116 Japs Are Killed In Surprise Attack

Allied warplanes pressed their offensive against Japan's invasion armies in the South Seas and in Burma Friday, and United Nations ground troops were credited with killing 116 Japanese in a surprise attack 15 miles below the big enemy base at Salamaua, New Guinea.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's head-x-quarters indicated that the Allies; virtually wiped out a Japanese force in the Mubo area, on the approaches to Salamaua, reporting that they were combing the bush for the bodies of more enemy slain.

In winning the national team-offour championship for the fourth time, Charles H. Goren of Philadelphia said he had an opportunity to use a couple of the plays in his new book entified "Better Bridge for Better Players." Goren selected today's hand as one of the best in the national tournament.

Some Fact West naive an four hours' time at the old Mustang Hall.

Yes, sir, that's one place where you can have all you want of something without a ration card. All you need is your Mustang card—and if you don't have your new 1943 official card, you'd better come the one and only corral with a message for you from the one and only corral-boss, our old friend Harold Kendrick. Old Socko will be busy too on those at-turned out to be extraordinary. Goren won the first trick and cashed the queen and jack of diamonds. He led the club queer overtook with the ace in dummy and cashed the diamond ace in order to discard the three of hearts. But he still had to reckon with the possibility of losing two spades besides the king of trumps. He led a heart from dummy and carefully ruffed with the nine of trumps. On a spade lead South played low and the king won. The five of spades was led back, Goren ducked and the ace fell. South led a trump, on which dummy played the five, North the king and Goren the ten. North led the last trump to stop the spade ruff, but owing to Goren's foresight, he could play the four and let dummy win with the eight. Then dummy cashed the king of diamonds for the discard of the losing spade.

BY MORRIS MARKEY

THE STORY: This is the story of the "perfect crime"—the murder of Col. Wesley Hope Merriwether in the library of his Long Island estate—and of the events leading up to it. The Colonel, very much alive at the moment, is at dinner with his daughter Cynthia, Fred West and his cousin Anne, and Vaughan Dunbar. Dunbar is a foreign correspondent and a new acquaintance, of whom Cynthia seems particularly fond. She his turned down dates with West and with Henry Prentiss, another attentive friend, to act as hostess for this dinner party and to devote her time to Dunbar. Colonel seems a mite bothered since." about something tonight."

give themselves to capture within a neat, explanatory phrase. Of such was Cynthia Merriwether's perfectly obvious concern, on that evening, with the comfort and entertainment of Vaughan Dunbar. Her attentiveness, her eager determination to set him at his ease and to soothe his humors were, "Oh, sorry—I—" as the saying goes, quite unlike her usual merry-go-lucky self. To such an extent, indeed, that Fred West became unhappy. And when 11 o'clock struck, Fred West arose from his chair and inquired rather gurgle days were long past. And yes he did, too. glanced at him. Cynthia said, "Go on with Anne, Fred. We might come over after a while. Anyway, I'll telephone the steward in an hour, so you will know whether to expect us." Then she said, "Colonel, you'll not be needing Mitchell, will you? He wants to go too."

Whereupon, Fred West and his that's what they told me. Isn't it curious that you have to depend.

Was started off in a new world and I could have everything I wanted. A spoiled brat—that's what I was, and what I am now. Mr. Dunbar, you're looking smack into the face of a spoiled brat. Deplorable, isn't item to say—at least, that's what they told me. Isn't it curious that you have to depend.

"You do go on so, don't you'?"

Whereupon, Fred West and his cousin Anne and a fro ming Mitchell Grace trooped out of the room and got themselves into a motor car and went off to the dancing. Colonel Merriwether finished his cigar, watching the two who sat in the room with him and talking very little. He seemed uncommonly preoccupied.

But now he lingered at his desk, fore Christmas, a lawyer and some looking at them in the dull light other people came and said I must be nurse was the nurse was a lawyer and some the time I was old enough to ask the nurse was as if he might have something more to say, but could not quite make up his mind to say it. Another Range Fire-Fighting Station Opened

Lt. Guyler Allbright, Range Of-ficer at the Midland AAF Bombarlier School, announced Friday the opening of a third range fire-fighting station for use by ranchers in the vicinity of the targets north of the Bombardier College.

The new fire station, known as the Fasken Range Fire Station, is about 40 miles north and east of Midland and nine miles due east of Andrews. It is on ranch land leased by Tom Nance on the Old Seminole Road at the junction with Andrews

Three enlisted men from the Bombardier School, Pvts, John Geis, Andrew Kaiser, and Frank Waiter, have been assigned to 24-hours-a-day duty at the station, Lt. All-bright said. They are supplied with clothing and equipment for duty in all kinds of weather. The fire-fighting equipment includes a fire truck and a radio carryall.

Lt. Allbright explained the fire-fighting service is at the disposal of any rancher in the area who needs assistance in fighting a fire of any kind. The Fasken station may be reached by calling the Mid-land Long Distance operator and asking for the Fasken Range Fire
