Sir Anthony Eden Most Bounteous Thanksgiving In America's Homes In Critical Phase

Nazis Acknowledge Russian Successes; Reds Close Big Trap

By Roger D. Greene Associated Press War Editor

Russia's armies squeezed the German "escape corridor" from Stalingrad down to a bare 30 miles Wednesday, engulfed 12 more towns and villages, and boosted enemy losses to 100,000 killed or captured in a violent seven-day-old offensive which the Nazis admitted had not yet reached its peak.

Northwest of Stalingrad, the Red Armies were reported to have driven 80 miles into the depth of Nazi defenses inside the Big Bend of the Don River, and to the Southeast the Russians had knifed 65 miles into Dispatches said the jaws of the Soviet trap were closing steadily.

Simultaneously, the Germans acknowledged that the Russians had succeeded in "temporarily penetrating" Nazi defenses on the Rzhev front, 130 miles northwest of Moscow.

A Berlin broadcast said the Russians smashed through after three assaults on the German lines.

Soviet offensive synchronized with the great counter-drive from Stalingrad, but it was the second time in 24 hours that Berlin had admitted serious breaks n the German lines.

Dispatches from Moscow pictured the German siege armies, estimated at 300,000 troops, as hemmed into a narrow passageway extending 120 miles westward from Stalingrad, with the Russians attacking furiously from both sides.

Neither Did The Puritans

We don't have much coffee or tea or cocoa for this year's Thanksgiving dinner. Many meats now are rationed. Wages are good, there is work for all, but prices are high, taxes are heavy, and we feel impelled to spend more for war bonds.

In many ways already we are worse off than in the depth of the great depression. New privations are in sight. Yet now comes Thanksgiving Day and again we are supposed to put on a cheerful face and try to think up some blessings.

Well, misery loves company, so let's resurrect one of the Massachusetts Bay Puritans of 1621, in the autumn of which the first Thanksgiving Day was observed.

We can't take Governor Carver, because he was among the half of the colonists who died in the preceding winter from physical privations, including malnutrition. He never lived to give thanks in America.

William Bradford, second governor, will do. Presumably he had as many comforts as there were in the village of Plymouth.

Bring back the spirit of William Bradford, invite him to Thanksgivng dinner in the home of the poorest famly in town, and watch his spiritual eyes pop at what he sees and what he has to eat!

Sure, we are short of coffee and tea, spices and beef, and virgin wool in cur store clothes. And how much when in gratitude for their first matured harvest, which of any of these do you suppose the Pilgrim Fathers had for the first time enabled them to eat a satisfyingly full meal of any sort, they established the institution of Thanksen My husband yet."

even though all the wife says is, "Thank goodness, they haven't taken My husband yet."

They felt themselves fortunate to have some grain ed most wives say more than that. They felt themselves fortunate to have some grain (we have a surplus) which they could make successively instance, "I don't think the Army into flour and bread; some turkeys which they went into ought to take married men." the Indian-infested forests and shot; crude houses in which 65-degrees of heat anywhere except in front of the fireplace would have seemed miraculous.

Our sons, our husbands, our brothers and our friends "Couldn't Get Along" are away from home, a few dead and more facing death.
Their sons, husbands, brothers and friends already were dead—one out of two of them—dead for lack of the food, clothing, shelter which the most under-privileged family in America passesses.

Some of them go helpless and say they just don't think they could ever get along without their husbands. And others say they don't think their husbands could stand Army life.

Indeed, there is some reason to wonder whether the essential co-ordination would not have broken hangers, the OPA has ruled. No down completely, except for advance arrangements which could not have been made without the background of our previous tolerance toward Vichy in the face of great aggravation.

There was, for instance, one easy landing against a French fort which might have held up our rangers for days and broken up the timing of the entire venture. But from some impelling source not yet identified to us, the commander had received orders to facilitate the American landing, rather than oppose it. This he did.

If the conquest of North Africa means the "end of the beginning"—an essential step toward establishment of a second front in Europe—and if this conquest was facilitated by the Roosevelt-Hull policy toward Vichy, then that policy was justified.

Your grocer knows that when you ask for Coca-Cola . . . or use its friendly abbreviation, Coke ... you want the real thing. The only thing like Coca-Cola is Coca-Cola, itself.

"Yes, ma'am. You're lucky. You know, it's amazing how folks keep on asking for it, even when they're not sure they can get it as often in wartime, as before. It's the real thing, all right."

Wartime limits the supply of Coca-Cola. Those times when you cannot get it, remember: Coke, being first choice, sells out first. Ask for it each time. No matter how short the supply, the quality of Coca-Cola carries on.
