Annual immunizations begin

Mandatory flu shots scheduled

The 64th Medical Group has begun giving Reese military personnel their annual influenza immunizations.

According to SSgt. Richard Lawrence, NCOIC of the 64th MDG Allergy and Immunization Clinic, the shots are mandatory for all military members.

The immunizations will be administered by squadron over the next few weeks.

"People need to bring their shot records when reporting for the immunizations," said Sergeant Lawrence. "Those with medical waivers prohibiting the shots need to bring those

Reese expects to have enough of the vaccine to also inoculate Reese civilian employees and military retirees. However, these immunizations

DOD shifts emphasis in five-year plan

Secretary Perry vows to lobby for people programs

Defense Secretary William Perry pledged to lobby for increased pay, protect benefits and ensure a high quality of life for military members in a statement to the Air Force Association in Washington.

Secretary Perry was scheduled to deliver a speech at the annual AFA convention, but was unable to attend because of pressing national security matters.

He announced DOD will shift funds in the five-year defense plan toward readiness, military pay raises and quality of life improvements for service members.

"My most important task, since the day I was sworn in as secretary of defense, has been to maintain the high quality and morale of our people in uniform. This has been an enormous challenge as we complete the post-Cold War drawdown and build a force for the challenges of a new era," he said. "But if there is anything I'd like to be measured for at the end of my tenure, it's the quality of our forces. I inherited

General Kehoe to command 19th AF

General Kehoe

RANDOLPH AFB, Texas (AETCNS) — Maj. Gen. Nicholas B. Kehoe has been named the new commander of 19th Air Force, Randolph AFB, Texas.

General Kehoe succeeds Maj. Gen. Everett H. Pratt Jr., who will become the vice commander, United States Air Forces in Europe, Ramstein AB, Germany.

General Kehoe will assume command in a ceremony here Thursday. The general was most recently assigned to Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers Europe, Mons, Belgium, where he served as assistant chief of staff for operations and logistics.

He is a command pilot with more than 3,500 flying hours, including more than 800 combat hours.

Previous assignments include deputy director for regional plans and policy, Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Plans and Operations, Headquarters U.S. Air Force, Washington D.C. He assumed his current assignment in July, 1992.

Combined Federal Campaign hits stretch run

Reese pulls to within $7,620 of wing goal

by Capt. Michael Woodlee
Asst. CFC Project Officer

Less than two weeks to go and we're almost there!

The 1994 Combined Federal Campaign officially ends on Nov. 4 and we only need $7,620 to reach our goal of $95,000.

The CFC is a direct appeal to the better side of human nature, unfortunately, some of us (myself included) suffer from a common shortfall in our nature—procrastination.

We've all heard where our donations go and the result; countless hundreds of thousands of young and old of every race, religion and national and ethnic origin receiving care and attention that otherwise wouldn't have been available.

By this point in the annual campaign we know that our future health has been bolstered through medical research programs. Someone in your family or circle of friends has probably benefited directly or indirectly from the work of scores of other service organizations.

All of us know the benefits of our donations, we've seen where they go and we even know how to fill out the form. The only thing left is to "just do it."

Each and every year, the men and women of the 64th Flying Training Wing demonstrate their concern and contribute generously—this year is no different. To date, you've donated over $87,300 and the goal is well within our reach—now is the time for those last few of us to fill out those pledge cards.

Whether you give by check, cash, or payroll withholding, the time you take to give is definitely time well spent.

A few minutes of your time today can mean meals for hungry children, relief for families in need of counseling, environmental protection, better lives and renewed hope for others.

Your gift to CFC will work many wonders—take a moment and give. If you have any questions, please call me at 3179.

From your perspective

"A Careline column provides one of many opportunities for a commander to find out what people are thinking, what's bothering them, what they like, etc. If you've wondered why we do something, or just want to make a comment, don't hesitate to call. You can call the Careline 24 hours a day at 3273. If you leave your name and telephone number, we'll get back to you and answer your concern by telephone. Calls of interest to the Reese community will be published, without the caller's name, in the Roundup the following week. I look forward to hearing from you."

Col. Roger Brady,
64th FTW Commander

Delivery service is limited

I'm calling about the delivery service at Mamma Reesione's. Since it has moved to the Reese Club, delivery is limited to only a few squadrons.

If you go at lunch to get a drink, they don't put a lid on it. Overall, the service isn't very good.

Thanks for your call. Our intent in relocating Mamma Reesione's was to increase food service to our members and reduce costs.

We have corrected the carry-out problem you identified and I can assure you our club management staff will continue to work hard to improve customer service.

Thanks again for helping us to serve you better.

Energy conservation extends beyond Reese Global environment affected by our actions

by Maj. Judy Burk
Reese Energy Working Group

October is Energy Awareness Month, but any time of the year is a good Time to be "energy aware."

Energy conservation affects us all, not just our families and our pocketbooks, but the global environment as well, as you'll read below.

Do your part to save energy resources — be energy aware.

Environmental benefit

□ A car emits carbon dioxide in an amount equal to its own weight every 15,000 miles.

□ Burning one gallon of gasoline by a car releases 22 pounds of carbon dioxide into the atmosphere.

□ Every kilowatt-hour of electricity saved avoids over two pounds of carbon dioxide being pumped into the atmosphere.

□ Carbon dioxide is the single biggest contributor to the global warming
Heating, ventilation and air conditioning

□ A well-maintained HVAC unit in a family housing unit can save up to $200 per year.

□ Turning down the thermostat from 70 degrees F to 65 degrees F saves about 10 percent of total heating costs.

□ Setting the thermostat back from 70 degrees F for eight hours at night saves about 10 percent of total heating costs.

□ Raising the thermostat can save 3 to 5 percent on air-conditioning cost for each degree.

Communications security

The cold war may be over, but the need to protect national security isn't. Watch what you say on and off the telephone!

Halloween

On a night when mythical goblins prowl and witches fly, there are real dangers everyone needs to keep in mind

Halloween is one of our most festive holidays. It can also be one of our most hazardous.

Children in costumes, trick-or-treating, fall decorations and Halloween celebrations each require special safeguards.

According to the National Fire Protection

Association, the greatest hazard at Halloween is the potential of clothing fires. Some residents may put carved pumpkins in the yard or on porches and put lighted candles inside them. They look pretty, but these pose an extreme danger to children.

Many costumes are home-made and have no fire-retardant material whatsoever. It only takes a second for some costumes or clothing material to ignite from an exposed flame. Candles can also be knocked over by trick or treaters, or by wind, and ignite nearby combustibles.

Trick-or-treating in Reese Village is scheduled from 6 to 8 p.m. on Halloween.

Reese residents are reminded that only Reese personnel and bona fide guests will be admitted to the housing area during this time.

Parents should inspect Halloween candy. If anything looks suspicious — throw it away. The 64th Security Police Squadron will again use a metal detector to inspect candy at the Reese Visitors Center. People can bring candy to the center on Halloween from 6 to 8:30 p.m.

In addition, parents can have Halloween candy X-rayed at the 64th Medical Group from 7:30 a.m. to noon, Nov. 1.

Children should be reminded not to be lured by strangers promising special treats. Trick-or-treaters should never go inside a house to get a treat.

For those having Halloween parties, be good hosts. Make sure non-alcoholic beverages are available and don't let anyone drive away drunk.

Some other helpful tips to remember are:

□ Purchased costumes should carry a fire retardant label. Remember, costumes that were originally fire retardant may have lost that capability if they have gotten wet or have been washed.

□ Avoid costumes with flimsy fabric, loose flowing sleeves and voluminous skirts. Especially beware of the traditional billowing robes of ghosts and witches made of yards and yards of worn sheets. These can easily catch fire when exposed to flames or sparks carried by wind.

□ Costumes should be short enough that youngsters don't trip on them, and be of light colors so the wearers can be easily seen by motorists.

□ It is a good idea to have children carry a flashlight or glow-stick.

□ The safest disguises are natural masks, usually cosmetic make-up. If commercial masks, wigs and beards are worn, they should be marked fire retardant. Avoid fibrous hair which obscures the child's vision.

□ Use a flashlight instead of a candle to illuminate a pumpkin. Keep children away from fireplaces, sparks and other sources of heat.

□ Halloween decorations in the home should also be fire retardant. Be especially careful with colorful leaves, corn husks, hay and other dry materials used in typical fall decorations.

The use of harvest season decorations is strictly prohibited in base facilities unless they are made of fire retardant materials.

□ An adult should accompany young children on their Halloween rounds.

□ Children should only trick-or-treat in their own neighborhood.

(Adapted from article by Michael Guzman, Reese Fires Inspector.)

This Halloween decoration put up at a Reese Village residence last year serves as a reminder that the best way to have a happy Halloween is to keep it safe. Take the appropriate precautions, especially with children's activities. And don't drink and drive!

Reese releases new AICUZ study

Base, community coordinate use of surrounding property

An updated Reese Air Installation Compatible Use Zone study was released in a public meeting here Tuesday.

The AICUZ study addresses aircraft noise and accident potential zones created by current flying operations at Reese.

It also contains information on building height restrictions and provides data for use in establishing land uses which are compatible with the current flying mission.

"As Lubbock County and the city of Lubbock continue to grow and prosper, we believe it is important that we join with government and business leaders in a cooperative effort to implement mutually beneficial planning for the future," said

Col. Roger Brady, 64th Flying Training Wing commander.

AICUZ data is intended for use by local citizens and government officials involved in land use planning and facility development.

Colonel Brady noted that the purpose of the AICUZ program is to help ensure the health, safety, and welfare of the citizens in the surrounding communities while preserving the operational capabilities of Reese.

During the meeting, wing officials outlined the overall AICUZ program, its methodology, potential uses of the study, and Air Force and community responsibilities for compatible land use.

Col. Terry Weimer (inset), 64th Support Group commander, gives an AICUZ briefing during a public meeting at the Reese Club Tuesday evening.

AF submits report on accidental shootdown

U.S. Army helicopter tragedy over Iraq ruled an isolated incident

WASHINGTON (AFNS) — The accidental shootdown of two U.S. Army helicopters over northern Iraq in April was an isolated incident and not indicative of a bigger problem, an Air Force investigation has determined.

The investigation report — submitted to the Secretary of Defense — also stated that there were areas that "needed improvement" and the Air Force "is in the process of correcting training programs to address the shortfalls identified."

Regarding the April 14 incident that claimed the lives of 26 people, the report indicated that the Airborne Warning and Control System failed "to build an accurate picture" and "F-15 pilots misidentified the target."

"During the course of the examination, it became evident that the pace of contingency operations and the turmoil associated with unit relocations and downsizing have the potential to adversely affect future performance," the report read.

To address these concerns, the Air Force plans to:

- Issue guidance and standards to manage deployment and temporary duty rates. Pending publication of the guidance, the Air Force has adopted 120 days per year as a guideline.

- Review the weapons controller career path to ensure that a sustained level of qualified controllers is available in the future.

- Conduct an in-depth review of the operations and ground training of all theater air control system units following the completion of the ongoing reorganization and unit moves.

Air Force officials stressed that "pending legal actions have no bearing on this report."

In September, the Air Force leveled charges against six officers involved in the incident. One F-15C pilot was charged with 26 counts of negligent homicide and one charge of dereliction of duty. Five AWACS crew members were also charged with dereliction of duty. The second F-15 pilot has not been charged.

"This report does not address issues which are under review by responsible authorities" an Air Force statement read.

The review team included 120 members and was headed by Air Force Maj. Gen. W. Thomas West.

Secretary Perry cites AF for deterring war

Speedy response stops possible Iraq invasion plan cold

by TSgt. Louis Arana-Barradas
Air Force News Service

ARABIAN GULF REGION — Any hopes Saddam Hussein had of a second invasion of Kuwait were cut short by the U.S. Air Force, the secretary of defense said Oct. 14.

Touring U.S. Air Force operations in the region, Defense Secretary William Perry said American resolve and air power forced the Iraqi leader to back down from any plans to invade the country.

"The Air Force has really deterred a war," he said.

The secretary said because the Air Force reacted so quickly, it not only saved Kuwait from an invasion, "but in the long run, it saved the Iraqi people."

"They would have suffered terribly if we had to go in and actually dislodge them (from Kuwait) like we did last time," he said.

The crisis which precipitated the deployment of U.S. troops into the region was started by "Hussein moving all of his Republican Guard divisions right over to the border with Kuwait," Secretary Perry said. Iraqi troops movements, in violation of United Nations sanctions, started Oct. 6.

American response was lightning fast, and Air Force flying units started deploying to staging areas in the Middle East immediately. "We were there right away with air power," he said.

New units are augmenting the ongoing monitoring of United Nations Security Council Resolution 688, which established sanctions.

As American forces continued to pour into the region, Iraqi forces withdrew from the border. The secretary said that was because Hussein still had a "very strong memory of the capabilities and the power of the U.S. Air Force in Desert Storm" which destroyed the Iraqi war machine.

"When we started deploying F-15s and F-16s and A-10s in large numbers, I think they got the message very quickly," Secretary Perry said.

During his visit to the base, the secretary toured 4404th Composite Wing (Provisional) units which deployed with EF-111, F-15 and F-16 aircraft. He talked to pilots and maintenance and support troops, asking them about their jobs and about desert operations. He also inspected their warplanes, some of which were on alert.

SSgt. Dorothy O. Robbins, an aircraft scheduler from the 16th Special Operations Squadron at Hurlburt Field, Fla., said it was great the secretary stopped at the base. "It's good to see the interest he's showing in his troops by being here. It's great for morale."

"I think the secretary's visit is a way for us to show the results of this vast deployment we've made," said A1C Arin E. Finch, vehicle operator from the 722nd Transportation Squadron, March AFB, Calif. "This visit gave us a chance to show what we've done."

The secretary said he had been "enormously impressed" with the people he has seen on his Middle East tour. "The capability, the spirit, the enthusiasm has been great," he said. "I appreciate it, the president appreciates it and the American people thank them."

DOD chief pledges support for people programs

quality forces with high morale, and I want to pass them along to my successor," he said.

Secretary Perry explained that budget constraints forced defense to choose between people and equipment.

"There simply isn't the money to support both people and systems. But the choice was made easier because America's security still comes down to the courage, training, professionalism and morale of each individual man and woman," he said.

"But attracting and keeping good people means continued investment in the quality of life of service members and their families; which falls into three categories. The first involves standard of living and specifically pay and benefits. Second is the tempo of operations, training and mission that calls service members away from their families. And third, it's the way we treat people; whether we treat them fairly when they're in the service and when they leave; whether we give people a fair chance to advance and excel," he said.

All of these contribute to what he calls "medium-term readiness." He said this is most closely associated with the state of mind of the forces.

"From my conversations with officers and enlisted men and women, it is clear that if we don't protect the quality of military life, morale in the forces—and ultimately readiness—will suffer," he said.

Secretary Perry said no one joins the military to get rich, but "nobody expects to take a vow of poverty either." He cares deeply about the issue and pledged to make his voice heard at pay raise time.

Secretary Perry pledged to preserve the commissary benefit. While there are ways to make the commissary system more efficient and cost-effective, he said he will reject any proposal that lowers the quality, benefits and services offered.

Secretary Perry

Another quality of life initiative is to improve housing.

"Every base commander and senior enlisted person I've talked to, when I asked what affects morale most at their bases, mentions housing as No. 1 or No. 2," he said.

The secretary said DOD will continue to look for solutions to the housing problem. One such solution is to have private firms build housing on military bases and lease the units to military people at reasonable rates.

Health care is another quality of life issue of concern to service members.

"Short term, the allocation of health care services has been hurt by the turbulence of downsizing, with families in Europe suffering most," Secretary Perry said. "The larger challenge is to harmonize military health care with national health care reform and to make defense health care more efficient without sacrificing quality."

Secretary Perry said DOD is making progress on all front even though many of the proposals will cost money and may require reductions in systems acquisitions down the road.

"But let me reiterate: Every penny that we spend to maintain military quality of life is an investment in the readiness of the force," he said. (AFNS)

Reese schedules flu shots

will not be administered in the squadrons. Civilians and retirees wanting a flu shot should contact Sergeant Lawrence at 3846 to schedule a clinic appointment.

Family members may receive immunizations on a walk-in bases at the clinic after Nov. 1.

Immunizations of people on flying status will be coordinated through the 64th MDG flight surgeon's office. Individuals will be scheduled by their respective squadrons.

All personnel should contact their orderly rooms for the specific location of the immunization sessions.

Squadron immunizations will be: Wednesday — 64th Communications Squadron, 9 to 11 a.m. and 64th Security Police Squadron, 1 to 3 p.m.; Thursday — 64th Civil Engineer Squadron, 8:30 to 10 a.m. and 64th Logistics Squadron, 1 to 3 p.m.; and Oct. 28 — 64th Mission Support Squadron, 9 to 11 a.m.

Air Force phases out uniform items

WASHINGTON (AFNS) — The Air Force phased out three uniform items Sept. 30 and a fourth item Oct. 1.

The items include the blue formal dress head gear, woman's blue beret and maternity smock. Women have the option of wearing their service cap or flight cap in lieu of the beret, and the maternity blouse with or without the maternity jacket instead of the smock.

Oct. 1 was the last day Air Force members could wear the olive drab green T-shirt. They can wear the brown T-shirt or, where authorized, the black T-shirt.

Retraining program is extended

Phase II of the fiscal year 1995 NCO Retraining Program has been extended through Oct. 31. The extension provides additional time for members to volunteer for retraining. For information, call A1C Barbara Nez, 6492.

AF modifies cycle ergometry testing

Complaints about the cycle ergometry test may soon disappear as Air Force refines the program.

Beginning next year, cycle ergometry testing will include a warm-up period and fewer and more accurate fitness categories, according to Reese and Air Force medical officials.

Air Force-wide, the tests are being moved from squadrons and other such locations to health and wellness centers. That policy is already in effect at Reese. Medical and services personnel, and normally exercise physiologists, will administer the test and provide guidance, Air Force officials said.

Capt. (Dr.) Phillip Petterborg, 64th Medical Group, said Reese also offers classes on subjects such as nutrition, substance abuse, stress reduction, injury prevention, and smoking cessation to assist members in being physically fit for the tests.

"We have had an excellent record at Reese," said Captain Petterborg. "We are among the top bases in the Air Force in terms of our pass rate."

The captain attributed Reese's success to the mandatory fitness program in which individual members are required to conduct and report specific fitness activities each month.

The Air Force began cycle ergometry testing in October 1992 as a replacement for the 1.5-mile run and 3-mile walk — neither of which was a safe or accurate measurement of fitness, officials said.

However, thousands who failed or scored low on the cycle test said the test was flawed.

As a result, Air Force commissioned the University of Florida to study the test and recommend any improvements.

The university compared cycle ergometry to the treadmill stress test — considered the best measurement of fitness — and found that 5 of 134 people, or 4 percent, who should have passed the cycle test failed.

Air Force also conducted "field" tests with special operations members at Hurlburt

At the same time, Armstrong Laboratory at Brooks AFB, Texas, compared the treadmill with cycle ergometry tests.

Both the university study and test data showed that although the Air Force's cycle ergometry test "is a valid measure of aerobic capacity," changes can improve the program, said Lt. Col. Michael Parkinson, chief of preventive medicine with the Air Force surgeon general's office.

"A number of people had invalid cycle ergometry test scores because their heart rates rose too rapidly," Colonel Parkinson said. "Adding a warm-up time should solve that problem."

He said the Air Force will also reduce the number of scoring categories from six to four and emphasize a person's actual aerobic capacity and how their score compares with others the same age.

Additionally, Air Force will revise the training program for unit fitness monitors.

In some cases, monitors adjust the cycle's work load too quickly if the person riding the cycle has a low heart rate. This causes the rider to pedal harder forcing their heart rate up and invalidating their test score.

Changes in the cycle's computer will alleviate this problem, Colonel Parkinson said.

"Our overall goal is to offer Air Force members 'one-stop-shopping' at state-of-the-art facilities to help them achieve a healthier lifestyle," he said.

In addition to the 64th MDG, Reese has similar cycle machines available for practice and training at the physical fitness center.

AF News to air on cable

Reese will air the Air Force News on the Commander's Access Channel, Mission Cable channel 11, Monday through Wednesday from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The newscast includes stories on construction of food storage shelters at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, for Haitian and Cuban refugees; Senate committee confirmation hearings for the nomination of Gen. Ronald Fogleman as chief of staff of the Air Force; an update on the crash of the B-52 at Fairchild AFB, Wash.; the heavy load being carried by Air Force assets in USAFE; and a record-setting win for the Air Force Falcons in San Antonio.

The 30-minute news program will be repeated three times during the 90-minute broadcasts.

OWC holds craft show

The Reese Officers Wives Club will hold its annual Country Sampler Arts and Crafts Show, Nov. 5. The show will be held at Ruby's (formerly the Reese Enlisted Club) from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

There is no admission charge to the show and all proceeds will go toward the various OWC charitable and scholarship projects.

The show will include stained glass, hand-painted ornaments, handcrafted dolls, floral designs, handmade jewelry and other crafts.

FSC schedules workshops

The Family Support Center has scheduled several workshops in late October and early November. A comfort management workshop is scheduled for 1 to 3 p.m. on Wednesday and a resume workshop is set for 9 to 11:30 a.m., Thursday. On Nov. 2, a principal and interest workshop is slated from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. A purposing workshop is set for Nov. 9 from 8:30 to 11 a.m.

All four workshops are free and are open to military members and spouses. For details on specific workshops, call Genevieve Normand, transition assistance program manager, 3305.

Turn Off Violence Day planned

The 64th Security Police Squadron and the Reese Main Exchange have joined the National Crime Prevention Council to sponsor a Turn Off the Violence Day here Thursday. Everyone is encouraged to refrain from viewing or listening to music, television shows or movies that have violent themes. The observance includes a special 7 p.m. showing of the Little Rascals at the Simler Theater. Admission is $1 per person.

Mindy Mooney paints a clown face on Amber Nolan during the Reese Youth Center Membership Day here Saturday. Several more special events are scheduled for the center's fall carnival.

Reese Youth Center plans fall carnival

A fall harvest carnival is planned for Oct. 28 from 7 to 10 p.m. at the youth center.

There will be games for 25 cents with everyone being a winner. Bring a cake for the cake walk, or display individual talents at the arts and crafts booth by making a project for 50 cents.

Clowns, face painting and balloons will be included in the evening festivities.

For more information call the youth center at 3820.

Weight management class to begin

The 64th Medical Group Health Promotions Office will start a weight management class on Nov. 7. The class will meet every Monday from 10 to 11 a.m. in the aerospace physiology classroom. For additional information, contact MSgt. James Koranda, 3860.

Helping Hand nominations sought

Nominations for the Helping Hand/Volunteer of the Quarter Awards are due to the 64th MSS/MSF by Nov. 1. Nominations should cover activities from July through September 1994. For more information, contact Cheryl Ortiz, 3305.

Mentor volunteers needed

Volunteers are still needed to support the Reese mentor program with Frenship Intermediate School. Call Cheryl Ortiz, 3305, for more details.

OWC hosts social

The Reese Officers Wives Club will host a social and dinner on Nov. 10 in the Reese Club. The event will feature a presentation by "Tis Christmas," a local merchant specializing in Christmas items. For reservations, call 885-4898 or 885-1914 by Nov. 7.

Haunted house committee meets

The Reese Halloween Haunted House committee continues to meet Mondays at 11:30 a.m. in the Reese Club. The committee plans to sponsor a haunted house on base and is looking for Reese organizations to sponsor individual rooms in the house. For more information, contact SSgt. Uwe Woestendiek, 3711.

Library adds career series

The library has added the Careers Without College series, which provides information about jobs which require little or no college training. It includes fields that deal with topics such as emergencies, kids, sports and health care.

The 64th Services Squadron has set the deadline for AETC photography contest.

Base level competition is now underway. The entry deadline is Nov. 1 at the skills development center.

Each contestant may submit up to three entries in each category: monochrome prints, color prints and color transparencies. Prints can not be smaller than 5 inches by 7 inches, or larger than 8 inches by 10 inches. Each print must be mounted on illustration board with no borders.

Each entry must have a DD Form 1553, entry for photo contest. The form must be filled out completely. The entry fee is $2 per entry.

For more information contact Barry Mitchell at 3141.

Wives' clubs support base, community

Both the Officers Wives Club and the Enlisted Wives Club were busy supporting the base and community last week. Above, Litha Brady greets two members of the Women's Division of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce. The OWC hosted 62 division members here Oct. 13. At left, Christy Miller and Connie Malgra, right, set up for an EWC bake sale. Proceeds from the sale went to the EWC scholarship program.

Rules change for AF talent contest

The road to stardom took a new turn as the Air Force announced new guidelines for competing in its annual worldwide talent contest.

Five regional competitions will replace previous major command contests in support of the 1994 Air Force Worldwide Talent Contest.

Active-duty nominees to the regional competitions may now be made through the use of video tapes. Nominees do not have to participate in or win a base-level talent contest in order to submit a nomination request.

The deadline for registering and submitting videos for the base contest is Nov. 15. For more information call SrA. Joe Jackson, 6322. All nominees selected for the regional competition must be personally available to tour with the 1995 Air Force "Tops in Blue," which tours from approximately Jun. , 1995 to Jan. 15, 1996.

Nomination packages, including professional-quality video tapes, may be submitted by a base or by an individual nominee and must arrive at Air Force Entertainment, 10100 Reunion Place, Suite 403, San Antonio TX 78215, no later than Dec 1.

Categories are for solo performers only: male/female vocalist; dancer; instrumentalist; musical variety; and non-musical variety. All musical accompaniment or background music must be pre-recorded cassette tapes provided from the entertainment office.

The term "throwing down the gauntlet," to describe a challenge, derives from medieval times. Gauntlets were the armored hand coverings worn by knights. A challenger threw down his glove and the person who accepted the invitation to fight picked it up.

IM football season enters final stretch

64th SPS, 52nd FTS head toward division showdown

Capt. Trent Baines, 35th Flying Training Squadron, is stopped short of the goal line by 1st Lt. Kevin Raybine, 54th FTS. The 35th FTS won the see-saw game, 32-30, Monday.

by A1C Tim Dempsey
Roundup Sports Editor

As the intramural flag football heads into the final stretch of the season, only the 64th Security Police Squadron has clinched a playoff spot.

The 64th SPS, who lost its first game Oct. 11 against the 64th Medical Group, has a chance to win the American League title when it faces the defending intramural champs, the 52nd Flying Training Squadron, at the end of the season. However, if the 52nd FTS loses any of its final six games, the title belongs to the 64th SPS.

Two other hurdles the 52nd FTS has to jump is the National League's top team, the 64th Logistics Squadron, and the division's second place team, the 35th FTS.

The only 35th FTS losses have been to the two intramural football division leaders.

The 54th FTS, which has dropped games to the 52nd FTS and 35th FTS, still has its eyes set on the playoffs. If it plans to make the playoffs, it must get by the stiff competition of the 64th LS and the improving 64th MDG.

The 64th Operations Support Squadron and the 64th MDG, both with three losses, are battling for third place in the NL. The 64th OSS has already defeated the 64th MDG in head-to-head competition.

The 64th Civil Engineer Squadron and Lockheed-B are both looking to gain a wildcard birth. The 52nd FTS still stands in the way of the 64th CES; they were scheduled to meet Thursday.

Lockheed-B probably faces the toughest road to the intramural flag football playoffs, with the 52nd FTS, the 54th FTS, the 64th OSS and the 64th MDG standing in its way.

Fall jogging tips

by Capt. John Povelones
64th SVS commander

Fall weather—the perfect time to jog! As the weather starts cooling off, more people are starting to enjoy exercising outdoors. A few words of caution for fall running safety.

☐ The safest place to run on base is the jogging track.

☐ Do not run with stereo head sets on unless using the jogging track.

☐ If jogging on or near the street, jog against the traffic flow.

☐ Stay alert, always watch for all traffic, especially at intersections.

☐ Wear reflective gear when running during dusk and dawn time periods.

☐ Wear proper running shoes to avoid injury.

☐ Drink liquids before and after jogging.

Finally, for those organizing running events, painting mile markers on the road is not authorized. Mile markers must be by an orange cone or other removable device.

Groups organizing a running event should contact the physical fitness center staff (3207) for guidance and assistance. By working together, we all can enjoy an injury-free fall running period.
