Second Front Is Big Problem For Military Leaders

By DeWitt MacKenzie
Wide World War Analyst
The spectacle of a vast concourse of people milling about in London's ancient Trafalgar Square, shouting for a second front to support the hard-pressed Russians, is further exemplification of the truth of a remark made to be the other day by a distinguished Pennsylvania publisher—that few war problems have so gripped public imagination as this one.
Warnings that the feasibility of such a hazardous operation cannot be decided by the public, but must be left to the Allied high command, seem to have little effect. Indeed the significant moment of the Trafalgar demonstration came when Dr. Haden Guest, Laborite member of Parliament, told the assemblage that an effort to establish a new front might mean an attempt at counter-invasion of England by Hitler, and asked if they were ready for this. The crowd roared "yes".

It would be worth much to know whether the demonstrators believed Dr. Haden Guest, or whether they thought he was "spoofing" them, as the Englishman says. Actually, of course, he was speaking a great truth. That's one of the grave risks the Allies must run when they undertake this unprecedented task.
Should the attempt to invade the continent meet with disaster, it's likely that the Nazi chief would strike forthwith at the British Isles. (Continued on Page Two)

Propose Dropping Of Personal Exemptions
WASHINGTON (AP)—A representative of the New York Board of Trade proposed to the Senate finance committee Monday that it amend the $6,271,000,000 tax bill by removing personal income tax exemptions so as to raise an additional $5,000,000,000 revenue.

Suggesting a sales tax as an alternative, M. E. Seidman, chairman of the New York board's taxation committee, urged the imposition of a flat 10 per cent war tax on all net income now free of federal levies because of personal exemptions or credits for dependents.

WPB Sets Big Goal For Scrap Campaign

Texas quota was set at 685,000 tons.

U. S. Bombardiers Attack Jap Tent Camp On Island

500-Pound Bombs Are Dropped By Flying Fortresses In Raid

By Keith Wheeler
(Copyright, 1942 Chicago Times, Inc.)

Aboard fortress bomber enroute from Kiska (AP)—Ten minutes ago our bomb bay doors opened and disgorged two tons of dynamite on the Japanese tent city at Kiska Island.

Nine minutes and forty-five seconds ago the first bomb struck down there under the mist. At two-second intervals the others followed and laced through Kiska's Tundra Valley with the insensate fury of TNT.

The yellow painted 500-pound packages have done such work as high explosive and flying steel can do and by now, one supposes, the living are counting the dead.
Bad Flying Weather

We are not waiting for that roar of seven minutes we dived through soup so thick, our Japanese playmate in the fighter plane did not care to follow. And that ended the 50-caliber attentions with which he had favored us during the hour and ten minutes we spent over the target.

Two minutes have passed since we broke through the bottom of the mile-deep Aleutian fog and now we are boring along ten feet off the water bound toward our base many hundreds of miles away somewhere in the Aleutians.

Thus another bombing raid on Kiska comes to us successful a conclusion as any raid can hope for in this world's worst flying weather.

Committee Divided On Sales Tax Plan
WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Finance Committee approved its first decisions on the new revenue program Monday, with its membership widely divided on the question of a sales tax.

Chairman George (D-Ga) declared that some new form of taxation must be found if the treasury's over-all goal of $8,700,000,000 in new revenue is to be reached. As approved by the House, the measure now before the Senate committee provides a return of only $6,271,000,000.

Bombers Again Attack Tobruk
CAIRO (AP)—A heavy force of bombers blasted the Axis supply port of Tobruk again Sunday night, touching off fires and explosions and scoring a direct hit on an enemy ship, British headquarters announced Monday.

The attack was the second in two nights, following a heavy assault Saturday in which United States heavy bombers took a prominent part.
American airmen reported a big area of Tobruk lit up by blazing gasoline after the Saturday night raid. They called this their most successful operation of the African campaign although thick layers of clouds often prevented them from seeing the target.

Americans Get Rest
American airmen did not participate in Sunday night's Tobruk raid.
Long range fighters of the RAF meanwhile attacked Axis barges off Sidi Barrani, another enemy supply port on the Egyptian side of the Libyan frontier, a communique said.

Low clouds and dust storms were reported to have limited aerial operations in the battle area, where the Germans and Italians were said to be digging in, in anticipation of a renewal of the desert battle in which they were driven from ridge positions west of El Alamein.
Ground operations yesterday again were limited to minor skirmishes and desultory artillery fire, headquarters said.

ROME (From Italian Broadcasts)—(AP)—The Italian high command reported Monday that Axis forces repulsed a new British attack on the southern sector of the El Alamein front and had captured a number of prisoners.

Girls Scouts Start Scrap Metal Drive In Midland County

There is enough scrap metal in Midland County to go a long way toward building a battleship, and the Girl Scouts of Midland started Monday a home-to-home canvass to remind everybody to assist in gathering this scrap. More than 50 of the girls, under the direction of Mrs. A. P. Shirey, commissioned, and the several troop leaders, met at the Scout Craft room in the First Baptist Church and received final instructions.

Bill Collyns, Chamber of Commerce manager, spoke to the young workers, reporting that one large shipbuilding plant had been forced to shut down because of the lack of scrap metal, and that scraps might be forced to close if other scrap gathering drive lags.

Collyns Urges Speed
"It is estimated that there is enough ungathered scrap metal in Texas to last all shipbuilding plants for six months," said Collyns, and we must rush this work. Every day lost may mean lack of supplies for our men at the front, and a delay in our war plans. With many blast furnaces now shut down, we must hurry."

The girls are asking all residents to place metal and other scrap on the curbs in front of their homes, where collection will be made by trucks.

Directing the work of the girls are the troop leaders, including Mrs. Harold E. Berg, Mrs. G. N. Ely, Mrs. R. M. Turpin, Mrs. L. T. Boynton, Mrs. Guy McMillan, Mrs. Walter Wheaton, Mrs. R. R. Ford, Mrs. J. C. Williamson, Mrs. W. G. Clark, Jr., and Mrs. John W. Linsley, Jr.

Phillips Extends Deep Ellenburger Pool In Andrews
By Frank Gardner
Oil Editor
The Embur Ordovician pool of Southern Andrews County, recently opened by Phillips Petroleum Company No. 2 University-Andrews, has been extended southwest and northwest by a pair of Phillips wells.

Five-eighths of a mile northwest of the pool opener, Phillips No. 4 University-Andrews flowed an estimated 125 to 150 barrels of oil hourly on drillstem test from 7,755 to 7,860 feet, with an estimated two to three million cubic feet of gas per day. Test was run for 41 minutes, in the Ellenburger zone of the lower Ordovician, and the well showed first gas in six minutes. It started flowing mud at the 26-minute mark and gradually cleared up until it was making practically pure oil at the end of the test. Operator now is running 5 1/2-inch casing which will be cemented at approximately 7,805 feet.

Phillips No. 3 University-Andrews, diagonal southwest offset to the discovery, recovered 270 feet of drilling mud and 900 feet of mud liberally cut with oil and gas when a one-hour drillstem test was taken of horizon from 7,753 to 7,836 feet. The well is being drilled ahead at 7,846 feet in Ellenburger dolomite.

Goodman Election Full, Unexpired Terms Is Assured
James H. Goodman seemed assured of election as state representative of the 88th district, according to figures compiled at noon Monday, in which he had total of 4,759 votes to 2,569 for R. B. Rawlins of Monahans. Reports on the results of the vote for the unexpired term were less complete but indicated the same proportion for Goodman.
It appeared that the total vote in the district would run less than 10,000.
Complete results are in on the full term from Midland, Ector, Jeff Davis, Loving, Martin, Upton and Ward counties, and partial from Reeves and Winkler. Goodman carried all these except Ward County which gave Goodman 403 to 890 for Rawlins.
Midland County gave Goodman 1,395 votes to 474 for Rawlins in the race for the unexpired term, the canvass made at noon Monday showed.

Germans Storm Into Bataisk And Drive Into Caucasus Area

By Clyde A. Farnsworth
Associated Press War Editor
Berlin announced Monday a 20-mile penetration of the Caucasus, south of Rostov on the Don, on the main rail route into Russia's greatest oil fields, but farther up the Don, in the Tsimlyansk area where the invaders had forced at least two crossings, the Germans had been halted, Moscow said.

South of Rostov, said the German high command, German troops stormed into Bataisk after a day of fighting in which a terrific aerial assault broke a path for them.
The Germans, without details, said that farther east along the Don mechanized detachments continued their southward drive. It was there the Russians said they had been checked in the Tsimlyansk area.

Threaten Stalingrad
To the northeast German and Rumanian infantry divisions, the German communique said, were threatening Stalingrad on a broad front, having reached a Don area about 50 miles from their goal. Stalingrad, industrial capital of the lower Volga, lies near an elbow of that river, within 50 miles of the Don Bend.
"Northwest of Kalatsch," said the Berlin communique, "tank detachments and mechanized troops are in violent battle with Soviet tank and infantry forces which are trying desperately to hold hilly ground west of the (Don) river."

Violent Air Assaults
The location of "Kalatsch" suggested that the Germans meant Kachalino, just east of the Don, some 30 miles northwest of Stalingrad. "Kalatsch" does not appear on non-German maps.
The Germans added that violent air assaults spanned the Don, directed at Volga River and railway communications.
A vast area of steppe land, within the big bend of the Don, was overhung by the smoke of battle through which the German planes and the Red Air Force, using numbers of United States bombers and fighters, plunged their bomb loads.

Reaches Gravest Stage
The Battle of Russia has reached its gravest stage thus far in 1942. Berlin claimed that the strongly fortified town of Bataisk had been captured by forces which engulfed Rostov last week and later spanned (Continued on page six)

Tiny Craft Is Sunk By Axis Submarine
By The Associated Press
The tiniest craft yet to be sunk by an Axis submarine—a 30-ton Canadian fishing schooner—was disclosed as the three hundred ninety-ninth Allied or neutral war victim in the Western Atlantic as tabulated unofficially by The Associated Press.

The crew of 11 survived the attack and rowed 100 miles to an Eastern Canadian port.
A total of 108 seamen were killed and 548 passengers and crewmen rescued in 15 merchant ship sinkings announced last week. Sixty-one persons were reported missing.

Jap Face-Saving Plan Backfired
By The Associated Press
Accounts of a Japanese face-saving effort that backfired, of a vast web of Oriental intrigue with which Japan prepared for her conquests and of bitter suffering of American and other nationals who fell into Japanese hands were given over the week-end by Associated Press correspondents newly freed from Japanese detention.

Their dispatches came from Lourenco Marques, Portuguese East Africa, where the exchange of some 11,000 citizens of the United States and other American nations for a similar number of Japanese and Thai nationals has just taken place. The liner Gripsholm, now bearing the Americans—diplomats, newspapermen, missionaries and others—is to sail for New York Tuesday.

Plan Flopped
The face-saving attempt which flopped was related by Max Hill, chief of The Associated Press bureau in Tokyo when war came.
After the first trumpeting to the world that aims of the American bombers which raided Tokyo April 18 were knocked down, the Japanese reduced their claims to one and put the "wreckage" on display in Tokyo to prove it. Japanese who came to gaze smelled paint and, sure enough, the red, white and blue of the U. S. Air Force which had been freshly daubed on still was wet.

Tells Of Plot
Hill told of long weeks he spent in solitary confinement in freezing weather bereft of his shoes and with scant food; of the taunt of a sullen guard: "American! This is Japan!"
Rehman Morin, Associated Press chief of bureau in Tokyo from 1937 to 1940 who travelled through Southeast Asia on a pre-war assignment, told of the workings of Japanese-Thai intrigue and fifth column activities which laid the groundwork for Japan's quick successes in Malaya and Burma.

Germany's Second Largest City And Submarine Building Center Blasted
By The Associated Press
LONDON (AP)—The big port of Hamburg, Germany's second largest city and greatest submarine building center, was hit hard Sunday night by the Royal Air Force in its heaviest assault on the Reich since the 1,000-plane bombing of Bremen last Sunday night.

Without disclosing the number of bombers participating in the attack—the sixth on Hamburg this year and ninety-first since the war began—a communique announced that 29 of the raiders failed to return.
Large Striking Force
On the basis of losses of slightly under five per cent, which the British have reported as the cost of similar recent heavy raids, this would suggest a striking force of at least 600 planes.

The communique said a "very strong force" attacked the city of 1,700,000 population whose Blohm and Voss shipyards alone are said to have a capacity to build 25 U-boats at a time, and whose war industries, working day and night, include oil refineries, explosives works and a big seaplane factory.
(The German high command reported "fairly heavy civilian casualties" in the raid on Hamburg and added that "a number of buildings, almost all in residential quarters, were destroyed or damaged.")
Germans Bomb Ex-ranger
German raiders, striking at England out of the low clouds of the early morning, bombed 23 areas, including one within 50 miles of London.

Two brief daylight alerts were sounded in the capital and for the first time in many months world-bound residents of inland communities saw bombers marked with the black cross sweep low to the attack, then dodge back into the clouds with aircraft fire around them and British fighters roaring in pursuit.
The German bombers, for the most part operating singly, machine-gunned streets and houses and dropped bombs on Western England, the South, the Midlands, the East Coast, and towns and villages of East Anglia.
Casualties Increase
Casualties (their number not disclosed) mounted with late reports of persons trapped in the wreckage of their homes or dug out by sweating rescue crews.
The Hamburg attack was the fourth attack on Germany in six nights, and followed a series of raids on Dutch territory.

Walker's Condition Remains Critical
A second blood transfusion was given Monday noon to A. E. (Whitey) Walker, who was stabbed Friday night at the TP Cafe, the Western Clinic Hospital reported. Walker is in a very critical condition.
Hospital authorities requested that no more calls be made to the hospital regarding Walker's condition. A complete report will be carried daily in The Reporter-Telegram.
Complaints were filed by County Attorney Merritt F. Hines Monday charging assault with intent to murder in the stabbing against J. C. Stevens, D. C. Rutherford and Guy Rhodes, all of Midland. The three men were transferred from the city jail to the county jail to await hearing in justice of the peace court. They will be arraigned before Justice of the Peace B. C. Gentry.
Walker was struck by several glasses and bottles, and then was stabbed when he refused to sell beer to the trio.

How Good Men Go Wrong

Meditating upon the fallacy of human judgment, the perils of prognostication and the blind spots of skilled observers, we turned back to the January issue of a national publication to reread an article by a veteran press association correspondent who spent more than a dozen years in Tokyo.

The thesis of the article may be judged from this statement, quoted by the writer with approval and agreement:

"As a matter of cold fact, Japan as a Great Power is a hollow bubble, blown almost to the bursting point."
Thenceforth the article went on to assert, among other things, that:

Japanese fleets are not capable of operating successfully far from their bases... But remember Pearl Harbor. The people of Japan individually lack initiative... But remember what happened in the Philippines, at Singapore, in the Aleutians.

Nippon has no ships for overseas commerce because all are needed to supply the expeditionary forces in China... But remember the other expeditionary forces Japan moved by sea, while carrying on the war in China.

Gasoline is so scarce that Japanese water police could not operate their launches... But there seemed to be plenty for the planes that devastated Hawaii, captured Guam and Wake, the Philippines and Hongkong and Singapore and Burma, and bombed Australasia.

Finally, quoted with approval as of today:
"As a menace to any country of any fighting consequence, Japan does not exist. As a first-class power, Japan is a myth."

These conclusions become significant in the light of their timing—for publication almost simultaneously with the first onslaught of that war in which, up to date, the Japanese have beaten us badly.

Looks pretty bad, doesn't it? One might say that this veteran newsmen scored close to zero. But that would be unfair. In spite of this and other equally erroneous appraisals of Japanese potentialities, this correspondent's batting average was ordinarily rather high.

What is the moral, and what does it all matter? Just this: It is easy to second guess, in war. Almost any reasonably intelligent analyst can make the experts look like simpletons, after the event.

Remember how Hitler's experts worked with the Russians intimately, and knew to the last uniform button what the Reds possessed—on the strength of which the Nazis began a three-month stroll through Russia which still is going on.

They Should Get Together

On the 27th day of June Capt. C. C. Poole, British army officer and M. P., was quoted by the Galveston News as saying that enough supplies were lying idle on U. S. wharves, for lack of shipping space, to turn the tide of battle in the Middle East.

Captain Poole was on a tour of shipyards under sponsorship of the National Maritime Commission. It is to be supposed that he spoke with authority.

On the 6th of July W. Averell Harriman, U. S. lease-lend administrator, was quoted in the Chicago Journal of Commerce as saying that "there is no lack of ships presently to supply our needs on all allied fronts."

Admiral Vickers of the Maritime Commission has said officially that the United Nations, as a whole, still are losing ships faster than they are being replaced.

Obviously somebody is wrong. Who is it? The preponderance of evidence is on the side of Captain Poole and Admiral Vickers. Yet Harriman certainly occupies a position to know the truth, and there is no apparent reason for him to gloss over unpleasant facts.

It is any wonder that the public is bewildered by such completely different stories, coming from presumably reliable experts?

We have a similar situation in connection with rubber. Elliot E. Simpson, counsel to a congressional committee, claims there is no rubber shortage—that if not a pound of synthetic were manufactured, we could supply both military and civilian needs for five years from recapturable scrap.

Government officials, subordinate experts, private rubber interests agree almost 100 per cent that the rubber shortage is so serious that we might even lose the war because of it, unless we act speedily and mercilessly against wastage.

Simpson retorts that those who disagree with him are biased toward the big four companies of the rubber industry, who, he says, know there is no shortage and are seeking to preserve a monopoly by frightening the public.

The rest of the rubber fraternity dismisses Simpson as a victim of his own fancies.

Why can't experts get together, agree on the truth, and tell it?

—Buy War Bonds And Saving Stamps—
What About Pearl Harbor?

The Navy Department's report on the Midway engagement is clear, as complete probably as in war it should be, and encouraging. Its contents, particularly the damage to the Yorktown, explain why it was withheld so long.

Now how about as lucid a story on Pearl Harbor, which is rapidly receding to the historical antiquity of the War of the Roses? And how about a preliminary explanation of the mystery of the Aleutians? The weather story is true, but hardly satisfying. Do the Japs carry good weather for themselves which is bad weather for us, like one-way glass?

The Plea From Russia

Superstitions Blasted By New Photographer

COLUMBUS, O. (AP)—You are probably one of those persons who cross their fingers to ward off bad luck, refuse to light three smokes on a match or carries a piece of red flannel to relieve rheumatism—but give members of the animal world a little more credit than mythology allows. They are not nearly so "superstitious" as you probably think.

A photographer went to the Columbus zoo to find out what animals will or will not do when confronted with "man-made" myths. His work was recorded by camera. The "debunking" tour was a complete success — revealing the following:

Elephants don't mind mice—they merely sniffed at them, then went back to peanut hunting.
Snakes will cross a rope even if it scratches their stomachs—at least a couple of big rattlers traversed over one woven of horsehair.
Ostriches don't hide their heads in sand or earth when frightened—they use their capable legs to travel from the area.

The photographer departed from the zoo satisfied that, among other things, porcupines do not throw their quills, elephants do forget, bees will sting even if you ignore them, and that beavers are not always busy.

WASHINGTON (AJP)—Despite appropriation slashes totaling $1,319,983,208 in "non-essential" expenditures by the present Congress, a joint Senate-House committee declared that "the possibilities for economies have been no more than scratched."

Five American Navy Officers Finally Reach Australia

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA. (AP)—Five U. S. naval officers who escaped from the Philippines in a primitive native outrigger sailing boat just a step ahead of the Japanese arrived Monday in Australia after an adventurous two months' journey.
They sailed for weeks in their small craft with their only navigation aids an alarm clock, a compass, a page torn from a schoolbook atlas and a radio which worked part of the time. Eventually they were picked up by a ship and brought here.

The five, deeply tanned, in good spirits and in good health, are: Lieut. Commander Alexander Simmons, Los Angeles; Lieut. Carl Farles, Atlanta; Lieut. Ellis P. Skelfield, Asheville, N. C.; Lieut. Daniel Dorsey, Baltimore; and Lieut. William Lipsett New Bedford, Mass.
Their story was one of perseverance against heavy odds, of skill, and good luck.

John W. Burnett, son of Mrs. J. A. Mascho of Midland, arrived at an East African port late last week, and soon will return to the United States, the family learned Monday. He had been interned in Japan, and is returning as an exchange for a Japanese diplomat held in the United States.

Young Burnett has been in Tokyo about two years, attached to the office of the United States Ambassador, Joseph Crew. At the declaration of war he was interned along with other members of the staff.

Mr. and Mrs. Mascho expect him to visit in Midland as soon as he completes his report at Washington.

Second Front

He long has had a fleet of invasion barges ready for such an attempt, and apart from water transport he could move troops and equipment by air. He could spare troops from the Russian theater, if necessary, by performing a holding operation there. Many readers will remember how old Kaiser Wilhelm shunted troops back and forth across Europe during the first World War when he was fighting on two fronts.

Won't Miss Next Chance
Under such circumstances Hitler might succeed, and if he smashed Britain he presumably would be able to defend Europe indefinitely against all comers. Military experts are agreed that had the Nazi Fuehrer tried an invasion at the time of the Dunkerque disaster, he probably would have ended the war then and there, for Britain was all but defenseless. He knows that now as well as the next chap, and isn't likely to let another chance slip through his fingers.

Even at best, the establishment of a second front is going to be a costly affair. This column has mentioned that before, though avoiding uncomfortable details, but since American boys will be in this show it's well for us to recognize that there is bound to be a heavy loss of life.

Price Of Success
You can't put half a million, or maybe a million, men ashore from barges in the face of heavy defenses without heavy sacrifice. Many men must die: a great fleet of vessels, both warships and supply craft, will be sunk; an armada of warplanes will be destroyed. That will be the dangerous price even of success.

Of course, American, Britain and all the Allies are ready to make great sacrifices. We are prepared to dare greatly. We aren't going to hold back because of fear. But it is absurd to leap without taking a look first. The last thing the Russians want the Allies to do is commit suicide for the sake of sentiment.

The amount of risk we are warranted in taking must depend on the situation on the Russian front, and the Allied high command must decide that.

"They take their Chances"
WINSTON CHURCHILL

The British Prime Minister tells Commons that the newspapers were more fully informed on the battle for Egypt than the government itself.
The reason: "War correspondents were allowed to roam all over the battlefield, to take their chances of being killed. This is what the press has always asked for and this is what they got."
Associated Press reporters took plenty of chances as they have from the start of the African campaign when an AP correspondent, Godfrey H. P. Anderson, was captured by the Italians.
AP man Harry Crockett suffered injuries when he dived under a truck to escape Nazi dive bombers.
AP veteran Edward Kennedy, Pulitzer Prize winner Larry Allen and many others stayed on the job night and day to send ALL the news to this and 1400 other Associated Press newspapers.
They take their chances. Yes.
But it's all in the day's work, the kind of work that has kept AP newspapers First at the Front for a Century!

Fabrics Are Lead Story In Style News For The New Fall Clothes

Fresh, Colorful Materials Liven Simple Patterns

By Marguerite Young
NEA Service Staff Writer
NEW YORK —Every day there's a new story of how Hollywood "doodit"—made a really 1942-looking fall film wardrobe out of perfectly simple patterns, but with interesting fabrics.

And every day brings fall fashion forecasts which show very plainly that goods—new combinations of colors in the fabric and unusual, interest-getting surfaces—will be a lead story this time. So put one and one together, particularly if you are war-budget-bound, and plan to build your wardrobe with all your fabric-sense working. By keeping in mind fabric-freshness, you can choose ready-made clothes more wisely. If you make your own clothes, and go looking for nice fabrics, you may wind up in the linen department or the upholstery department, and you're sure to make individual, interesting clothes.

TWO SHADES OF SAME COLOR ARE USED WIDELY
A vivid trio of costumes for Evelyn Keyes may give you some ideas, for in these fabrics do practically all the style-creating work elaborate dress-making did in pre-war days. Evelyn has a gay and casual, and very action-worthy shirt and dirndl—warm red, blue, green and yellow plaid shirt; bright blue jersey skirt with a mand of the plaid, fringed.

Cotton jerseys and cotton pile fabrics make costumes like that—just as interesting costumes as wool. And you'll see them worn this winter. Cotton velveteens and corduroys and even some nicely textured cotton prints that used to be considered strictly upholstery and drapery fabrics—for instance, medium-weight textured cottons of honeycomb or diagonal weave. Such surfaces make a definite appeal of their own, to the eye as well as to the touch, and therefore they are admirably suited to simple—simple dressmaking.

Terry cloth is another possibility. Highly imaginative designers used it last spring, will use more of it this fall, especially in combination with other fabrics such as velveteen.

Two shades of the same color, another important fall 1942 idea, appear in Evelyn's corduroy suit with perfectly straight, slim skirt and patch pockets. The skirt is brown, there's a lighter, almost golden jacket, and the trimming is self-covered buttons combining the two materials. Then, there's a brown-and-chartruese suit of wool knit stuff in stripes. The stripes supply all of the suit's distinction. They are used vertically for the skirt, horizontally for the jacket.

A "warm look" is going to be fashionable this fall. Many rayon materials, and blended rayon-and-wool ones, offer you a suggestion for achieving it. Rayon matelasse cords, which are dull-surfaced and bulky looking, are a surprise success of the current manufacturers' collections, especially black, tan, brown, and medium grey ones. Important, too, are homespun effects, including mesh weaves and diagonal weaves of loose construction. Least expensive groups use prints that look like very merry plaids, checks and stripes.

Whatever you select, you might remember that this is a year to know what the fabric that you're buying is made of. Rayons can be warm, can look very like wool. Likewise, cottons. But each fabric requires its own kind of care, and the wise shopper therefore looks for a label telling exactly what the material is, or she asks the store before she makes her choice.

That's especially pertinent now—when your fabric can "make" your fall wardrobe's style.

FEMININE FANCIES

By Kathleen Eiland

Cleverest of the priorities-inspired gadgets we've seen is a wooden lipstick holder. To be sure it employs the same principle as the familiar metal case with a side slot to permit lifting the stick above the case for easy use but the whole contraption is in wood. Rather attractive, too, in its light tones, with a bit of decoration on the holder, and not too bulky to carry in one's purse.

A clever way of showing that one is in tune with the war production, we say, is to use, ostentatiously, such a lipstick holder.

Purse designers seem to be trying out new ways of closing bags—to save zippers, we presume. Any way we've observed a pretty bag recently with a spring fastening, so that the bag snaps open by pulling. Very nice—for the girl who doesn't have to use her purses as long as we do—so long that the spring would probably wear out.

And then there's the bag with a double snap fastening, two wings of the material folding toward the center, each having its snap.

Any girl would make a gay entry into fall with one of the new bag-and-hat sets we've been enjoying. Made of fabric (some with a velvety nap), these are perfectly dashing hats. There's a wide-brimmed, shallow-crowned one in yellow and black plaid with enormous matching bag.

Others in other colors and hat designs still carry out the idea of view, if you put it in play in a duplicate game, at least one pair in 10 will find some way to get into trouble.

One faithful source of bidding catastrophes is the trap bid—the ill-chosen bid that puts your partner on the spot. A poll of expert players gives a majority to the bid made by North in today's hand, as the commonest and least excusable of trap bids.

After the opening bid of one spade, North properly decides to go at least to four. But there may be a slam, and he wants to find out. I will not discuss the merits of the jump to three spades—perhaps other alternatives were better. But three spades cannot be criticized.

But the raise to five spades over four is a trap. Since South has been forced to go to game by the jump to three, he cannot be assumed to have any more than his original bid. North has in effect raised one spade to five, which is more than his hand warrants. As the cards lie, South cannot save the situation by passing five spades, because even that contract cannot be made.

Moody Is Grateful For Support In Race

KERRVILLE (AP)—Former Governor Dan Moody acknowledged his defeat in the U. S. senatorial race and declared "I have no feeling of bitterness or humiliation over the results."

In a statement he said: "I am deeply grateful for the loyal support of those many friends, old and new, who supported me with such enthusiasm throughout the campaign and I shall never cease to be grateful to them."

Fall Approach

There's a new fashion feeling in this gracefully designed frock which suggests autumn. It's a dress you'll make up in soft new crepe or satin, to wear now and also to wear as the days turn cooler. Pattern No. 8228 is in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 and 40. Size 14, short sleeves, requires 3 1/4 yards 39-inch material, 3/4 yard lace.

Yes, Candidates Get Laugh From Defeat

"We'll have to shake hands on that," was their laughing greeting.

They were Midland County Attorney Merritt P. Hines, just defeated for a fourth term, and Choctaw County Attorney Norman Horton, Hugo, Oklahoma, defeated July 7 in the primaries of that state.

"Looks like it will be the Army for us," they echoed. Horton was here Monday with Sheriff Cap Duncan of Hugo, to return A. Wall Lipton, held in the county jail and wanted in Oklahoma for auto theft. Lipton was taken from a freight train along with several others now held on charges of vagrancy. On fingerprinting him it was found that he was wanted in Oklahoma, and the sheriff's department notified Duncan.

Men On Leave Will Return Wednesday

Several Midland County men on enlisted reserve, who were allowed two weeks in which to straighten up private business after induction July 14, will leave Wednesday morning for El Paso. C. C. Keith, secretary of the draft board, said Monday.

Two of the group, however, are in the Midland Army Flying School hospital. Dan E. Houston with a broken ankle suffered in a fall, and Manuel M. Sanchez with appendicitis.

Others, however, are ready to go, and include James P. Caradine, Terrell C. Miles, Roy Sapp, Clarence C. Harless, Jerome T. Lundie, Jesus Salgado, and Altus H. Wilson.

The group will meet at the draft board offices at 8 a. m. Wednesday.

SERIAL STORY

BANNERS FLYING

BY MARY RAYMOND

JAN FALLS IN LOVE

CHRISTIE had hoped she could win Bart over about the flying. But though Bart had listened patiently to her arguments, there had never been a moment when he was near to yielding.

CHAPTER III

"I know you're good, Christie. I saw you make that three-point landing in a stiff wind. But maybe your luck wouldn't hold out. You might not know what to do in an emergency. I'd be no good at all, Christie, if I were worrying about you. I've got to have that promise, darling."

"I'll have a steady hand and head, now," Bart said. "You can count on it." He kissed her long and earnestly.

When the door had closed behind Bart, Christie went to her father's study. He was sitting behind his desk, which, in these days of the war emergency, was deep in papers.

"More home work," Christie scolded. "I won't have it! So this is why you skipped the dance?"

"Your mother still refuses to believe the headlines," Christopher Colton said. "But I know what they're saying."

"You think the United States will get in? Bart does, too. He's going to an air field. But that's not really what I came to tell you. Some day, I'm going to have a sunny kitchen with little blue pots filled with yellow flowers on the window sill."

"I had a perfectly immaculate ice box and blue linoleum prints in neat little squares."

She stooped over and kissed him. "You don't mind if I marry Bart some day, do you? I would, anyway, so you might as well be nice and agreeable about it."

Mrs. Clifford Spillman of Big Spring and her brother, Corp. Robert Smith of Detroit, Mich., were guests Sunday of Mrs. J. Wayne Campbell.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Logsdon have as their guests her mother, Mrs. Marion Wallace, and her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Rogers and son David, and Lawrence Johnson, all of Northon, Ohio.

Jan was looking off into space with a queer, half-smile on her face, as though her thoughts were traveling along a little mental road that was closed to outsiders.

"Heaven!" Christie thought, "the child's in love—or thinks she is." This was no time to tell her own exciting news.

"CHRISTIE," Janet began, "you know that party that Mother has been begging me to have."

"The party you didn't want, that would bore you to tears—"

"The same one," Janet smiled. "I'll go through it on one condition. There's a man—I met him today. I'll face all those dreadful old people who look me up and down, and a stagline that doesn't see me at all—if I may invite him to the dance."

"He must be the world's wonder," Christie breathed.

"He isn't rich and important," Jan said, musingly. "But you'll like him. He's a chemist and he has a new job at the Wainwright Company. The way we met was funny. He simply walked up to me and said, 'You look as though you are having a rather slow time,' and I said, 'I am, but nobody except you has been rude enough to mention it.'"

"Jan! How did you ever get past that brilliant beginning?"

"He thought it was funny. He said what he had said called for a long apology and it would take him all through the supper hour to say it. Oh, Christie, I had a lovely time."

Christie felt her throat tighten. It took such a little to make Jan happy. Just a bit of attention.

"Mother will bargain with you," Christie said. She added, slowly: "This man you met—he sounds fair. Maybe a little too sure of himself."

"He is pretty confident," Jan agreed. "From now on, I'll be bothered about having enough stags. I'd like stags—but Mother says the draft has simply ruined everybody's dance list."

"Now isn't that just too mean of Uncle Sam," Christie said.

"It's just that I don't want to get stuck with Stephen," Janet said, smiling at Christie's elaborate irony.

Stephen. Well, Jan did move fast when she got going. Christie was thoughtful as she peeled off her dress. This was more interesting than her sister had ever shown.

She tried to visualize the type of young man that Janet would pick for a party. A chemist, she had said.

"He'd sound more exciting if he were a combat pilot," Christie thought sleepily, thinking of Bart and planes.

It was simply amazing—Jan falling in love with some young man who spent his time bending over test tubes. He had sounded terribly conceited and arrogant, and he might have long hair and wear thick glasses, too.

Nelson Has Worst Day; Must Battle Heafner For Cup

CHICAGO (AP)—Byron Nelson, shaken by one of the most amazing collapses in the history of big-time golf, went out bleakly Monday to battle Clayton Heafner of Linville, N. C., in an 18-hole playoff for $2,500 first money in the Tam O'Shanter open tournament.

Nelson, the tall ex-Texan, was a weebegone figure, and a lot of exceptionally smart money had been bet overnight that he would lose to Heafner, the blond giant who won the Mahoning Valley tournament at Gerard, Ohio, a few weeks ago with an astonishing 72-hole total of 264.

It was a crusher — what happened to Nelson Sunday. One of the world's great golfers, he shot a miserable 77 over a course whose true part is about 70, to dissipate a lead that had looked impregnable and finish in a tie with Heafner, each with 280 strokes for the four rounds.

Caldwell Blanks Shreveport, Cats Hold Second Spot

By The Associated Press

Veteran Earl Caldwell, who has hurled so many games during the course of a long career that he never can recall the number, hand-cuffed the Shreveport Sports 5-0 Sunday for his sixteenth victory of the season and enabled the Fort Worth Cats to stay in second place in the Texas league five and one-half games behind Beaumont.

The Exporters, however, were taking no chances. At Dallas they slapped the lowly Rebels about and emerged with a 3-0 win.

The Oilers and San Antonio split a twin bill at Tulsa, the home team taking the opened 8-0 and losing the second, 5-0. At Oklahoma City the Indians showed unwonted life and laid back the Houston Burfs in both ends of a doubleheader, 5-3 and 8-3.

Caldwell allowed visiting Shreveport five scattered hits, while his teammates gave him excellent support. Ford Garrison, annexing a double and two singles, was in the van of the Cat 12-hit offensive. Doyle Lade was the losing moundsmen.

The main railway and pipeline which parallel the Caucasus Mountain range, bisecting the Caucasus southeastward to Baku, on the Caspian, pass through Bataisk.

No confirmation from Moscow for this or the older claim by the Nazis that Rostov had been taken.

Officially, the Russians announced merely that the battle for the Caucasus continued through the night at Voronezh, 300 miles north of Rostov, the northern flank of the Germans' eastward and southern offensive, and in the vicinity of Rostov, Novochechekassk and Tsimlyansk, on the north bank of the Don, 120 airline miles northeast of Rostov. The Germans already have claimed the capture of Novochechekassk as well as Rostov.

Waves of tanks and motorized infantry, supported by mobile artillery and bomber squadrons, beat down upon the Russians in both the Russian reports, the Tsimlyansk pressure was the greater for it was only there that the defenders conceded footholds on the south bank of the strategic waterline.

"In the Tsimlyansk area stubborn fighting for (additional) crossings is in progress," said the Moscow communique. The Germans are trying to force the River Don simultaneously in several places. . . In one sector a big tank battle is in progress. . . our men have pinned down numerically superior forces and prevented them from advancing.

Destroy 50 Nazi Tanks

The communique said that fierce combat continued on the outskirts of Rostov but that in one sector the enemy had broken into "the heart of our defenses." Fifty German tanks were reported destroyed in the Voronezh fighting, the Russians still were attacking, and in a single sector killed about 1,000 Germans in one day and downed three planes with rifle fire, the Moscow communique stated.

The Russians claimed, moreover that an important height had been occupied in the Bryansk region northwest of Voronezh and southwest of Moscow, with a German mechanized regiment routed, leaving 1,250 dead, the remnant of 300 men as prisoners and 20 disabled tanks.

Cardinals Breezing Into Brooklyn To Fight With Durocher Darlings

By Austin Bealmear

Associated Press Sports Writer

The St. Louis Cardinals, about the only outfit to make things interesting for Brooklyn, wheeled into Ebbets Field Monday for a three-round showdown with Durocher's darlings.

Although the World Series still is more than two months away, both teams and a few thousand interested onlookers should discover in the next three days whether the Cards will be dealt in our out at the wind-up of the National League campaign.

The last time they visited the banks of the Gowanus, the Cardinals dropped four games out of five, but they went home and developed a counter-punch that flattened the Dodgers three times in a recent four-game set.

Crucial Series

If they can remember how they turned that trick, the Cards may be able to prove to the Dodgers that they intend to battle them down to the wire. But if the Brooks breeze through their toughest rivals once more, they might as well start planning for October's inter-league classic.

The pace-setters coasted up to the important series Sunday by stopping the Pittsburgh Pirates twice, 3-2 and 5-3, without dipping into the "big four" of their pitching staff, while second-place St. Louis split with the Boston Braves and slipped back another notch, seven lengths behind.

Monday the Dodgers planned to lead with their ace, Lefty Larry French, who has rested exactly a week.

Top: Early Wins

After two weeks in Casey Stengel's canine cottage for loafing on the mound, Tom Earley came out and stopped the Cardinals cold as he pitched the Braves to a 5-2 decision in the first game, but the Cardinals took the second, 5-3, with the help of some nifty relief hurling by Harry Gumbert.

Cincinnati regained third place by whipping the New York Giants, 6-2 and 2-1, and dropping them back into the four-spot.

At Philadelphia, three home runs in one game by catcher Clyde McCullough couldn't keep the Phils from turning back the Chicago Cubs, 4-3 and 6-1.

Yankees Gaining

In the American League the New York Yankees downed the Detroit Tigers, 5-2, in the only single game of the day, but added a game and a half to their long lead with the help of the St. Louis Browns, who took a pair from the second-place Boston Red Sox, 9-2 and 4-3, dropping them 13 games behind.

Sid Hudson of the Washington Senators blanked the Cleveland Indians, 2-0, in the first game, but the Tribe bounced back in the second, 7-1.

The Chicago White Sox and Philadelphia Athletics split, Chicago winning the opener for Ted Lyons, 2-1, and Philadelphia taking the second, 3-2, with Luman Harris tossing a four-hitter and Dee Miles singing home with the winning tally.

Get in the scrap!

Both were in the First Division. Both are stationed at the Harlingen Army Gunnery School. Both men are 47 years old. And both of them now believe it may have been the same bullet that wounded them.

Sports Roundup

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK (AP)—Remember Lou Zamperini? . . . The Californian who used to give Glenn Cunningham quite a rassist for those running medals . . . Well, Lou pulled a Swastika off Hitler's Berlin palace for a gag during the '36 Berlin Olympics . . . Now he's bombardier Cadet Zamperini at Midland Army Flying School . . . And promising a repeat performance . . . for keeps . . . Joe Louis turned his ankle slightly at Fort Riley last Wednesday . . . But that story about a broken leg is strictly the stuff you slice thin and shove between two pieces of pumpnickel.

Today's Guest Star

DEAK MORSE, ST. JOHNSBURY (VT.)—Caledonian-Record: The Dodgers are each giving a pint of blood to the Red Cross . . . No army in the world'll be able to out-talk our soldiers if they can find a way to split Durocher's donation among all the boys.

The Postman Rings Twice

Dan Mahany, who used to run things down at Calumet Farm (Whirlaway) before he put on a soldier suit, writes from Keesler Field (Miss.) to suggest that every man ought to the Army ought to be handed a copy of Jimmy Zouzalman's Dayton U. graduating day speech . . . "Because there's nothing in the field of morale activities that even comes close to it . . . and it's a cinch to whip all the boys into a lather of mental aggressiveness like Rokebe used to achieve so masterfully" . . . Well put, Daniel.

It's A Small World For Day and Watson

HARLINGEN (AP)—It's a small world, etc.

When Capt. Ora H. Day of the Harlingen Army Gunnery School and Robert H. Watson, unit field director for the American Red Cross newly arrived at the base, began talking, they discovered the following information about each other:

They both had been wounded on July 19, 1918.

They both had been wounded in the left leg.

They were both wounded by machine gun bullets.

Both were wounded near Soissons, France.

Both won the "Order of the Purple Heart" for military merit displayed in their action near Soissons.

Both were in the First Division.

Both are stationed at the Harlingen Army Gunnery School.

Both men are 47 years old.

And both of them now believe it may have been the same bullet that wounded them.
