Reese wins energy award

Reese does it again! For the fourth time in five years, the base has been selected as the winner of the ATC Energy Management Incentive Award in the small base category. As a result, Reese will get $50,000 from the command for quality-of-life projects.

Past award money has funded Reese Manor, provided new equipment in the fitness center, and benefitted the family support center and child development center, to name a few.

"There was no one single area that won the award for us this year; it was the result of everyone working together to save energy," said John Kain, Reese energy conservation program manager.

He added that this year's award was won despite the energy management and control system being inoperative for an extended period. As such, Kain is looking forward to the base "doing even better" at conserving in future.

VSI/SSB programs resuming ...for officers

The Air Force is planning to reduce officer ranks by about 1,000 more than normal in fiscal 1994, personnel officials said.

The recently announced fiscal 1994 personnel draw-down game plan allows some officers to apply for the early release program, the Voluntary Separation Incentive and Special Separation Benefit programs, as well as the new early retirement authority (which is temporary), to encourage voluntary separations and retirements.

Medical and dental officers are not eligible for these programs, according to TSgt. Kerry Eason of the Reese Military Personnel Flight. About 45 Reese officers outside those fields are affected — see "Officers", Page 4

...for enlisted

The Air Force is planning to reduce enlisted ranks by about 4,500 more than normal in fiscal 1994, personnel officials said.

The recently announced fiscal 1994 personnel draw-down game plan allows some enlisted people to apply for the Voluntary Separation Incentive and Special Separation Benefit programs, as well as the new temporary early retirement authority, to encourage voluntary separations and retirements.

Medical and dental personnel are not eligible for these programs, according to TSgt. Kerry Eason of the Reese Military Personnel Flight. He said that 10 to 15 enlisted members elsewhere on base are affected.

From my perspective

by Gen. Henry Viccellio Jr.
ATC commander

Women have served with distinction in the military since the birth of our great nation. Their roles — some of which may surprise you — have been quite diversified, and are becoming even more so.

Roles in which women have served the military include:

□ Cooks, laundresses and seamstresses as well as scouts, saboteurs, and even foot soldiers disguised as men in the Revolutionary and Civil Wars.

□ Clerks, radio operators and drivers in World War II.

□ Translators, gunnery mates and Air Service pilots — many of whom served in our own command when it was called the Army Air Forces Training Center — in WWII.

□ A number of fully integrated roles during the Korean and Vietnam Wars.

□ Every conceivable combat support role, to include operational roles ranging from pilots to ground-to-air missile launchers in the Persian Gulf.

□ And, as always, in every war, the role of nurses.

Notwithstanding the irreplaceable role of women in the military, their service has never been officially memorialized — until now. The Women in the Military Service Memorial, a circular wall to be built at the gateway to Arlington National Cemetery, will not only mark the participation of American women in military service, now and in the future, but it will honor the memory of many unrecognized military women in America's history. And, more importantly, it keeps alive this memory, newly noted and long overdue, of those women who continued to serve our country in spite of the lack of recognition and the lack of precedent, some even in disguise so they could serve our country in some dangerous duties.

To appreciate the freedoms we enjoy today, I encourage all who serve in the military today to reflect upon the contributions of all people — regardless of gender — who served before you so that we may stay the finest nation on earth. I particularly encourage women, formerly or now on active duty, to register their military service in the memorial's computer registry. Your base public affairs office has additional information on the memorial, and on the importance of your personal registration.

By your participation, you not only hasten the completion of this long overdue tribute, but you help preserve the memory of those courageous women who forged our heritage, women whose contributions will finally — and rightfully — be recognized.

64th Contracting Squadron

With the manpower shortages and cutbacks, the Air Force is contracting more and more services to private contractors. The key to getting the government's money's worth in the services contracting arena is the quality assurance evaluator, or "QAE."

They are the government's eyes and ears in that particular functional area. The QAEs are also the key to ensuring that fraud, waste and abuse does not occur in the services contracting area.

By performing their jobs thoroughly, QAEs at Reese have saved the government many dollars during the past year. When a functional area required adding custodial service to an existing contract for another service, the current contractor's proposal was extremely costly. The QAEs, however, by doing their "homework" in thoroughly researching costs incurred in custodial duties (including labor), saved the government $10,500 yearly.

In another instance, the government saved more than $7,000 over the contractor's proposal on a modification that deleted services no longer required. Again, the QAEs were doing their "homework" in researching prices, requirements and so forth, in order to recognize that the contractor's proposal was excessive.

In a third scenario, a QAE discovered that the contractor was using a product that was 33 percent more costly than the product that should have been used and was more appropriate. Because the item was very costly, the yearly savings were substantial. The QAE's "eyes and ears" were functioning well again!

Let's all be "QAEs" in the workplace and watch and listen for potential fraud, waste and abuse!

Medical guidelines explained as ER readies for May 1 closure

The last day of operation of the hospital emergency room will be April 30. The following information has been provided by the 64th Medical Squadron to help all personnel maintain access to low cost, quality medical care.

Effective May 1, emergency room service will end and the primary care clinic hours will be extended to:

Monday through Friday 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Weekends and holidays 8 to 11:30 a.m.

Appointments should be made by calling 3245; call 911 for emergencies or report to the nearest civilian emergency room.

Guidelines to follow when obtaining immediate medical/dental care when the primary care clinic is closed are as follows:

Active duty

□ Personnel on flying status should call 3515 if at all possible before seeking other than emergency medical care. If unable to call, flight medicine should be notified the next duty day.

□ If immediate medical care is needed and the primary care clinic is closed, all active-duty personnel (including those on flying status) should go to University Medical Center. Personnel who seek care at a civilian hospital should always identify themselves as active duty by presenting their military I.D. card.

□ All active duty personnel who seek care from UMC must report to the base hospital's alternative care office the next duty day with a copy of the civilian treatment record.

All visits to UMC will be reviewed by the chief of hospital services for appropriateness.

□ After-hours dental care — An active duty member with a dental emergency must call 3515.

Non-active duty

□ If immediate medical care is needed and the primary care clinic is closed, non-active duty members should seek care at a civilian facility of their choice.

All outpatient medical care received from a civilian source, including ambulance service that accepts the CHAMPUS allowable charge as their full fee for care, will be cost-shared under the CHAMPUS program, meaning the patient will pay 100 percent of allowable charges until the deductible amount is met, then co-pay subsequent allowable charges.

All of the following hospitals in Lubbock accept CHAMPUS: Methodist Hospital, UMC, St. Mary of the Plains Hospital and Highland Medical Center.

□ However, the following civilian hospitals have agreed to see CHAMPUS patients when our primary care clinic is closed at a reduced charge of $20: St. Mary of the Plains Hospital, Highland Medical Center and Methodist Hospital.

□ This charge is in effect for many routine diagnoses such as flu, strep throat and the like, and will cover all facility, doctor fees, lab work, x-rays and limited medication. Diagnosis not falling in these preset categories will be subject to the normal CHAMPUS allowable for emergency room, doctor, lab work and x-rays. Questions pertaining to your CHAMPUS benefits should be directed to 6431.

□ After-hours dental care — Emergency and routine dental care should be arranged with your civilian dentist.

If further information is required, please call the alternative care section at 6431.

Quality Air Force

USA Today and the Rochester Institute of Technology honored the Wilford Hall Medical Center "Bedbugs" process action team April 2 in Arlington, Va.

Ten members of the 12-person Bedbugs process action team, along with two others from Wilford Hall's Quality Council, flew to USA Today headquarters to receive one of the 14 "Crystal Awards."

This award was given to a team of physicians, nurses and administrators who searched for a way to improve the hospital's bed utilization and make admission and discharge less frustrating for patients and staff. The hospital admits more than 80 people per day, but there were numerous delays in preparing the beds. The team cut the bed-preparation time from 14 hours to about six.

The Bedbugs team, established two years ago, was one of 19 selected for awards out of 378 applications. The Crystal Awards were presented to 14 finalists and Quality Cups were given to the five overall winners.

Teams from Lowry, Chanute, Laughlin and two from Mather were also submitted for the USA Today award. Along with Wilford Hall's Bedbugs, a team from Mather and Laughlin made it to the semi-finals.

Tom Curléy, USA Today president and publisher, set the tone for the awards luncheon, describing it as a monument to "we don't always do it the way we always did."

The Bedbugs team went through the classical evolution, of "forming, storming, norming and then performing," according to Lt. Col. Donna Stone, Wilford Hall's quality administrator. The team began with little or no interaction, realized they were guarding their traditional turf, and moved to a feeling of "we're not getting anywhere" and "we're making charts instead of solutions."

As the team moved into the "performing" phase, team spirit evolved and all members of the team were confident that their input would count. The results prove it.

A few examples: ward clerks are now being used more efficiently, transcription turnaround times have been reduced, and administrative services and nursing service computers are accessible to one another.

Colonel Stone saw the day's festivities as Quality Air Force in action, since having fun and celebrating success were key parts of the quality process, noting that "In the final analysis, people are what it is all about."

The Bedbugs team regarded the trip and award as an important milestone in their quality journey, but by no means the end of the process. Capt. Hermine Williams, a nurse on the cardiothoracic intensive care unit, says that the 400-plus hours she has put in on the team was worth it. The improved climate of communication is a big plus according to her. "Even the little guys can have input into the system," she said.

Lt. Col. (Dr.) Frank Criddle, the team chief, was elated with the team's well-deserved recognition, but he joined the others in stressing that the team's accomplishments were a work in progress, not an accomplishment to chalk up and forget. "All processes such as bed status are dynamic and open-ended," he said, so "anything worth doing well is worth not completing." (ATC News Service) by the early separation/retirement programs, however.

Briefings for officers on these programs will be at 10 a.m. Monday and Tuesday in the Simler Theater (enlisted briefings will be at 2 p.m. those same days).

The Air Force Military Personnel Center has established a toll-free hotline, 1-800-552-9502, for questions about the drawdown. Personnel experts will answer calls from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m., Central Time. People who need to call during other hours can leave messages, and someone will return their call.

Officials emphasized that the VSI/SSB and early retirement programs are not entitlements and, as such, will not be offered to all who meet the minimum criteria.

For instance, not everyone who has at least 15 years of service will have the opportunity to retire early.

Phase I of the program begins May 3, but all retirements and separations will occur in fiscal 1994.

Officers VSI/SSB eligibility criteria are:

□ Field grade officers must have a Total Active Federal Military Service Date of Dec. 4, 1985, or earlier.

□ Officers must have served at least five years of continuous active duty as of their date of separation.

□ Officers must have served less than 20 years as of their date of separation.

□ Line majors with a May 31, 1993, or earlier date of rank, and lieutenant colonels at all locations are eligible to apply, except those in the following weapon systems and Air Force specialty codes:

1. F-15E pilots and weapon systems operators.

2. B-1B offensive systems operators and defensive systems operators.

3. F-4G pilots, electronic warfare officers and WSOs.

4. 17XX air weapons director and 49XX communications-computer systems officer.

□ Deferred majors and lieutenant colonels in all specialties are eligible. Officers are considered deferred if they have been considered but not selected for promotion to the next higher grade in-the-promotion zone.

□ All deferred chaplain and judge advocate majors and lieutenant colonels are eligible.

□ Officers who are or have been promoted below-the-zone, unless subsequently deferred, are not eligible for VSI/SSB.

Officer early retirement eligibility criteria are:

□ All deferred line, chaplain and judge advocate majors and lieutenant colonels with more than 15 and less than 20 years of service at all locations are eligible.

□ Some non-deferred line majors with a May 31, 1993, or earlier date of rank and lieutenant colonels at closing continental U.S. bases and units are eligible. Those with a TAFMSD on or before Dec. 31, 1975, are eligible except in the following weapon systems and AFSCs:

1. F-15E pilots and WSOs.

2. B-1B OSOs and DSOs.

3. F-4G pilots, EWOs and WSOs, 17XX and 49XX.

By law, lieutenant colonels must serve a minimum of two years' time in grade to retire in that grade. Majors must have served a minimum of six months' time in grade to retire in that grade.

□ Officers who are or have been promoted below-the-zone, unless subsequently deferred, are not eligible for early retirement.

Personnel officials said members may apply for a separation or retirement date more than 12 months in the future for either of the two programs as an exception to normal policy. However, people should apply at least 120 days in advance of the requested date of separation to allow enough time to provide a backfill and for such actions as application processing, orders preparation and terminal leave.

All active-duty service commitments may be waived except for the following limitations:

□ A maximum of 36 months for fighter weapons instructor course, pilots only, may be waived.

□ A maximum of 36 months for aviator continuation pay — the pilot bonus program — may be waived.

Officers must repay any funds received for unserved commitments for Air Force Institute of Technology programs or aviator continuation pay.

Those who have already applied for or received an approved voluntary or mandatory separation date in fiscal 1993 or 1994 are not eligible to apply for VSI/SSB or early retirement.

More information is available from local military personnel flights. (Air Force News Service)

Let The Buyer Be Aware

Most people, at one time or another, will buy a diamond. Just about anyone can, and just about anyone can sell one. You don't need a license to call yourself a jeweler. Anyone can, and many have -including the mass merchants, catalog showrooms, jewelry "factories", and like establishments who are sometimes more exploitive than experienced.

Many of these jewelry dealers have neither the requisite training in gemology nor an understanding of the ethics that have long inspired the diamond industry. The results of this decline in standards include inaccurate diamond grading, misleading advertising and deceptive guarantees.

American Gem Society jewelers grade diamonds correctly because they have both knowledge and ethics. The most ethical person in the world can unknowingly mislead a customer without knowledge of the product. The most knowledgeable person can readily deceive a customer if not adhering to the highest code of ethics. As a member of the American Gem Society, Anderson Bros. is re-examined each year to meet the Society's high standards of knowledge, professionalism and integrity.

April is diamond month at Anderson Bros. Jewelers. Let us help you select a quality diamond that is right for you and your budget.

All women vets sought for new memorial

WASHINGTON — The Women in Military Service for America Memorial Foundation president has news for women hesitating to register because they just did their jobs — they're wrong.

"When you look at what they did in terms of a part of the whole, what they did was just as important as that person who may have saved a life or determined the results of a battle," said retired Brig. Gen. Wilma L. Vaught.

More than 60,000 women have registered so far, but some also seem to be shying away due to the "memorial" part of the name. It is not necessary to be dead or even retired to sign up.

"This is a living memorial," General Vaught said. "It's for those people who serve on active duty and in the Guard and Reserve, as well as those who served in the past and those who are deceased."

Spearheaded by the foundation, the memorial is planned for construction at the gateway entrance to Arlington National Cemetery, across the Potomac River from the Lincoln Memorial.

It will honor the nearly 2 million women who have served or are serving in the armed forces, starting with the American Revolution. The bill recommending a memorial to honor military women was signed into law by then-President Reagan in November 1986.

General Vaught, for one, is grateful to have a way to say thanks at long last to the servicewomen who preceded her.

"They did so well, in World War II in particular," she said. "They paved the way for all of us. I would never have been a general if it hadn't been for those wonderful women and what they did in World War II."

How could just one statue portray all that? General Vaught asked.

The answer wasn't a statue but a variety of mediums all housed in the proposed memorial. A visitors center will include a theater, a hall of valor and a computerized data base where the public can access the photos, military history and individual stories of women who served.

She said the stories coming in are "wonderful to read," with inputs ranging from the humorous and heroic to tales of discrimination and hardship. But the most common theme in the stories is the pride with which these women speak of their service.

"We have so many who speak of how much they gained from the military experience in confidence, education and having a skill that got them a job when they got out," General Vaught said.

The memorial design itself incorporates an existing half-ring-shaped building called the hemicycle, a registered historic landmark built in 1932.

"The main gate at Arlington had never been finished. We thought, we can do something for the American people, we can repair and restore it.

"It will be a tribute to everybody who's buried there and everybody who honors our military at Arlington Cemetery," she said.

The memorial will feature inclined glass panels inscribed with quotations from women who served their country throughout the nation's history. The panels will serve as skylights for the memorial's visitors center below, and will be positioned so the shadows from the inscribed quotes appear on the visitors center wall.

A thin sheet of water will flow over the panels, collect at their base and cascade to a central reflecting pool in the Court of Honor.

Though approved by Congress, there is currently a Nov. 5 deadline for raising the necessary construction funds, "so you don't have any half-built Washington monuments," General Vaught said.

Privately raised funds must cover the cost of the memorial, an estimated $14 million. About $1 million has been set aside so far. General Vaught is working to secure a one to three-year extension to the deadline.

The foundation requests a minimum $25 donation to register in the computer.

More information can be obtained by calling 1-800-472-5883 (1-800-4-SALUTE). (Air Force News Service)

Competition brings out best at contracting

It's been said that competition brings out the best in people. That is certainly the case in the 64th Contracting Squadron, winners of the 1992 Air Force Outstanding Unit Competition Award.

The squadron was cited for its ability to generate competition among prospective contractors. As a result of the competition they generate, Reese and the Air Force has been able to get the best possible bids on its contracts.

Although it is a small unit, CONS manages a $39 million contracting operation. Despite that large amount, the unit was able to generate competition for 99.6 percent of the contracting dollars it awarded in 1992.

"It's not easy generating competition like that, but it does ensure the wing gets the best product or service for the best price available," said Maj. Randy Clark, CONS commander. "It's the result of a lot of hard work by a lot of dedicated professionals."

Some of the better-known contract operations on base include aircraft maintenance, simulator training, fuels and the many ongoing construction projects.

Arbor Day Reese marks event

In recognition of Arbor Day April 30, Col. Bob Negley, 64th FTW vice commander; Col. Bob Brooks, 64th Support Group commander; and the Air Force Sergeants Association are dedicating 75 trees to be planted in several locations on base.

A tree planting ceremony will be held at 9 a.m. in the field adjacent to the wing commander's house.

The idea for Arbor Day originally came from Nebraska. A visit to Nebraska wouldn't disclose that the state was once a treeless plain. Yet it was the lack of trees there that would lead to the founding of Arbor Day in 1872 by J. Sterling Morton.

As a journalist, he expressed the need for trees to act as fuel, windbreaks against soil erosion and building material for his native state. More than one million trees were planted that first Arbor Day in 1872. Since then every state has established an Arbor Day.

Help celebrate Arbor Day April 30. Remember, the ideas of Arbor Day aren't limited to this one day alone. Take pride in your country and your environment by planting a tree.

Quality performer

For the past 11 months, Capt. Blaine Painter has taken a rather "casual" approach to his work.

Actually he's spent that time as commander of the 64th Operations Support Squadron Casual Flight, supervising UPT students who are not in training. This includes recent graduates, students who haven't started training yet and others who aren't in training for various reasons.

SSgt. Mike Breslin
Captain Painter

Captain Painter is preparing to wrap up four-plus years at Reese, as he is departing for Randolph AFB, Texas, for an assignment as a T-1A instructor pilot. He's been in the service for more than nine years and had tours at Columbus AFB, Miss., as a student and Little Rock AFB, Ark., flying C-130s.

"The most challenging part of being casual commander is filling the requests of base units who need casual help," he said. "I always have more requests than available casual officers."

The Oregon native got his commission through ROTC at the University of Puget Sound at Tacoma, Wash., in 1983. He graduated there with honors from both the school and ROTC program.

Captain Painter and his wife, Twyla, have a 2-year-old daughter, Stephanie. In his free time, he enjoys automobile racing and fly fishing.

Construction continues

Several construction projects that affect traffic flow on base have completed the first phase of construction and are now starting additional phases (see above).

The contractor has started Phase II of Haye Drive, according to civil engineering officials. During this phase, traffic may enter the industrial gate to access the golf course parking lot, MWR facilities and Perimeter Road.

Haye Drive is closed from Perimeter Road to the Seventh Street intersection.

CE expects construction to last approximately 45 days. All traffic to the main base still must use the main gate, so members should be prepared for delays and arrange arrival and departure times accordingly.

The contractor has started the second half of Davis Drive Phase II (formerly Hangarline Road). All traffic requiring access to the fuels facilities should use the detour route designated for the fuel trucks. Davis Drive will remain closed from First Street to South Gilbert. Construction will last approximately 45 days.

Construction will begin on North Gilbert (formerly 11th Street) near the officers' open mess around May 1. North Gilbert will be closed from "M" Street to the sidewalk entrance of Bldg. 1030. There will be no access to North Gilbert from "L" or "K" Streets.

Civil engineering officials said they appreciate the base's patience and continued support in making these mission and quality-of-life improvements possible. For further information, please contact 1st Lt. Greg Brown or TSgt. Joe Thompson at 3030.

Mentors needed

We've all heard of someone who never quite made it in school — and regretted it for the rest of his or her life. Students similarly "at risk" of not quite making it exist in almost every school. Most just need a little extra support from a friend or mentor.

Reese and the Frenship Independent School District are starting a "mentor" program to help these students succeed. Wing officials said mentors will be matched with students in the Frenship Middle School (fifth and sixth graders) to provide a one-on-one support system to improve math or reading skills and self-esteem. Mentors will be asked to spend one hour a week interacting with a child in an academic setting.

Goals for this academic year are simply to make contact with the students and open the door for next school year. Volunteers will receive an hour-long training session May 6 in the Reese Family Support Center. Training will be offered again for additional mentors just before the beginning of the 1993-94 school year.

This program is supported by Air Force officials and liberal time off/leave policies will be in effect. Civilians, with supervisor concurrence, may be allowed up to four hours per pay period.

If you are interested in helping shape a young member of our community, please call Cheryl Ortiz at the family support center, 3305.

Send to MSgt. Marsha Ptomey, 64th FTW/JA by June 1.

Check fire extinguishers

Fire prevention officials said that building managers on base should check their fire extinguishers and bring any halon extinguishers to them. Building managers can also call 3686 to get their extinguishers picked up. The halon models are being replaced with dry chemical extinguishers, which are on order.

Housing tackles A/C issue

Housing maintenance officials are expecting an increase in air conditioner calls because of the warmer weather.

Although air conditioning problems can not be classified as emergencies, calls will be responded to on a more urgent basis as the nighttime lows reach 65 to 70 degrees.

Housing officials ask that residents open windows and use fans whenever possible in the meantime.

Scouts, leaders sought

Boys between the ages of 11 and 18 who would like to camp monthly and take part in other activities should call Reese Scoutmaster Matt Alvarez at 885-2426.

Adults who would like to work with the base troop should also call Alvarez.

Bonds decline

The guaranteed minimum interest rate for series EE savings bonds has been lowered to 4 percent. Bonds sold March 1 or later will no longer have the minimum interest rate of 6 percent due to the decline in market interest rates over the past year. For more information, Reese accounting officials advise bondholders to contact their banking institution.

AFA tournament successful

Forty-three hardy West Texas golfers had a real "blow-out" of a tournament at the annual AFA event April 10.

First place went to the team of 2nd Lt. Shawn Black, Lt. Col. Bo McRee, Lt. Col. Rich Willis and Joe Castillo with a 12-under-par score of 60.

In second place were Dave Butler, Bredon Moran, Maj. Joe Vivori and Aden Vasquez at 63, 9 strokes under par. The third place team of Ron Stryker, Capt. Ed Meyer and retired Lt. Col. Claude Branscome had a 7-under 65.

Longest drive winners were Dale Kirtley and Mitzie Million, and closest to the pin was Maj. Jim Mont. AFA officials said thanks go to all participants, and especially the sponsors who donated gifts, for making the day a great success.

Volleyball playoffs loom closer

Top eight teams vie for title

The intramural volleyball league kicks off its season finale Tuesday, as eight teams will battle for the base title.

The top three teams in the American and National Leagues have made the playoffs, along with the two remaining teams with the best records, regardless of league. Although the seedings have yet to be finalized, the following teams will make up the playoff field:

National League—64th Medical Squadron "A," 35th Flying Training Squadron "A," 54th FTS, 64th Civil Engineering Squadron "A" and 64th Operations Support Squadron.

American League—64th Mission Support Squadron, 64th Logistics Squadron and 35th FTS "B."

While MSSQ has a lock on the regular season AL title at 10-3, only one half game separated MEDS "A" and 35th FTS "A" teams in the NL going into Thursday night's games (see standings, this page.)

As of press time, the only big game left on the regular season schedule was Thursday's match between MEDS "A" and the 54th FTS. Although both teams are assured a playoff berth, the match could affect playoff seedings and the medical team had its undefeated record on the line.

Standings

(as of Thursday morning)

National League		American League
MEDS "A"	12-0	MSSQ	10-3
35th FTS "A"	12-1	LS	7-6
54th FTS	8-1	35th FTS "B"	5-6
CES "A"	9-4	CS	5-8
OSS	8-4	CES "B"	3-9
Lockheed	2-10	SPS	3-10
52nd FTS	0-13	MedSq "B"	3-10

"I served in the U.S. Navy for 27 years...

...but for six of those years I couldn't vote."

In May of 1967, Red McDaniel catapulted off the deck of USS Enterprise in his A-6 Intruder headed for Hanoi during the Vietnam War. He was not to return for six years. He was shot down and captured.

As a prisoner of war, he experienced for the first time what it was like to be stripped of one's freedom -- especially the right to vote.

Before his captivity at age 35, Red had never voted. But during his years as a POW, he gained a special appreciation for the importance of voting, especially for those in the military who are most directly and immediately affected by decisions made by elected leaders.

As a military member, you serve to defend America. Help America serve you.

Please remember to vote in the Texas Special election for U.S. Senate on Saturday May 1st and the subsequent run-off election.

"VOTING is not just a right -- it's a responsibility!"
-Red McDaniel
