According to Larry, after three years one acre of grapes, containing six hundred plants could conservatively produce around 15 tons of grapes. Commercial grapes such as the Bratchers have planted currently sell for around $1,100.00 per ton. "It looks like we are in the perfect spot and we are very excited about next year's harvest" said Larry. Six years ago the Bratcher family, Claudell, his son Larry, and Larry's wife Pattie began growing pumpkins, two years later adding watermelons and this year the family began growing wine grapes.

According to Larry, Knox County should be ideal for grape growing. Grapes, he said, prefer sandy well drained soil, don't mind high winds and seem to thrive on the west texas heat.

At this time the two main grape growing regions of Texas are the hill country and high plains around Lubbock. Both areas, says Larry, have their problems. The hill country is prone to high humidity, which grapes Benjamin. High winds and hail don't like and the high plains can

Notice

American businesses are competing with countries from all over the world. We believe firmly in free trade, and we know Americans can compete successfully with all nations. Free trade brings us low-priced goods from foreign markets at the same time it opens those markets for our goods and services.

We recognize that this means that we compete with foreign businesses that pay their workers much less. While this seems to put us between a briar patch and a boar hog, we will continue to be successful for many of the reasons we became a world superpower: ingenuity, hard work, and flexibility. We are unparalleled when it comes to making new discoveries and utilizing those discoveries in new products. To ensure our success, we need to increase our commitment to research in the hard sciences.

Science and invention have always been among America's great strengths. Inventor, scientist and statesman Benjamin Franklin has been described as "the first American." Thomas Edison's light bulb and Alexander Graham Bell's telephone are products of American ingenuity that have revolutionized the entire world. Americans also created the personal computer, the artificial heart and the sewing machine. Numerous Americans have won Nobel prizes in the sciences. From 1998 to 2003 Congress doubled the budget for the National Institutes of Health. We recognize the benefits of medical research are two-fold. It leads to new advances in the struggle against disease, improving and extending people's lives. Their research also provides our economy with valuable new products and services that our businesses can export all over the world.

Kay Bailey Hutchison United States Senator

ENSURING A HEALTHY FUTURE AMERICA

portion of our harvest from doubling its budget. In 2003, NIH announced the successful completion of the human genome project. NIH-funded teams sequenced the three billion DNA letters of the human genomeone of the most remarkable feats in medical history. This accomplishment will help scientists turn the tide against cancer, diabetes and other diseases. The knowledge gained from the project assists doctors in predicting individuals' predisposition to specific illnesses by examining their genetic makeup.

Congress's increased funding has also advanced our defense against a serious terrorist weapon—anthrax. NIH has funded scientists who have determined the three-dimensional structure of anthrax toxins, helping with the development of antitoxins. As a result, doctors may eventually be able to neutralize anthrax in the later stages of the disease, something previously impossible because antibiotics are not effective against it at that point.

If you avoid the doctor because you do not like injections, you will be pleased to hear that NIH researchers have improved the delivery of drugs through the skin. They have found ways to increase the effectiveness of skin patches to deliver medication. Microneedles can be added to patches, improving absorption of a drug without causing any pain. And these are just a few of the results of our NIH investments. Despite being a long-time in our unique atmosphere of freedom and financial support, but more and more, they are finding tempting offers closer to home. If we do not redouble our efforts, researchers from abroad may stop coming here to do their groundbreaking work; and we may find a scarcity of Americans prepared to undertake it in their place.

Recently, I took over as Chairman of the Commerce Subcommittee on Science and Space. My mission is to reverse this trend. We need to take our NIH success and mirror it in other areas of science. Congress needs to focus on promoting research in biology, chemistry, and physics. I propose we increase the National Science Foundation budget to pave the way for our future success.

Some people will argue that we should not be increasing our spending on science after the damage done by hurricanes Katrina and Rita. We do need to cut spending to pay for Gulf rebuilding, and we especially need to cut government waste. Nonetheless, we should not cut our investment in science. To do so would be to eat the seed corn of tomorrow's most important crops. Now is precisely the time to focus on developing the parts of our economy most likely to bring in future revenue, especially when-in addition to bringing dollars and jobs-this research improves people's lives.

We also need to direct the NSF's focus firmly to the hard sciences. Recently, the NSF proposed expanding its research on human and social dynamics for 2006. I don't want the NSF to stray from concentrating on biology, chemistry, and physics, and instead, devote funds to social science research. That is not where we should be directing its resources at this time. Under my chairmanship, in addition to increasing the NSF budget, I want the Foundation to focus more on the hard sciences. With that investment added to the hard work, ingenuity and dedication of our scientists and students, we will create both healthier people and a healthier economy in the future!

Congress's increased investment in NIH has born substantial fruit. Consider just a small leader in many areas of research, the United States risks falling behind in basic science research the fundamental discoveries that lead to great leaps forward in so many fields. At a time when China, India and other countries are devoting substantial resources to research in the hard sciences, we are starting to lose our focus.

Increasingly, our industries have had to look abroad for engineers and others they need to compete. Our universities are not nurturing scientists in the numbers we need to lead the world through the next century. Researchers used to flock to America to carry out their work

by: Lee Pitts My Own Little World

I admit that I'm not what you'd call a "worldly" person. I've never been to Europe, China, Antarctica or Africa and, quite frankly, have no desire to do so. Although I've never traveled around the world I have been to all fifty states and never once did I get dysentery, malaria, robbed or treated as if I were an ugly American.

To the top of the Eiffel Tour I've never traipsed but I have seen the view from the top of the Rockies and I can't imagine anything being more beautiful. I've never skied the Alps, dove the Caymans or surfed in Fiji but I got a good glimpse of my own little world between the ears on the back of a well-traveled horse.

On not one occasion have I stayed in castles in Europe or $500-a-night hotel rooms in Bonn or Barcelona, or anywhere else for that matter. I did stay in a nine dollar room in Stockton and twelve dollar one in Perryton and I must say they looked exactly what I'd imagine the very best room in the Ritz might look like with all the lights off. I didn't check into a five star hotel in Naples either but I slept out with the cowboys on the Bell under a starlit New Mexican sky. The ground was rough, the insects nasty and the coyotes loud and I don't believe I've ever slept better in my life.

I've never driven a Ferrari, a Lamborghini or a Maserati on the German autobahn or, to the best of my knowledge, gone over 100 miles per hour in a car in my life.

Being of the opinion that to enjoy life you've first got to be alive. At no time have I owned a foreign car with over 250 horsepower although I did have a onehorse powered-horse once that took me everywhere I wanted to go at a speed I could live with.

I've never indulged in Cuban cigars, Scotch Whiskey or fine French wine. Russian caviar has never passed my lips but when I was eight years old I did taste salmon eggs after a bet with my brother as to who'd catch the biggest fish. They weren't that bad really, a lot better than the fishing that day. I've never shot game in Africa but I have seen the Monarchs in Pismo and the bears and the buffalo in Yellowstone.

To a European spa I've never traveled. I've never been wrapped in Caribbean seaweed, pummeled by a Swedish masseuse or bathed in Moroccan mud. Nor have I run with the bulls in Spain, but I have been knocked to the ground and run over by a Longhorn in Amarillo. Quite frankly I didn't see the attraction.

I've never seen the statue of David except in Las Vegas, nor have I viewed the harlots on sale in Amsterdam or watched nude Parisian follies, but Big Bend the badlands and the Black Hills revealed their inner beauty to me. Never in all my born days did I fly Concorde but there was never any place I was in that much of a hurry to get to, quite frankly.

I've been on a sailboat only once and the mast hit me square in the face. I was also on a yacht once and we took an all-you-caneat cruise years ago and in both cases I spent the entire time in a queasy condition, which I never did while bumping along in the cab of my dad's Kenworth, eating at greasy spoon truck stops.

I've never seen the Louvre but I've painted Nebraska Herefords and California cowboys in person. I may not have snuck a furtive glance at Mona Lisa but I'm lucky to wake up everyday to a wife that's much prettier and smiles a lot more.

The canals in Venice hold no allure as I've river-boated the Mississippi and shot the rapids of the Salmon. From India I've sent no postcards, preferring instead visual images of Indians in Shiprock and Santa Fe's square. I may not have sunbathed on the Riviera or floated the Rhine but I've seen an Arizona sunset and morning in Maine and that's good enough for this simple man.

I'll probably never see the pyramids or the ruins in Rome but I hiked to the crest of the Sierras and to the bottom of the Grand Canyon and from these worldly travels I know that no man has ever built anything better than what Mother Nature and God conspired to create right here at home.

Though it got cooler and Thursday's high was not much above 80. By Friday things had settled a bit but skies did look a bit angry and about night fall a thunderstorm hit. Rain, hail and some wind accompanied it. And pretty good sized hail covered the ground. But hopefully not enough for roof damage this time around- I hope not. Today, Monday, is partly cloudy kind of cool but a pretty pleasant start of yet another work week.

Leroy West is just doing great. Since he arrived at Munday nursing center his condition has improved so much. He's walking, with the aid of his walker, eating more and enjoying his compány. Still sleeps off and on quite a bit but we are all so encouraged by his progress. No other report of anyone on our ailing list. Lots of allergies and folks are coughing and carrying-on terribly. I know I'm one of them!.

In volleyball the girls traveled over to Aspermont Tuesday night, Jr. High and JV won but the Varsity was defeated. This week Chillicothe Jr. High comes here and High School goes there Friday Night.

Visited Helen Green of Guthrie on Thursday, doing great since her surgery and will determine about her treatments in a few days. Her sister, Bobbye Stevens was with her. Bobbye lives in Arizona and it was good to see her. And so good to see Helen doing so well.

Cathy Tomlinson returned home Sunday after being here several days with her mom, Gloria West and helping care for Leroy. She told me she hated to leave but is so glad things are better with Leroy and that made it easier to go. Cathy lives in Denton.

Jane Gideon was telling me that her grandson, Colton Caldwell was named player of the week of the Seymour Jr. High Football Team last week. Colton is a 7th grader at Seymour Jr. High and his parents are Lana Mendoza of Seymour and Casey Caldwell of Haskell.

Randolph and Judy Barnett have been here several days at their home but were leaving today for a few weeks in Delaware where he will be doing some work. Relatives and friends herr will be tending their place while they are away.

Winnie Sue Jones Nall of Prairie Grove, Arkansas is visiting in the area for several days. She was at church on Sunday as was her sister Myrtie Lou Shaw of Knox City. They were visiting their brother and his wife Charles and Joy Jones.

Weekend guests of Debbie and Mike Moorhouse were Lynn Rogers of Snyder, Jessica Moorhouse of Tarlton State in Stephenville and Liz, Nathan and Mason Herring of Munday. On Saturday afternoon, Lynn, Jessica and Will went to Guthrie to see their grandparents Bert and Kay Criswell.

Visited with Lee and Ann Brannan Roland who now lives in Alamagarde, New Mexico. It was so good to see Ann. She's the same sweet, pretty, friendly girl she was in High School. They were visiting her mom. Gertrude Brannan.

Clodell Duke left Sunday for Iowa Park to make her home. Quite a transition for her but she realizes she needs to be near her children and her Drs. who are specialists in their field. She's been here a lifetime and things will be different for her but she will adjust. We certainly wish her well as she makes this change. Bubba Benson has purchased her home.

Visiting her mom, Gertrude Brannan Saturday and Sunday were Barbara and John Cox of New Braunfels. Barbara has just returned from Iraq and will be returning soon for another tour of duty.

Secretary Johanns to Hold Farm Bill Forum in Lubbock

John Suston, State Executive Director for USDA'S Texas Farm Service Agency announced today that Agriculture Secretary Mike Johanns will host a Farm Bill Forum Wednesday, October 5 from 1:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. at the Helen DeVitt Jones Auditorium located on Indiana Avenue between 4th Street and Brownfield Highway on the Texas Tech University Campus in Lubbock.

"The Farm Bill Forums provide an opportunity for USDA to hear directly from America's producers and other stakeholders who have tremendous insight to offer", said Johanns. I'm approaching these listening sessions with an open mind, knowing the feedback we receive will be useful and help to set the comment period for general Farm Bill comments.

1. How should farm policy address any unintended consequences and ensure that such consequences do not discourage new farmer and the next generation of farmers from entering production agriculture?

2. How should farm policy be designed to maximize U.S. competitiveness and our country's ability to effectively compete in global markets?

3. How should farm policy be designed to effectively and fairly distribute assistance to producers?

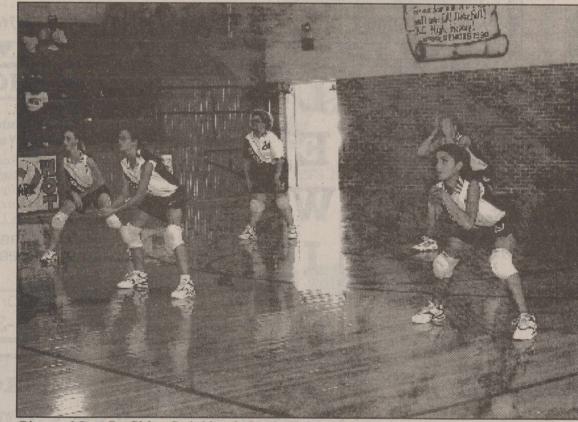

4. How can farm policy best achieve conservation and environmental goals?

5. How can Federal rural and farm programs provide effective

A three hour delay due to threatening weather and hail the size of golf balls didn't stop the Benjamin Mustangs from taking the field on Friday Night. The Mustangs played the Matadors of Motley County. Benjamin played hard but couldn't respond to the speed that Motley brought and the Stangs were down 28-0 when another storm approached and sent both teams to their locker rooms. After about 45 minutes, the game resumed and with some quick TD's the Mustangs went down 46-0. This put the Mustang record at 2-2 on the season and 0-2 in district.

The listening session is open to the public and seating is on a first come basis. Speakers are not required to register, and will have two minutes to make their comment. Written comments may be submitted to USDA at the listening session or via the website at www.usda.gov/farmbill. Select "Comment on the 2007 Farm Bill", which is the last item located in the middle section, to send your message.

When participating in the forums, the public is invited to respond to one or more of the following six questions. The format of the forum will allow an open assistance in rural ařeas?6. How should agricultural product development, marketing and research-related issues be addressed in the next Farm Bill? "This is a tremendous opportunity for Texas farmers, ranchers and agricultural organizations to comment on Farm Bill policy," said Fuston. "On behalf of all USDA agencies including FSA's sister agencies, Rural Development and the Natural Resources Conservation Serves, I encourage those impacted by USDA policy to attend the forum and lend their voice to the development of the 2007 Farm Bill.
