Knox County Child Welfare Board presents Christmas Angel Tree

It's that time of year again to think about giving and helping others. Christmas is the time of year that we most often think of helping others. The Knox County Child Welfare Board will again be constructing their annual Angel Tree to help the needy children of Knox County It is through the generous donations of the Knox County residents that we can provide help for these children, especially at Christmas. We will have the angel Christmas Tree in the lobby of Citizens Bank in Knox City beginning on Monday, November 15. Anyone may go in and pick an angel from the tree and sign their name in the green folder at the reception desk. When you have made your purchases for the child, just bag, unwrapped, and the angel attached to the bag donations to P.O. Box 123, and return to the bank by Monday, December 6. If Thank you in advance for you do not wish to purchase gifts, you may make a money donation to the Child Welfare Board at the bank and that money will be used to purchase the gifts and used for emergency situations for the children throughout the year.

The Board also helps with Christmas for te foster children that are from Knox County and place in homes.

The board is made up of volunteers that are recommended and approved by the Commissioners Court. The Board meets once a month in Knox City or Munday and is made up of 5 members from Munday, 5 fro Knox City, 1 from Benjamin and the Child Protective Representative from Haskell.

If you have any questions, you may contact place them in a large plastic a board member or send your questions or money Knox City, TX 79529. your caring and giving at this time of year.

Knox County veterans will be honored Thursday, November 11, 2010 at 11:00 AM. If you are a veteran please be sure to make plans to attend. This year as in years past the sixth grade students of Munday, Knox City, and Benjamin will be participating in a poster contest. The students will be interviewing veterans to learn about their war experience and making a poster about the veteran. Then the student writes a 5-minute speech about that veteran. Each school sets a date for a contest at which the KC High School Student posters are displayed at the schools. Both posters and speeches are considered in awarding first, second and third places in the school contest. The contest chairman Homer Lowrance, will pick up the posters and display them at the Wichita Brazos Museum in Benjamin, All first place winners from the three schools will deliver their 5-minute speeches at the Veterans Day Program.

The Annual • Veterans Breakfast will be hosted by counsel on Thursday, November 11, at 7:30 a.m. in the KCHS library. Any veterans, active duty and spouses thereof are invited to attend.

The KCHS Junior class now has tickets for their Thanksgiving dinner, which will be held in November 13 from 5:30 to 7:30. Tickets are $8/adult and $4/ child. You can get your ticket from any KCHS Junior or at the Front Office of the High School.

God's Promises

and/or relationship you had Tex Cox - Abundant Life Cracked Pots or God

Tough questions! Yet, this is what God seeks after in you more than anything else! He wants a relationship with you! He wants to be your "all in all." Your everything. He wants to be what floats your boat!

You are the apple of His important purpose God has eye and He loves you! I planned for each and every heard Dave Duell say it like this one time, "God loves "To love the Lord your you, and there is nothing God with all your heart... you can do about it!" and to love your neighbor as Brothers and sisters, there are times in our lives that we need to allow God to reshape us and remold us. There are times where we have to let go of ourselves and allow He has in store for us - step by step - process by process.

Do you want to be in your life...would He be complete? God has set you apart! He has a plan for you! He has a purpose for you!

> God created you perfect. When you were created in your Mother's womb you were perfect! Satan is continually trying to destroy what God has made and God is continually trying to keep you in His perfect plan for your life.

We need to focus on Him and trust Him more than we trust what we can see, taste, touch, hear, and

God wants, "That above all things you will prosper and be in health, even as your soul prospers."

God wants to fix the God to bring us to the path cracks and bring you back to the perfect creation He had in mind from the very beginning. He is constantly reminding us that He loves us and has plans for us. Even those who don't hear Him, God is speaking.

Come back to the Potter's Hands. Allow Him to mold you and shape you!

When is the last time you did something for the first time? When is the last time you turned your life over to God - not just for salvation - but for ALL that God has planned for you!? Too often than not, life gets in the way and makes us a cracked pot.

God makes perfect pots. The question is - do you want to be a cracked pot, or a God pot? God has plans for you! He loves you! In Him, you can become more and more like Him.

Remember - - - YOU ARE BLESSED!!

Jackie H. Young

Mr. Jackie H. Young, 78, passed away November 4, 2010 at his home in Benjamin.

Jackie was born in Truscott and moved to Benjamin with his late parents, Wayne and Carmen (Adcock) Young in 1945.

He attended Benjamin schools and married his high school sweetheart, the love of his life, Mary Jane Melton on December 12, 1953.

He enlisted in the US Navy in 1952 and was aboard a destroyer for 2 years. He returned to Benjamin in 1956 where he and his father operated Young's Barber Shop in Knox City. In 1962 he was employed by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department as a game warden. During this service the Youngs lived in El Paso, Crowell, Haskell and Lubbock. He was Lieutenant Game Warden in Lubbock.

Upon his retirement, Jackie and Mary Jane returned to Benjamin where he enjoyed volunteer hours many serving on the city council, museum board, Knox County historical commission, cemetery board and Benjamin Chamber of Commerce. He was a member of Benjamin Christian Church and attends the First United Methodist

He was preceded in death by his parents, brother Wayne Young, Jr., Sisters Dorothy West and Pat Benson.

Survivors include his wife Mary Jane Young of Benjamin, son Jackie Young, Jr. and wife Cindy of Round Rock, daughter Debbie Niell and husband Barry of Boca Raton, FL, sister Billie Faye Cummings of Henderson, brothers F.L. (Dutch) and Imajean Young of Benjamin, Butch and Letha Young of Ft. Worth, grandsons Dustin Collins and Trevor Niell of Boca Raton, Fl, great grandchildren Colin Niell, Krista Niell, Payton Collins all of Boca Raton, Fl, several nices, nephews and a host of dear friends.

A Funeral Service will be held 2:00pm, Monday, November 8, 2010 at Benjamin Memorial Building with Rev. Tim Trimble, Dr. Troy Culpepper and Dennis Duke officiating. Burial will follow in the Benjamin Cemetery under the direction of Mansell-Smith Funeral Home, Knox City. A visitation will be held from 4:00-6:00pm, Sunday at the funeral home in Knox

The family requests that memorials be made to Wichita Brazos Musem, Box 104, Benjamin, Texas 79505 or the First United Methodis

Sammie's Knox City Corner and Final Thoughts

Sammie Offield

I'm getting ready for our little spooks. This is the fun part of loving and giving to our kids as they giggle and run and play and meet each other on every corner. How times have changed- I remember when we made our own masks or costumes, but it was just as much fun back then. I wondered if we would ever get old. Well, guess what, now we're the ones giving out the candy.

While visiting with Ronnie Gass, she was telling me they are moving. They will be missed across the street. I'm happy for them. She says her brother and sister-in-law will move in next- I hope they have fun in their new homes.

I saw Burdi Helton's recuperating from a nasty fall. I wish her well. And Mr. Burkham is doing good with his dialysis. Jimmy Lynn seems to be doing good since his return home. Thank God for blessings every day.

Tuesday morning I was with Mrs. Robert Lake as she gave me a story on her Husband, who is leaving the 8th of November. Mr. Lake of Knox City is a veteran who served in the Korean war. This week, they are celebrating the 60th Anniversary of the Korean War with all branches of the military. They will have several revisiting tours of the war. Also, 235 Marines will have a "birthday ball". Bob had a very big part in that war as a driver of an LVT3 amphibious landing vehicle. He was involved in landing at Inchon liberations of Geouland in the winter campaigns in North Korea. He feels very special for surviving all that combat duty. Bob ended his tour in 1951 and this is his first government, which will pay 50% of the vet's Flight and 30% of their spouse's flight, all of their hotel expenses and meals. His wife will remain in Knox City while he is on his trip, so she'll keep me informed.

Their trip to Korea will be covered by the Korean

Today was Election Day and hopefully our votes will come into a new whole 2011 year. As we all know there needs to be some changes- some bigger than others. There were lots of people coming into office, and a lot of people leaving.

I read the Abilene paper and saw where Charlotte Patterson had passed away and left a lot of good memories in K.C.. She was a member of the Lions Club and used to do their cooking. She used to spot me across the room by hearing my voice- but we all know I am easily spotted after hearing my voice (I guess that comes with being raise with so many boys)

Everyday I spend at lest ½ hour on the phone checking with all my loved ones. I start with my mom, Roy and Janice to make sure they are good. It's part of my routine- I have done it so long it's hard to break away from the routine. I thank God for Eddie because he is so understanding and his heart has always been so full of love and health. But I still take care of myself so that I can be good when I am needed. I am still waiting for my back specialist for back surgery but I will try to keep my column so you always know your news in good ol' Knox City.

with Jennifer Visiting Grindstaff at Alsups to check on her mother's health. She informed methat her mom's to return home on Monday with Hospice help. Please pray for her. And also remember Danny Reeves, James Earl Stafford and Alfredo Abila. We never think it will hit home, but when it does it hits our hearts.

I love the new CDs put out by 3Kord, a Christian Band that has played many times in Knox City. They are good if you like rock Christian music. Call me and I'll have some at my house by the end of the week. You can also contact me through Tex at the Abundant life Church.

Evelyn Balis has a little improvement in her health. She had a little set back in her home when her water heater leaked and had to have lots of repairs done as well as replace some of her carpet. Hopefully soon it will all be fixed.

June Moss gave me a piece of news. Nicki, husband, and their son have visited for the weekend and to attend the wedding of Shur's I know it is always exciting to have your kids' home for a little while.

Wednesday evening, Eddie and I had a wonderful time with our kids, Ruben, Patty, Aubri, Eric and Sandra all came over and they had a wonderful time together. I really enjoyed just watching them laugh and tell on each Thursday, Amanda calls to tell me that Alfredo is in the hospital again. His white blood count was low, and his platelets were low, but his chemo has been so strong that they will cut back next week. Hopefully he'll be doing better later on this week.

Today, I have also enjoyed those people who have responded to my Knox City news. I love it just as much as you have. Many people said congrats to me. This has been a great feeling to know people want to know what's going on. I hope I can meet up to your standards of giving the good news right along with the bad. Visiting with Marvin Jones, he talks about the Navy ship he served on and how he loved what he did during his Navy time. He entered the Navy at 17 with his parents signature. He also had a boxing career while serving the country and was a very handsome man. I really miss Sammy White standing next to Marvin at every football game as they raised the flag. Sammy is in bad health and and he, along with all our veterans need to be in our prayers.

Friday night football and the Greyhounds played hard and good. Even though it was pretty chilly, the fans all showed up to see their football team do what they do best. The senior presentation was nice and you could tell the parents were proud.

Saturday evening hosted a beautiful bridal shower for Ashley Espinosa Johnson. She's the daughter of Robert and Sandy Espinosa. It was wonderful. Lots of family was present and of course, Ashley's grandmother along with mom and cousin came from different areas. Ashley's colors were black and White. I really enjoyed myself.

On Sunday, I sat and watched all the golfers get together for the big fundraiser for Alfredo Abila. Friends and family showed up to support the family in lodging, travel and other expenses while Alfredo is going through cancer treatment.21 teams signed up for the 3 person scramble. We would like to thank everyone who participated for all their support at this time of need. Apparently, the fundraiser was a success beyond expectation.

Jeffery Quintana was in town visiting Robert and Sandy Espinosa. He's a KC High graduate.

Thanks again for reading my column- I'll be back next

The 50

Named for the historic FW&D Engine 501, The 501 is always exactly 501 words and dashes long, whatever the topic. Welch, a freelance writer for Blackburn Media Group, divides her time mostly between Abilene and the family farm north of Vernon.

A diller, a dollar, a ten o'clock scholar! What makes you come so soon? You used to come at ten o'clock,

But now you come at noon. If tardiness made scholars, I'd be one.

When my mother used to read me Mother Goose rhymes, "The Ten O'clock Scholar" was one of my favorites. How did that kid get away with being so late to school?

The illustration in my Mother Goose book shows a well-dressed youngster who doesn't look like he's been in any fights or suffered any other trauma on his way to school - not as I recall. He just looks late.

He must have walked and managed to do a lot of dillydallying along the way. What better way to introduce a dilly-dallier than to start with "A diller, a dollar?"

As for scholarliness and tardiness, is there a relationship? Maybe. But isn't the common trait of many scholars simply their aptitude for losing track of time?

I went to a scholarly conference once. It was the worst kind. Scientific.

My presence there? Call me an observer. Or call it a mistake. I was definitely watching from the sidelines. Most of the information presented was over my head. I managed to write about some of it anyway. But what I mostly observed was that those scholars all got so caught up in the information being presented they'd still be sitting there if somebody hadn't made them take breaks and ultimately go home. And that was four years ago.

As for me, I knew exactly when it was time for each coffee break and time for lunch and time to leave town. The on-schedule me emerged.

More often, though, I'm like the scholars. I lose track of time. Maybe I can build on that trait and become a scholar - preferably some sort of linguistic one. I could start with a look at the word "diller."

A scientist probably would use "diller" as a comparative term to describe the "dillness" (also not a word) of a pickle relative to other pickles. Scientists may already have a scale for pickle dillness. They use the Mohs scale for the hardness of rocks - something I remember from junior high science, probably because the name has a Three Stooges

No, I'm no Three Stooges fan. I never did get it, the same way I didn't get that scientific conference - or maybe a different way. If you don't understand the Three Stooges, is it a compliment? I'm asking. Do you remember that skit where they passed around one ten-dollar bill and summarily paid off three twenty-dollar debts? I'm still scratching my

Back to "diller." If nothing else, it's a nonsensical word that sets the tone for a classic sarcastic rhyming reprimand destined, as it were, not to change the nature of any habitually tardy human. I think the writer knew his task was hopeless. Tardy dilly-dalliers don't reform. If anything, they get worse - to wit, ten o'clock to noon.

At best they become scholars.

Trouble sleeping? Sleeping pills not the easy answer HOUSTON - When sleep Alapat, assistant professor of many people depend on them doesn't come easily, some pulmonary, critical care and because they believe they people turn to what they sleep medicine at BCM and cannot sleep without them, think is an easy solution - medical director of the BCM sleeping pills. But according to a Baylor College of Medicine sleep expert, sleep medications - whether prescription or over-thecounter - shouldn't be taken

"All medications have side effects that need to be weighed whenever you take them," cautioned Dr. Phil Sleep Center.

Some most prescription sleep medications are nonbenzodiazepine hypnotics, like Ambien and Lunesta. These medications are not physically addictive and will not cause withdraw symptoms when a person stops taking them. However,

"The difficult point here is determining what is an addiction," Alapat said. "Many patients do tend to become attached to the idea that the medication is required for them to fall asleep."

There are some medications that people use to help them sleep that can become reason, but patients also use them as a sleep aid.

BENJAMIN NEWS By Gladene Green

· We start today with sad news. As 'everyone in this area knows, our friend, Jackie Young, passed away on Thursday night after a courageous battle with cancer. Though it had only been a few short months since the diagnosis, he had been through lots of tests and treatment during that time. But when visiting him, you would not know you would not know how he must've really felt. My sincere sympathy to Mary, Jack Jr. and Debbie and their families. His funeral is today (Monday) here in Benjamin.

We are having some beautiful weather again after a few days of much cooler temperatures. TV guy says we may have rain the last of the week which will make the wheat farmers happy and the cotton farmers not so happy This warm, open weather is good or stripping and the fields are full of machines getting it done. And from what I hear, its all making good. So maybe a lot of it will be out before it rains.

Football Hero and Sweet heart for the 2010 year were elected. Receiving the honors were Seniors Cody Propps and Shelby Russell who the week before were named Harvest King and Queen.

Jr. High Hero and Sweetheart were named Thursday night. Brown and Tristen Salas were picked for these honors. They were Fall Princess and Prince also- Members of the eighth grade class- we may not have had a winning season, but our kids gave it their all and we congratulate them.

Here 'N There

Debbie Moorhouse was in Amarillo last week to be with her daughter, Beckie and family. Beckie's son, Dillon, is a patient in Baptist St. Anthony Hospital being admitted on Monday night. It was first feared that he be going into renal failure, but he is much improved and Doctors are optimistic that he will gain full kidney function. He has had problems for several years. He will have to be very careful and his diet has changed completely but he will be able to deal with that. I ask your prayers for him as he continues to improve. He is 15 years old.

Ray and Mary Ham and children left Saturday for Abilene where they will make their home. We will miss them but surely do wish them0 well0 in their new place of residence.

Jane Gideon and Imagean Young met their sister, Joy Yancey of Wichita Falls in Seymour for a day of visiting. Though they all live close together, with their busy lives, they rarely have a chance for all three to be together at one time, so that was a treat.

Reba Morrill is in Abilene today to see her eye doctor. She's not real sure what her problem is, but the doctor thinks it may have something to do with the retina.

Lana Mendoza was in Arlington Saturday to see her son, Colton Caldwell run in the Regional Cross Country meet. Colton is a Senior in Seymour High School and represented his school well-We congratulate him for his accomplishment.

Ericka Holmes too her daughter Jaycee to her pediatrician in Abilene or a regular check-up (and more shots!) Seems they never get through with the shots.

Connie Porter Fayetteville, Arkansas is here for a few weeks visit with relatives and friends.

Lorene Powers and Gloria West were in Colorado City Wednesday for the funeral of Gloria's aunt, Gwen Claxton.

Judy Carnett enjoyed a few days visit with her sons and their families, Jom Bob Conner at Slaton and Jeff Conner at Wofforth.

My apologies to Betty Lyles I carelessly left her name out of the friends who attended the gravesite rites for Winnie Sue Jones Nall in Truscott last Sunday. The error was not intentional.

How come 4 x 4 on the side; he says she could do 3 for 1 but had it makes all his neighbors to scan 70 of the same thing. I jealous since he is a country

I have been pondering life's queries this week. Like, First weekend of goose if your kid swallows a quarter season and my first city and poops out 2 dimes and a slicker story, y group was nickel is that good or bad? Or headed out to the field about if you get set up on a bind date 5 am on Saturday, when this and your buddies give you a bottle of whiskey and a blind fold should you be nervous? If you take out a big girl on a date and the waiter asks if you would like to order or get a estimate, what do you say?

Well I was sure proud of our country last Tuesday, It was nice to see the regular people get out and vote and maybe we will get some change. If you have noticed our fearless leader has went to India and a host of other countries. He has taken 3000 people with him, he booked up the entire Taj Mahal and is reportedly going to spend upwards of a billion dollars on this vacation and meetings this week. Heck I am not even mad about it; the way I see it, he usually spends a lot more than that in a week.

He also has decided on this trip that he will be visiting the worlds largest Mosque. Wow, that is a shocker, a Muslim going to a Mosque. That would be like me visiting a Buffet are a party for the feet. They in Vegas- it will happen. I have had some tell me he is not a Muslim, I will be more than happy to report he is a Christian as soon as he comes out and says he is or speaks out on behalf of Christians.

My opinion is Obama is the worse President the United States has ever had and the best President ever born in Indonesia.

The funny part about the election is Nancy "I need a face lift " Pelosi was reelected in California. That proves they are definitely the land of "Fruit and Nuts"

Enough on politics, Thanksgiving is right around the corner and which means the annual Junior class hanksgiving supper. Get out and buy some tickets and support the Jr. class. It's hard to believe the Turkey day is just 2 weeks away. That is a Fat Mans holiday, and this Fat Boy has a lot to be thankful for.

My final thought for this week: Reebok has a new shoe out called the Re-Zigs for all my plump neighbors, not you Bruce Skiles- this is the way to go for those of us who do a little walking. Man, they trick your feet into thinking you are 50 lbs. lighter.

I hope everyone has a wonderful week and remember our troops.

PUC Docket No. 38551 Notice of Joint Petition of Ethicon and AEP Texas North Company Pursuant to Public Utility Commission of Texas Substantive Rules 25.342 and 25.343

On August 12, 2010, Ethicon and AEP Texas North Company (TNC) (the Joint Petitioners) filed an application with the Public Utility Commission of Texas (Commission) requesting approval to permit TNC to lease, and operate and maintain, certain delivery infrastructure facilities to Ethicon in connection with Ethicon's manufacturing facility and Ethicon's proposed wind generation project. As part of the proposed leased delivery facilities, TNC proposes to construct a 4,500 foot distribution line to connect Ethicon's wind generation project to serve a portion of Ethicon's electric needs. Ethicon is located in the city of San Angelo and is engaged in the business of manufacturing medical products. TNC is the transmission and distribution provider certificated by the Commission to serve San Angelo. The Joint Petitioners further request that the Commission (1) waive the requirement under the Commission's substantive rule 25.343(f)(4) that Ethicon must have continuously leased the distribution facilities since September 1, 2000, to qualify as a facilities rental customer; and (2) pursuant to a written agreement between TNC and Ethicon, waive the 2011 expiration date contained in TNC's current tariff as it would pertain to a lease agreement between TNC and Ethicon, which would permit TNC and Ethicon to enter into a 25-year lease whereby TNC leases and operates and maintains the distribution facilities necessary to delivery electricity from Ethicon's manufacturing facility from Ethicon's off-site proposed wind generation project and TNC's delivery system. Ethicon and retail electric providers that serve Ethicon will be affected by this application.

Persons who wish to intervene in or comment upon these proceedings, PUC Docket No. 38551, Joint Petition of Ethicon and AEP Texas North Company Pursuant to PUC Subst. R. §25.342 and 25.343, should notify the Commission as soon as possible, as an intervention deadline of December 22, 2010 has been imposed by the Commission. Ten copies of a request to intervene or a request for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, P. O. Box 13326, Austin, Texas 78711-3326 and should reference Docket No. 38551. OPINION

The Paperboy

Veterans deserve the best of America

By CHRIS BLACKBURN

I have several family members who are veterans. I'm very proud of their service.

America's most precious resource are those who have fought to keep us free.

Looking at my wide array of friends, the ones I appreciate the most are veterans.

Like many of you, I know veterans from World War II, Korea, Vietnam, the Gulf War, Iraq and Afghanistan. I also know veterans who have fought in other hotspots.

Some served without incident, others were wounded and some were POWs ... all experienced things a civilian can-

I ran a recent editorial on how veterans make terrific employees. That is very true. When you consider the character, organization and work ethic of a typical veteran, they have many traits which serve them well in the civilian world.

When I see a veteran like my father-in-law who served tours in Vietnam and literally sacrificed his body for this country, it makes me very proud of him and a little angry because we do a rotten job of taking care of our veterans once their service is over.

This county owes her veterans much more than a debt of gratitude. We should be taking better care of our veterans in a variety of areas. From discharge to death, veterans should get the best service possible regardless of what it might entail.

This Thursday, think about those around you who've done us proud. Think of the tax they've paid mentally and physically for their service. Think of the sacrifices they've made to our country. Then think about it more than once or twice a year, because I can assure you they do.

Throw conventional wisdom out of the window.

For 10 weeks, Mark Haub, a professor of human nutrition at Kansas State University, used an unconventional diet and in the process, has thrown a wrench into what we consider good dieting.

Haub munched every three hours on Hostess Twinkies and Little Debbie snacks then munched on Doritos chips, sugary cereals and Oreos to help pacify his hunger.

Haub believed that in weight loss, pure calorie counting is what matters most -- not the nutritional value of the food. His premise held up: he lost 27 pounds in two months.

During that time frame, Haub limited himself to less than 1,800 calories a day. On average, a man his size consumes about 2,600 calories daily. He basically consumed fewer calories than he burned.

Haub's body mass index went from 28.8, which is considered overweight, to 24.9, which is normal. He now weighs 174 pounds, down from 201.

His health improved in other ares as well. His "bad" cholesterol, or LDL, dropped 20 percent and his "good" cholesterol, or HDL, increased by 20 percent. Haub reduced the level of triglycerides, which are a form of fat, by

"That's where the head scratching comes," Haub said. "What does that mean? Does that mean I'm healthier? Or does it mean how we define health from a biology standpoint, that we're missing something?"

Here's a daily sample of Haub's diet:

- Espresso, Double: 6 calories; 0 grams of fat
- Hostess Twinkies Golden Sponge Cake: 150 calories;
- Centrum Advanced Formula From A To Zinc: 0 calories; 0 grams of fat
- Little Debbie Star Crunch: 150 calories; 6 grams of
- Hostess Twinkies Golden Sponge Cake: 150 calories;

- Diet Mountain Dew: 0 calories; 0 grams of fat
- Doritos Cool Ranch: 75 calories; 4 grams of fat
- Kellogg's Corn Pops: 220 calories; 0 grams of fat
- Whole milk: 150 calories; 8 grams of fat
- Baby carrots: 18 calories; 0 grams of fat
- Duncan Hines Family Style Brownie Chewy Fudge: 270 calories; 14 grams of fat
- Little Debbie Zebra Cake: 160 calories; 8 grams of fat • Muscle Milk Protein Shake: 240 calories; 9 grams of
- Totals: 1,589 calories and 59 grams of fat

Despite the success of the diet, Haub does not recommend replicating his diet.

"I'm not geared to say this is a good thing to do," Haub said. "I'm stuck in the middle. I guess that's the frustrating part. I can't give a concrete answer. There's not enough information to do that."

Haub's body fat dropped from 33.4 to 24.9 percent. So what matters more for weight loss, the quantity or quality of calories?

"These foods are consumed by lots of people," he said. "It may be an issue of portion size and moderation rather than total removal. I just think it's unrealistic to expect people to totally drop these foods for vegetables and fruits. It may be healthy, but not realistic."

Pretty amazing. I'm still debating whether or not I'll be sending the wife to certain isles of the grocery store. On second thought, maybe I should go myself.

Rhetoric Must Be Followed Up With Action

By ADAM BITELY

Both Eric Cantor and John Boehner have been hot on the media circuit since the GOP won back control of the House last week. From press conferences, interviews with prominent papers, and releasing documents that shed light on how the next Congress might operate, Boehner and Cantor are the most-watched people in Washington, D.C.

Probable Speaker-Designate John Boehner has published an op-ed in the Wall Street Journal on what the next Speaker must do. Boehner goes as far as to call for a complete moratorium on earmark spending, a minimum of three days for a bill being posted online for all Americans to read before Congress can vote on it, a complete cessation of for the Republicans in the next Congress, has bills being written behind the closed doors of that Congress works. The day after the electhe speaker's office. He went even further on tion, Cantor was out with a 22-page docu-Friday when he called for the first cut of the ment titled "Delivering on our Commitment" next Congress to be lawmakers' salaries.

But despite all the nice rhetoric from Boehner, he is not Speaker vet and has vet to do anything to limit the size and scope of government since last Tuesday's midterm election. So before we go overboard and say "this is what we have been waiting for," we should all be saying, "this sounds good, hopefully this is exactly what the next Congress will be

"comprehensive" legislation, and an end to been on a roll with ideas to reform the way that lays a framework for the next Congress under GOP leadership.

> Cantor's document is great. It calls for serious spending cuts, a review of existing government rules and regulations, and he is calling for an end to legislation that recognizes "individuals, groups, events, and institutions." Further, on page 9 of his document, Cantor calls for all legislation that comes to the House floor to include "demonstration of the Federal Government's constitutional authority to act and why it is not more properly an activity for state or local government."

This is all a great start from Boehner and Cantor. But they have yet to be elected to the offices they seek in the House leadership. The GOP is yet to be sworn in as the majority party in the House and the GOP still hasn't had the power of the purse handed to them.

The rhetoric we hear today fits perfectly in to what the voters declared when they went to polls on November 2. But the rhetoric of today from Boehner and Cantor need to be the actions of tomorrow when they have taken control of the House in January. If they fail to follow through on these simple promises, they will soon found themselves as irrelevant as Nancy Pelosi has become.

The Face of Energy Policy is About to Change

By REBEKAH RAST

These mantras couldn't be more opposite. Now, with Republicans taking the majority in the House, Democrats retaining the Senate and President very outspoken about energy policies, finding a compromise on energy legislation should prove interesting.

Energy is inevitably going to be a hot topic. If nothing is accomplished during the lame-duck session, then starting in January the energy debate is sure to heat up.

It is already known where Obama stands on this issue. With taxpayer stimulus money subsidizing renewable energies and with the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) imposing outrageous restrictions and rules on the current energy sector, his stance is pretty clear. And much of it doesn't fit into the Republican agenda.

Republicans would like to see more drilling exploration off America's shores and more uranium mining for nuclear energy and less government involvement in the free-market system with regards to renewable energies.

It is well-known that both Republicans and Democrats have at times faltered on their energy agendas in the past leading to disappointment within their own parties and for the American people. Leading to the question of what can we expect from the Republicans in the House this time?

Much can be derived from looking at past mistakes Republicans have made in this area, hoping they have learned from their mistakes, as well as looking at the new Chairmen taking over the House's energy committees.

"As energy takes the stage, Republicans need to remember why they are in the majority," says Americans for Limited Government's President Bill Wilson. "It's not because of their past energy agendas; it is so they can bring the right kind of energy policies to America that will limit government involvement in the sector — something they haven't always done in the past."

It is important to note that both Republicans and Democrats have been partial to government-funded subsidies for the energy sector. Though the Democrats prefer to subsidize renewable energies and the Republicans tend to support nuclear energy and natural gas production through similar tax credits and subsidies, it's all the same, and it's not good for America's free market system.

Because Obama lost control of the government's purse strings — the House — he might be more inclined to try to push making natural gas, oil and coal more expensive and more difficult to produce in America rather than a hefty capand-trade bill. The EPA has already had a big hand in this with its expanding regulations on dust; ozone; conductivity of water in Appalachia, which would essentially put a stop to coal mining in the U.S.; industrial boilers; and water-cooling

Though Republicans would do well to stand against all of this, including putting a stop to the EPA's egregious actions, they haven't always in the past.

The 2004 Republican platform largely supported President George W. Bush's strong backing of using ethanol as fuel. It wasn't until 2008 that the Republican's changed their stance, touting that the government should end its ethanol mandate and let the free market work.

Let's hope this current Republican platform sticks for these next two years.

Another key component as to what Republicans will support or oppose in the ways of energy policies can be derived from looking at the encouraged policies of the possible Committee Chairmen for the House Committees on Natural Resources and Energy and Commerce.

The probable Chairman for the House Committee on Natural Resources is Rep. Doc Hastings (R-WA). According to his website, Rep. Hastings supports an "All-Of-The-Above" Energy Plan, which consists of:

- Promotes alternative energy sources like wind and solar.
- Expands non-emitting nuclear power- and moves Yucca Mountain forward.
- Protects clean, renewable hydropower dams from those who are trying to tear them out.
- Drills offshore, in Alaska and on federal lands.

Tom Pyle, President of the Institute of Energy Research (IER), in post-election release expressed concern with an "All-Of-The-Above" approach to energy because, "With this new political landscape, President Obama will try to advance his energy agenda in piecemeal fashion. Some Republicans will be tempted to go along with the President to support misguided notions of their 'all-of-the-above' energy policy. While 'all-of-the-above' makes for a good rhetorical device, it is deeply flawed as an actual policy since it seeks to increase federal involvement in all types of energy production."

In his defense, Rep. Hastings has a strong record of encouraging energy production and exploration in America and even on its protected federal lands.

One contender of the Chairman for the House Committee on Energy and Commerce is current ranking member Rep. Joe Barton (R-TX). Though Rep. Barton faces the hurdle of term limits set by the GOP, he has asked for a waiver in order to serve as Chairman of the committee.

In his letter asking for support to become Chairman, he wrote, "Over the past four years, as Ranking Member of the Committee on Energy and Commerce, I have led the charge against radical cap-and-trade legislation, fought the new entitlements and mandates that are the rotten core of President Obama's health care law, and consistently applied free market principles to legislative decisions."

If Rep. Barton does not make the cut, the next favored Chairman of the committee is Rep. Fred Upton (R-MI), states a committee press release. Rep. Upton is the current chairman of the Energy and Environment Subcommittee and also supports the "All-Of-The-Above" American Energy Act (H.R.

All of these ranking members, presumably soon to become Chairmen of these committees, know the nation's energy problems and have some good ideas as to how to fix them.

The new House of Representatives is tasked with finding solutions and compromises to America's energy needs while remaining true to its pledges to the American people. As proved Nov. 2, the American people's patience is running

The Republicans have the power to do things right and create a sustainable, cost-effective and efficient energy plan for America. If they don't, their majority in the House might be

from Milk to Stars

Its very name reveals how wrong the ancients were about the nature of the Milky Way, but understandably so. When seen under the dark skies of our ancestors, the densest part of our galaxy does rather look like someone spilled milk across the night sky.

The earliest astronomers, of course, knew it wasn't milk, but they weren't sure what it was. Many thought it to be cosmic cloudiness (what we now called nebulosity), but others began to suspect otherwise.

In the days long before eyeglasses and telescopes, it was noted that when viewing the Milky Way those with good eyesight could make out more individual stars than those with poorer vision. Thus it seemed reasonable to suspect that the Milky Way contained more individual stars than even the very keenest eyesight could

It wasn't until 1610 when Galileo viewed the Milky

T h e Way with his new telescope Milky that this theory gained observational verification. As he trained his telescope on the Milky Way's

"cosmic clouds," the clouds disappeared and in their place he saw countless individual stars. He wrote: "The Milky Way...is nothing else than a congeries of innumerable stars distributed in clusters."

But as is often the case with scientific discoveries, new knowledge begs new questions. Neither Galileo nor his contemporaries knew what stars really were nor their distance. Many thought them to be planetsized objects made of a special unearthly substance illuminated by sunlight and situated some tens of millions of miles from Earth.

ideas that seem prescient in their accuracy. One was Giordano Bruno, a priest and contemporary of Galileo. His unorthodox religious ideas ultimately got him burned at the stake for heresy, but he also dabbled in cosmic speculations. He suggested that the stars were suns like our own, and that each had planets which were probably inhabited.

There is indication that Galileo as well as Johannes Kepler came to share similar views, yet none of them had a shred of evidence to back their views. That wouldn't come until long after their deaths.

In today's urban areas, the Milky Way is obscured by light pollution. But if you live in or can steal away to a dark sky site, the magnificent Milky Way can now be seen stretching from the southwest to the northeast in the early evening. By morning it arches from south to north, tilting a bit to the west. It's worth the drive.

medications, such Ambien, really has no place as a sleep aid," Alapat said.

One of the most common over-the-counter sleep aids is the nutritional supplement melatonin, which does help to promote sleep for some people, he said. It is more commonly used in situations such as jet lag, where it may be beneficial. It is not an FDA regulated substance, however, and so people don't always know what they're getting when they buy melatonin.

Over-the-counter sleeping pills may also antihistamines and while these can help a person sleep, they have other side effects, including dry eyes and mouth. They may also cause an altered mental state, and this can be especially concerning in older adults, Alapat said.

But before turning to any type of sleep aid, Alapat recommends visit to a physician, and more specifically a sleep disorders specialist.

"A lot of patients who complain of insomnia may have some other medical condition that needs to be addressed," he said. "Without addressing those other issues, the use of medications is often

Underlying conditions that may affect sleep include, but are not limited to, sleep apnea, restless legs syndrome and depression.

"There are many other medical disorders that should be evaluated before the diagnosis of insomnia can be reached," Alapat

Medication is usually only a small part, if any, of a treatment plan for patients who suffer from insomnia and other sleep issues, Alapat said, and should not be considered a long-term

Nov. is Adoption wareness month

November is Adoption Month, a month set aside each year to raise awareness about the adoption of infants, children and youth from foster care as well as placement private agencies. November always reminds us to celebrate both birth families that have made the selfless decision to place their children for adoption, adoptive families who have expanded their natural families through adoption November 20, 2010, will mark the 11th year for National Adoption Day.

Goals of Adoption Day 2010 include finalizing adoptions in all 50 states, celebrating and honoring all families that adopt, raising awareness about the children in foster care waiting for their adoptive families, encouraging others to adopt, and building collaboration among adoption agencies. Keeping with goals, The Teen Pregnancy Prevention Coalition will meet on Wednesday, November 10th, at United Way, 2207 Line Avenue, from 12:00 to 1:30. The topic for the meeting will be "adOPTION, the Unselfish Option." At the meeting a panel will discuss various issues related to adoption. The panel will include a representative of openness, adoption as an

from an adoption agency who will explain about "open adoption," a teen parent who has placed an infant for adoption, an adoptive parent who has been selected by the birth mother using open adoption, an adult adoptee who was adopted before open adoption and who has searched for and found biological mother, and a representative from Child Protective Services.

Child placing agencies in the Panhandle area are working together to form the Panhandle Coalition for Foster/Adoptive Families. The goal of this Coalition is to bring awareness to the option of adoption, and provide training and support to foster and adoptive families.

Adoption has changed drastically over the past 30 years. A practice that used to be shrouded with secrecy is now an open and celebrated practice. There are three levels of openness practiced in adoptions today from CLOSED where there is no ongoing contact between the triad members (adoptive families, birth families and child); SEMI-OPEN where non identifying information is shared and contact is facilitated by a third party; OPEN where identifying information is shared and contact is maintained by the parties. No matter the level as secret, but celebrated as a way to ensure all members' needs are met. One way in which to accomplish this task is to use positive adoption language that will help end the myth that adoption is second best. By using positive adoption language, there will be true reflection of the nature of adoption, free of stereotypes, as a selfless, loving option.

Please remember that birth families choosing an adoptive plan are making a selfless choice to give their child a home and family by choosing an adoptive family with room in their heart and their home for a special and chosen child.

USDA Provides Support to Rehabilitate Farmland Damaged by Natural Disasters

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8, to producers in eight states. 2010 — U.S. Department A total of $53.8 million in of Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack today said that farmers and ranchers will receive additional Emergency Conservation Program (ECP) funds to repair farmland damaged by natural disasters in 2010.

"President Obama and I are committed to helping farmers and ranchers restore farmland severely damaged by natural disasters as part of continued efforts to provide a safety net to producers, support food and fiber production and improve the environment," said Vilsack.

An additional $8.9 million is being provided to farmers and ranchers in affected areas. Previously this fiscal year (2011), $2.3 million in ECP funding was provided ECP funding was provided to producers in 38 states in fiscal year 2010.

Producers may ECP assistance to remove farmland debris, restore fences, grade and shape land, and repair existing conservation structures damaged by drought, floods and other natural disasters and to implement

For land to be eligible, the natural disaster must have created new conservation problems on that land, that:

· If untreated, will impair or endanger the land;

· Materially affects the land's productive capacity; ·Represent unusual damage that, except for wind erosion, is not likely to recur frequently in the same area; and, Would be so costly to disaster is not eligible for cost-share assistance. USDA's Farm Service Agency (FSA) county committees determine if land is eligible for ECP by conducting on-site damage inspections that take into account the type and extent of damage.

Counties in Texas that received funding were Hidalgo, Starr and Willacy in the amount of $7.2 million for hurricane relief.

It's often been said, "If you really want to know what's going on, just follow the money." Say for instance, a family opens a savings account. Then a local businessman needs a loan to expand. He grows his business and hires new employees. They've got kids and some shopping to do. So the stores need to add inventory. This chain is called, "the local economy." We don't break the chain, we keep your money working right here in the community.
