Wing mobilizes for IG team

A1C Dennis Shadden, 64th Security Police Squadron, was one of the many wing members who took part in the weekend exercise at Reese West. For details on the event, see Pages 8 and 9.

IG outbrief today Wing ding, goal day set as Reese wraps up QAFA

Wing members find out today exactly how they fared during the Quality Air Force Assessment/Operational Readiness Inspection conducted by the ATC Inspector General's Office since March 29.

IG personnel will conduct an inspection outbriefing, discussing the results of the inspection, at 11 a.m. today in the Simler Theater (time subject to change). Seating will be very limited.

Wing officials remind contractors they may not attend either executive or theater outbriefs, in accordance with Air Force and ATC regulations.

Later that day, a "wing ding" will be held from 3:30 to 6 p.m. on the base picnic grounds. Free fried chicken, beans and beverages will be available to wing members.

That celebration will mark the beginning of a three-day weekend for the wing, as a goal day has been scheduled for Monday.

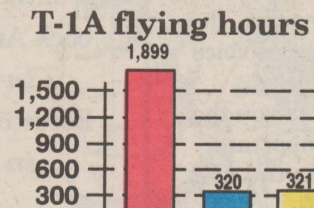

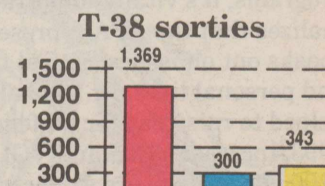

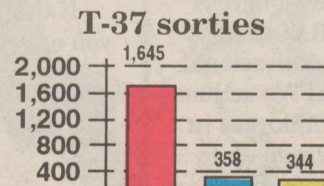

AFAF campaign successful here

The wing came through big during the recent Air Force Assistance Fund campaign, donating $22,470. That amount is 166 percent of the wing's goal for this year's drive.

In addition, every unit on base exceeded its goal, with two units going over the 200 percent mark and one squadron exceeding 300 percent.

From my perspective

by Gen. Henry Viccellio Jr.
ATC commander

It's no secret that I feel teamwork is a key ingredient in a unit's mission accomplishment. As a matter of fact, I consider effective teamwork as the force behind the many successes of your units and our command.

During the next several weeks, every member of ATC will have the opportunity to join a team which has a mission extending far beyond our bases, and even beyond ATC. That team — our team — with over 190,000 members, is the Air Force Association. Sometime soon, a member of your unit will ask you to consider joining AFA or renewing your membership. I encourage you to think long and hard about your answer.

The first questions you should ask when someone asks to join an organization is "Why? How will it benefit me?" In the case of AFA, the answers are easy. The most visible benefit you will receive is a year's subscription to Air Force Magazine, with its monthly issues, four superb special editions, and handy reference articles. Other benefits to the individual member — and his or her family — include low-cost insurance, recognition and scholarship programs, résumé services, a motor club and various purchase discount programs.

The most important benefit of joining AFA, however, is not as obvious as all these tangibles. By supporting AFA, we'll be adding strength to the organization as it represents our position as Association members before the American people and Congress. As attacks are made daily on our nation's defense posture, or — closer to home — our medical benefits, our commissary and BX privileges, our pay and our retirement programs, it's vitally important that Congress realizes that the AFA represents all of us as it speaks out on issues critical to our professional and personal lives. In 1992 alone, AFA's actions helped to raise pay for all federal employees in 1993, increase SGLI and VGLI coverage up to $200,000 and ensure an increased rate for Montgomery GI Bill participants. In short, the more members AFA has, the stronger its voice will be as it represents our nation and us.

When your unit project officer gives you the opportunity to become part of this important effort, I urge you to get on board. Join the AFA — we'll all benefit!

Voting officer offers information

by Maj. Gary Tucker wing voting officer

Why, you might ask, would an article on voting appear at this time of the year? We just had an election last November, so why be concerned about voting now?

Well, the short answer is there are elections all year around. In fact, two high-profile elections, for governors in both New Jersey and Virginia, are now heating up. Many municipal elections are also on tap. If you need to register for these, or if you have other voting questions, please feel free to call me at 3284. I'll be more than glad to help.

On related issues, folks have been calling me seeking information on how to contact their representatives in Washington. Both senators and representatives can be contacted via the White House switchboard at (202) 224-3121. Even if you don't know the names of the people you want to reach, they will know and will patch you through to the appropriate office — an example of quality customer service at its best.

Remember, all members of Congress are nothing more than our "hired hands." We hired them and we can fire them, but only if we register and exercise our right to vote.

AFA

Local association issues appeal to servicemembers

Editor's note: The following editorial was provided by the Air Force Association.

In the face of looming defense budget cuts and more force "reshaping," what can you do to protect your own interests and make sure the United States doesn't return to the days of hollow military forces?

The answer is simple. Add your voice to the more than 190,000 voices in the AFA. When it comes to fighting the good fight on Capitol Hill, educating the public on the need for a strong national defense and getting the media to pay attention, numbers matter.

When an AFA representative asks you to sign on the dotted line and join for the first time or renew during the upcoming base membership drive, can you really afford to say no?

Are you willing to give up your clout in Congress? AFA works for all members of the Air Force family — military and civil service, active and retired, officer and enlisted, Guard and Reserve, cadet and Civil Air Patrol.

Are you willing to go without one of the world's foremost publications on defense and aerospace subjects — AIR FORCE Magazine? Twelve times a year, you will miss coverage of all aspects of Air Force operations, equipment and people, including the authoritative Air Force Almanac issue.

If that's not enough, think about the last time you or someone you know was honored. Nine times out of ten, it is the Air Force Association that sponsors the award, from the 12 Outstanding Airmen of the Year, to the Team of the Year, the top crew awards and a host of locally sponsored chapter awards designed to recognize the achievements of Air Force people.

It's all too easy for the public to forget the importance of superior air power in securing and preserving peace. Joining AFA gives you a chance to make sure your local community understands the need for a well-trained, well-equipped U.S. military. Local Chapter 273 sponsors a number of programs, like Camp Blue Yonder.

As a member of AFA you are also eligible for reduced rate life insurance, a low-rate credit card, a health insurance supplement, Pentagon Federal Credit Union membership and many other benefits, including a résumé writing/critique service, motor plan, consumer savings plan and discounts on hotels, eyewear and rental cars.

AFA needs you and you need AFA. It's that simple.

Lockheed lab stands out

Precision and accuracy are vital parts of most jobs, and aircraft maintenance is no exception. So it goes without saying that the maintainers on base strive for accuracy in what they do.

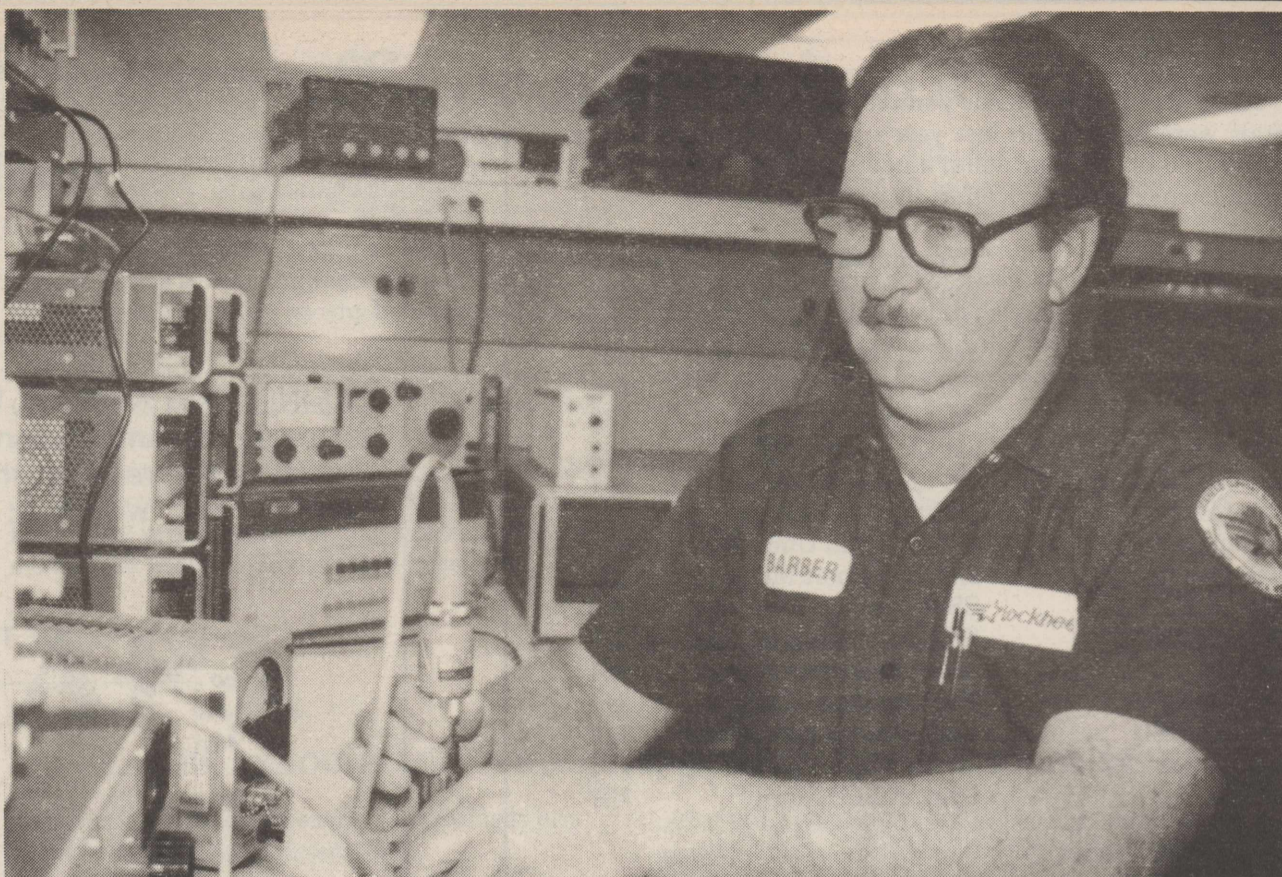

Nowhere is this more true than the precision measurement equipment laboratory. Better known as PMEL, the lab recently showed an Air Force certification team "precisely" how good they can be.

The team, part of the Air Force Guidance and Metrology Center from Newark AFB, Ohio, did what Lockheed officials described as an "in-depth" inspection of the lab. The purpose was to see if the lab could receive certification from the team.

Dave Butler, Lockheed contract manager, explained that the lab might have received a restricted certification, which would have meant that PMEL would not be allowed to do certain jobs. That, in turn, would have meant that work would have to be shipped out.

That was not to be, however, as the lab shined for the team and received an unrestricted certification. That is no small feat according to Butler.

"In my 27 years in maintenance, that is the best report I've ever seen," he said. "Everyone in the lab did an outstanding job."

Personnel center establishes hotline

The Air Force Military Personnel Center has a hotline callers can use to reach the center commander with complaints, concerns or compliments.

"The men and women of AFMPC are totally committed to their motto—'Responsive to the Mission, Sensitive to the People,'" said Maj. Gen. Michael D. McGinty, AFMPC commander.

"Every day we provide services to thousands of Air Force members around the world and we need feedback to ensure we are giving the customers what they need, want and expect. A quality Air Force deserves quality service," General McGinty said.

People who want to voice an opinion about services provided by the center can call the hotline at DSN 487-5475 or commercial (512) 652-5475. Every call is recorded and given to the center commander.

"I want to know if someone feels they were treated wrong. I want the chance to make sure it doesn't happen again," he said.

General McGinty also wants to know when the service was exceptional. "I want to know what the people like so I can build on that."

Even though the hotline applies primarily to services provided by AFMPC, General McGinty is interested in any call concerning service from the personnel community.

Callers should provide their name, rank, social security number, telephone number and address along with their comments or concerns. (Air Force News Service)

Legal officials explain claims

Editor's note: The following article was submitted by the Reese Legal Office.

Almost every Air Force member who has had household goods moved at government expense, usually in conjunction with a permanent-change-of-station move, has suffered some loss, damage or destruction. Knowing what the Air Force claims program can do for you may not necessarily increase the amount you are paid on a claim, but it will help you understand how awards on claims are made.

The first, and perhaps most important, thing you should know about the Air Force claims program is that it is not a substitute for private full replacement coverage insurance. Under the claims program, claimants are awarded the depreciated replacement cost of an item or its repair cost, whichever is less. For example, admittedly extreme, your 10-year-old television purchased for $500 is totally destroyed in a move. Under the claims regulation, Air Force Regulation 112-1, depreciation of 75 percent would be applied to a comparable replacement, say $500 also, making the depreciated replacement cost $125. Since there is no repair cost in this instance, the award would be $125.

You can see from this example that the award will not provide you with enough money to purchase a new replacement. While in a strict economic sense, you are not at a loss since the value of the 10-year-old television was obviously less than a new set, you still do not have a television unless you purchase a used model or contribute some of your own money. This is where private full replacement coverage insurance, and not an absolute reliance upon the Air Force claims program, would most nearly place you in the position occupied before the move.

At the other end of the spectrum, change only the fact that your television is a year old. In this instance, 10 percent depreciation would be applied to the replacement cost of $500 resulting in the depreciated replacement cost being $450. Since no repair cost is involved, your award would be $450. In this example, the expense of private full replacement coverage insurance would probably not be justified.

So how do you decide whether or not to have this insurance in force prior to a move? A good rule of thumb is that having such insurance is a good idea if many of your most expensive household goods are several years old which are subject to high or maximum rates of depreciation. Information on rates of depreciation can be obtained from the base legal office.

While there are no tricks or special information you can use to maximize the amount of a claim, there is one thing you can do which generally will guarantee either no award at all or a very small one in relation to what was claimed — the failure to submit the Department of Defense Form 1840 to the legal office within 70 days after your household goods were delivered. At delivery, the carrier's agent should supply you with three copies of the 1840. The front of the 1840 is used to annotate loss, damage or destruction of items while the carrier's agent is still present and the reverse side is used to annotate such loss, damage or destruction after the agent has left.

Because most shipments of household goods under contract with the carrier industry allow the Air Force to recoup the awards made on claims, an 1840 delivered to the claims office within 70 days of delivery will generally permit the Air Force to award you the maximum amount authorized by regulation. In those situations where the 1840 is not delivered within 70 days or not delivered at all to the claims office, the sum which the Air Force could have collected from the carrier is deducted from the claims, which, in most cases, means no award at all or one which is considerably less than the amount claimed. If you have any questions about the DD Form 1840 and how it should be completed, or if you did not receive it at delivery, call the claims office.

The claims office of the office of the staff judge advocate is located on the third floor of Bldg. 230. The telephone number is 3505. Office hours are 7:30 a.m. to 4:15 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Notes

Easter egg hunt set

An Easter egg hunt for children up to age 12 will be held from 10 to 11 a.m. Saturday at the youth center. Call 3820 for details.

EWC plans cooking class

The Reese Enlisted Wives Club will hold a class on Oriental cooking and napkin folding at 6 p.m. Monday in the enlisted open mess. All members and prospective members are welcome.

Call Gladys Tharrington at 6463 or Marilyn Braskett at 885-4581 for details.

Live band at EOM

The "Almost Nuts" band and show will appear Wednesday and Thursday from 8 p.m. to midnight in the enlisted open mess. Tickets are $1.50 in advance at the cashier's cage and $2 at the door.

MWR officials described the band as "uptown, downtown and 'round town, PG-13, parental discretion advised, adult entertainment" that will "shake you up, knock you down and pick you up again."

FSC plans seminars

The family support center has several workshops planned in the near future. These include:

□ A seminar on "Understanding Your School-Age Child" from noon to 3 p.m. Thursday. Call 6494 for reservations.

□ A free civilian career options workshop from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. April 20-23. Reservations are due April 16; call 3305.

□ A "smooth move" relocation workshop from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. April 21. Reservations are needed by April 19; call 6034. Family members are encouraged to attend.

ER changes May 1

Beginning May 1, the emergency room on base will convert from a 24-hour unit to an extended hours primary care clinic. The clinic's hours will be 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. weekdays and 8 to 11:30 a.m. weekends and holidays.

Appointments will be available by calling 3245.

Country dance lessons offered

Country and western dance lessons will be offered Wednesday evenings through May 26 in the Mathis Community Center. Cost will be $36 per couple for a four-week course. Classes will be from 7 to 8:15 p.m. and 8:30 to 9:45 p.m.

Call 3156 for details.

TA available for spouses

The spouse tuition assistance program will not continue after July 31. However, some money remains available for the summer term and more has been requested, according to base education officials.

Both past and new applicants who are interested in the funds need to apply by April 15. Stop by the education center or the family center for an application, or call 3634 for more information.

Bonds decline

According to the Treasury Department, the guaranteed minimum interest rate for series EE savings bonds has been lowered to 4 percent.

Bonds sold March 1 or later will no longer have the minimum interest rate of 6 percent due to the decline in market interest rates over the past year.

As part of the change, the new bond's redemption value will increase monthly instead of semi-annually. The redemption value on outstanding series EE bonds will continue to increase semi-annually.

For more information, Reese accounting officials advise bondholders to contact their banking institution.

Quality performer

This week's quality performer has been "getting high" on the job lately.

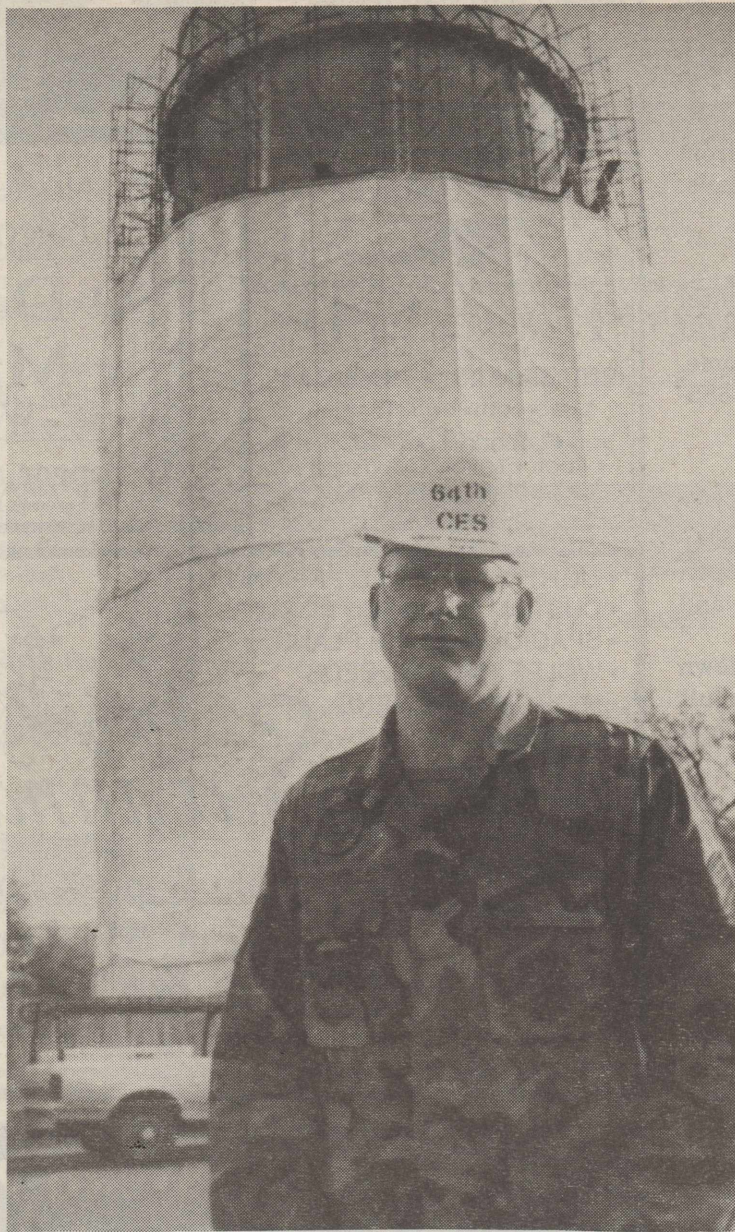

As NCO in charge of contract management in the 64th Civil Engineering Squadron, TSgt. Joe Thompson is involved in the base water tower project, overseeing and enforcing contract specifications. He does this on a number of contract projects on base.

This isn't Sergeant Thompson's first career in the Air Force, as he started out in finance and crosstrained in 1986. His job provides him with a wealth of knowledge that can be used both on and off duty.

"It's great to be able to learn so much about construction, especially since I plan to buy a house when I retire," the Baltimore native said.

A 14-year service veteran and master sergeant selectee, Sergeant Thompson has been here since 1990. He is a graduate of Park College, earning a bachelor's degree in management in January. His military honors since getting to Reese include twice being named squadron NCO of the quarter, winning the distinguished graduate award at the ATC NCO Academy, being the base athlete of the year in 1991 and 1992, and wing NCO of the year in 1992.

Sergeant Thompson and his wife, Roseanne, have three children — Chelsey, 8; Joey, 5; and Ashley, 4.

From YOUR perspective

(Editor's note: The following is Wing Commander Col. David Love's policy regarding the Careline.)

As wing commander, I need to hear things from your perspective. Your inputs and suggestions can help Reese remain the pacesetter in the command. If you see something good, call me. If you have a problem that you feel needs my attention, call me. First, however, consider using your chain of command.

You may remain anonymous if you wish; all problems that are called in anonymously will be investigated and corrected if need be, but they will not be printed in the Roundup. Individuals who leave their name and number can get a direct response, and calls that are of base-wide interest will be printed in the Roundup.

Calls can be made to the Careline 24 hours a day at 3273.

Garden plot?

I have enjoyed the garden plots on base for the past several years, and I'd like to know the current status on getting a new location for the plots. Growing season is about to begin, and I'm pretty anxious to start growing.

We share your enjoyment of the growing season. Much to our dismay, present and ongoing construction has eliminated all available garden plot selection sites.

Every area we have suggested either does not have water available, is in a construction site, or is in an environmentally controlled wetlands area. In all cases, water isn't available without a significant cost. Because of the constraints, we will have to forego having garden plots for at least this year.

The Wise Purchase

The purchase of a diamond may be one of the most important investments you will ever make. Subtle differences in quality can make large differences in beauty and price. It is important to select your jewelry from a professional who can guide you honestly and ethically in your purchase.

As a member of the American Gem Society, Anderson Bros. Jewelers is re-examined each year to meet the Society's high standards of knowledge, professionalism and integrity.

We will show you well-crafted merchandise, and explain the quality factors to look for.

Rest assured, you can have confidence in your purchase with professional jewelers and 69 years of expertise in the field helping you to make your decision.

April is diamond month at Anderson Bros. Jewelers. Let us help you select a quality diamond that is right for you and your budget.

WEIGHT WATCHERS PLANS LOCAL MEETING Community Meeting Planned

Weight Watchers plans to come to Reese Air Force Base with a Community meeting. In addition to the convenience of being located on base, and at a special reduced rate, the meetings are truly of your community. Members consist of friends, family and co-workers coming together against a common problem. Special support and bonding occurs to help members see consistent success and keep motivation high, so spread the word. You can have fun while losing weight.

If you are interested and for more information call 795-5571. Put Weight Watchers on your calendar. It's the place to be in '93.

Benefit questions answered

Carolyn Johnson, Reese health benefits advisor, answers some recent questions from wing members.

Mrs. Johnson

Dear Carolyn,

I have read the Reese Emergency Room will close May 1. My dependents have used the emergency room many times because they are unable to come during regular duty hours. Where will my dependents get medical care after duty hours? Do I have to pay?

Your dependents will be able to get medical care by appointment after duty hours starting May 1 in our extended hours primary care clinic. Hours of operation will be Monday through Friday from 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Saturday, Sunday and holidays from 8 to 11:30 a.m. (except Christmas and Thanksgiving).

For appointments call 885-3245. After operating hours, your dependents may seek civilian medical care which will be cost shared with Civilian Health and Medical Plan for the Uniformed Services.

Dear Carolyn,

With the emergency room closing May 1, what should I do if there is an emergency? I live on base.

Dial 911 for emergencies. The base hospital ambulance, along with the Lubbock Emergency Medical Service ambulance, will be immediately dispatched to the scene upon receipt of a 911 call.

Dog disease can be real 'heart breaker'

Editor's note: The following article was submitted by the base veterinarian's office.

Once a regional problem, heartworm disease is now a deadly threat to dogs nationwide. But it can be prevented by dog owners.

Heartworm disease is transmitted by mosquitoes, so dogs become infected fairly easily. According to the Reese Veterinary Clinic, the disease is particularly prevalent at this time of year.

The cycle of transmission begins when a mosquito feeds on an infected dog and picks up microfilariae—the first stage larvae of heartworms. Over the next two to three weeks, these larvae develop into the infective form in the mosquito. Then they move from the mosquito to another dog when the insect feeds again.

Once in the dog's system, the worms migrate to the heart and lungs, where they can grow to up to 14 inches long. However, outward signs of the disease—diminished appetite, weight loss, fatigue, and a chronic cough—may not appear for some time and after damage to vital organs has already occurred.

Prevention, therefore, is critical according to veterinary officials. Once a dog is infected, treatment can be complex and expensive, particularly as the disease becomes more advanced. To avoid that, owners should take their dogs to their veterinarian for annual testing and advice on preventing heartworm disease.

While dogs that spend a majority of their lives outdoors have a greater chance of mosquito bites and heartworm infection, even dogs taken outdoors for short walks or time in the yard have the potential for exposure to heartworm infection.

Dog owners in areas where heartworm disease traditionally has not been common should know that an increasingly mobile dog population has helped spread the disease beyond the South and Southeast. In fact, heartworm disease has now been reported in virtually state of the United States and in Canada.

Just one infected dog can be a reservoir of the disease. When that dog is taken to a part of the country where owners do not take steps to prevent heartworm disease, mosquitoes can rapidly spread the disease to unprotected dogs.

The bad news is that heartworm disease is spreading. The good news is that prevention is easy. For details, call the base veterinarian at 3535.

Training camps set

Applications are being accepted at the fitness center for the Air Force track and field training camp May 16 to 31 (site to be determined). Deadline to sign up is today; call 3207.

AFA plans golf tournament

Celebrate the end of the QAFA with a golf tournament Saturday at the base course, sponsored by the Lubbock chapter of the Air Force Association. Sign-up will be taken through noon today. Saturday, a noon lunch and registration period will be followed by a 1 p.m. shotgun start.

The blind draw, scramble tournament is open to AFA members and non-members. Lunch, refreshments and prizes will be included. Call the course at 3819 or Lt. Col. Stan Osborne at 6706 to participate.

Flightline run scheduled

The Reese Flightline Half-Marathon will be held at 9 a.m. Saturday. The starting point is the base picnic grounds; showtime is 8 a.m. Registration will be $6 now through Saturday. Trophies will be awarded to first, second and third places.

The run is being co-sponsored by the fitness center and the West Texas Running Club. Call Gary Grant at 3783 for details.

Fitness center needs aerobics instructors

Anyone interested in teaching day, evening or weekend aerobics should call Jake Trevino at 3207.

Pitching machines open

Pitching machines are available at the youth center for wing members who want to improve their swing. Call 3820 for rental fees and other details. Anyone under 18 using the machines must be accompanied by an adult.

Volleyball action continues

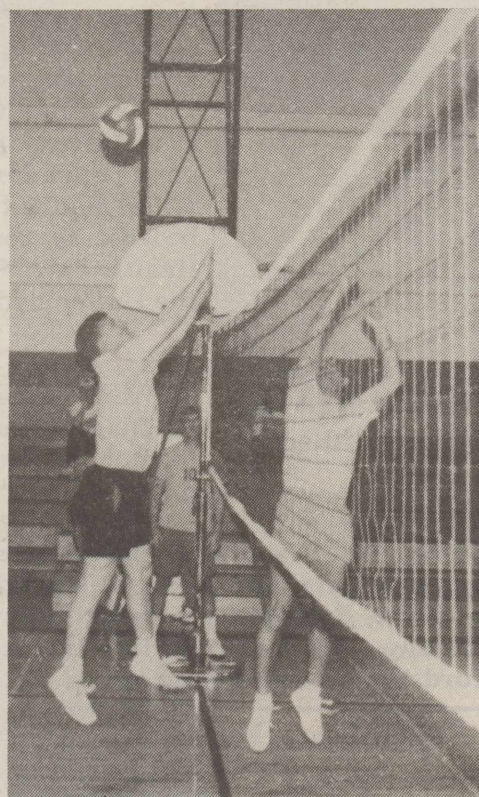

Four base intramural volleyball teams remain undefeated going into the third week of action.

Three of the teams belong to the National League. They are the 35th Flying Training Squadron "A," the 64th Civil Engineering Squadron "A" and the 64th Medical Squadron "A." The lone American league team that remains undefeated is the 35th FTS "B."

Each team is set to play 13 games as the league runs through April 20.

The top three teams in each league and the next two teams with the best records, regardless of league, will advance to the double-elimination post-season round.

For more information call A1C Dan Allers or Gary Grant at 3783.
