Eight make master

Eight wing NCOs earned their sixth stripe Thursday when promotions were announced:

- Jose Alfaro, 64th Medical Squadron.
- Donna Bertino, 64th Mission Support Squadron.
- Howard Cobb, 64th Logistics Squadron.
- Alfred Free, LS.
- Michael Gutierrez, 64th Security Police Squadron.
- Victor Perkins, 64th Civil Engineering Squadron.
- Michael Williams, SPS.
- Joseph Wright, LS.

The eight selectees came from a pool of 61 people, for a 13.1 percent local selection rate. Throughout ATC, 599 out of 2,944 were chosen (20.3). Overall in the Air Force, 6,319 out of 31,125 were picked (20.3).

Mandatory briefings

Mandatory briefings on the "101 Critical Days of Summer" will be at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday in the Simler Theater. Everyone on base must attend one of the briefings.

New logistics commander signing on

Command of the 64th Logistics Squadron will change hands Monday when Maj. Melinda Edwards replaces Lt. Col. Rodney Hemmitt.

The change-of-command ceremony is slated for 9 a.m. in the Reese Enlisted Open Mess. Colonel Hemmitt is making a permanent-change-of-station move to MacDill AFB, Fla..

Major Edwards has been at Reese since October 1991, serving as chief of the Base Exercise Evaluation Team. The major will bring extensive logistics experience to this assignment, which is her first command, having worked several assignments in that field at the base and headquarters levels. In addition, one of her earliest assignments was as a maintenance squadron section commander.

Major Edwards' 12-plus years of active duty are by no means her only military experience. She grew up as an Air Force dependent, spending her first 17 years living at state-side and overseas bases.

After graduating high school in New Jersey, she went to work in college administration while pursuing her bachelors degree at night. She graduated from William Patterson College in New Jersey in May 1980 and earned her commission through Officer Training School several months later.

Her pending assignment in LS is one she looks forward to.

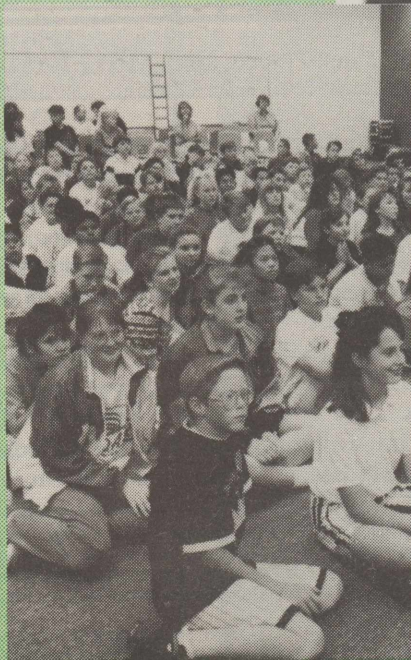

"I'm very excited and happy to have a chance to work with the people in logistics," she said. "I've heard a lot of good things about the squadron."

Major Edwards and her husband, Lt. Col. Mark Edwards of the 64th Operations Group, have three children — Loren, 10; Jenna, 7; and Brent, 3.

Students take 'dare' from SPs

SSgt. Bob Colosimo, 64th Security Police Squadron, presents a D.A.R.E. graduation certificate to a student at Frenship Intermediate School as SPS Commander Capt. Gerard Jolivette looks on. Wing officials joined about 150 Frenship students (below) for the graduation, which marked the end of the 17-week drug abuse resistance education course taught by Sergeant Colosimo. About 400 students took the D.A.R.E. course at Frenship throughout the year, and the program was appreciated by the students according to the accompanying letters.

Mike Parrish

Dear Sergeant Colosimo,
Thanks so much for teaching us as much as you did. We really appreciate and admire you. You have meant a lot to us. Keep up the wonderful work.

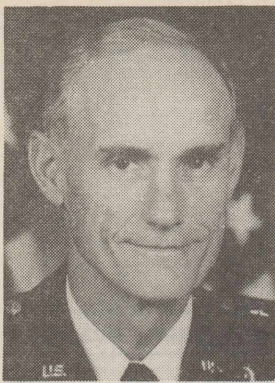

We never thought someone could teach us so much in the short amount of time you did. You're really a special person to all of us! Thanks again.

Your friends,
Kelie, Kayci and Mary
P.S. Thanks a lot for being there for us; we really appreciate it. Don't forget how much you mean to us.

Sergeant Colosimo,
I just wanted to tell you how much I have enjoyed D.A.R.E. the last 17 weeks. I think this program has been very educational and fun at the same time. Your lesson plans always catch my attention. I believe that this program helps students make the right decisions and understand the consequences that go with their actions.

Thank you so much for taking time out of your busy schedule to come teach us about D.A.R.E. I've appreciated it a lot.

Always drug & alcohol free,
Jennifer Stivers
P.S. I hope you are still teaching here in two years; I think my sister would enjoy this course too.

General McPeak

Chief of staff announces 'Year of Equipping'

WASHINGTON — While still fine-tuning Year of Organizing changes and knee-deep in implementing Year of Training revisions, the Air Force is now laying the groundwork for the future in the Year of Equipping.

Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Merrill A. McPeak discussed the concepts involved in the Year of Equipping in a recent interview with Air Force News Service. The following is part one of a three-part series taken from that interview.

Q: Could you explain how the Year of Equipping will fit into the direction the Air Force is headed?

A: Essentially, the Year of Equipping is about long-range planning. We started with organization (and)... the major changes we needed to focus on — the objective wing, the one-base, one-wing, one-boss approach, and getting the right functions properly organized in the context of the combat air force, the mobility air force, the space air force, the special operations air force — are well understood and we're well down the road to getting that done.

That was a foundation, a baseline, for where we want to go with the Air Force.

The next move was to work the entire training program, because it is key to all of our concepts about a quality Air Force.

For the next couple of years there will be a lot of changes that track to quality efforts surrounding training.

The Year of Equipping will look at our modernization programs in every category, in terms of a very long-range planning horizon.

We've always been thinking about force modernization. But now I've asked that we really drive our horizons out 20 to 25 years, maybe to the year 2015, and ask the question, "What kind of program do we need over that entire period?"

And, this is not just in the combatant parts of the Air Force — the combat air force, mobility air force, space air force and special operations — but also in the supporting arms of the Air Force, such as security police, medical, civil engineers, communications and computer support.

Every part of the Air Force that supports the combatant arms needs to understand what their long-term modernization requirements are.

I see this coming together in one book that is the master modernization plan for the Air Force.

It will have chapters for each of these particular inputs, and it will be a volume that can be updated periodically. It will need to be, because lots of things change over a 25-year period. Probably the most important change will be the resources the country puts against those modernization needs.

We will have to change this Air Force modernization plan annually, but it will be the principal product coming out of the Year of Equipping.

Fraud in the Air Force

Maj Pasierb HQ AFOSI/PA DSN 297-4728

The Air Force Office of Special Investigations (AFOSI) investigates all types of fraud cases against the government. Fraud costs the Air Force millions of dollars annually. Most AFOSI fraud investigations are in the procurement arena: product substitution/diversion/mischarging, conflicts of interest, and bribery. Other types of fraud involve military and civilian members who have been caught cheating the Air Force. Here are some examples:

Falsifying Test Results

SUBJECT: USAF Contractor

SYNOPSIS: The Air Force contracted with a firm to manufacture F-15 horizontal stabilizer parts. Each contract required 100% x-ray ultrasonic inspection of these parts, and the primary contractor was to use a subcontractor to perform these inspections. An investigation was initiated after confidential sources alleged that the prime contractor's plant manager was falsifying these tests. A federal search warrant was executed, and documents related to the F-15 contracts were seized. Under questioning the plant manager admitted that he had indeed falsified certification of the parts in question. In addition several employees admitted signing off parts without conducting the required testing at the plant manager's direction.

RESULTS: The company pleaded guilty in federal court to defrauding the Department of Defense. The company, the owner, and the plant manager were all debarred from doing business with the Federal Government until 1995. Sentencing is scheduled for a later date.

Purchase of Parts from Unauthorized Vendors

SUBJECT: USAF Contractor

SYNOPSIS: AFOSI investigated allegations that a supplier of aircraft parts falsely certified their purchase from unauthorized vendors. Two contracts involved T-38 aircraft flight modification kits and F-5 aircraft leading edge flap kits. After an initial article inspection, the contractor supplied defective parts procured from an unauthorized vendor. After being found to be substandard, the kits were removed from the Air Force inventory by safety officials.

RESULTS: The company president pleaded guilty in federal court of making false statements on Air Force contracts. He was sentenced to one year in prison to be followed by three years supervised probation and ordered to share, along with his company, payment in restitution of $1,932,692.

Travel Voucher Fraud

SUBJECT: USAF Civilian GM-15

SYNOPSIS: AFOSI investigated the employee after it received allegations that he had used extensive official travel and spent most of the time engaged in unofficial recreation. The employee filed travel vouchers of 3 or 4 days each for conducting site visits to various engine companies. He visited the locations for one day but spent the bulk of his TDY skiing without taking leave. He subsequently admitted travel voucher fraud as well as using a U.S. Government telephone card for personal calls.

RESULTS: The employee was given a 5-day suspension which resulted in an administrative recovery of $1600.

Providing Defective Parts and Falsifying Test Procedures

SUBJECT: Government Contractor

SYNOPSIS: The company in question manufactures switches, indicators, and entry systems for commercial, military, and general aviation aircraft. AFOSI investigated claims that the supplier was falsifying acceptance test data and that products failing the tests were being shipped to the government. Upon testing by the Defense Electronics Supply Center (DESC), it was found that 83% of a certain series of switches failed endurance and shock tests. There have been no known safety of flight issues, and all switches were subsequently submitted to DESC for disassembly and inspection.

RESULTS: The subject who falsified the test data was sentenced to 3 years in prison, ordered to pay restitution of $213,825, and was assessed a special fine of $50. The company was ordered to pay restitution of $213,825, assessed a special fine of $200, and placed on probation for 5 years.

It's obvious these offenders chose to commit criminal acts against the Air Force due to a powerful motivator—greed—which is becoming more prevalent in these budget-tightening days. The impact is felt throughout the Air Force, and we should all accept the responsibility to prevent fraud, waste, and abuse at every opportunity. Mutual command/AFOSI support and teamwork are essential for successful prevention, detection, and neutralization of fraud. →

Legal office offers tips for renters

Editor's note: The following article was submitted by the Reese Legal Office.

The standard "military clause" in apartment lease contracts for this area does not allow servicemembers to terminate rental agreements prematurely if the only reason for doing so is to move into base housing.

Many apartment complexes in Lubbock use the six-page lease form provided by the Texas Apartment Association. Paragraph 27 of the contract allows for a military exception to the standard no-release from the agreement clause.

Absent any special provisions listed in paragraph 27, a resident who is an active-duty servicemember may terminate the lease by giving written notice to the owner only in the following situations:

□ Receipt of permanent change-of-station orders to depart the local area.

□ Release from extended active.

□ Deployment to a foreign country as a member of the Armed Forces and discontinuance of quarters allowance.

If claiming one of the three conditions, a resident must furnish the owner with either a copy of the PCS orders or a deployment letter or order which warrants termination of the agreement. The form specifically states that "Military permission for base housing does not constitute a permanent change-of-station order."

A resident who intends to move to base housing when it becomes available should either sign a short-term lease or request that the apartment complex manager include a special provision allowing for termination of the lease should such a situation arise. Under this provision, deployment without discontinuance of the housing allowance does not authorize termination of the lease contract.

Further, there is no statutory provision mandating any type of escape clause in a lease. Your lease may not contain any type of military clause. Before signing any lease, renters should read all printed and handwritten provisions thoroughly and with care. Reliance on oral promises from or agreements with apartment managers will not prevail over anything that has been written and signed on the contract. The extra time it takes to review the lease form before signing will pay off later in deposits not forfeited.

If you have any questions about your lease or any other legal matters, please contact the base legal office at 3505.

Changes made to UA program

by MSgt. Joseph Reed
Reese Social Actions Office

In recent weeks there have been numerous changes in the procedures for urinalysis testing on Reese. One of those changes is in the time allowed to report for testing.

The Air Force Executive Drug Abuse Screening Coordinating Committee determined that members must report for urinalysis testing within two hours after being notified.

This was done as a result of a Department of Defense inspection which made the following statement, "Most drugs are excreted from a user's system [in] a relatively brief time. Thus in order to detect the occasional user, a drug test would have to be conducted shortly after ingestion."

Drug testing is wholly ineffective when drug users can successfully predict when they will or will not be tested. Such indicators defeat the purpose of random testing since experienced drug users know how to flush their bodies of rapidly metabolizing drugs such as cocaine in less than four hours."

Reese currently tests 58 individuals each month on a random basis and the two-hour notification/response time has been in effect since July 1.

It is important for those persons subject to random testing to understand that drug testing is an Air Force program and is mandatory. Those members who are tested are chosen by the last two numbers of their social security number.

This is a totally random process and all members assigned to Reese are subject to testing. Once members are selected the squadrons are notified and subsequently the members are notified they have been selected to provide a urinalysis sample. Once that notification has been made, the member has only two hours to report to the testing site.

If a member does not report within two hours, the commander as well as the legal office are notified, and the commander may take disciplinary action against the member.

Although this may appear to be a hassle, remember the observers, lab and social actions personnel are just doing their jobs and don't need someone complaining that "I was selected last month," or "I've got work to do." Besides, if your specimen is clean you have nothing to worry about. RIGHT?

DRUG TESTING

Social actions NCO explains procedure

by MSgt. Joseph Reed
Reese Social Actions Office

Have you ever wondered what happens to the urine sample you provide while participating in either a squadron sweep or a base random test? Are you concerned that your sample might not be secure from tampering? Are you concerned about the accuracy of Air Force testing methods? Well, let's walk through some basic procedures involved in Reese's urinalysis program.

When a military member is directed to provide a urine sample for the purpose of urinalysis screening, that person will report to the designated testing site, or to the laboratory at the hospital at the testing time.

Persons selected for testing must present their military identification cards to the technician at the designated testing site. This is to ensure the identification is maintained by the testing monitor until the testing is complete. That person must be observed as they provide the sample in a plastic bottle. This is to ensure that the sample is indeed a true sample from that person.

When at least 60 milliliters has been collected, the person secures the bottle with a cap and takes it back to the testing monitor. The testing monitor seals the bottle with tamper-resistant tape and asks the person providing the sample to initial the bottle label and sign a urinalysis logbook. At this point the person's identification card is returned.

The person can then leave the testing site.

The testing monitor then ships the bottle in a sealed box via courier and signs various documents for "chain of custody" purposes. The specimens are then shipped to the Air Force Drug Testing Laboratory at Brooks AFB, Texas, for testing. Once there, various documents are again reviewed before the AFDTL begins rigorous testing.

All bottles are first inspected for any tampering. If the tamper-resistant tape has been broken on any of the bottles, they are not tested and data on each bottle is sent back to Reese for follow-up action by the testing monitor. Those samples having "positive results" are retested through a series of confirmation tests to ensure the sample is actually a positive sample.

If the confirmation tests prove negative, regardless of results obtained during initial testing, the sample is discarded and reported as negative. Positive results are sent back to Reese via secure message to the testing monitor. The testing monitor then notifies OSI, social actions, staff judge advocate and the unit commander of the individual providing that sample.

Negative urinalysis results are reported back to Reese, but not to the squadron. So, basically, "no news is good news" where urinalysis is concerned.

That's it in a nutshell. If you have any questions concerning urinalysis testing, feel free to contact the social actions office at 3900.

Wing pilots match skills in flying competition

Local activities serve as precursor for June Top Flight

Flyers from throughout the wing had a chance to show off their skills last week as they competed in a local flying competition, similar to ATC's Top Flight.

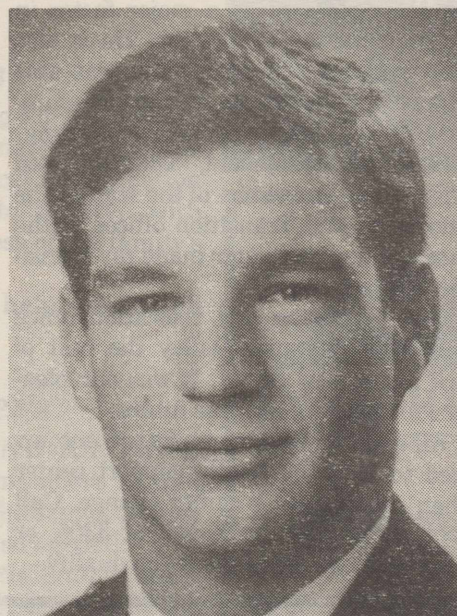

The five-day competition saw Reese pilots compete for both flight and individual honors, just as they would in Top Flight. The top flights were 35th Flying Training Squadron "Crusaders" in T-37s commanded by Capt. Todd Post, and the 54th FTS "Bandits" commanded by Capt. Mike Kennedy.

The top T-37 pilot was 1st Lt. Todd Mottl of the 35th FTS "F" Flight, who won a tight competition by just a single percentage point. First Lt. Ron Nelson of "E" Flight and 1st Lt. Jim Wurzer of "F" Flight tied for second.

The top T-38 pilot was Capt. Dennis Wolf of the 54th FTS "V" Flight. Captain Wolf won another tight contest, beating out Capt. Ed Brockhaus of "H" Flight and Captain Kennedy by one point out of a possible 275. Competition officials added that 1st Lt. Brian Radliff received an honorable mention in this competition for what judges called "his outstanding instruction."

Results from the T-1A portion of the competition will not be announced until the next ATC Top Flight, scheduled for June 4 at Columbus AFB, Miss. Officials said that is because results from the local Jayhawk competition will be used for the next Top Flight.

Judges for the past week's activities came from throughout the 64th Operations Group.

Dental change clarified

The dental clinic changed its policy for active-duty examinations May 1. Clinic officials said they now provide examinations and cleanings every six months instead of annually.

This change is in response to a number of factors. First and foremost, this is the standard as ascribed by the American Dental Association — remember "Visit your dentist twice a year!" For example, this is why family members are authorized two exams and cleanings under the Delta Dental Plan.

Second, this policy implies a very strong focus on early diagnosis and prevention and is in line with the Air Force surgeon general's goals for total fitness of the active-duty force.

Third, with dental care for family members being provided by the DDP, we have been able to expand the scope of dental services for our active-duty personnel. Also, many Reese personnel have voiced a strong desire to dental officials to have their teeth cleaning more than once a year, and the clinic now has the resources to offer these expanded services.

This is not the standard in the Air Force, as many other base dental clinics cannot accommodate this increased workload.

In an era of eroding benefits, officials encourage people to take advantage of this expanded benefit and smile when you get your appointment notification.

Transition, relocation programs aid member

by Pam Appell
Reese Family Support Center

Retired TSgt. Lenworth Dalley is thankful for the assistance provided by the Reese Family Support Center during his change of careers.

Sergeant Dalley attended the transition assistance program workshop early last year, retired late last year and has continued to visit the FSC.

Before his retirement and while he was still employed on the base, Sergeant Dalley visited the center three or four times a week while he was writing and preparing his résumé and typing cover letters.

His persistence really paid off. He will be relocating soon to the Washington D.C. area with a new job.

Along with the assistance of the transition and relocation personnel, and their knowledge and expertise, Sergeant Dalley credits the availability of the center's computer services as a major factor in the securing of his new job. He is also glad that the relocation office was able to provide information on the communities where he was thinking of relocating.

Sergeant Dalley said, "The continued support and dedication of the staff in the Relocation and Transition offices of the Family Support Center made my transition a smooth one."

The transition and relocation office staff wish Sergeant Dalley the best of luck in his new career. It was our pleasure to help him with his future.

All eligible wing members are encouraged to visit the family support center when considering a career change. Call George Ferguson or myself at 3305, or come by Bldg. 310 to see if you qualify.

Notes

Energy ideas needed

Any sections that have suggestions on how to use the $50,000 Reese won for conserving energy this past year should submit them to the 64th Support Group Command section as soon as possible.

The award money is to be used for quality-of-life projects.

Scout pack meets

Reese Cub Scout Pack 548 will hold a promotion pack meeting at 7 p.m. Monday in the Reese Elementary School gym. Scout officials said that everyone is welcome to see the scouts achievements, and that boys in first through fifth grade can join the cub pack at the meeting.

Boys between the ages of 11 and 18 who would like to camp monthly and take part in other activities should call Reese Scoutmaster Matt Alvarez at 885-2426. Also, adults who would like to work with the base troop should also call Alvarez.

EWC meets Monday

The Reese Enlisted Wives Club will meet at 7 p.m. Monday in the enlisted open mess. Dorieta Rogers, a licensed professional counselor, will speak on stress management.

All enlisted spouses are welcome and encouraged to attend.

FSC plans two events

The Reese Family Support Center will hold the first part of a four-part series on weight, nutrition and fitness from noon to 1 p.m. Wednesday. The program will be done by University Medical Center personnel.

Also, a workshop on the application for federal employment (Standard Form 171) will be held from 2 to 4 p.m. Thursday. For reservations for either event call 3310.

AWC, ACSC programs set

Both Air War College and Air Command and Staff College have announced seminar programs for 1993-94.

ACSC is open to majors, major selectees and GS-12 and above civilians. AWC is open to colonels, lieutenant colonels and lieutenant colonel selectees of any service, GS/GM-13 and above civilians, and Air Force majors with a date of rank of May 1, 1986 or earlier.

Enrollment deadline for ACSC is June 11. Educations said that people interested in AWC need to sign up now or risk having to wait until July 1994.

Call Mary Mayekawa at 3469 for more information.

Chapel seeks toys

The Reese Chapel is looking for stuffed animals in good condition to donate to St. Jude Children's Hospital, a medical organization dedicated to providing care to children with catastrophic diseases, regardless of the family's financial status.

Anyone who would like to help should call 3237.

CAP seeks members

The Reese Composite Civil Air Patrol Squadron is looking for new members 13 and older who are looking for a challenge. Senior members (18 and older) are also needed.

For details, call SMSgt. Curtis Trull at 3529.

Commissary closed

The Reese Commissary will be closed June 1 in observance of Memorial Day. It will be open for business as usual the following day.

Summer fun planned

The summer fun program in the Reese Child Development Center and Preschool will run June 1 through Aug. 20. Weekly and hourly care spaces are available.

Preschool children age 4 to 5 will take field trips and practice kindergarten skills; 3-year-olds will learn social and self-help skills. Call 3541 for details.

Food bank needs volunteers

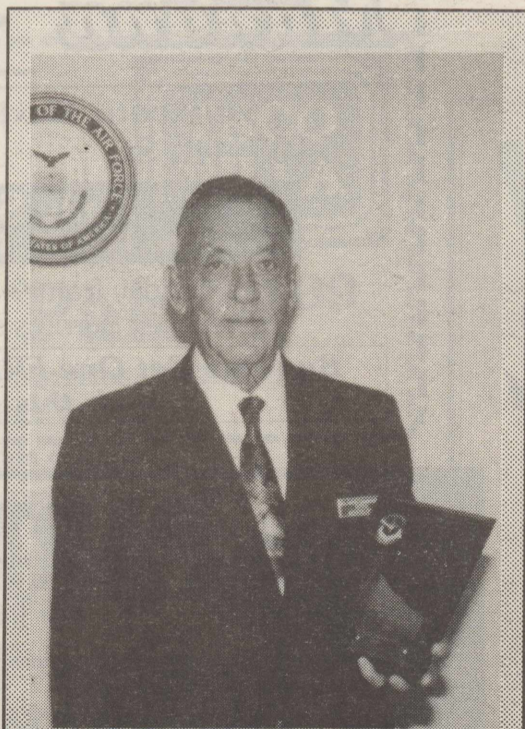

Volunteers are desperately needed to help the South Plains Food Bank with a large shipment of cereal expected in the next week. Without help, the food bank may not be able to use the food. Call Sellie Shine at 763-3003.

Theme sought

A theme is needed for the enlisted awards banquet. The winner will get a $50 bond. Suggestions must be submitted with name, organization, date and daytime phone number. Send to MSgt. Marsha Ptomey, 64th FTW/JA by June 1.

Volunteers needed on base

Volunteers are needed at the Reese Social Actions and Legal Offices to help with administration. Hours are flexible; mornings are preferred. Call Cheryl Ortiz at 3305 for details.

Medical officials warn against threat of potential disease

by SSgt. Jeanette Yiaras
64th Medical Squadron

Recently at Reese and in the surrounding community, we have had several cases of shigella, an acute bacterial disease involving the large and small intestine, characterized by diarrhea accompanied by fever, nausea and sometimes vomiting and cramps. Diarrhea may contain some blood or be watery. The illness usually lasts from several days to weeks; average duration is four to seven days.

The bacteria is not spread by coughing or sneezing like a cold or flu, but rather by the ingestion of the feces of someone infected with the disease. Illnesses of this type are referred to as "fecal-oral."

The incubation period

(time infected until illness) is from 12 to 96 hours, but can be up to one week.

During acute illness, isolation is important. Children should be kept at home for at least two days after diagnosis and beginning of medication.

Handwashing with warm water and soap is a must after each use of bathroom, after changing a diaper, after touching your pets, or after playing or working outside with soil. Wash hands for at least one minute. Supervising the handwashing of children is strongly recommended. Remember, this can spread very easily, especially through a household.

If you suspect you may have contracted this disease, contact military public health for information and education at 3534.

Fire tips offered for outdoor forays

by MSgt. Luis A. Lynch
Reese Fire Department

The fire department would like to offer some helpful hints so that you may avoid the serious burns and property loss that could result from improper outdoor cooking practices.

Safety with outdoor cooking begins when you are at the store. Purchase a grill with sturdy legs that will provide a stable platform. At home, store your charcoal in a dry, well ventilated area. Spontaneous combustion can occur if damp or wet charcoal is kept in a confined space.

The sun is shining and the family decides that today is the day to cook out. You load up your car with all the necessities — hot dogs, ribs, buns, chips and beverages. Kitchen utensils are a must. Plates and napkins shouldn't be forgotten.

But what about a fire extinguisher? A fire extinguisher on a cookout? Is that really necessary? Yes, a fire extinguisher or a bucket of water is needed to extinguish any unwanted or runaway fires that may occur while you are cooking. A substitute for either of these may be loose sand or dirt. These work just as well to protect your valuables and your afternoon.

The pleasant, relaxing drive through the countryside to your secluded spot is just the start of a cookout for your family. Upon arriving at your chosen destination, there are many things that must be done. One of the most important of these is choosing the site for your grill or fire. Never place your grill inside a building or a recreational vehicle — the carbon monoxide build-up caused by the burning coals is deadly in confined spaces.

Ensure that your grill or fire is outdoors and at least 15 feet away from buildings, tents, trees or other combustibles. As you look up and enjoy the beautiful sky, keep an eye out for overhanging limbs. When your grill is first lit, the flame may ignite low hanging tree limbs, dry leaves or dried cottonwood. Place your grill on a firm, level surface so it won't fall or get knocked over easily. Clear the dry grass, leaves and rubbish from around your site to avoid starting a grass fire.

The time has come to start your fire. For safety's sake, use only approved charcoal lighter fluids. Secondly, soak the charcoal with fluid before lighting and never add fluid after the grill is lit. Next, move the fluid away from the fire at least 15 feet. Finally, strike that match. Once the fire is burning or the coals are glowing, never leave it unattended. Besides burning your food, flying embers could start grass or a building on fire. Keep small children away from the burning grill — they could be injured by touching or climbing on the grill to see what's cooking.

Accidents do happen, so it is important to know what to do in case someone is burned or the fire gets out of hand. If someone is burned, cool the burn with water, cover it with a clean cloth and seek further medical attention immediately. To report a fire, dial 911 from any phone on base. In base housing, dial 911 to contact the fire department.

When reporting a fire, give the dispatcher your name and phone number, what is on fire, the location of the fire and if anyone is injured or trapped. Do not hang up until the dispatcher tells you to do so.

To avoid starting an unwanted fire or to prevent someone from getting burned, ensure that your coals are dead out at the end of the day (or when you are finished cooking). The proper way to do this is to thoroughly soak them with water. Although coals that have not been soaked may appear cold, they can re-ignite as much as a day later.

Don't let tragedy strike you this summer. Practice good judgment and common sense when cooking outdoors. Enjoy your picnic!

CGOC golf tournament held

by 2nd Lt. Bruce L. Upton
Transportation flight commander

The Company Grade Officers Council annual golf tournament, held on the High Plains Golf Course May 7 was won by the team of Sonny Dees, Al Chock, William Dolan and Steve Dolan.

Second place went to Col. Bob Brooks, Buddy Hampton, Don Neff and John Osborn.

Both Colonel Brooks' and Dees' teams finished the day at 64, an outstanding score under very windy conditions. A scorecard playoff was decided at hole no. 9 with Dees' team claiming victory with a short birdie putt.

Dickie Betts won the closest-to-the-pin competition with an approach shot within four feet of hole no. 9. The long-drive competition was won by Capt. Kim Corcoran.

She edged out TSgt. Phil Thompson by three yards, leaving her team approximately one hundred yards to the no. 4 green.

The CGOC golf tournament is an annual event that raises funds for Camp Blue Yonder, Lubbock Goodfellows, Toys for Tots and many other charitable programs. The CGOC extended their appreciation to all who participated or helped sponsor the tournament.

Reese bowler sets record

Albert Cranford, an employee of Allied Management of Texas on base, recently bowled a 764 three-game series at the Windmill Lanes Bowling Center, establishing a new base record. The old record was 704.

Reese Federal Credit Union Awards Scholarships

Reese Federal Credit Union recently awarded $500 academic scholarships to two students for their pursuit of higher education.

JASON TURLINSON, son of Don and Debbie Turlinson, maintains a grade point average of 4.61 at Lubbock High School and plans to major in physics at Rice University.

KELLY PARRISH, son of Doyle and Pat Parrish, maintains a grade point average of 3.73 at Crosbyton High School and plans to major in education at Howard Payne University.

These two fine young men were chosen from a field of outstanding applicants by a committee of three individuals. Each application was judged on the basis of recommendation letters, awards and honors, grade point average and service work.

Best wishes to this year's scholarship recipients.
