Two colonel selections top list of 11 promotees

The selection of two Reese officers for promotion to colonel topped a list of 11 wing selections here last week.

Lt. Col. (Dr.) Frederick G. Guerra Jr., and Lt. Col. Monica A. Figun, both of the 64th Medical Squadron, were selected for colonel.

Tabbed for promotion to lieutenant colonel were Maj. Scott Showers, 64th Civil Engineering Squadron commander; Major James S. Welshans, 35th Flying Training Squadron; Maj. William E. Baker, Jr., 64th Operations Support Squadron and Maj. (Dr.) David A. Laurentz, 64th MEDSQ.

Five members, four of them medical, were selected for promotion to major.

Town meeting

Support group commander outlines programs affecting Reese residents

Reese Village renovation projects, hospital services and rumor control were among the topics discussed at Thursday's town meeting in the Enlisted Open Mess.

Col. Bob Brooks, 64th Support Group commander, opened the 90-minute meeting "clearing the air" on several housing projects.

Addressing the largest crowd to attend a town meeting here in more than four years, Colonel Brooks talked about a two-step program to reopen several housing units that had been withheld pending funding of the Phase III renovation program.

"We do not expect to see the Phase III renovation as we had envisioned it," said Colonel Brooks. "We are getting some funding to modify the units, but not enough for full scale improvements."

The support group commander said that the demand for housing units prompted him to begin opening some of these units prior to Reese receiving any modification funds. Approximately 30 of these will be made available as soon as possible, basically as self-help units.

"We will ensure that these 30 units are structurally and mechanically sound and offer them to people on the waiting list on a self help basis," said the colonel.

Housing officials noted that persons offered one of the self-help units will be able to turn it down without it affecting their status on the list.

These units as well as all Phase III categorized homes will be modified (energy efficient windows, appliances, heaters and air conditioners, new paint, etc.) when Reese receives the modification funding later this year.

Maj. Scott Showers, 64th Civil Engineering Squadron commander, also talked about the continued monitoring and testing of older unit heating systems. Major Showers stressed that all heating units are checked at least annually and older units are checked more often. Any Reese Village resident concerned about the reliability of the heating units should contact the housing office for an inspection.

One Reese Village resident asked if there was a way to obtain shipping — see "Town meeting," Page 4

Reese observes Children's Dental Health Month

The Reese Dental Clinic brings you this article in observance of National Children's Dental Health Month. It is the first in a series of dental health articles for children.

February is National Children's Dental Health Month. The Reese Dental Clinic has a few tips to help parents maintain their children's healthy smiles.

□ Put only water in a child's bottle for a nap or at bedtime.

□ Start brushing the child's teeth as soon as the first tooth appears (six months).

□ Brush and floss young children's teeth daily until they can be taught to do this alone. Then encourage them to brush and floss.

□ Take your child to see the dentist regularly. Schedule the first visit by the child's first birthday.

□ Ask your dentist about dental sealants. Sealants are used to protect the chewing surfaces of the child's back teeth.

The Reese Dental Clinic also notes that a good diet is essential for your child's growth and development and to maintain a healthy body. Like the rest of the body, the teeth, bones and the soft tissues of the mouth require nutrients supplied by a well-balanced include:

□ Frequency of snacks. Limiting the number of times you snack between meals will minimize the number of acid attacks on your teeth.

□ The amount of time the food is in the mouth. Foods such as hard candy and breath mints stay in the mouth a long time, leading to extended acid attacks on teeth.

□ The time of day a food is eaten. Carbohydrates eaten as part of a meal are less harmful to teeth than if eaten alone. Foods eaten just before bedtime can stick to the teeth through the night.

□ What is eaten. Research indicates that certain foods, such as cheese, may help counter the effects of the acids produced by plaque bacteria.

If you'd like to learn more about how to safeguard your child's smile, the Reese Dental Clinic invites parents and children to attend a special presentation on Feb. 26 at Mathis Community Center from 6 to 8 p.m.

For more information call the Reese Dental Clinic at 3321.

Dental Health Fair scheduled for Feb. 26

QAFA: Are you ready?

The ATC Inspector General Quality Air Force Assessment Team is on its way to Reese, with a scheduled arrival of March 29. This condensed checklist will help us prepare for the visit by highlighting key areas to clean up on a day-to-day basis. For more information, call Lt. Col. Dave DiMarchi at 6080.

Monday: Facility appearance.

Does your office/work area look like you're ready for the IG? Is it time for a little last minute self-help?

Tuesday: Blow your horn.

Spice up your inbrief to the IG. Think about what you want to tell inspectors about your job/work. Work on selling your "stuff" so as to impress the IG.

Wednesday: Computer printouts.

Check for currency, accuracy, necessity. Any changes due to our reorganizations? Is there some way the computer can help us better?

Thursday: Self inspection checklists.

Clean up those two-week-old discrepancies. Make your fixes real and permanent.

Friday: Catch up day.

Anything not quite finished previously? Check on it today.

Stray animals pose danger

Security police urge Reese resident awareness

by MSgt. H. D. Little 64th Security Police Squadron

Since the dawn of man, pets have been a part of our lives. Pets give us companionship, affection and protection. They work for us, play with us and are considered a part of the family.

Unfortunately, uncontrolled pets give us noise complaints, bites and other injuries, unwanted litter, scattered garbage and diseases. The majority of these so-called pet problems can easily be resolved by responsible pet owners.

Dogs and cats that are allowed to roam free are usually the ones that cause garbage cans to be tipped over, get into fights, chase children playing outside, harass adults out walking or jogging and are struck by vehicular traffic.

Most personnel do not know the state of Texas requires that:

- All dogs and cats be vaccinated.
- All dogs and cats be registered.
- All dogs and cats be restrained.

Failure to comply with these laws can result in a ticket and fine.

While our problems with stray animals are not as severe as in some places, a lot more can be done. Pet owners must comply with state law and Air Force directives concerning pets. Again, your dogs and cats must be registered, vaccinated and restrained.

There were 39 animal bites at Reese in 1992. Most were caused by animals allowed to roam freely. Two people had to undergo painful treatment for rabies due to bites from unregistered animals. Just as you teach your children about strangers, teach them not to pet or approach stray animals. Finally, do not feed stray animals. Please, report any strays to the security police desk at 3332. We will respond.

QUALITY AIR FORCE

by Chris Davis
12th FTW QAF director

One of the most important factors in our Quality Air Force is the act of empowerment.

Empowerment is simply giving as much authority as practical to the lowest levels.

In restaurants you witness empowerment when a waiter notices your dissatisfaction and provides you with a free soft drink or maybe even a complimentary dessert. You'll notice the waiter does not have to fill out a form, topped with a staffing sheet, to go through the supervisor, maybe the assistant manager, and then finally the manager for approval.

You may laugh at this example, but wait...think about it like never before. Does true empowerment exist in your organization? Chances are, if you look hard enough, you will find ways to improve.

There are two very good reasons to ensure empowerment exists in your organization. First, leaders gain the time they need to properly lead. I often hear leaders say they wish there was more time to go around and observe their workers. Simply put, "the more you empower, the more time you have to lead."

The second good reason for empowerment is you give ownership responsibility to those who deserve it (both workers and junior supervisors). People like to be challenged. In taking ownership responsibility, work becomes personal, and in most cases improves. Nothing beats being recognized for improving something that belongs personally to you.

So whose responsibility is it to ensure empowerment exists? Bottom line...everyone is responsible. To leaders who procrastinate about empowering subordinates, I say "just get on with it."

How will you ever know if empowerment is effective unless you try it? You'll learn as you go along and you'll definitely become a better leader.

Supervisors and workers who think they should be empowered and are not, should be aggressive, and ask for it. Maybe your leaders don't understand your desires. Sometimes you have to take the first step to get what you think is right. It'll be a plus for you and it might better the relationship you have with your bosses.

Everyone needs to take responsibility when it comes to empowerment. Take the first step and the work will be more efficient for all involved. (Courtesy of the Randolph Wingspread) boxes to help clear rooms for a carpeting project underway in 60 units. Morale, Welfare and Recreation officials said they have a limited supply of boxes targeted for recycling which they can loan to residents affected by the upgrade. The housing units are being carpeted by the contractor at no additional cost to the government to correct a problem with the linoleum floors installed during Phase II. Those interested in obtaining boxes should call 3800 for details.

Maj. (Dr.) David Armstrong, 64th Medical Squadron, explained why the hospital will stop providing non-prescription medicine such as Tylenol and Dimetap without a prescription on March 1. The major noted that Reese is one of the last stateside hospitals still issuing across the counter medicines and that there simply isn't the funding to continue the program.

"This is happening Air Force wide," he said. "It's not just something affecting the people at Reese."

Major Armstrong also talked about the probability that Reese will eventually close the emergency room in the evening and on weekends.

The major said the hospital is working on an alternative care program off base and stressed that emergency on-base ambulance service will not be affected.

Hugh Beam, MWRSS deputy chief, commented on the winter closing of the equipment rental facility, noting that anyone needing any of the rental items can still check them out by calling 3800 to arrange for a pick up.

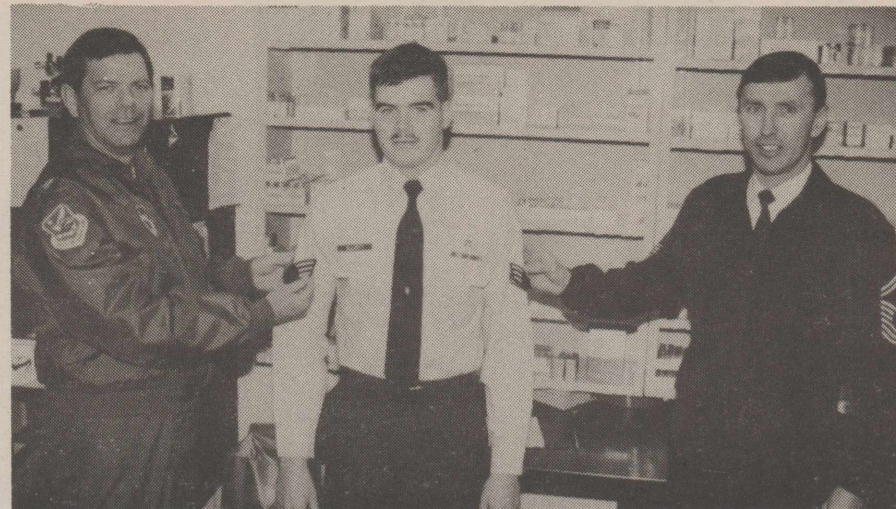

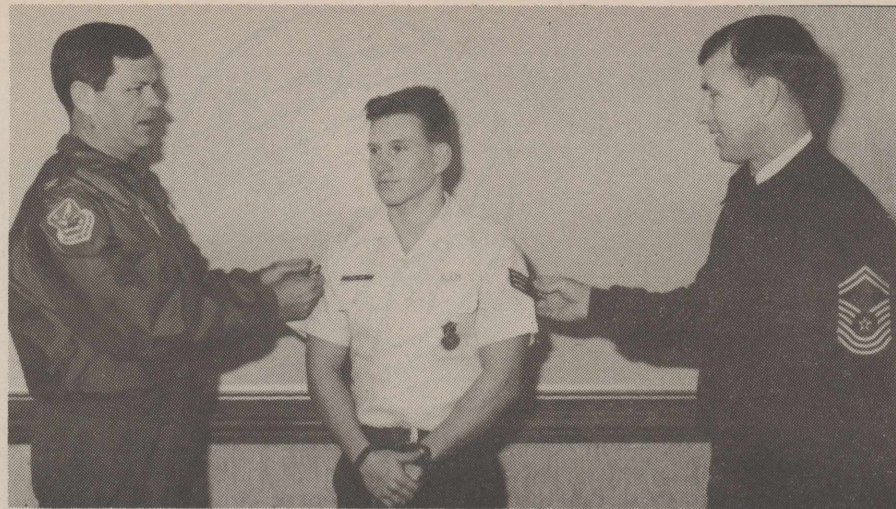

Colonel Brooks closed the meeting by thanking everyone for attending and reminding them that he intends to have town meetings quarterly. The next town meeting will be in the spring.

Fraud, waste and abuse: how the JAG fits in

by Lt. Col. Harvey Farr
and Capt. Jerry V. Beard
64th FTW

In this time of shrinking military budgets, the Air Force must ensure it maximizes the return from every defense dollar spent. Putting planes in the air is an expensive business and there are simply too few dollars to allow for inefficient use of financial resources. All Air Force personnel—from the most junior military member to the most seasoned civilian employee—have a duty to safeguard Air Force assets. The Air Force Fraud, Waste & Abuse Prevention Program is one tool Air Force members can use to safeguard those assets.

At every command level, the Inspector General administers the FWA Program. The IG receives inquiries and allegations of fraud, waste and abuse and investigates accordingly. If the initial investigation reveals no FWA is being committed, a more intensive investigation follows. Before the matter is fully resolved, it is common for any number of Air Force organizations to assist the IG investigation. The Office of the Staff Judge Advocate is one such organization.

The JAG is usually involved throughout a FWA investigation. Understandably, a commander must ensure a FWA investigation is proceeding in accordance with Air Force regulations and with any applicable laws. The JAG assists the commander and his appointed investigator with that determination. Following the investigation, the office reviews the legal sufficiency of a FWA investigation for factual completeness and compliance with laws and regulations. Subsequent to the investigation, the JAG continues to assist the commander in implementing a remedies program to prevent future similar occurrences of FWA. From a JAG perspective, two issues may arise: (1) did the individual who committed the FWA also subject himself or herself to criminal or administrative liability?; and (2) do any civil or administrative remedies exist to allow the Air Force to recoup any of its losses? The JAG will provide the commander with the answers to these questions.

With regard to criminal liability, it is no surprise that individuals who commit FWA are also breaking the law. Military and civilian personnel who commit fraudulent, wasteful or abusive acts may have violated particular federal or state criminal statutes as well as Air Force regulations. In addition, military members may also have violated provisions of the Uniform Code of Military Justice. The JAG will advise the commander as to whether the individuals committing FWA appear to have run afoul of the law and whether punitive sanctions are warranted. Such sanctions could involve letters of reprimand, nonjudicial punishment, or even a trial by courts-martial for military members. For civilians, potential sanctions include administrative action, demotion, firing, and referral of charges to the U.S. Attorney for criminal prosecution in federal district court.

The JAG is not concerned solely with any criminal issues arising out of a FWA investigation. Equally important is the Air Force's need to recoup any available amounts lost through FWA. Depending upon the particular circumstances involved, the Air Force may have civil or administrative remedies available by which to recover these funds.

The JAG will review the facts of each case to determine whether any legal remedies exist and will advise the commander how best to go about recovering financial resources lost to FWA. In this way, the JAG can help to minimize the adverse effect of FWA on the Air Force mission.

54th FTS

Mission statement: The mission of the 54th Flying Training Squadron is to provide highly trained, fully qualified pilots for the world's best Air Force. Squadron instructors teach the T-38 phase of Undergraduate Pilot Training including basic and advanced contact, formation and navigation procedures. In January 1993, the squadron also began training ATC's first T-38 Specialized Undergraduate Pilot Training (SUPT) class. Under the new SUPT syllabus, the 54th FTS will focus on providing specialized training to those students designated for follow-on flying assignments in bomber and fighter career fields.

Notes

Gospel jubilee planned

The Black History Month committee will present a Gospel jubilee at 3:30 p.m. Sunday in the Reese Chapel. Several churches from the local community will be participating to help make this a joyous occasion.

The base is welcome.

W-2 filing delayed

Due to a contractor error, all Federal Employees Retirement System and FERS Offset civil service employees are asked to delay filing their W-2s until a corrected W-2C is received. The corrected W-2Cs are expected to be mailed in the near future. Employees enrolled in Civil Service Retirement received correct W-2s.

Center upgrade complete

Renovation on the Reese Visitor Reception Center, Bldg 6100, is completed. Security police officials will reopen the center for business Monday at 7:30 a.m.

Workshop planned

Military members within 180 days of retirement or separation, or who have retired or separated since Oct. 1, 1990, can attend a free civilian career options workshop from 8:30 a.m. 4:30 p.m. Feb. 16-19 at the family support center.

Resumés, veteran benefits and more will be covered. Call Mario Manfre or Pamela Appell at 3305 by Feb. 12 for reservations.

IG available

The wing inspector general is available from 2-3 p.m. Wednesdays at the base library conference room for a personal conference period.

Although not necessary, it is recommended that individuals try to use their chains of command (supervisor, first sergeant, commander) to solve their problems before going to the IG. If your problem is not resolved, or if you are not comfortable working your problem through the chain of command, Air Force Regulation 123-11 lets you communicate directly with the IG.

The wing inspector can be contacted at anytime at 3409; the fraud, waste and abuse hotline is 6547.

Center offers programs

English As A Second Language classes are held every Monday night from 6-8 p.m. in the Reese Family Support Center for all base people and their families. Call Ms. Schroeder at 6494.

OWC scholarships on tap

Applications and information on scholarships from the Reese Officers' Wives Club are available now through March 1 at the cashier cages of both base clubs.

Interested applicants can also call 793-1474.

ALS graduation set

The graduation ceremony for Airman Leadership School Class 93-B, will be held Feb. 19 at 11:30 a.m. in the Enlisted Open Mess. Reservations for the $5 buffet luncheon are available by calling 3147. Reservations must be made no later than Feb. 16.

Special volunteers needed

Volunteers are needed as guest servers and "general" help for the Area 17 Special Olympics Annual Rajun Cajun fund raiser Feb 13 from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. at the 19th Street Depot Restaurant. Volunteers should contact MSgt. Joe Slack at Ext. 3281.

Spouse briefing on tap

Lt. Col. (Dr.) Joyce Teeters, an Air Force psychologist, will be presenting a spouse human factors briefing Feb. 18 at 7 p.m. in the Officers' Open Mess ballroom. It is designed to help spouses of pilots recognize characteristics which add to and detract from safe flying. The briefing is informal.

Youth Center slates meeting

There will be a parent/staff meeting for all people who have children using the Reese Youth Center on Wednesday at 7 p.m. Topics to be discussed include upcoming events and center programs. It is also an opportunity to meet the new director. For additional information call 3820.

Health issues program set

The Officers Wives Club will host a special program on women's health issues Thursday. The program, which will feature presentations by Amy Carpenter, OWC community education coordinator, and Maj. Marie-Jocelyne Charles, 64th Medical Squadron. The program kicks off with a social at 6:30 p.m. and dinner at 7 p.m. For reservations call Elia Tucker 885-2888 or Herminia Hemmitt at 794-7182 before 9 p.m. Monday.

FSC seeks volunteers

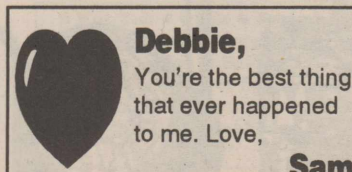

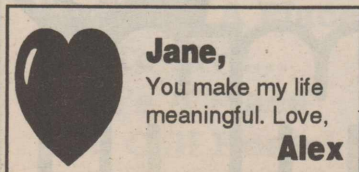

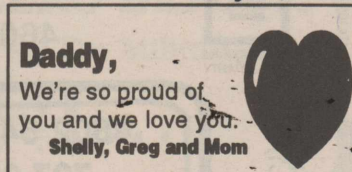

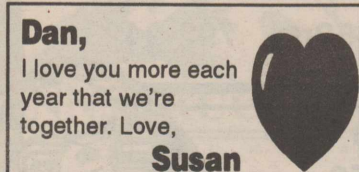

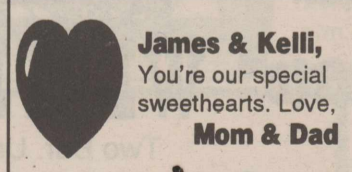

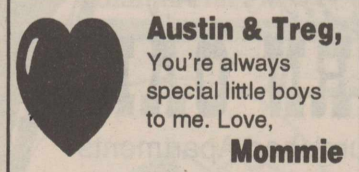

The Reese Family Support Center has several openings for volunteers. They include part-time receptionist at the legal office, family services aide and pediatric clinic assistant.

For information on these and other volunteer positions available, contact Cheryl Ortiz at 3305.

Hospital questions answered

Carolyn Johnson, Reese health benefits advisor, offers answers to some of the questions posed to medical officials here.

Dear Carolyn:

My wife recently visited the primary care clinic. The doctor told her she needed to see the cardiologist.

In the past she would see the civilian cardiologist at Reese and we did not have to pay for the visit. The doctor told her that she needed to go downtown to see a cardiologist, and that we would have to use CHAMPUS to pay for the visit. What happened to free medical care?

Due to severe funding constraints, civilian cardiologists, along with other specialties, are either no longer at Reese or can no longer treat persons other than active duty. We're sorry, but you will have to seek care at another military facility if it is available or see a cardiologist downtown under CHAMPUS.

Dear Carolyn:

In the past I have frequently used the pharmacy's over-the-counter drug program. On my last visit to the hospital I was told the program will be canceled due to lack of funds. Does this mean I have to buy my own aspirin and cough syrup?

Yes, you are correct. Effective March 1, the walk-up over-the-counter drug program at the pharmacy will be canceled. The only way you will be able to receive over-the-counter drugs is with a doctor's prescription.

Intramural playoffs nearing

The intramural basketball regular season is set to finish Wednesday, and the first round of the play-offs are set to begin Feb. 16.

Six of the eight play-off spots have already been determined, as several other teams try to earn one of the remaining two spots.

The 64th Logistics Squadron swept the American League with a final regular-season record of 15-1. They are followed by the 64th Communications Squadron at 13-3 and the 52nd Flying Training Squadron at 10-5.

All three teams have earned play-off berths, and have no chance of losing their end-of-season standings, as each team plays only 16 games.

In the National League, the 35th FTS "C" team is still undefeated at 12-0, but with six games remaining in the next week and a half, they may be challenged by the 64th Civil Engineering Squadron "A" team, who follows as 13-2. The 64th Medical Squadron has clinched at least third in the National League with a record of 11-4.

The remaining two play-off spots are still to be determined, and six teams are in contention. The 64th Mission Support Squadron leads the remaining teams at 8-6, followed by Lockheed at 8-8 and the 35th FTS "A" and 54th FTS "B" at 7-7. In addition to those teams, the 64th OSS "A" and 35th FTS "B" have a shot at the play-offs, at 6-9.

Personnel interested in the Tae Kwon Do training camp to be held at Fort Indiantown Gap, Pa., must complete AF Form 303 by March 1. For more information, call Mr. Trevino at 3207.

'Gold Rush'

This Saturday the Bowling Center is preparing to face a Gold Rush!

Players "strike gold" by simply making a strike when the head pin is the special gold pin. All open lanes contain the gold pins during the following hours: Saturdays from noon to 11 p.m.; Sundays and holidays from noon to 6 p.m.; Monday through Thursday from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.; and Fridays from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m.

Prospectors automatically become eligible to be one of several lucky winners in the weekly "Gold Rush" for a variety of prizes including a Caribbean cruise.

Youth basketball begins

The Reese Youth Basketball League will hold its opening ceremony Saturday at 1:30 p.m. in the physical fitness center. League play begins at 2 p.m.

The league plays on Saturdays and Sundays with games starting at 2, 3, 4 and 5 p.m.

Contact Matt Alvarez at 3820 for more information.
