Russian Troops Beat Back Hammer Blows By Huge Nazi Forces

By Roger D. Greene
Associated Press War Editor.
Russian troops were officially credited with beating off another sledgehammer assault by 45,000 Germans in the 43-day-old siege of Stalingrad Tuesday crushing 22 separate attacks, while north of the city the Red armies knifed deeper into the Nazi protective barrier.

Soviet dispatches said the Germans had failed to gain on any front in the last 24 hours.

Once again, as though to obscure its lack of success in the main Stalingrad battle theater, Hitler's field headquarters stressed developments in the Caucasus, where a "progressive German attack" was described as unwavering height after height from the Russians.

Cold Nights Set In
With cold nights beginning to set in, heralding the early approach of winter, German prisoners were quoted as saying that Nazi officers and troops were becoming disturbed about the progress of the campaign.

"The Germans hurry," said the Russian government newspaper Izvestia. "They see time passing. They fear delay. They are fiercely rushing forward."

But instead of forcing the Russians to retreat, the invaders were pictured as sacrificing appalling numbers.

Nine Red Cross Chapters Send Workers To Meet

With more than 75 representatives from nine West Texas Red Cross chapters in attendance, a regional institute for Red Cross chapter workers opened in Midland Tuesday.

The sessions, being held in the educational building of the First Methodist Church, will continue through the afternoon. The Midland County Red Cross chapter is the host organization.

Discussions of three major programs of the Red Cross are being conducted in separate meetings by staff members from the area office of the American Red Cross in St. Louis.

The junior Red Cross meeting is in charge of Mrs. Rea Hendricks; Miss Margaret Reed is handling the home service division, and Jack Henry is leading the discussion on the disaster and preparedness program.

Mrs. Estelle Penry, general field representative, also is assisting in conducting the sessions.

Texans Spirit Shown In Newspaper Drive For U. S. Steel Mills

Something of the spirit Texans are showing in the newspaper scrap drive is demonstrated by San Antonio's 40,000 school children.

The "Junior Texas Rangers" couldn't wait for Monday's starting date—they were bringing metal to school yards last week.

Into the school collection went two 75 mm. cannon weighing five thousand pounds, relics of World War One that had adorned the Thomas Jefferson high school campus.

"Stimulating," said the Texas oldest elevator, was headed for the junk heap at Galveston. "Sadie," was named by a former operator who said, "You can't tell what she will do next." The elevator was put in use in 1905.

Thirty-nine service station operators at Sherman signed an agreement to close up Wednesday and help in the collection. One of the stations will halt its day-and-night service for the first time in 22 years.

Rattlesnake Goes On Ride In Old Stove

Interested in doing their part in the war effort, Mr. and Mrs. Aldridge Estes went to their ranch south of Midland Sunday and hauled two old stoves in for the scrap pile.

On arriving at their home, a rattlesnake was found in one of the stoves. It had ridden seven or eight miles in the stove. Mrs. Estes discovered the reptile when she attempted to help unload the stove. It was killed promptly. The snake had three rattles.

See Possible Oil Shortage On West Coast

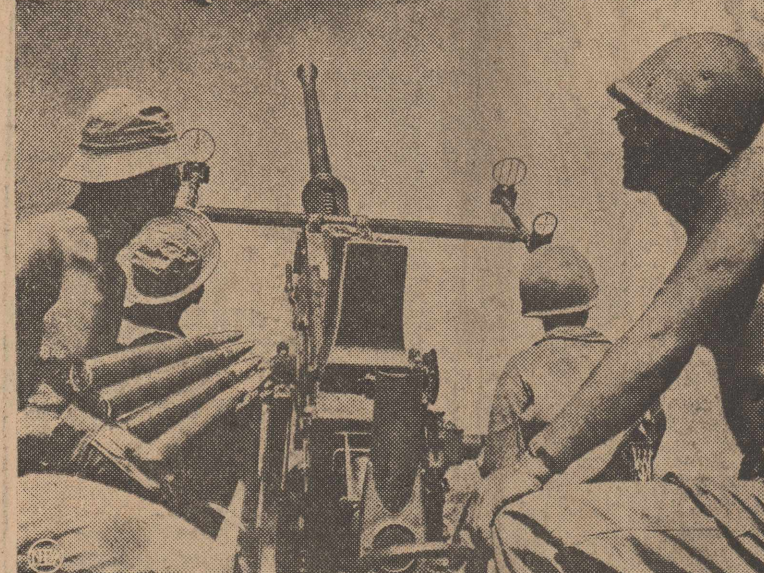

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Brig. Gen. Walter B. Pyron told a Senate Subcommittee Tuesday the Army had plenty of oil for its war needs in 1943, but there might be a petroleum shortage on the West Coast if the war lasted "too long."

As the first witness before a subcommittee on mineral resources, General Pyron, liaison officer between the Army and the Petroleum Coordinator, said the Army's use of oil products was considerably higher this year than last.

Chairman O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) explained that the Subcommittee was endeavoring to ascertain "whether or not the country is to face an oil shortage in the midst of a great crisis, as it has a steel and rubber shortage."

"We can bring in new supplies of oil by encouraging the wildcatter," reserves, or by developing oil lands O'Mahoney said, "by drawing on (Continued on page 2)

Tons Of Scrap Are Collected In Drive

Thousands of pounds of metal Tuesday were piled on Midland's scrap pile, across the street from The Reporter-Telegram, as U. S. Army trucks rumbled through the streets collecting salvage which more than 2,000 school students assembled in their campaign.

It was a banner day for the war effort. Commissioned as Junior Texas Rangers, the students went into every section of the city Monday searching out scrap. With them went teachers and school officials. They were determined that all possible scrap metal be made available for the war effort.

No estimate was available on the amount collected. The Army Air Forces Bombardier School supplied two large trucks to aid city and county trucks in collecting the metal and taking it to Midland's big scrap pile.

Business Men Aid
Aboard the trucks, loading scrap metal, were Clint Danagan, the Rev. Hubert Hopper, Scotty Scott, R. J. "Doc" Graham, Curt Inman and other men who left their offices to aid in the campaign.

Pilfering of scrap metal piles must stop, Police Chief Lon Tyson decreed. He ordered officers to arrest any persons found removing any of the salvage material.

Midland's scrap scoopers were happy at the success of their drive and planned to continue their work until all scrap is on the pile on Missouri Avenue.

The campaign was the talk in school corridors, as the students reviewed their experiences. A number of them borrowed motor trucks (Continued on page 2)

One-Third Of Income Slated For New Taxes

By Richard G. Massock
WASHINGTON, (AP)—Chairman George (D-Ga.) of the Finance Committee told the Senate Tuesday the American people would pay taxes totaling $36,537,000, or one-third of the national income, during the coming year under pending legislation.

George took the floor to explain the gigantic new revenue bill after a proposal by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau for $6,000,000,000 in new levies, over and above those in the pending measure, had aroused cloak-room demands for a sales tax.

Previously the Finance Committee had laid before the Senate its formal report on the bill, in which it criticized house-approved rates on corporation profits and defended its action in reducing potential tax on business as desirable in order to encourage efficient corporation management in wartime.

Consider U. S. Economy
Opening debate on the latest version of the measure, Senator George attributed the length of time consumed in its preparation to a sincere effort to prevent the drastic increases from causing severe inequities and unduly interfering with our economy.

"In framing our tax bill," he said (Continued on page five)

Nipponese Convoy Is Hit Near Buna Base On Guinea Coastline

By The Associated Press.
U. S. Marines, clashing frequently with Japanese patrols, were reported holding solidly on Guadalcanal in the Solomon Islands Tuesday while on the New Guinea front Australian jungle troops neared the summit of towering Owen Stanley mountains after advances of three to six miles.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said the Australian counter-offensive had driven past Kagi, the last village below the mile-high gap in the range, and pressed on—still without contacting the retreating Japanese.

Perhaps of tremendous significance to the whole New Guinea campaign, Gen. MacArthur reported that a Japanese convoy had been spotted and attacked as it headed north from Buna on the New Guinea east coast.

Jap Bases Death Traps
Observers pointed out that the entire future of operations in the New Guinea zone may hinge on the answer to the question of whether the Japanese were debarking or landing fresh troops, and it was recalled that the enemy withdrew from Milne Bay, in Southeast New Guinea, when he realized the odds were against him.

At the same time, Washington quarters declared that new Allied successes in the Battle of the Pacific showed that Japanese footholds in New Guinea, the Solomons and the Aleutians were becoming death traps for the enemy's troops, planes and ships.

On the three strategic fronts, American and Allied air forces (Continued on page two)

Humble Seeks To Extend North End Means Production

By FRANK GARDNER
Oil Editor
An attempt to extend the north end of the Means pool in Andrews County three-quarters of a mile northwest soon will be made by Humble Oil & Refining Company in the drilling of its No. 1 C. A. Shultz.

Location for the semi-wildcat has been staked 600 feet out of the southwest corner of section 5, block C-45, public school land. It will be drilled with rotary to the Means pay zone.

Union Oil Company No. 1-C Mrs. A. C. Means, wildcat four and one-half miles southwest of the Means pool and three miles southeast of Shafter Lake, is drilling at 4,633 feet in brown lime. It is showing no apparent increase in the one-eighth of a barrel of free oil per hour encountered from 4,504-73 feet, but cuttings are carrying some porosity and saturation.

Atlantic Refining Company No. 1-A Texu, Southwest Central Andrews wildcat, is drilling at 10,104 feet in lime and shale of the Simpson, middle Ordovician, topped at 9,795 feet.

In the Embur Ellenburger pool 12 miles farther southeast, Phillips Petroleum Company No. 9 University-Andrews is drilling at 7,670 feet in Permian lime; No. 10 at 7,655, also in Permian lime; No. 11 at 7,510 in the Permian and No. 21 at 8,000 feet in Simpson lime and shale. (Continued on page 2)

House Votes Tuesday On Exempting Teachers, Editors From Hatch Act

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Teacher and country editors, described respectively in congressional debate as "beneficial elements" in political life and "the unpolluted, non-contaminated voice of the people," would be exempted from the no-politics ban of the Hatch Act under legislation on which the House scheduled a record vote Tuesday.

Already passed by the Senate, the legislation hit a stumbling block Monday after it had been amended to include the editors in the exemption, when Representative Hoffman (R-Mich.) objected to further consideration because of lack of a quorum.

Attempt Repeal Hatch Act
Asserting that the bill was "a disgusted attempt to repeal the entire Hatch Act" which forbids participation of federal employees in elections, Hoffman said it was "of such importance that we ought to have a quorum here for its consideration."

The Michigan representative forced the quorum issue after Speaker Rayburn had ruled defeated on a voice vote an amendment proposed by Hoffman to make certain that only teachers and editors were relieved from the ban.

As worded, the Senate bill exempts officers and employees of "any educational or research" agency or institution.

Before hitting the Hoffman hurdle, the House wrote into the bill an amendment to make certain that publishers of weekly or semi-weekly newspapers having a circulation of less than 5,000 would not be affected by the Hatch Act.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

LONDON—Premier Stalin's statement that Allied aid to Russia "has so far been little effective," as compared with the Soviet contribution to the cause of the United Nations, is being received in Britain in the spirit in which it apparently was offered—without rancor and with a desire to get ahead with the job of hanging Hitler.

Indeed, well-qualified observers point out that obviously there can be no dispute with the Soviet leader's estimate insofar as it concerns aid in the nature of action by combat forces. It is assumed that is what he referred to, not to equipment and supplies which Britain and America have been delivering with such difficulty and danger especially via that hell fire corner the Nazis established in Northern Norway.

Triple Alliance Understanding
Stalin's statement made in response to questions by Henry C. Cassidy, Associated Press and Wide World correspondent, attracted attention throughout Britain. Far from causing resentment the Premier's direct language is evoking a response in Britain and America, determined to deliver the necessary aid to Russia at the earliest possible moment.

The striking thing to my mind is that this triple alliance, which in many respects represents a strange assortment of bedfellows, (Continued On Page Six)

Ingenuity Misapplied

If some of the ingenuity now being applied to evading and avoiding wartime restrictions could be concentrated against the Axis, our progress toward peace could be expedited.

Few of us are so removed from the rush of affairs that we do not know of at least a few stratagems by which the intent of war regulations is given the runaround.

For example, an apparently reliable story is circulating in Washington about how some landlords are beating the rent ceiling. A house, let's say, is supposed to rent for $75 a month. But residences in the nation's capital are worth almost their weight in gold, and the owner is not satisfied with the ceiling income.

What does he do? He "sells" the house for $125 down and $125 a month, with an understanding that when the "buyer" is through he will default on payments and permit the house to revert to the "seller."

This isn't just a sharp business trick. It is deliberate violation of a necessary and proper regulation, designed to protect literally hundreds of thousands of new government employes against gouging.

Washington is so packed that another sharp worker—quite legally, it appears—took over a two-story brick warehouse, on which the normal rental would be not more than $420 a month, and is renting to 140 soldiers at $20 a month each. For this the soldier gets use of a cot, plus one foot clearance on each side, plus use of a study table and toilet facilities—but no screens and, thus far, no evidence of heating equipment for the approaching winter.

A manufacturer found his contracts with a Navy yard banned because the WPB forbade use of steel for his product. But his competitors took over the business and filled the orders.

They did it quite legally, merely by changing the name of the equipment to something not covered by the WPB's ban.

"The moment any restrictive regulation appears," says this manufacturer, "the lawyers are called in to see how to get around it and keep in business. The factory whose lawyer gets the answer first has the jump on its competitors."

These aren't isolated incidents. They are typical. Almost anybody who gets around can substitute his own observations for these three.

Apparently there still are many who do not comprehend that this is total war—that we can not tolerate any obstructionism for private benefit if we are going to win.

Official agencies, with all their faults, are trying sincerely to enforce the necessary wartime restrictions. With all the bureaucracy they are creating, these agencies can not see all, know all, do all.

The final curb upon individual chiseling must come through the unrelenting pressure of public intolerance.

Thank You, Congress

We've found fault with a lot of things about the national tax situation, and unless congressional plans change we'll do a lot more complaining. How pleasant it is, then, to be able to toss a bouquet at Capitol Hill, with some sprays in the direction of the Treasury!

For years now we've had to wander around the streets once a year seeking a notary public who for a quarter or so would take our oath that we hadn't knowingly lied in our income tax returns, although the tax law already made it perjury so to lie even though we hadn't visited a notary.

Now, on advice of the Treasury, Congress is removing the silly requirement. We can prepare and mail our return without that unnecessary annoyance and expense, and still be held liable if we cheat.

—Buy War Bonds And Savings Stamps—

You're Right, J. E.

That was more than a wisecrack John Edgar Hoover handed the police chiefs when he pointed out that if an Austrian paperhanger named Hitler had not been paroled nearly 20 years ago, millions of lives would have been saved.

Hitler, then a relatively obscure agitator, was convicted of "violent and treasonable demonstrations against his government," and imprisoned in Munich. Against the advice of the Bavarian police director, he was paroled.

What followed is history, still in the painful making.

Funeral Services For Lieutenant Strauch In Illinois Tuesday

Funeral services for the late Lieut. Robert A. Strauch, who was killed in an airplane crash near Oklahoma City last Friday night, were to be held at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in Champaign, Ill.

The rites will be read at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard A. Strauch.

Mrs. Strauch, who before her marriage last April 4th, was Miss Virginia Davies, daughter of Brigadier General and Mrs. Isaiah Davies, is in Champaign for the services. Lieut. Strauch's remains were guarded from Oklahoma City to Illinois by Lieut. Barton L. Hunt, assistant operations officer of the bombardier school.

General Authorizes Wearing Of Woolens

Those snappy West Texas nights have set so many AFS bombardier school officers to shivering that Brigadier General Isaiah Davies Tuesday authorized them to don winter uniforms after duty hours.

Wear of the woolens is restricted to off-duty hours, however, until October 16, when officers and men may wear either summer or winter uniforms at option. Effective November 1, the regular winter uniforms will be worn at all times by all the personnel of the school.

DON'T BE FOOLED BY A FULL JUNK YARD!

Don't listen to people who say—"They can't need scrap very badly. Look at that junk yard, or the auto graveyards—they've got plenty of scrap. And remember the last time we had a drive the stuff sat around for weeks." Tell such people these true facts . . .

Of course the junk yards are full. They are "factories" that turn out finished scrap—sorted, broken up, and bundled . . . ready for the mills of America. The scrap has to go through these yards, and it keeps going through fast!

The auto graveyards too, are busy. They specialize in used car parts, but produce plenty of scrap as well. In June alone, these yards moved 450,000 tons—for they are required to junk within 60 days as many cars as they buy.

As for Salvage Depots—communities all over the country are staging drives. All this scrap can't be taken away at once. The junkies can't handle it and the mills can't store it. But every pound is needed and will be used. We've got to pile it up ready for instant use at any time.

The day when all junk yards are empty, when the auto graveyards are cleaned out, when all the local scrap stockpiles are gone—that is the day to dread. It is a day to avoid at all costs.

So remember—steel is needed to fight the war, and millions of lives depend on it. This steel is made of 50% scrap—and the mills have not enough scrap to last even 30 days longer. Don't fail to do your part in this emergency.

Get your scrap ready for the drive that starts Monday!

This foresighted householder is putting up storm windows when he takes his screens down. They will save him fuel and keep his home warmer this winter. Tests showed that a three-story house protected with storm sashes used 60 pounds less coal every hour than the same size house not equipped with double glazing.

Churchill Warns

As the battle of titans continued into its seventh week, agitation for a second front reached a crescendo in Moscow and evoked a new warning from Prime Minister Churchill not to press matters.

The British war leader warned last week against speculation on the possible time and place of Allied offensive actions.

Elsewhere on the long battlefield, the situation was marked by little change, with the Russians holding firmly in the key sectors of Mordok, in the Central Caucasus; below Novorossisk, on the Black Sea Coast; and around Voronezh, on the Upper Don, halfway between Moscow and Stalingrad.

Trouble in Norway

Other developments: Western air war—"strong force" of perhaps 200 RAF bombers, striking in the third night raid this month, attacked German war industries in the Western Reich Monday night, while other RAF planes hammered the Nazi-occupied channel invasion coast.

Trouble in Norway—DNB, the official German news agency, announced that a state of civil emergency had been proclaimed by German authorities in Trondheim, Norway, because of sabotage attempts "which if they had succeeded would have endangered Norway's supply system."

Egyptian campaign—Italian field headquarters reported that British troops attacked in the central sector of the 35-mile El Alamein front, 80 miles west of Alexandria, but were thrown back with heavy losses.

A British communique reported all quiet.

Carved Elephants Bring Good Luck To Manufacturer

Wide World Features

TACOMA, Wash. — Thirty-five years ago an old Chinese sailor sold Ray Gamble a carved elephant after spinning yarns about the tradition of luck surrounding the pachyderms. The next day, a debtor Gamble had forgotten paid him $50 and since then—just to make sure—he has collected almost 3,000 of them until the hobby has become what he terms an obsession.

To his carved elephants, some of which are priceless and inlaid with precious stones, he attributes good health, business success and a happy home life.

Faith and Confidence

"Perhaps it is not necessarily the elephants that are lucky, but the faith and confidence it gives you in the belief that you are lucky because of them," Gamble maintains.

Today a wealthy manufacturer in his 50's, Gamble still has the original elephant. His factory, office, home, yard, stationary, linoleum, ring, book matches, towels—in fact, just about everything connected with him bears his elephant mark.

Life Long Study

He has made a life long study of the luck traditions surrounding elephants. He discounts the old saw that only elephants with their trunks pointing upwards are lucky. He declares that any carved elephant is lucky.

For many years he gave each visitor to the Gamble home a tiny elephant as a luck piece "and in 20 years one may come back to report the loss of a handbag carrying one of them."

Tips on How to— Improve Your Lighting

Place Lamps Closer

The illustration above shows the right and wrong way to place a reading light by an easy chair. If you shorten the distance between you and the lamp one-half, you increase by four times the amount of light on your book or paper. In other places that light is needed, put the lamp as close as practical for better illumination.

Changing fuses is easy... much like changing a burned-out lamp bulb. Keep a supply of fuses on hand to save you time and trouble when a fuse blows.

McKENNEY ON BRIDGE

By William E. McKenney
America's Card Authority

Here is the first of five essentials of a squeeze, as they are given by the TAPEL formula. First consider T, standing for threat. A defender is squeezed when he is forced to discard a master card or a guard to a stopper. He can be forced to do this only if the declarer in turn holds some "threat cards."

In today's and, the defenders commence by cashing four hearts, then West exits with a spade. Declarer has to win the rest for the contract. He has only eight top cards, and the sole chance for a ninth trick lies in a squeeze. What stoppers are the defenders forced to hold? The defender who has four or more diamonds must save them, to prevent South's fourth small diamond from making. The defender who holds three or more clubs must keep a stopper against dummy's suit. Hence the declarer holds threat cards in both minors.

But he does not have a threat card in spades. Although he has small cards under the top, all these small cards will disappear when the top is cashed. The defenders can discard spades safely.

To effect a squeeze declarer must have threat cards in at least two suits. If he has such cards only in two suits, then the squeeze will work only if the stoppers against his threats are both in one hand. Here the conditions are right. On the last heart dummy lets go a spade and South a club. Three rounds of spades are cashed, followed by two top clubs. Unless East chooses to discard his club stopper, declarer then finds that he wins all four diamond rounds.

It takes about 75 pounds of cotton to equip and maintain a soldier for one year, two or three times that much if he's on combat duty.

Defer Men Needed In War Industries

General J. Watt Page, State Selective Service Director, cautioned all draft boards against withdrawing from war production industries and transportation services "necessary men" because they happen to be without dependents. He said: "If a registrant qualifies for occupational deferment as a 'necessary man' under the provisions of the Selective Service regulations and any of the several national headquarters occupational bulletins, then he should be classified as II-A or II-B, depending upon the character of the industry, even though he is single, and married men, not essentially employed, will have to be used to fill the board's call."

Boards should remember that practically all war production industry is still in the period of expansion and that every man or woman they are able to train is used to fill a new job. The same applies to transportation services, whose facilities are taxed to the utmost by troop and war freight movement. Very few industries have been able to train replacements for their potential IIA employees. Accordingly, local boards should give more careful consideration to the continued deferment of 'necessary men' in war production and transportation until such time as replacements are available or can be trained."

Depth Bomb: Up, Over and Boom!

American anti-submarine forces produce some of the war's most spectacular sea photos. Here a Navy PC boat on patrol sends a depth charge flying out over the sea, top, from Y-gun, obscured by the white smoke. A moment later the "ashcan" drops beneath the waves, bottom, and erupts in twin explosion with a second charge fired at the same time. Official U. S. Navy photographs.

UNCLE BRUCE AGAIN

CHAPTER XXIII

SHE found herself reluctant to see Peter and his father before she left. Peter had a trick, born probably of long association and understanding, of seeing through her; and she had a feeling that this Harper affair would not bear too much inspection, would not make her appear to advantage in his eyes.

She would make no mention of anything but the old lady, of course, and would trust to luck that he had never heard of the grandson of would attach no significance to his going along with them if he had; but she would have preferred not to have to say anything of it at all.

She rode a bus over to the modest little flat on Henley street with the neat sign in its front window, PETER FRAZIER, M. D., where Bruce now lived with Peter. After she rang the bell she could hear Bruce's footfall, first a firm step and then a dragging one that was the aftermath of the recent stroke that had partly paralyzed his left side.

Bruce opened the door wide. "Well, stranger!" he said, giving her a quick hug. "Where have you been keeping yourself?"

"On a case, as usual," Candace said, smiling. She followed her nose to the kitchen, sniffing hungrily. "Something smells awfully good. Am I invited to stay for lunch?"

"You sure are," Bruce said heartily. "Beef stew. I try to make things that will heat up in a hurry, just in case the boy ever does get a chance to come home for a bite to eat."

"How is Peter? Still working so hard?"

Bruce groaned. "That boy just about drives himself to death," he said. He looked worried but proud. "He doesn't talk, think or dream about anything but medicine. Seems to thrive on it, though. He's been trying to get in touch with you, by the way. Some case he wanted you on."

"No go," Candace said. "I'm already on one." She sat on a ladder-bench with her feet hooked over one of its rungs, munching a roll and watching Bruce as he went about, turning up the gas under a pot, setting the table. The limp was not too noticeable now, nor was the slight droop of his muscles on the left side of his face. Sometimes, though, that droop gave rather a startling before-and-after effect: the drooping side simulated the discouraged mood he had labored under while he was involved in business troubles and smarting under Belle's displeasure; the other, brighter look had come after his release from both.

Belle had finally obtained a Florida divorce on the grounds of desertion. The reasons she gave for doing so had been odd enough. "You appear to be smarting," she wrote, "under the feeling that creditors will feel you're dishonest because I refuse to turn over everything to them. They can't think that now. They'll deduce, by my having divorced you, that I've simply run off and deserted you, now that you're in trouble."

Candace guessed that her action had really been a relief to Bruce. He had managed afterward, by dint of turning over life insurance and all other available funds, to satisfy all of his creditors; he had come out of the thing with honor, if with nothing else.

Father and son were alike as two peas in a pod, Candace thought with impatient admiration, Bruce giving up everything for the sake of a scruple, Peter slaving for no money and but little thanks. Impractical idealists, both of them. They needed someone to take care of them. Maybe this girl Peter was marrying would be the one to do it.

An uneasy thought struck her. Bruce was happy here, she knew; he felt himself to be needed and useful. What if this strange girl were to find him in the way? She knew that Peter himself looked on his father's stroke in the nature of a blessing, it was a lever he had made use of to pry Bruce loose from a hopeless situation, a losing fight against insurmountable odds; but what if his wife were to resent having him about, a half-invalid who might at any time become a heavy burden?

Consumed with curiosity about the girl, Candace had planned to ask at the first opportunity, "What about this gal Peter's marrying? Will I be able to o. k. her?" Casually. As though it didn't matter.

Now, she found, she could not. She was afraid that she might somehow convey her uneasiness to Bruce; and she didn't want to be the one to make him feel insecure, possibly unwanted.

She became anxious to leave before she herself might somehow blunder into the subject, or Bruce could bring it up. As soon after lunch as she decently could she said briskly, "I can't wait around any longer on the chance of seeing Peter, I'm afraid. I have an awful lot to do."

"He'll be disappointed he missed you," Bruce said. "Lord knows you get over here seldom enough. Can't you run in some evening this week?"

Candace said, with a fine simulation of innocence, "If I haven't even forgotten to mention that I'm going away! With the elderly lady I'm taking care of now," she added, "to Nassau."

"That's fine for you, child," Bruce said heartily; but she could see that he was puzzled by her secretiveness. "You'll certainly try to see Peter before you leave, won't you? When are you going? For how long?"

"We're leaving tomorrow," she said, "so I doubt if I will see Peter. But it'll be for only a month or so," she added lightly, "I'll be back before our busy season reallyizes I've left."

She slipped out, thankful that she had missed seeing Peter and avoided his possible questioning thereby; feeling at the same time lonely and dissatisfied too.

When she got back to her apartment at Mrs. Flint's she saw that some packages had been delivered while she was out. In the corner her steamer trunk, still open, waited for what they contained; all other luggage was packed and strapped, ready to go.

One of the packages, she knew, held an evening gown that had required some minor alterations; she unwrapped it quickly and tried it on.

It proved to be a bad move. The last time she had worn evening clothes had been the night when she'd dressed up, so confidently, so happily, to lay her present at Martin's feet; she hadn't worn them since. Immediate memories rushed in, scalding her. She tried to escape from the pain of the past by looking ahead; she faced resolutely a future that promised to be, if not dull, rather on the drab side.

She became aware with something like relief that for some minutes the doorbell had been peeping insistently in the back of the house downstairs; she heard the door open finally and a man's footsteps prowling about. She opened her door to investigate.

in a prepared statement, "we had to exercise considerable care in not imposing such a severe rate on corporations as to disrupt the national economy of our country."

George said the committee gave careful consideration to the recommendations of Chairman Donald Nelson of the War Production Board in fixing the excess profits rate at 90 per cent with a 10 per cent post-war refund, given in non-negotiable, non-interest bearing bonds payable after the war.

George estimated the broadening of the individual income tax base by reducing the personal exemptions would add approximately 7,000,000 new taxpayers, with 600,000 more added by a reduction of the credit for dependents from $400 to $300.

"In order to raise the large amount of additional revenue required it is necessary to reach down into the lower income group and in doing so I felt it preferable to levy a tax such as the victory tax, rather than a general retail sales tax," Senator George said.

He said it was impossible to obtain the estimated $3,600,000,000 additional revenue of the 5 per cent victory tax by increased taxation of persons in the higher income levels.

Beazley Almost Quit Baseball When Back Hurt

By Judson O'Quinn
 NEW ORLEANS. (P)—Johnny Beazley was about ready to quit baseball two years ago after three seasons as a bush leaguer whose back hurt every time he cut loose with his fast one.

"I took him to a doctor," Charles A. Furth, business manager of New Orleans Southern Association club related Tuesday, "and the doc said if he would have his tonsils out, he'd be fit as a fiddle."

"That's just what he did, and the doc was right."

"I got my biggest baseball thrill," said ex-boss Furth, "as I sat in St. Louis and watched that rookie beat the Yankees in the second game of the World Series. When in trouble, ice water really flowed in his veins."

Series Broadcast Just Like A Letter

NEW YORK. (P)—Members of Uncle Sam's armed forces, scattered all over the globe, listened to radio accounts of the St. Louis Cardinals' victory in the 1942 five-game World Series with all the thrill of receiving a letter from home.

Only in Hawaii were there any regrets. The New York Yankees were heavy favorites there.

But it was directly opposite in the Canal Zone, Whitey Kurovski, whose home run Monday with a mate on base gave the Cards the fourth victory and the title, played shortstop and third base in the Isthmian League in 1940 and the entire Zone was pro-Cardinal as St. Louis' Grand Boulevard.

End Of The Rainbow Made Redbirds Run

By Sid Feder
 NEW YORK. (P)—A bunch of St. Louis Cardinals came bustling out of Yankee Stadium, still boisterous at winning the World Series, brushed off the cab drivers and headed for the subway and the nickel ride back to their hotel.

That is as good a way as any of leading into the possibility that all that "gallantry" and "gameness" of the crash-house game came from that $6,192.50 waiting for each player at the finish of the 1942 series—and the Cards are a lean, hungry team.

But the reports are that the top-priced player on the young St. Louis outfit draws in the neighborhood of $10,000. That would be Terry Moore, the ghost of center field, who not only can—but does—catch everything within nine miles of him.

The War Today-

should have reached a point of understanding where rebukes can be exchanged without causing friction. Certainly the same could not have been said not so long ago.

There is no doubt that Stalin will get his second front at the first feasible moment. Irrespective of his desire, there would be a second front because of Anglo-American determination to establish one.

To any trained observer it is wholly clear that this country is a perfect behemoth of preparation by both British and American forces for offensive operations.

Can't Gamble Madly
 The British public, like the American, lives for the day when a major offensive can be undertaken. However, the man in the street who not so long ago was loud in demands that a second front be opened immediately now has reached the conclusion after all it must be for the high command to say when and where offensives shall be undertaken.

However, of one thing we can be very certain—the Anglo-American command will never undertake that most difficult operation in all history of war until it feels reasonably certain of success. That doesn't mean they aren't prepared to take chances, for they are. But the stakes are too great to gamble madly.

The recent Dieppe raid ought to show the dangers of such an invasion.

Cubs Come Back With Win To Extend Series

CHICAGO. (P)—The Chicago Cubs won an extra inning game from the White Sox Monday night, keeping alive their hopes for victory in the annual city series.

The win, second straight for the National Leaguers, gave the Cubs a chance to extend the four-of-seven series to the limit with a victory Tuesday night. The Sox won the first three encounters.

St. Louis Cardinals Rate Among Best Baseball Teams In History

By Gayle Talbot
 NEW YORK. (P)—If it were not for the probability that the war will break it up, the St. Louis Cardinals club that completed the job of wrecking the New York Yankees Monday night within the next few years go tearing on to win ranking with the greatest teams in baseball history.

It is a son-of-a-gun of a baseball club—much better than anyone suspected even when it was running wild in the closing stages of the National League race. There is no team in either league at this time with anything approaching the all-around punch, pitching and polish of the new world champions.

On the off chance that somebody might think we are going overboard on the bold young men of Manager Billy Southworth, a few figures might be in order:

Through Monday's deciding game at the stadium, which was won by 4-2 on a two-run homer by George Kurovski, rookie third baseman, in the ninth inning, the Cardinals won 47 of their last 57 contests in the 1942 season. That comes to an altitudinous winning average of .824 down the stretch.

As the series unfolded it became obvious that the Cardinals not only had all the dash and color which had become their hallmark, but that they also possessed great pitching in quantity. Mort Cooper, their biggest winner, was singled from the box twice by the Yankees and yet they had men who could take up the slack in Johnny Beazley, Ernie White and Max Lanier.

Beazley, the solemn 23-year-old rookie from Nashville, who defeated the Yankees in the second game to square the series and then came back to clinch the championship Monday, probably deserved to be called the series star. He pitched two great games and showed an astonishing amount of poise for a youngster.

The Cardinals line-up was studied with stars. It strictly was a team victory. Take Kurovski, the rookie third sacker from Reading, Pa. His game-winning blow Monday was little more important than the triple he smacked in the second game to drive in a run and throw the Yankees into a tantrum of umpire-baiting from which they never recovered.

PLEASE SAVE MINUTES

SHORT CALLS HELP CLEAR THE WAY FOR WAR CALLS

Every time you shorten a local telephone call by a minute... or by five minutes... you help clear crowded telephone equipment here for vital war calls.

That's because, every minute that you talk, you are using not just your telephone, not just your telephone lines, but important witching connections at the telephone office. And this equipment may be badly needed to speed on its way a call vital to the war effort.

We can't put in more equipment. The copper and other metals we need have gone off to war factories to be built into ships and tanks, into guns and shells. We've got to do the best job we can with what we now have. And to do it, we need your help. You can help greatly...

1. By not calling unless you must.
2. By making your calls short.
3. By avoiding if you can the busy hours from 9 to 11 a.m.

In a war that is everybody's war, we know everybody will be glad to help. Thank you.
