Mission

64th FTW exceeds CFC goal

Team effort puts Reese over the top

by Col. Roger Brady
64th FTW commander

As I write this, the 1994 Combined Federal Campaign is coming to an end. Team Reese has exceeded its goal and contributions continue to come in.

As of Wednesday, the wing had contributed $95,224.

I find it very rewarding and a great source of pride to be able to serve a wing that responds to challenges in such a positive way. Your response to the CFC reflects two important things, individually and as a unit: a genuine concern for people and their needs, and a pride in a job well done.

Last week, when contributions had slowed and reaching the goal was far from a certainty, members of the Reese Top-3 organization, headed by MSgt. Steve Hastings, came to my office unannounced and gave me a check for $300 to apply toward the CFC.

This totally unsolicited initiative came as a considerable surprise to me, until I reflected on the performance that has always characterized Reese people. The mark of professionals is that they are always looking for what needs to be done, and then they do it.

That's what happened here over the last month. My genuine thanks to the Reese Top-3 and all the commanders, first sergeants, supervisors, loaned executives and key workers and contributors, both military and civilian, who met the challenge to help lots of folks in a worthwhile cause.

Hats off to you all!

MSgt. Steve Hastings, 64th Medical Group, presents a check for $300 to Col. Roger Brady, 64th FTW commander. The check helped boost the wing over its $95,000 Combined Federal Campaign goal.

General Fogleman defines Air Force course

by Gen. Ronald R. Fogleman
Air Force chief of staff

As my tenure as your chief of staff begins, I want to tell you how excited and honored Miss Jane and I are to represent everyone in the United States Air Force.

We look forward to the privilege of serving you and our nation. The purpose of this message is to let you know where I'm coming from and what you can expect in the days ahead.

As we face the future, we should be guided by four basic thoughts. I plan to say more about these in a series of follow-on messages and when I meet personally with you; but, let me put them on the table up front.

The first thought concerns the pace of change. There has been some speculation that, as I take charge, I'll slam on the brakes and steer us in an entirely new direction. That simply is not the case.

In my view, our Air Force is on the right course. Following the coalition's victory in the Gulf War, the Air Force entered a period of dramatic and rapid change. We drew down our force structure, re-engineered our organization, initiated a quality movement, defined a mission and vision statement to guide us.

We owe a debt of gratitude to our former chief of staff, General (Merrill) McPeak, for leading us through those turbulent times and making us the best Air Force in the world.

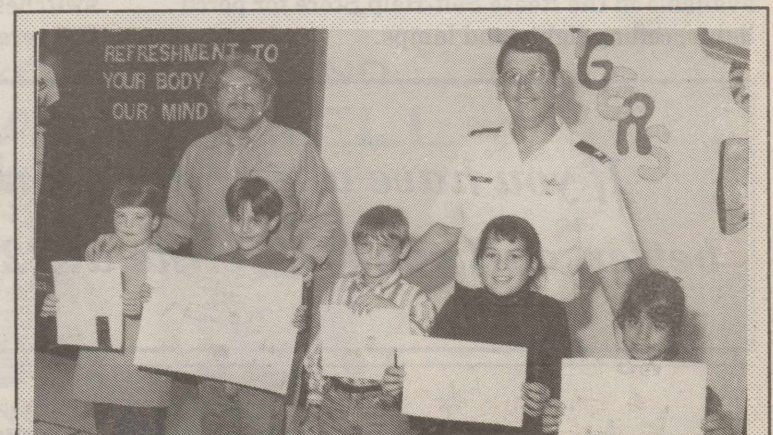

Our challenge now is to build on the strong foundation we've already laid. At the same time, we need to provide our people greater stability.

While there's always room for continuous improvement, any adjustments in the near-term will be relatively small—more like putting the finishing

Reese meets 1994 energy reduction goal

Five elementary students honored for energy posters

by Maj. Leonard Fischman
64th Civil Engineer Squadron commander

Indian summer is the name we often give this time of year. It also marks the new fiscal year and a new energy year.

Everyone's efforts in fiscal year 1994 helped us meet our energy reduction goals once again; thank you!

With the beginning of fiscal year 1995 we have new goals to attain and we will need everyone's continued effort to achieve them.

The civil engineers are trying to do our part by improving equipment and establishing new programs.

Several energy savings suggestions have been submitted which are under review. The type of suggestions indicate your concern and support of energy reduction at Reese.

To get the new energy year off on the right foot, a poster contest was held in conjunction with Reese Elementary School. Many fine posters were submitted by the children and we wish to thank all of them for their efforts. Lots of thought and effort went into each of them and it was difficult choosing the winners.

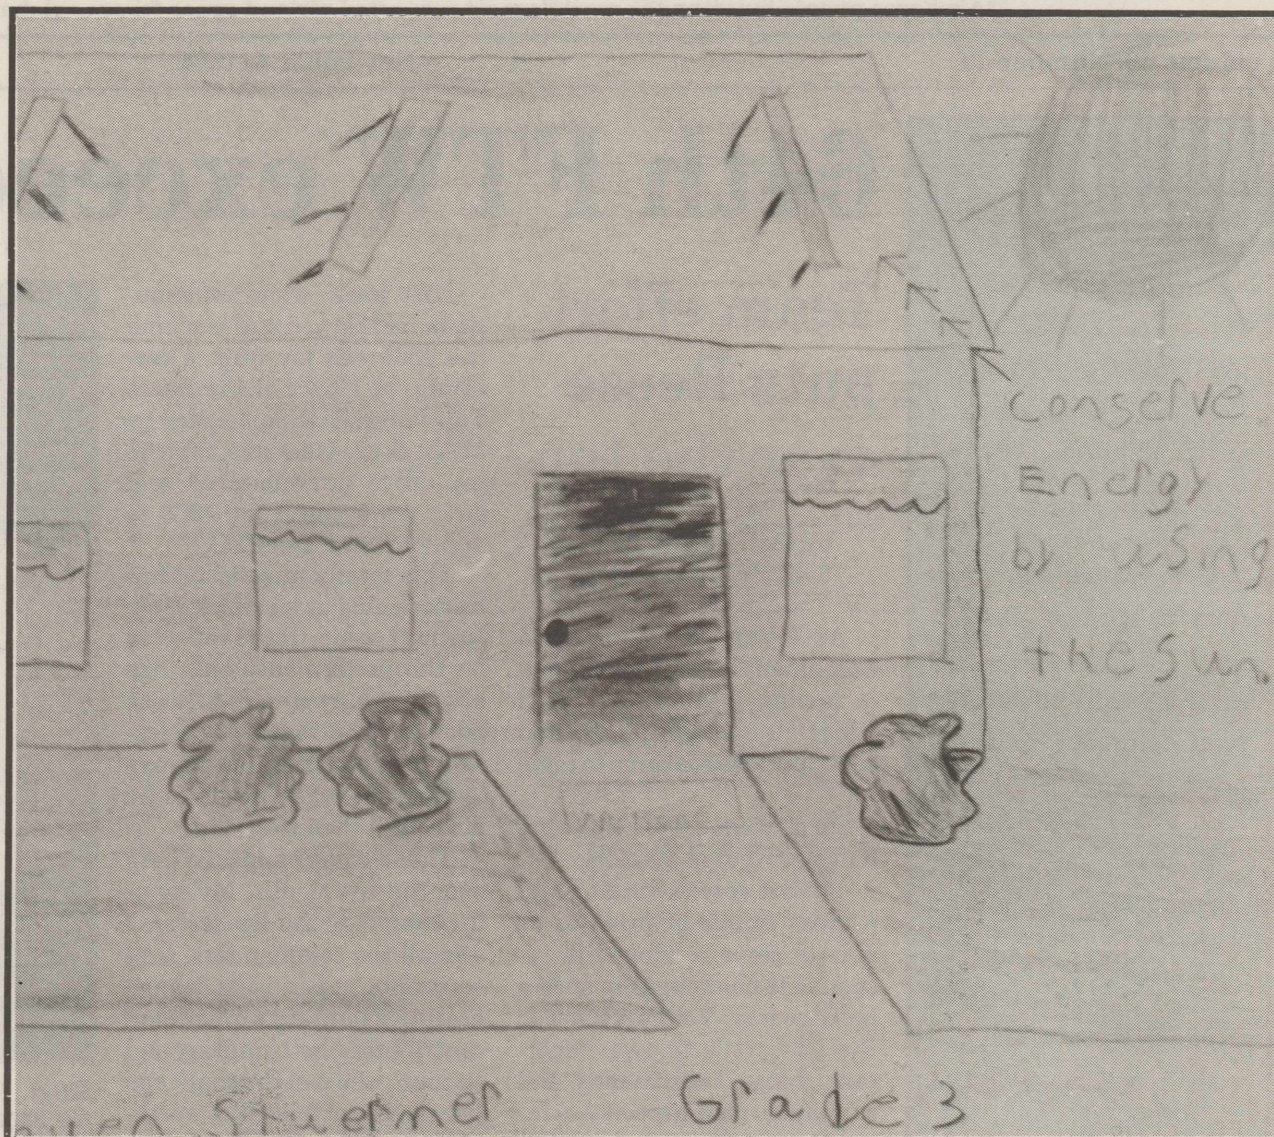

Our winners were: 1st grade, Emily Cruz; 2nd grade, Mario Gamez; 3rd grade, Steven Stuermer; 4th grade, Daniel Iley; and a Special Merit award to Micah Harlow, 4th grade.

We would like to thank Reese Federal Credit Union and the Company Grade Officers Council for donating the prizes, the Reese Base Exchange for displaying the posters, and a special thanks to Dan Newberry, principal of Reese Elementary, and all the kids who submitted posters.

We hope to implement several new ideas over the next several months to help Reese meet the energy goals.

A feasibility study is being done on new light fixtures just installed in carpports 6777 and 6779 to reduce the electrical consumption, provide additional security and to enhance safety. If they prove feasible, they will be installed in all carpports.

New energy efficient light bulbs will soon be available in the Reese Self-Help Store for porch lights, ceiling lights and lamps.

This poster by Steven Stuermer, a third grader at Reese Elementary School was one of the winners in the recent Energy Conservation Poster Contest held as part of the base observance of National Energy Month.

A gas-fired air conditioning unit was installed on one of the houses as a test to see if the cost savings justify installing them in the entire housing area. The Air Force Civil Engineering Support Agency will soon start a study to install a gas-fired, engine-driven chiller at one of the facilities on base. In our long range goals we are studying lighting retrofits, motion and heat detecting light switches, gas fired infrared heaters and improved temperature controls.

We are always looking for ways to improve our quality of life, yet meet reduction requirements and goals.

If you have any ideas for energy conservation, you should submit them on a Form 1000. Submit them to the suggestion office and who knows, you may earn a few extra dollars.

Thanks for doing your part by helping us achieve our goal. With your continued efforts we can do it again this year.

If you have a question, concern or a suggestion on how to make the wing better, call your Careline at 3273. The Careline is available all day, every day.

General Fogleman stresses need for leadership

touches on a report or trimming an aircraft in flight rather than making a hard turn.

Second, we must always bear in mind that the Air Force is a "team within a team." Our Air Force team is a total force—a mosaic of civilians, Guardsmen, Reservists and active members.

This team is engaged in high-tempo operations around the world.

In each of these operations, individual airmen, officers and civilians in many specialties are hard at work, contributing unique strengths and capabilities to the task at hand.

But, everywhere we operate, you'll also find that Air Force men and women are part of a larger team. We work side-by-side with soldiers, sailors, Coast Guardsmen, and Marines. Together we are part of a joint team. This does not mean that "blue suiters" must shed their Air Force identity. We should be proud of our Air Force heritage and trumpet our core capabilities, just as the other services take pride in their own traditions and accomplishments.

Nevertheless, the American way of war has been fundamentally changed by Goldwater-Nichols and we must work together to defend our nation.

"...the members of our Air Force team need to know that we value their hard work and sacrifice and that we will take care of their needs."

General Fogleman

Thus, one of the first questions we must ask in contemplating any course of action is its impact on the other services and the joint teams led by the commanders-in-chief of our unified commands.

Third, the members of our Air Force team need to know that we value their hard work and sacrifice and that we'll take care of their needs. The secretary of the Air Force and I are committed to ensuring the highest possible quality of life for our people.

We will not rest in our efforts to provide quality housing, medical care and on-base services for our Air Force family.

But, quality of life also requires a strong, daily input from all commanders and supervisors. We must foster an atmosphere in which people understand the purpose of their work and are empowered to improve the way we do business.

We must also ensure that our people are actively encouraged to develop their full potential and are properly recognized in performance reports and through awards and decorations. These are attributes of a quality Air Force.

Finally, good teamwork requires strong leadership. You don't need to have the word "commander" in your job title to be a leader. In fact, we can find and need leaders at every level of our organization.

There are several things every leader must do.

Leaders must know their people—not as names, but as individuals—and what they contribute to the organization and its mission.

Leaders also must treat their people with dignity, the way all of us would like to be treated. And, leaders must not be afraid to make tough decisions, to accept responsibility.

Being a leader requires courage of convictions and a sense of fairness in dealing with people.

reach their full potential.

Throughout my military career, I've learned that success, or failure, is based on people-to-people relations. Fostering strong people ties takes time, effort and attention. I am totally committed to this and want to foster this philosophy throughout the Air Force.

Now, you know a little of where I'm coming from. We must provide a stable environment, build a "team within a team," enhance quality of life and foster strong leadership at all levels—these are the central ingredients to make today's Air Force even better tomorrow.

In the weeks and months ahead, we will address the issues of personnel and promotion system reviews; joint duty; operational and personnel tempo; resource allocation between readiness, modernization, and force structure; the fiscal year 1995 base realignment and closure activities; roles and missions; and uniform policies.

Miss Jane and I will visit you where you live and work. We really look forward to meeting you and your families and finding out what we can do to make things better for all the men and women of the world's finest Air Force—engaged in the service of their country.

Electronic funds transfer speeds financial services

One-stop service is the goal of the financial services office at Reese.

With the implementation of the government charge card program, traveling personnel need only make one stop to the financial services office to file a travel settlement, according to 2nd Lt. James Chitty, Reese Financial Services officer.

By receiving cash advances on the American Express cards, the trip to finance for an advance has been eliminated for eligible card holders.

Likewise, the full implementation of electronic funds transfer eliminates unnecessary trips to the finance office or the mail box to pick up a check.

"Electronic funds transfer represents a large step forward in customer service," said Lieutenant Chitty. "No longer are customers at the mercy of the postal service or restricted by the hours of their bank."

Besides its convenience to the customer, electronic funds transfer generates large savings for the Department of Defense.

Payments can be made at a fraction of the cost associated with a check payment. Personnel and material costs associated with the processing of checks from start to finish have been estimated to be as high as $6-$8 per check, noted the lieutenant.

By eliminating cumbersome processing procedures, the Air Force will realize a substantial savings and the customer will benefit from faster service.

Secretary Perry condemns sexual harassment

by Evelyn D. Harris
American Forces Information Service

Secretary of Defense William J. Perry wants everyone in the department to know sexual harassment will not be tolerated.

"It remains the policy of the Department of Defense that sexual harassment is strictly prohibited in the Armed Forces and the civilian work force," Secretary Perry wrote in a recent memorandum to service chiefs and agency heads.

He said harassment is legally actionable even if it does not result in concrete psychological or physical harm to the victim.

DOD defines sexual harassment as a form of sex discrimination involving unwelcome sexual advances, requests for sexual favors or other verbal or physical conduct of a sexual nature.

These acts are considered sexual harassment when submitting to or rejecting them affects whether a person gets or keeps a job or promotion or affects working conditions. The conduct is also considered harassment if it interferes with performance or creates an intimidating, offensive or hostile working environment.

Secretary Perry

Secretary Perry noted "work place" is an expansive term for military members and may include conduct on or off duty, 24 hours a day.

Supervisors or commanders who use sexual behavior to affect subordinates' careers are engaging in sexual harassment. Similarly, any service member or civilian employee who makes deliberate or repeated unwelcome verbal comments, gestures or physical contact of a sexual nature is engaging in sexual harassment.

Secretary Perry outlined 11 guidelines to eliminate sexual harassment. Three of the guidelines are new or are stated more strongly than previous top-level guidance on harassment.

First, Secretary Perry said all employees must have access to toll-free, confidential, harassment advice and counseling hot lines.

Second, the secretary wants service and agency heads to report semiannually on the effectiveness of their sexual harassment prevention programs. Previously, they had to report only once a year.

Third, affected personnel in a unit where harassment occurred must receive prompt reports on investigative findings and corrective actions. These reports must be as complete as permissible under the privacy act.

In addition, the secretary strengthened language prohibiting reprisals against individuals who report sexual harassment or provide information about harassment incidents. Service and agency heads must establish procedures to investigate and resolve promptly complaints of reprisal.

DOD equal opportunity officials said the department has required sexual harassment training for all civilian and military employees for several years. But Secretary Perry ordered the Defense Equal Opportunity Management Institute to provide quality control to ensure all components' training meets certain standards of effectiveness.

U.S. troops help restore democracy to Haiti

Tropical nation has history of political strife

(Editors note: The following is a synopsis of Haiti, its history and culture.)

Haiti is the poorest country in the Western Hemisphere.

The political situation of the past has not helped.

The democratically elected president of the Republic of Haiti is Jean-Bertrand Aristide. A military coup led by Lt. Gen. Raoul Cedras deposed Aristide after less than nine months in office. Aristide had been in exile in the United States since.

For 29 years, Haiti—which shares the island of Hispaniola with the Dominican Republic—was ruled by the Duvalier family. In 1957 Francois "Papa Doc" Duvalier became president. In 1964, he declared himself president for life. Upon his death in 1971, his 19-year-old son, Jean-Claude "Baby Doc" Duvalier, inherited the title. The Duvalier rule was supported by a secret police force called the Tonton Macoutes.

In 1986 anti-Duvalier unrest erupted, and Baby Doc fled the country. Since then several regimes have taken power and fallen. The government under control of Cedras took power in 1991.

The official language is French, but a Creole dialect is most commonly spoken in the country.

Christopher Columbus opened the island to Europeans in 1492. Native Arawak Indians soon died of disease and the effects of being forced into slavery. Spanish officials imported African slaves to work the plantations on the island. Spain controlled Haiti until the French took over in 1697. In 1802 the islanders, predominantly black, rose against their French overlords and defeated an army led by Napoleon Bonaparte's brother-in-law. From 1804 through 1986, Haiti had 20 different constitutions and 41 heads of state—including two emperors and one king.

The United States recognized Haiti in 1862 after the slave states, which had objected to recognizing a 95 percent black nation, seceded from the Union.

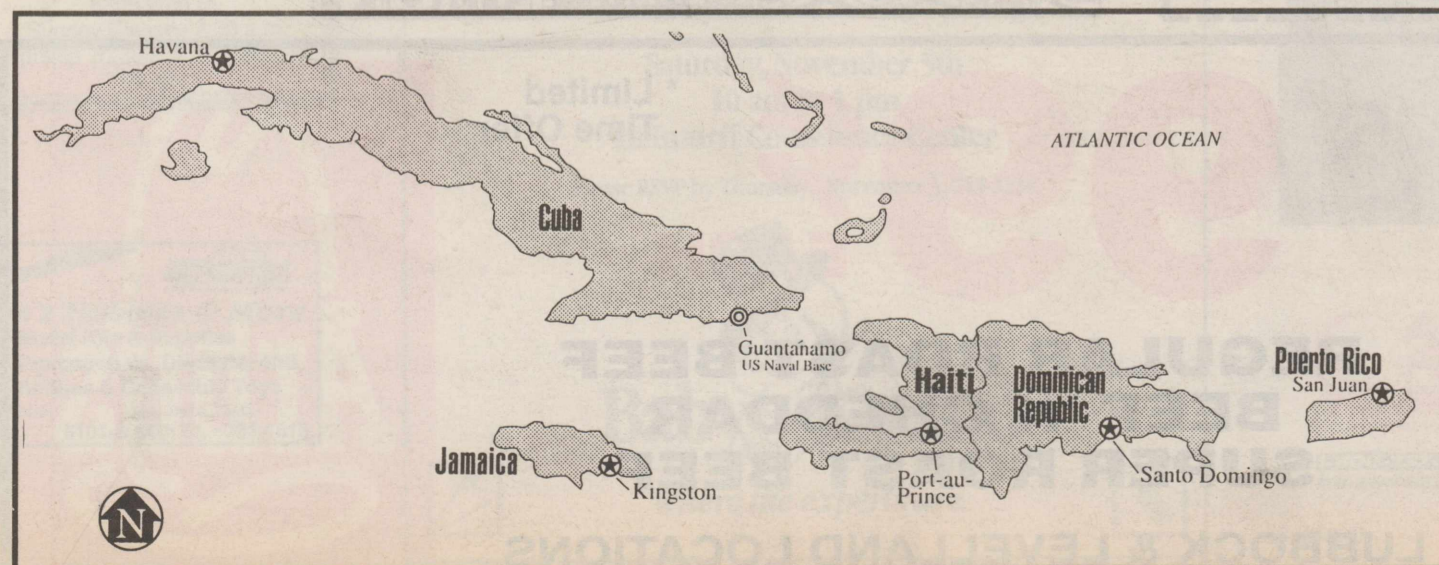

The United States occupied Haiti from 1915 through 1934; U.S. officials at the time said the intervention was for humanitarian concerns. From 1915 to 1920 many Haitians fought against the occupying Marines.

Today the Haitian armed forces contain about 8,000 service members. But sources say there are thousands of semitrained men who could take up arms.

Haiti has a population of about 5.7 million. The capital, Port-au-Prince, is also the largest city with about 500,000 residents. Other built-up areas include Cap-Haitien, Gonaives, Les Cayes, Jeremie and Port-de-Paix. Life expectancy is 57 years. The infant mortality rate is 170 per 1,000 live births, compared to about 20 per 1,000 in the United States.

The average per capita income in 1991 was $379 per year, and officials say this has probably dropped since the United Nations imposed economic sanctions against the country. More than 85 percent of the population works in agriculture and fishing. Unemployment is more than 50 percent.

The country is 80 percent Roman Catholic—Aristide is a former priest—but many Haitians combine it with voodooism. (Courtesy of AFNS)

Construction continues on Reese Boulevard. Both sides of the boulevard will be closed on Monday.

Reese Boulevard closes
Change in plan will cut project time

Effective Monday, both the north and south sides of Reese Boulevard will be closed to all through-traffic.

Because of unforeseen site conditions at the ongoing road repair project, the south side of Reese Boulevard will be closed between North Davis Drive (formerly Hangerline Road) and 1st Street. The north side of the boulevard is already closed.

By doing this, Reese should decrease the overall project duration by approximately four weeks, completing construction by March 15, 1995.

Reese officials regret any inconvenience the construction project may cause wing personnel.

Many federal employees will pay less for health care coverage plans in 1995

by Evelyn Harris
American Forces Information Service

Reese and other federal employees may be paying less for health care coverage.

Premiums for many Federal Employees Health Benefits Program plans will be lower in 1995.

During the 1995 open season, Nov. 14 through Dec. 12, employees should also find benefit brochures easier to use in comparing plans, said Office of Personnel Management officials.

"The 1995 FEHB Program offers many improvements and benefit additions that all employees should carefully consider when selecting their coverage," said OPM Director Jim King.

Employees will be able to choose from more than 350 health plans.

Premiums will go down or remain stable for 58 percent of nonpostal employees; 27 percent of employees will see modest premium increases of less than 5 percent. Less than 15 percent will see increases of 5 percent or more.

Fee-for-service plans have eliminated lifetime maximum limits on mental health benefits. However, enrollees will still be subject to annual limits on mental health services. Improved benefits include complete coverage of childhood immunizations, not subject to deductibles or co-payments. Associated office visits may be subject to cost-sharing.

All plans, both prepaid and fee-for-service, will cover high-dose chemotherapy with autologous bone-marrow transplants for cancer treatment. This is in addition to other conditions for which each plan currently provides coverage.

Employees will have 45 new prepaid plans to choose from—more than twice the number of health maintenance organizations that entered the program in 1994.

Many prepaid plans have expanded their enrollment areas. Many prepaid plans will now allow individuals who live outside service areas to join the plans if they work in service areas.

Several prepaid plans will offer "opt-out" benefits. Employees may obtain treatment outside of the plan's network and still receive reimbursement for a percentage of the cost.

OPM officials said these benefits will remain stable through 1996. They also said plan brochures are more user-friendly. Simpler terms are used where possible, benefits are grouped for easier reference and tables of contents are more comprehensive to improve readability.

The 1995 nonpostal premiums for the largest fee-for-service plans follow. Employees pay premiums biweekly; retirees pay on a monthly basis.

The Reese civilian personnel office will have complete information during open season.

Blue Cross-Blue Shield's high-option, single-employee plan will cost $69.03 per pay period, a decrease of $4.99 from 1994. High-option family coverage will cost $144.68, a decrease of $13.74. Standard coverage will cost a single enrollee $20.33 biweekly; family enrollment will cost $47.15.

Mail Handlers Benefit Plan's high-option single coverage will cost $18.83, down 48 cents. Family high-option will cost $41.90, down $1.07. Standard single coverage is $14.35, and standard family is $31.14. Both are the same as 1994.

FEHA plan self-only is $23.91, down $1.60; family is $45.37, down $6.27.

National Association of Letter Carriers plan self-only is $24.61, up $2.56; family option $49.57, up $2.46.

American Postal Workers' Union Plan is $22.64 self-only for nonpostal workers, down 76 cents; family coverage is $45.65, down $1.18.

Alliance self-only is $34.36, down $5.82; family option is $68.80, down $15.31.

For information about federal employee health coverage at Reese, contact Shirl Francis, 3975.

Win over 35th FTS raises streak to league best six straight games

The 52nd Flying Training Squadron continued to soar to the top of the American League winning its sixth straight game and looking toward a possible showdown with division rival 64th Security Police Squadron for the division title.

Intramural football's longest winning streak was kept alive as the 52nd FTS road the arm of Capt. Scott Tingley to a crushing, 34-6, victory over the 35th FTS Oct. 26. The captain threw for four touchdowns.

The defense of the 52nd FTS was relentless, allowing the 35th FTS only one scoring drive. Second Lt. Anthony Camerino, 52nd FTS, intercepted three passes, returning one for a touchdown.

The victory left the 52nd FTS one game behind the 64th SPS. The 52nd FTS had to get past the National League's top team, the 64th Logistic Squadron, Wednesday to have a shot at winning the division title. The 52nd FTS and the 64th SPS were scheduled to face off Thursday in the final game of the regular season.

These three teams have already made it into the playoffs. The 54th FTS and the 64th Operations Support Squadron round out the AL teams heading into the playoffs.

Along with the 64th LS, the NL sends the 35th FTS, the 64th Medical Group and the 64th Civil Engineer Squadron to the playoffs.
