From my perspective

by Maj. Mark Hamilton
64th FTW Safety Chief

Recently, there has been some confusion among some members of the Reese team as to what is happening on base to reduce the bird aircraft strike hazard, or "BASH," potential.

As you may know, Reese has historically had a significant bird strike problem. It is, in fact, rated the highest Air Force base in the country for bird strike potential by the Air Force BASH Team. This is clearly demonstrated by the number of bird strikes each year, and Reese flyers are keenly aware of this flying hazard. A bird strike less than a year ago contributed to Reese's last class A mishap, in which an aircraft was destroyed and an instructor pilot received serious injuries.

Reese's aggressive BASH program includes habitat management, trapping and relocation, scares with pyrotechnics and bioacoustics, and the controlled taking of certain authorized species of birds. Every detail of our program is carefully coordinated with federal, state and local wildlife and environmental authorities, as well as the Air Force BASH Team.

Part of our program is the limited use of shotguns and propane gas cannons to reduce our bird population. Currently, the gas cannons are limited to the base ponds but will eventually cover the entire airfield environment. Unfortunately, the birds quickly become accustomed to the gas cannons and are not easily intimidated by them. Therefore, we started a limited base hunting program near the ponds this past winter. All hunters must have the appropriate licenses and stamps, hunt only in season, abide by established state game limits and use only steel shot. In addition, all base hunters must receive a briefing from both wing safety and security police, and they are closely monitored by wing safety.

Shotguns will also be used periodically on the airfield, in conjunction with the proposed gas cannon system, to scare off the small birds that inhabit the immediate runway environment. A few birds will be killed in this process. These birds are responsible for the vast majority of our bird strikes and pose the greatest threat to loss of aircraft or, much worse, a pilot's life. Lead shot will be used for this purpose, and only the birds covered under Reese's federal permit will be taken.

Our program reflects environmental sensitivity while addressing a very real safety concern. Our wildlife management plan focuses on discouraging wildlife from establishing an ecosystem on the airfield, which increases the likelihood of an aircraft bird strike. I want to emphasize that our focus is not on killing wildlife. In fact, last fall we captured and relocated over 250 prairie dogs which attract species of hawks. This forced predatory birds (hawks) to look for food elsewhere as their food chain was disrupted.

Although our efforts have significantly reduced bird strikes on the base, further reductions remain a challenge. We are continually searching for new ways to reduce the bird threat that we are faced with daily. If you have any ideas on how to improve our efforts or would like further information, please feel free to call me or Capt. "Birdman" Donnelly at 3504.

From YOUR perspective

Editor's note: The following note is from wing commander Col. Roger Brady, addressing his concerns for future Carelines.

A Careline column provides one of the many opportunities for a commander to find out what people are thinking, what's bothering them, what they like, etc. If you've wondered why we do something, or just want to make a comment, don't hesitate to call.

If you leave your name and telephone number, we'll get back to you and answer your concern by telephone.

Calls of interest to the Reese community will be published, without the caller's name, in the Roundup the following week. I look forward to hearing from you.

Calls can be made to the Careline 24 hours a day at 3273.

Toddler woes in housing

I'd like to know if there's an age at which you're not supposed to let your children run around outside without you.

People near us in housing have a little boy who is so little he cannot even tell you who he is or how old he is. He's always outside by himself. He has climbed on a motorcycle in the carport, he tries to go to other people's back yards and he goes to the bathroom outside.

It's really frustrating, because I feel like I should watch him when I'm out there and he's not even my child. I'm afraid he's going to get hurt.

As parents, we have the inherent responsibility for our children's well being and for ensuring they are properly supervised at all times. With that in mind, the Air Force's goal is to minimize all risks that may result in a child's injury, maltreatment or deprivation through acts or omission.

The family advocacy office recommends that children under 5 not be left outside unsupervised. While you have every right to call anonymously, if you see any child in a situation that may be detrimental to his/her well being, please don't hesitate to contact the family advocacy office or the parent's commander or first sergeant.

All of us are responsible for ensuring our children have a safe environment.

Do you know your rights?

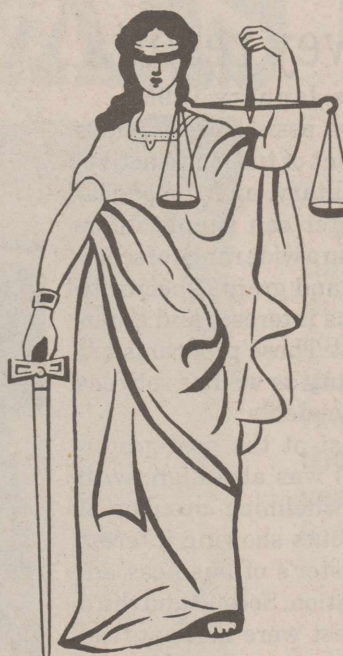

by Capt. Melinda Davis-Perritano
Reese-Cannon Area Defense Counsel

When military members are suspected of committing a crime, they often do not know when commanders, security police, the Air Force Office of Special Investigations and other military authorities can take legal actions against them or what type of action they can take.

The Uniform Code of Military Justice protects military members' right when they have been suspected of committing an offense. Anytime the OSI, security police, commanders or first sergeants suspect someone of having committed an offense, they must inform the members of their rights under Article 31 prior to asking questions. This applies regardless of whether the suspect is sitting in the commander's office, has been taken into custody or has been placed in pretrial confinement.

After rights are read to suspects, they must decide whether or not to make a statement or consult an attorney. Some people may feel they do not need an attorney because they do not believe they have committed an offense. However, they may not have been in that position before and a defense attorney can better assess their case and tell them if it is in their best interest to make a statement at that time.

A defense attorney can elaborate in detail a person's legal rights, the effect a statement can have on their case and what to expect to happen as the case develops. Active-duty members can ask for a military defense attorney at any time and be provided one free of charge. If a military member is involved in an offense, it may not be in their best interest to make a statement without first consulting a defense attorney.

The decision to ask for an attorney can only be made by the individual. Consulting counsel is a right and does not in any way infer guilt and cannot be used against the member for any reason whatsoever. It is generally in the person's best interest to consult an attorney when dealing with military authorities.

The Cannon AFB Area Defense Counsel office is located at 102 Engineers Way. For more information, call DSN 681-2915. The area defense counsel may be contacted during non-duty hours by contacting command post or the security police desk.

EDUCATION

Center releases survey results

by Sharon York
Reese Education Center

The results of the recently completed education questionnaire revealed a variety of educational needs and interests.

Approximately 650 questionnaires were circulated to base squadrons. Seventy-one percent of respondents were active-duty military, and 21 percent were civilian employees.

In all undergraduate areas, interests were diverse. The top 10 fields of interest from the responses we received were administration management and computer science/systems management (tied for No. 1); accounting; psychology; hospital administration/health services; financial planning and counseling; social work/sociology; nursing; marketing; mathematics; and biology.

All of these programs and more are available to Reese personnel, either through on-base programs (South Plains College or Wayland Baptist University), nearby Texas Tech University or through various distance learning programs using video curriculum or correspondence.

A classroom satellite downlink is also planned at Reese and could be in use as early as January 1995.

Tuition assistance provides 75 percent of tuition to active-duty military, and the education center can supply information on a wide range of scholarships and grants specific to a person's interests and qualifications. These programs aid active duty as well as retirees and dependents.

Interest at the post-graduate level was also high, with an overwhelming number of respondents showing interest in a master's of business administration. Second and third in interest were aeronautical science and engineering, respectively. The education center can assist anyone ready to begin or continue a master's degree in all three areas mentioned, as well as the majority of the other areas mentioned by questionnaire respondents.

Summer terms for most schools serving Reese begin in late May, so now is the time to plan your schedule, whether beginning your associate's degree with the Community College of the Air Force or finishing a master's program.

The center will continue to work on improvement to better meet Reese's educational needs. Stop by Bldg. 920, Room 139, or call 3634 with comments or questions.

CES gets new commander

Capt. Keith Yaktus (right) accepts command of the 64th Civil Engineer Squadron from Col. Theron Weimer, 64th Support Group commander, during a ceremony May 6 in the CES parking lot. Captain Yaktus will command CES until the arrival of Maj. Leonard Fischman, currently at Randolph AFB, Texas, sometime in the next few months.

Editor's note: Items in "Achievers" are based solely on inputs to the Roundup staff, Bldg. 11. For deadline information, call 3843.

Top QAE honored

Edward Kohanek, an aircraft maintenance quality assurance evaluator, is the winner of the wing's semiannual QAE award.

According to 64th Contracting Squadron officials, Kohanek serves with "enthusiasm and dedication," ensuring that all inspections are properly documented and attention is paid to detail.

Other candidates included TSgt. Phillip Thompson and Carol Anderson.

Submissions for the next six-month period will be due to contracting by Oct. 5.

MSSQ names top civilian of quarter

Shirl Francis, civilian personnel flight, has been named the 64th Mission Support Squadron's top civilian of the past quarter.

MSSQ officials credited Francis for displaying professional conduct, self-development and superb job performance and knowledge, adding that "taking that extra step to see that the mission is accomplished is second nature" to her.

Length of service recognized

The following wing civilians have reached the 20-year mark in their careers:

□ Nancy Bloodworth, a secretary in the 64th Logistics Squadron, has been at Reese since 1985.

□ Otto Dappert Jr., a supervisory recreational specialist in the 64th Services Squadron, arrived here in 1993.

□ Paula De Forrest, a secretary in the 64th Operations Group, has been here since 1974.

□ Pam Seiler, a contract specialist in the 64th Contracting Squadron, has been at Reese since 1985.

□ Paul Young, a facility maintenance controller in the 64th Civil Engineer Squadron, has been here since 1979.

The following wing civilians have reached the 10-year mark in their careers:

□ Daniel Doggett, a contract specialist in CONS, arrived here in 1987.

□ James Rouse, a materials handler in LS, has been here since 1985.

□ Phil Thierry, the family support center director in the 64th Mission Support Squadron, arrived here in 1985.

□ Mickey Turner, a firefighter in CES, has been here since 1986.

'Top Wheels' named

The 64th Logistics Squadron took the lion's share of the honors at recent "Top Wheels" vehicle competitions. Winners in the April judging were:

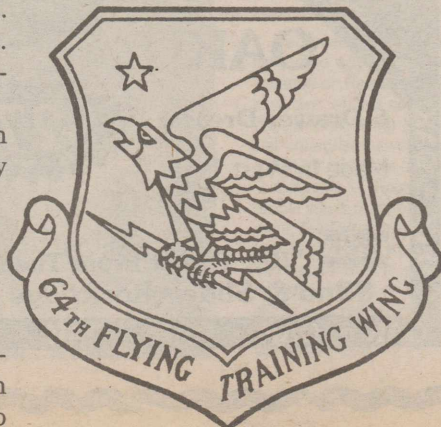

□ 64th Medical Group — general purpose category.

□ LS — special purpose.

Winners in the February competition were:

□ LS — general purpose category.

□ LS — special purpose.

Military Spouse Day observed

by SSgt. Mike Breslin
Editor

They sign no enlistment papers, but they often move where and when their military says to.

They wear no uniform, but they are still a vital part of the service.

"They" are military spouses, and today is their day.

Designated as Military Spouse Day, this annual event recognizes the sacrifices and contributions spouses make to the military family.

Spouses at Reese said that although there are tough parts about being married to military members, such as frequent moves, there are many bright spots too.

"It's tough being away from my family (in California), but the people here have become like family," said Peggy Melloy, wife of 1st Lt. John Melloy, 35th Flying Training Squadron. "I've made a lot of close friends here; they've become a support network."

High-quality facilities are another plus, according to John Dutkowsky, husband of Sgt. Laverne Dutkowsky, 64th FTW. He cited the fitness center as one facility he especially likes.

Rachel Nisco, wife of 2nd Lt. Chris Nisco of Reese SUPT Class 95-02, said the challenge she faces are well compensated for. "Getting to see my husband fulfill his dream (of flying) makes it all worthwhile."

Observed throughout the armed forces, the day is being marked at Reese by special events for spouses sponsored by the family support center. They include briefings on base services, tours of different base agencies, lunch and simulator rides. Pamela Appell of family support said that everyone involved in today's activities deserves thanks for their help.

For information on today's activities, call Appell at 3079.

New AF vice chief nominated

WASHINGTON — President Clinton has nominated Lt. Gen. Thomas S. Moorman Jr. to be the Air Force's new vice chief of staff and to receive a fourth star, according to a May 3 Department of Defense statement.

General Moorman, currently vice commander of Air Force Space Command at Peterson AFB, Colo., would replace Gen. Michael P.C. Carnes, who retires as vice chief of staff this summer. (Air Force News Service)

DOD honors Spielberg

WASHINGTON — There are no movie director chairs at the Pentagon, yet it became a setting for Steven Spielberg to praise military people after accepting a special honor for his movie "Schindler's List."

The U.S. military has shared in the struggle to help oppressed people of the world, and should be proud of what they have achieved, said Spielberg, who received the Department of Defense 50th anniversary of World War II commemoration committee's certificate of appreciation May 3.

Togo West, secretary of the Army, presented the award and said Schindler's List has made the Holocaust vividly real in the minds of millions. Defense Secretary William Perry also commended Spielberg for the "awareness" of Schindler's List in generating a renewed sense of the importance of learning from history. (Air Force News Service)

Another "JOC night" tonight

"JOC night" at the officers club gets under way at 4:30 p.m. today. The "Smokin' Hole" opens at 4:30 p.m., the food line opens at 5:30 p.m. (a bar and grill menu will also be available) and live music begins at 8 p.m. with "Sweat Attic."

Senior NCOs sought

Mentoring events set

A communications workshop for mentors and other interested adults will be at 1:30 p.m. today in Frenship Intermediate School. It will be conducted by Dr. Kitty Harris from Charter Plains Hospital.

Also, a year-end picnic for mentors and their students is scheduled for 11:30 a.m. May 20 at the base picnic grounds. Lunch will be provided and games will be set up at the event. Individuals interested in the partnership program may attend.

To R.S.V.P. or get details on either event, call Cheryl Ortiz at 3305.

Weight loss class starts today

A four-week weight loss class will begin at 1 p.m. today in the physiological training building across from the hospital. All hospital beneficiaries and base civilian employees may attend.

Call Capt. Phillip Petterborg at 6153 for details.

Recycling pick-up changes

Pick-up of recycled items in Reese Village has changed from Tuesdays to Mondays beginning this week. Items will be picked up after 9 a.m. For more information, call TSgt.

Larry Kime or Matt Alvarez at 3815.

Also, the base recycling center is conducting a contest for ideas on how to reduce waste by 50 percent. Prizes will be awarded; entry forms are available at the center, Reese Elementary School and the 64th Civil Engineering Squadron Customer Service Section.

Vet closed next week

The Reese Veterinary Clinic will be closed Monday through May 20 because of a manpower shortage. To make May 24 or 25 appointments, call DSN 681-4097 or commercial (505) 784-4097.

Hispanic committee meets

The Hispanic Heritage Month committee will conduct an initial planning meeting at 10 a.m. Thursday in Bldg. 920, Room 130A. Anyone interested can attend. Call Pamela Appell at 3079 for details.

CGOC meet Thursday

The Reese Company Grade Officers Council will meet at 11 a.m. Thursday in the Jack Davis Room in the officers club. Col. William Reynolds, wing vice commander, will be on hand to discuss relations between company grade and field grade officers.

Top 3 meet May 20

The Reese Top 3 Association will meet and conduct elections at 3 p.m. May 20 in Reese Manor. There will also be a pot luck meal. All master sergeant selectees and above are encouraged to attend.

What's Bugging You?

Advice from Dr. Ted Shapas, Director of the Combat Labs

(NAPS)—It's cockroach season again for 95 million Americans. Here are answers to some of your questions on how to control these unwelcome houseguests.

Q. I have a cockroach problem. Should I use sprays or baits to keep them away?

A. Most experts agree that baits are the most effective method for long-term control. It's OK to spray the roaches you see, but baits kill roaches where they live and breed behind the walls. Roaches eat the bait and return to their hiding places where they contaminate other roaches. This causes a "domino effect" that can kill dozens of roaches for every roach that eats the bait.

Q. I sprayed roaches in my kitchen, but now they're in my bathroom and basement. How can I get rid of them?

A. Once you spray an area, cockroaches can sense the residue. It sounds like the cockroaches have been driven to look for food in other areas—cockroaches love toothpaste! To control roaches throughout your home, place baits against walls or in corners in each of your problem areas (good spots: under sinks and next to appliances). Replace baits regularly for long-term control. If you are using baits and sprays, try not to spray bait stations.

Other field-tested recommendations from the Combat Labs to keep roaches under control:

1. Choose baits with Hydramethylnon. Some roaches become "immune" or resistant to common insecticides. Scientific tests show that no roach is immune to Hydramethylnon.

S.O.S. Combat Labs!

May Day, May Day! Are you in roach distress? Depending on the severity of your situation, you could be one of three American households chosen for a consultation and free treatment in your home by the Combat Labs.

Describe your cockroach crisis in one page or less, and send to: S.O.S. Combat Labs! 55 Union St., San Francisco, CA 94111. Deadline is July 1, 1994.

2. If you live in an apartment building, encourage your neighbors to use baits. Internal pipes and electrical wires can act as roach "super-highways" between units.

3. Prevent cockroach temptations. Store food in air-tight containers, put pet food away and clean food and water dishes, take garbage out regularly and keep surfaces clear of crumbs.

4. Run fans and open windows—roaches hate air currents.

Tennis, anyone?

Week's rainy weather slows base tournament

by A1C Timothy E. Dempsey
64th FTW Public Affairs

Bad weather has put a kink in the base's summer open tennis tournament, which was scheduled to conclude today.

The first round of the tournament got under way Monday as TSgt. Scott Deherrera, 64th Mission Support Squadron, and A1C Michael Garduno, 64th Logistic Squadron, advanced in the winners' bracket.

Sergeant Deherrera defeated Capt. Bryn Russell, MSSQ, 6-0, 6-0, in the tournament's first match. Sergeant Deherrera is scheduled to face TSgt. Michael Harrison, 35th Flying Training Squadron, today.

The captain said having to play Sergeant Deherrera in the first match was difficult because, "He's probably the best tennis player on the base."

Airman Garduno defeated SSgt. Doug Arnold, MSSQ, 6-2, 6-1. Airman Garduno is scheduled to meet the winner of Sergeant Harrison and Sergeant Deherrera's match.

Captain Russell is scheduled to face Sergeant Arnold in an elimination match today. The winner will advance to play the loser of Sergeant Harrison and Sergeant Deherrera's match.

Final results of the tournament will be published in the May 20 issue of the Roundup (weather permitting).

Updates

Annual run is Saturday

The ninth annual Air Force five-kilometer fitness fun run will be Saturday at the base picnic grounds; show time is 8:45 a.m. The run is free to base participants and medals will be awarded to the first 20 people who sign up.

Entry forms are available at the fitness center. Call Gary Grant at 3783 for details.

'Country club' starts Sunday

The Windmill Lanes Bowling Center "Country Club '94" membership program will run Sunday through Aug. 15.

By joining, people can receive a T-shirt specially designed for country club members and a collectable bowling pin sports bottle.

People showing membership cards can bowl three games for $2 during open bowling; practice spares for one cent per minute; and get free rental shoes. Discount on drinks will also be given, with bowling pin sports bottle refills for 50 cents and discounts for each meal purchased at the snack bar during country club bowling.

There will also be free bowling Monday through Friday from 9 to 11 a.m.; Saturday from 10 a.m. to noon; and Sunday from noon to 2 p.m. Club dues are $15 per person, $25 per couple and $10 for each child in your family. For more information, call 3116.

Bowling center schedule

Today: "TGIF" bowling — $1 per game.

Saturday: "Boot scootin' rock and bowl" at 7 p.m. Costs $10 for food, prizes and bowling.

Monday: Open bowling.

Tuesday: Non-smoking league at 6 p.m.; no smoking in the center while this league plays.

Wednesday: "Have a ball" league at 6:30 p.m.

Thursday: Industrial league at 6:30 p.m.

Softball camp set

People who want to participate in the men's or women's softball training camp at Patrick AFB, Fla., should submit an Air Force Form 303 to the fitness center by June 3.

Forms are available at the center. Call Jake Trevino at 3207 for details.
