and there are some pretty good expectations.

During a recent visit here, Chief Brown from 19th Air Force discussed the possibility of a selective early retirement board for senior NCOs in fiscal 1995. What's the latest on that possibility?

It's certainly not a reality yet, but we are moving forward with the thought that it could happen. If we conduct a SERB, whether it be fiscal 1995 or later, it will be done with a quality cut in mind. By that, I mean that people who are less than a sterling "five" or have (negative) quality indicators in the personnel file would be the first to go. It wouldn't be an across-the-board cut.

What advice do you have for members of the enlisted corps, particularly younger members, who are at the point where they have to decide whether or not to make the military a career, but who may feel some uncertainty in the face of the current downsizing?

First, I'd tell him or her to take note of the fact that the Air Force is still "hiring," whereas a lot of corporations in the civilian sector are laying people off and letting people retire early.

The Air Force is still accessing at a rate of 30,000-plus per year. That's evidence that there is going to be someone behind them to replace them, and anyone wishing to make it a career should be looking forward to replacing the middle managers that are in the Air Force.

Most importantly, though, I should think that they would want to look at some of the opportunities that are out there in the Air Force, and take advantage of them.

For those who already are career NCOs, what advice would you give them on how to be successful?

Quite simply, take advantage of every opportunity the Year of Training has provided. Specifically, don't hedge or hesitate to take the courses that are provided throughout a career.

Go to professional military education courses the first time the opportunity exists for you. Complete seven-level skill training and the related on-the-job training requirements as soon as possible; not overnight, but with the thought of having some continuity or time in the specialty.

Alongside all that, spend time taking care of the people who work for you and everything should work out very well. Promotions will come when they're due.

What goals do you have for the command enlisted force in the coming year? One of the most significant things that's happening in AETC for enlisted people is a planned program called "Dorm Way." I see a lot of that program already here at Reese; under the plan our single enlisted members in the dormitories will be granted a private room. Also, the accommodations will be upgraded to truly make it a home.

The wing commander here has done a great job of making quality-of-life improvements in the dorms — I understand that new carpeting, furniture, ceiling fans and the like are coming.

The program is not just here at Reese — it's across AETC, and seeing it through is a goal. It's at the top of my list — I remember what it was like living in the dorm.

Anything to add?

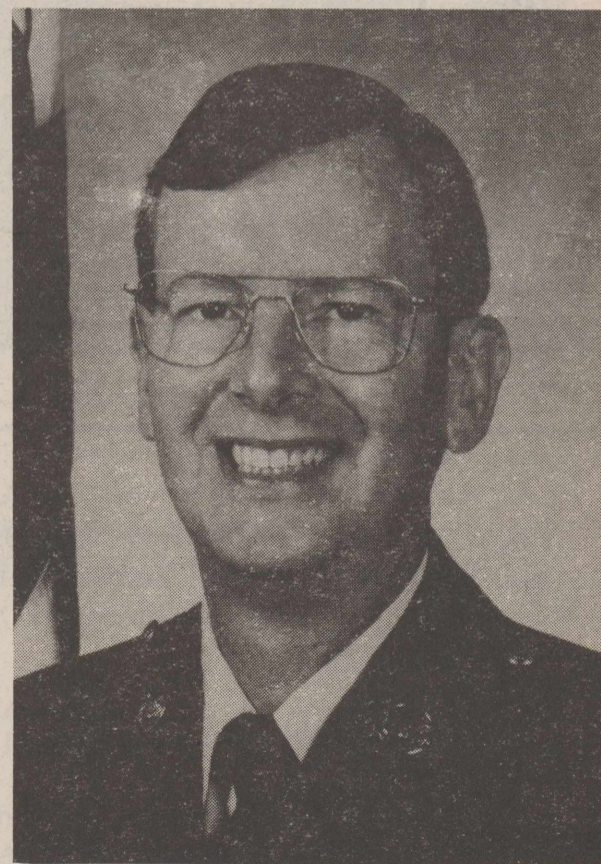

My wife, Judi, and I have had a delightful time here during our visit. There are a lot of true professionals here — military and civilian — who are doing a fine job of supporting our Air Force.

There's a smile on everyone's face. You can always tell when it's sincere, and they certainly have been during our visit. We've had a wonderful visit, and we hope to come back soon.

Pilots with MWS experience increasing in command

RANDOLPH AFB, Texas (AETCNS) — A fundamental change in the Air Education and Training Command instructor pilot cadre will increase the percentage of pilots with major weapons system experience to 95 percent.

The change benefits students and IPs by providing pilot training with a strong operational focus, said Gen. Henry Viccellio Jr., AETC commander.

This emphasis more closely aligns pilot training with what students can expect when they enter a major weapon system upon graduation. "Students will be better prepared than they have ever been because the new system draws upon the strengths of a whole new IP force," General Viccellio said. "Those operational strengths will make tomorrow's pilots more ready to step into an operational cockpit and take control."

In addition, the change to a more operationally oriented cadre offers a choice to the IP force.

Previously, IPs normally flew one type of aircraft during their tenure as IPs. "Our has been there and done that' and can explain how and why things are done. Ultimately, the Air Force gets new pilots who have a better appreciation of the aircraft they are learning to fly and fight with. Everybody wins."

General Viccellio called the change a "high-energy program where IPs can fly one, two or even three aircraft in one tour. This prevents the IP burnout we've seen with a basic syllabus in a single aircraft over a prolonged period."

The change will also offer pilots more flying time and better leadership positions than they would have in their operational wings, General Viccellio added. In AETC, the first level of command is the flight commander position where company grade officers normally gain their first command experience.

Another important factor for SUPT IPs will be the ability to count their instructor hours toward MWS experience, Barron said. T-38 IP time can be counted toward bomber/fighter experience requirements, and T-1 IPs can count their hours toward airlift/tanker experience requirements.

new program offers many IPs the choice to change aircraft after a year and a half, to stay in the T-37 in a supervisory role, or to prolong their participation in the program in the AT-38 program," the general noted.

Within the change to a more operationally oriented IP force, is the cross-flow program where IPs with MWS experience get an opportunity to fly more than one aircraft during their tour as an instructor pilot.

The program "is a great way for pilots to get experience in more than one aircraft," said Maj. Joe Barron, chief of rated resources at Hq. AETC. "Students learn from someone who

Secretary Aspin opposes more cuts

by Jim Garamone

American Forces Information Service

Defense Secretary Les Aspin spoke out against recent proposals in Congress to cut the Defense Department further.

He said these proposals would break faith with service and seriously affect readiness. He said four provisions specifically would affect DOD.

The first is a proposal to defer cost-of-living allowance increases for military retirees until they reach 62. The second calls for a $5 billion cut from overseas stationing costs, which would shift such costs to U.S. allies. The third proposal is to make overseas deployments unaccompanied tours, and the fourth calls for a cut of 252,000 civilian employees.

Secretary Aspin called the deferred COLA proposal a "major change in the pay and benefits package we are now offering people under the all-volunteer force." He said such a change should be accomplished only after careful study. Under the proposal, retirees could lose up to 20 percent of their retirement. He believes a change at this time would seriously affect the department's ability to attract and retain qualified people.

The proposal to cut $5 billion from overseas stationing would impact readiness. "Doing that on a short-term basis ... is not going to be successful," Secretary Aspin said. "It's going to mean that the Pentagon is going to have to come up with the money from someplace else." That someplace is the department's operations and maintenance account, he said, and that will mean service members do not get necessary training, vehicles are not fixed and so on.

Secretary Aspin called making overseas deployments unaccompanied tours "anti-family." Under the proposal, service members would spend two-year unaccompanied tours in places like Germany. He said this proposal would be a severe blow to service members' morale and would again affect the department's ability to attract and retain qualified people.

The final point is the proposal — advanced under the National Performance Review — to cut 252,000 federal employees, with about half coming from DOD. "The difficulty from Defense's standpoint is that we've already done that," he said. The bottom up review looked at the number of people necessary to maintain a credible defense and identified 115,000 civilian jobs to be cut. To cut another 125,000 people would mean closing more facilities, reducing force structure and affecting the modernization and readiness of the force. "This would instantly create the hollow force we have tried so hard to avoid," he said.

Secretary Aspin said the department is already cutting in a rational and predictable way. "We can't come in suddenly with big increases in the cuts that we're looking at for any one year," he said. "Making cuts with this kind of amendment — suddenly, and without any thought of where the impact is and what it's going to do — is likely to be very, very damaging, and it is very, very dangerous."

Top 3 working hard for enlisted, base

Reese's TOP-3 Association is working hard — and it shows. Organized 18 months ago with the purpose of bettering the quality of life for enlisted people on base, the association has three goals:

- Promote interorganization communication and cooperation.
- Promote a more effective problem-solving forum at the lowest level of command.
- Provide an enlisted voice to the command level.

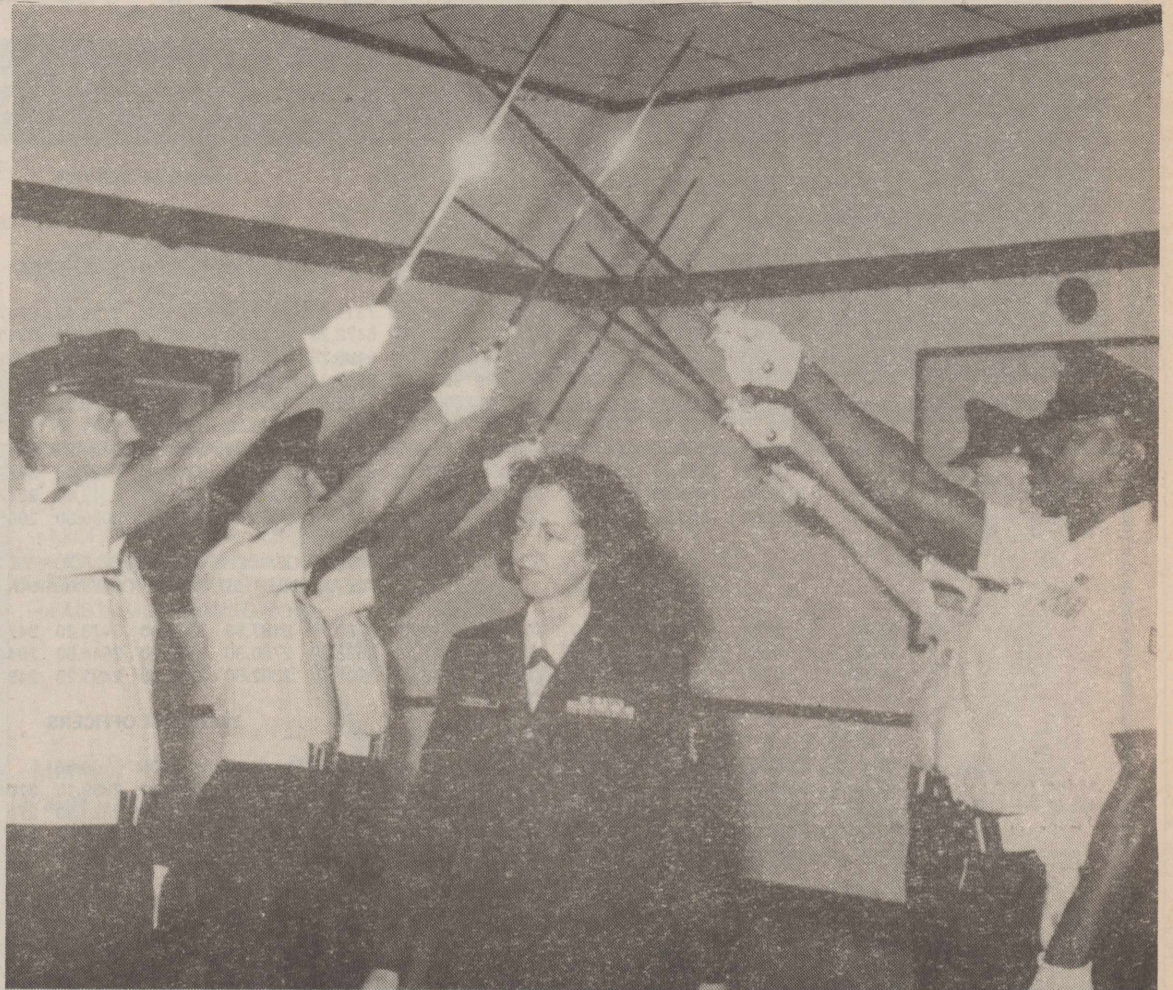

To meet these goals and establish strong unity and esprit de corps, the TOP-3 Association is involved in numerous base and community projects. They include the Lubbock Adopt-A-Highway Program, base beautification projects, quarterly enlisted call and wing recognition programs.

They are also heavily involved in numerous fund raising activities including the Enlisted Wives Club Scholarship Fund, Camp Blue Yonder, holiday food fund, and Toys for Tots, just to name a few.

The TOP-3 Association also established Reese's first formal Senior NCO Induction Ceremony in October, where four wing NCO's were "recognized" as new members of the top enlisted tier.

Formal recognition does not mean every E-7 and above is automatically a member of the TOP-3 Association. The association is a private organization open to all active and retired senior NCO's. Currently, approximately 50 percent of eligible active duty senior NCO's belong to the Association, a fact that goes a long way in voicing enlisted concerns to the wing commander and establishing a strong communication link among organizations.

Giving tree in chapel

Peggy Melloy puts a star on the "giving tree" in the base chapel. The stars on the tree are marked with information about gifts that are needed for children on Reese and in the local community. Wing members who want to share their good fortune with others this Christmas season can pick up a star(s) and donate those items. Wrapped gifts are needed by Dec. 19; delivery to the children will be made later that week. To find out more, call Melloy at 3237.

REESE

(provided by the wing historian's office)

...in 1968 — New facilities were completed for the physiological training unit, corrosion control shop and base fitness center.

...in 1983 — The dedicated crew chief concept for aircraft maintenance began in the 64th Organizational Maintenance Squadron.

...in 1989 — The 3500th Services Squadron became the 64th Services Squadron.

Sure, you made the resolution. And each time you tried to quit, you couldn't. How do we know? We went through it, too.

We learned from our own experience that resolutions just won't do it when it comes to kicking the nicotine habit. The problem can best be understood if you think of quitting smoking like you think of performing some sort of magic trick. Anyone can say that they're going to do a certain trick, but only the person who knows the secret behind it will actually pull it off. And that's why saying, "Abbracadabra, I'm going to quit," just isn't enough.

What is enough is the method thousands of former smokers used, Smoke Stoppers. Methodist Hospital's Smoke Stoppers works because it's a program designed and conducted by former smokers. We know what it takes to quit; we know the secrets and we'll share them with you.

You'll find the atmosphere is low-key, friendly and supportive. Through subtle changes in your awareness and the practice of positive habits, Smoke Stoppers guides you away from cigarettes.

Rabies – it doesn't just affect dogs

by Capt. Mauna A. Warren
Chief, Reese Veterinary Treatment Facility

Rabies is a highly contagious disease which affects animals and humans and can result in death if left untreated. Bites by wild animals such as skunks, raccoons and bats usually are the way pet animals and people can become infected. Because they tend to hunt, outdoor cats are especially susceptible to coming into contact with rabid animals. Besides this, the signs of rabies in cats can be quite variable, especially in early stages.

In the past, the number of rabies cases in dogs far outnumbered those in cats. At the present time, however, the number of cases of cat rabies is greater than in dogs. These factors make rabies in cats a very important disease.

In all animals, two forms of rabies are known to occur. These are the furious form and the dumb form. Both types of rabies have three stages. The first stage is called the prodromal stage and may last one to two days. During this time, the cat will change its normal behavior. Many cats tend to hide away and become more and more irritable.

The irritability stage, lasting one to four days, follows. During this stage, the cat may viciously attack objects or people and hold on tightly with its bite. Wounds to persons bitten by rabid cats, whether from bites or scratches, need special attention at this time by emergency room staff. The irritability stage is more pronounced in the furious form of rabies. In the dumb form, this stage may be characterized by changes in the voice of the cat and difficulty swallowing food and water. The cat may salivate excessively and have difficulty swallowing, causing it to appear as froth at the mouth.

The last stage is called the paralytic stage and lasts for one to two days. The cat first has difficulty in walking and will become paralyzed beginning with its hind legs and eventually in all of its limbs. Death results from paralysis of the respiratory system.

Vaccinations for rabies can guard an animal from rabies. However, they do not provide total protection. If a vaccinated dog or cat is bitten by a wild animal, it needs to be re-vaccinated and watched closely for 90 days for signs of rabies. If the animal develops signs of rabies, there is no cure and it will need to be euthanized.

Whenever a person is bitten or scratched severely by a pet animal (or a wild animal), public health officials need to be contacted to investigate the circumstances behind the bite incident, the health of the animal, and the vaccination history of the animal.

If you have any questions, contact the Reese Veterinary Treatment Facility at 3535.

Responsibilities of pet ownership

Whether you are a new pet owner or have owned pets since arriving at Reese, there are responsibilities that you, as a resident of the base, should be aware of. Wing Regulation 125-6 states that only two pets under the category of dogs and cats are allowed in base housing. Exotic pets, such as ferrets, are not allowed to be kept in base housing. All pets residing on base are required to be registered at the veterinary treatment facility within 30 days of arrival.

Pets must be restrained at all times, either in quarters, on a leash, or under direct control and supervision of a responsible person. Pets are not allowed to run loose on base. If your pet is picked up by the security police while running loose, it will be taken to the Lubbock Animal Shelter.

The owner of the pet will be responsible for all boarding fees, and must provide proof of rabies vaccination or the animal will be vaccinated there at the owner's expense. If you suspect your pet may have been picked-up, you should call law enforcement.

Excessive barking, destruction of property, unprovoked biting of people or other pets or failure to control pets may result in the pet being barred from the base.

If you have any questions regarding pet control, please call the Reese Veterinary Treatment Facility at 3535, or the law enforcement desk at 3333.

Safety at the vet's office

by Army Capt. Mauna A. Warren
Chief, Reese Veterinary Treatment Facility

Here are some safety tips to remember when bringing your pets into the veterinary treatment facility:

□ Always make sure you can control your pet both inside and outside the facility. It is best if animals are either in a carrier or on a leash. Cats often feel more secure in a carrier than on a leash. If you have a dog on a leash, make sure you are capable of keeping it under control. You may need someone along to hold the leash if your dog is strong.

□ Avoid contact between animals while in the clinic. Puppies and kittens are more susceptible to disease and may become exposed to illness while sniffing noses with other animals.

While dogs may appear to be friendly at first, they may respond to another dog by fighting.

□ Never leave an animal unattended. It may choke or may break loose from its leash and be injured while running loose.

□ Local policy prohibits children under 10 years old from coming into the veterinary treatment facility.

□ While in the clinic, you should refrain from petting other people's pets. Even very friendly animals may respond to noises and smells of other animals by biting or scratching.

A visit to the veterinarian can be a stressful event for pets, especially if they are timid. We can help make it an easier experience for our pets, as well as other people's pets by following these basic guidelines.

Appointments can be made at Reese Veterinary Treatment Facility by calling 3535.

Vet facility hours

(as of Jan. 1)

In order to better serve the base, and in response to a recent needs survey, the Reese Veterinary Treatment Facility will have new hours beginning Jan. 1. They will be open every other week from noon to 6:30 p.m. Tuesday and 8 a.m. to noon Wednesday.

Notes

Auto shop plans open house

The Reese Auto Hobby Shop will hold an open house from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday. The shop is offering a free pre-holiday road safety inspection and half-price self-help stall fees.

For details, call the shop at 3142.

CES provides leaf pick-up

The 64th Civil Engineering Squadron will provide a leaf pick-up service Saturday in housing. Residents must rake leaves out of their yards and into the gutter by noon those days. Residents also must park their vehicles off the street on those days.

CES officials expressed their appreciation to housing residents who took advantage of the leaf pick-up last weekend, and said that the housing area looks "great" as a result.

After this weekend, CES will use vacuum sweepers throughout housing.

Postal exam offered

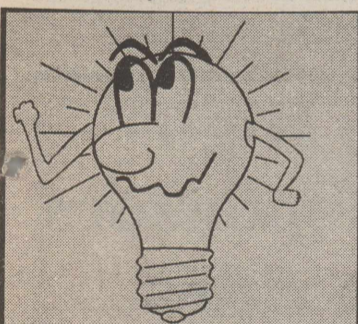

The postal examination for rural carrier associates will be offered to the general public Wednesday through Dec. 17. For more information, call Pamela Appell at the Reese Family Support Center, 3079 or 3305.

Safety briefing scheduled

A mandatory holiday safety briefing will be held for all military and Defense Department civilians at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday in the Simler Theater.

Parenting class given

A program for actively parenting teenagers will be offered from 6:45 to 9 p.m. Wednesday in Thompson Hall on Texas Tech University. Call Phil Thierry at 6394 for details.

Energy surge

(from the Reese Energy Steering Group)

Did you know that warm air rises and cold air falls? This is why the ceiling areas are warmer than floor spaces. Using a ceiling fan properly can help alleviate this problem. During winter months, set the fan so it blows up, mixing the cold air from the floor with the warm ceiling air. Reverse the fan in the summer.

MSSQ sets children's party

The 64th Mission Support Squadron will hold a children's Christmas party from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Dec. 18 at the youth center. Parents are encouraged to bring Christmas cookies or other snacks.

In addition, MSSQ asks that parents provide a gift for their child, not exceeding $10. Gifts should be dropped at the consolidated training office by Wednesday. Call 6320 for details.

Toys for Tots collected

The annual Toys for Tots program is under way on base, sponsored by the local Marine Corps Reserve. The program needs new, unwrapped toys, which can be dropped off in the Toys for Tots barrels in Bldgs. 452, 455, 500, 555, 820, 920/230 and the hospital.

Call 1st Sgt. James Gordan at 763-2853 or Gunnery Sgt. Andy Worley at 747-1277 for more information.

Volunteers sought

The Reese Family Support Center is looking for volunteers to do light typing, computer and filing a few hours each week.

Also, United Santas needs volunteers to help in a variety of areas, from clerical work to the toy shop. Call Cheryl Ortiz at 3305 for details.

'Bird boom' notice

Wing safety is pursuing further steps to control aircraft bird strike potential. People who live on base and hear the propane gas cannons and/or the firing of shotguns in the morning should not be alarmed. Wing safety is only attempting to scare the birds off the airfield.

Catholic Mass changes

The daily Catholic Mass has moved from noon to 11:30 a.m.

In addition, the chapel offers a luncheon study, "Your Work Matters to God," every Wednesday all base people. A complimentary lunch is provided. Call 3237 for details.

Christmas noontime recitals featured at Methodist Church

Music of the season will be featured at Lubbock's First United Methodist Church's annual series of Noontime Advent Recitals to be presented on three Tuesdays during the month of December. This is the ninth year for these concerts, designed to provide both music lovers and the downtown business community an opportunity to enjoy the beauty of the FUMC Sactuary decorated with poinsettias, have some lunch and still return to work within an hour. The recitals will start at 12:05 p.m. and conclude at 12:35 p.m. A light lunch will be served in Memorial Hall for $3.50 per person immediately following the recitals.

The first recital on December 7 featured organist Christopher Betts, the 1993-94 Guest Artist-in-Residence at First Church, playing the 4-manual Moller pipe organ. Betts played music of the season, including pieces by Enrico Bossi and Theodore Dubois.

Two other recitals follow during the month. On Tuesday, December 14, Gordon McMillan, minister of music at First Methodist, will present a program of favorites for the organ. The last Advent Recital will be Tuesday, December 21 and will feature Judy Poffenbarger as narrator for "The Snowman," a Christmas story, with organist Christopher Betts.

Everyone is invited to enjoy these free concerts. For more information, please contact the First Methodist Music Office, 763-0781.

Coronado High School choir sponsors haywagon rides

The Coronado High School Choirs will be presenting LakeRidge Lights, a special fund-raising activity of the Choir Booster Club. LakeRidge Lights features festive rides through the LakeRidge Country Club residence area on 20-seat wagons to view the Christmas decorations.

These rides will be available for three nights, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, December 10, 11 and 12, from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. The wagons will leave from the First National Bank parking lot at 82nd and Vicksburg. Tickets are $5 for adults, $3 for children under 12, and family tickets for two adults and two children for $12.

Tickets are available from the Coronado Choir Office at Coronado High School, from members of the Coronado Choir Boosters Club, or by calling 794-5784. A limited number of tickets will be available each night of the rides at the parking lot.

Everyone is invited to join in the fun of an old fashioned haywagon ride -- a great way to view the Christmas lights and get in the Christmas spirit with friends while supporting the Coronado Choir Boosters in their fund raising efforts.

BBB Report

A constant recurring question of the BBB staff whenever business schemes, rackets and other malpractices are discussed is: "Why don't they pass a law?" Obviously, in the mind of the questioner, laws are a panacea for all the ills of the market place.

The only response is that if it were that simple to prevent criminal acts, there would be no murder, no burglary, no fraud, no crimes of any kind. Here in Texas, we have a plethora of laws designed to protect the consumer, including a very comprehensive Consumer Protection Act. And, yes, some laws are difficult to enforce.

But, all the laws in the world will not protect a consumer who persists in buying or investing blindly. Furthermore, it is also evident that the mere passage of laws could penalize a legitimate business operation, bogging it down with government red tape until the owner could no longer continue in business. rfn

Did You Know?

(NAPS)—There are many things people don't know about the packages they use everyday. Here are some facts that may surprise you.

- Seventy percent of paperboard packaging, such as juice cartons and cereal boxes, is used to get foodstuffs from the farm to the market to the dinner table.

- Today, more than half the folding cartons found in supermarkets are made from 100 percent recycled paperboard.

- Discarded paperboard packaging can be recovered, and recycled, composted or converted to energy.

- Paperboard manufacturers today rely on on-site combustion of waste by-products for about 56 percent of their energy needs. As a result, oil use per ton of product has been reduced an impressive 66 percent.

- Paperboard is made from a renewable resource. In 1991 alone, over 1.6 billion trees were planted. America has more trees growing today than 70 years ago.

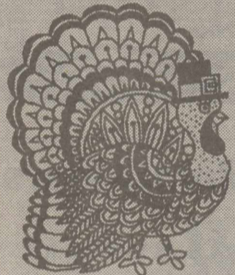

There are about 230 billion of them, or nearly 1,000 trees for every man, woman and child in the country.

- Thanks to paperboard packaging, people of all ages, working parents and people with busy schedules can prepare meals that meet their needs.
