Why seat belts?

by Chuck Gerrior
Reese Ground Safety Manager

Texas state law and Air Force Regulation 127-7 require the use of seat belts and restraining devices while operating government and private motor vehicles. When you operate any vehicle without using installed devices, you are violating the law.

However, the use of seat belts should not be just a matter of satisfying the law. Years of extensive testing has shown that your survivability rate in a mishap is much higher when using the devices. Use seat belts to prevent injury to your body. To measure the protection seat belts give you, take a look at a car in which a person was forcibly thrown against the windshield. Consider what happened to that person.

Parents must ensure the safety of their children by keeping them secured in the proper size child restraint devices. If your child outgrows their first restraint device, don't wait to get another of the proper size; do it now!

In government vehicles, it is the responsibility of the driver and senior occupant to ensure all riders are buckled up. Develop the habit of fastening your seat belt before starting the engine. It only takes a few seconds. Your worries about surviving on the road will be reduced, and your chances of surviving a crash will increase tremendously.

In automobiles with airbags, seat belts are still required to ensure you survive the crash. An airbag is a "supplemental restraint system," designed primarily for a head-on crash. When struck from the side, you need your seat belt fastened to hold you in place.

It's been proven time and time again that seat belts do save lives. Use yours and don't become another statistic. Since January 1994, there have been several lives saved by seat belts for personnel assigned to Reese. On more than one occasion, their vehicles were totally destroyed, but they all walked away with minor injuries or none at all because of proper seat belt usage.

From YOUR perspective

Editor's note: The following note is from wing commander Col. Roger Brady, addressing his concerns for future Carelines.

A Careline column provides one of the many opportunities for a commander to find out what people are thinking, what's bothering them, what they like, etc. If you've wondered why we do something, or just want to make a comment, don't hesitate to call.

If you leave your name and telephone number, we'll get back to you and answer your concern by telephone.

Calls of interest to the Reese community will be published, without the caller's name, in the Roundup the following week. I look forward to hearing from you.

Calls can be made to the Careline 24 hours a day at 3273.

'Where there's smoke . . .'

I saw on the national news where the Pentagon has cut out all smoking inside government buildings. I'm concerned that there are still buildings on Reese where smoking is still going on. One building I know of where smoking is still permitted is the fire department.

The Department of Defense has issued a policy on the smoke-free work place in DOD-owned, -leased or -occupied buildings. The DOD instruction directs heads of its components to establish policies and programs to implement the policy.

Air Force headquarters is working to finalize Air Force Instruction 40-102, titled "Tobacco Use In Air Force Facilities," and implementing guidance. When this instruction is received, discussions with local union representatives will begin and the guidance will be implemented.

Pending receipt of the Air Force guidance, we will continue with the current smoking policy. Smoking is prohibited in all indoor areas, except recreational areas (clubs, bowling alley, and the like), and designated and approved smoking areas. Only three designated areas exist. The areas in Bldgs. 230 and 551 have exhaust systems meeting current air flow requirements. The designated smoking area in the fire department was agreed to in negotiations with Local 1810. While it does not meet air flow requirements, consideration was given the fact that firefighters work 24-hour shifts, and normally cannot leave the premises. Also, there are no protected areas (overhangs, porches) attached to the building that would provide even minimal protection from the elements.

We'll provide more information as soon as we receive it. Thanks for calling.

QAF helps unit 'clean up' their act

by Maj. Jeffrey P. Jessup
64th Medical Group

We've all heard and read much about Quality Air Force initiatives, but few of us have had any personal involvement in the total quality management process.

I'm sure we've all had ideas about ways to improve our individual duty sections, but have difficulty implementing these ideas. These difficulties arise from lack of support among superiors and co-workers, reluctance to change and lack of knowledge about key elements, such as logistics, manpower and resource management. If you've experienced these types of obstacles, then perhaps you need to explore the Quality Air Force process. Utilizing the QAF process can garner the support and critical expertise you need to implement your ideas!

I recently participated in my first experience with the process as team leader of the 64th Medical Group Process Action Team 93-02. This team was formed to improve the way dental clinic instruments were cleaned, processed and sterilized. This improvement became necessary due to changes in the requirements and guidelines established by OSHA in the bloodborne pathogen standard. A new process was needed to increase the safety to health care workers in the instrument cleaning process and to ensure separation of contaminated and sterile instruments in the patient treatment areas. The primary focus was to improve safety and effectiveness, but to also increase efficiency.

The process action team, or "PAT," submitted our recommendations to the hospital's executive leadership in January. The recommendations transferred the instrument processing responsibility to another area of the hospital, which was already responsible for processing the hospital's other instruments, thus avoiding duplication of efforts. We also recommended purchasing $30,000 of equipment, which will significantly increase safety, reduce manpower requirements, more effectively clean our instruments and reduce the generation of solid disposable waste.

The change in process will transfer the responsibility to our hospital experts, increase the efficiency of dental services, reduce overall manpower requirements and save the group approximately $11,000 per year over the life of the equipment.

The recommendations were approved and funded in March and the equipment has been ordered. My involvement as team leader was certainly a learning experience and was ultimately gratifying. We were able to effect a significant change in the way we do business and increase the quality of services that we provide.

I would highly encourage you to explore the potential of the QAF process to effect a similar result in your area.

Car Seat Saves Ohio Toddler

(NAPS)—According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, more than 250 children age 4 and under are saved each year because they are properly buckled into child safety seats during automobile crashes. Thanks to a Midas Project Safe Baby child safety seat, 4-year-old Tashina Shaffer of Fairborn, Ohio, is one of those children.

Tashina's mother, Susan Shaffer, is an advocate of proper use of child safety seats as a result of an accident near Fairborn, Ohio, in which she and her two young daughters escaped unharmed.

The Shaffers were about six miles away from home traveling about 40 miles per hour when a driver ran a red light and crashed into their family car. The left side of the car was extensively damaged, but there were no injuries.

Shaffer and 7-year-old Sierra were restrained in their shoulder harnesses and seat belts in the front seat. Tashina was buckled into a child safety seat in the car's rear seat.

"I'm certain that the car seat saved Tashina from serious injuries," Shaffer said. "Many parents simply do not realize how the force of an accident can cause a child to fly around the inside of a car if that child is not properly buckled into the car seat."

"Even if you're just driving a short distance from home, it is imperative that infants and toddlers are in their car seats and that older children and adults use seat belts," Shaffer said.

Shaffer purchased Tashina's car seat at the Midas Muffler and Brake Shop at 2390 E. Dorothy Lane in Dayton. After the accident, shop manager, Wally Kastner provided a free replacement seat for Tashina. Safety experts say that parents should not continue to use child car seats which have been subjected to accidents or other impacts.

Midas International Corporation's Project Safe Baby is an ongoing program to educate parents on the proper use of car seats and to make car seats widely available at a reasonable cost. Since Project

Safe Baby was launched nationally in May 1993, more than 47,000 Century 1000 STE car seats have been distributed at the wholesale cost of $42 at Midas' 1,840 shops throughout the country. When the child outgrows the need for the seat, the purchaser may exchange the seat at any Midas shop for a $42 credit in Midas services.

Wanna' quit?

by Capt. Maritza J. Milan
Chief, Reese Behavioral Medicine Clinic

Quitting cigarettes "cold turkey" means abrupt cessation from one's addictive level of smoking. If you regularly smoke two packs of cigarettes a day, you are going cold turkey if you smoke your usual two packs today and zero cigarettes tomorrow. Any gradual method of stopping is not cold turkey.

Most successful ex-smokers quit cold turkey.

Some persons choose to prepare for stopping by a gradual approach. If you choose a gradual approach, you should only spend a few days with it. Cutting down for a longer period of time, such as several weeks, can be counter-productive; it often indicates that the smoker is motivated to avoid stopping — cutting down becomes a form of procrastination, rather than a way of preparing to quit.

Tapering is the first gradual approach, which means that the individual counts cigarettes and smokes a predetermined fewer number each day. For example, the smoker might decide to reduce the number of cigarettes by five each day for six days — until the personal quit date. On the first day of this period, the smoker may smoke the usual 30 cigarettes; on day two this is cut to 25; day three, 20; day four, 10; day six, five. The next day, day seven, is the quit date, and the first day with no cigarettes. Keep in mind that cutting down by just one cigarette a day is insufficient.

Postponing is a second gradual approach to quitting, which means that the individual postpones the time to start smoking by a determined number of hours each day. Once smoking begins each day, there is no need to count cigarettes nor to focus on reducing the number smoked. You might decide to postpone the time to start smoking by two hours each day for six days, until the personal quit date. On the first day, smoking might begin at 9 a.m.; on day two, 11 a.m., day three, 1 p.m.; day four, 3 p.m.; day five, 5 p.m.; day six 7 p.m. The next day, the seventh day, is the quit date, and the first day with no cigarettes.

A gradual approach is recommended for individuals who are especially anxious about stopping, who lack confidence about their likelihood of succeeding. Seeing that they can get by either on fewer cigarettes (tapering) or with longer periods of time with no cigarettes (postponing) can boost their confidence. Stopping gradually, however, is not likely to reduce withdrawal symptoms of individuals who are addicted to nicotine.

If you need more information or would like to participate in one of our smoking cessation classes, please give us a call at 3739. (Some information courtesy of the American Cancer Society)

TOBACCO REDUCTION BENCHMARKS

Active-Duty Air Force

AFNEWS

Editor's note: This article was written by TSgt. David R. Wilson, NCO in charge of 64th Security Police Squadron Investigations. Sergeant Wilson attended a two-day seminar on gang investigation earlier this year, sponsored by the Regional Law Enforcement Academy.

It seems every week we read an article in the newspaper or hear on television something about a young person being injured or killed due to street gang activity. Many innocent people have been affected by drive-by shootings, muggings and thefts. Why do these young people join gangs knowing the dangers of their activities?

Kids join gangs for several reasons: to experience adventure and excitement, gain a sense of belonging or to be "somebody." Some join under the pressure of gang members and others join for economic reasons.

Gang members come from several ethnic groups and usually a member will join a gang closest to his or her heritage. Most members are between 13 and 22 and are usually recruited at the junior high level. There are eight well-established gangs in the area, though not as well organized as those in major cities. The Lubbock County Gang Task Force, headed by O. K. Neal, works with school officials, parents and gang members to prevent violence and crime in the community.

Gangs identify themselves in several ways. One way is by drawing graffiti on walls and buildings to mark a territory or "turf," which also serves as a warning or challenge to other gangs. When a rival gang wants to "take over" a territory, they usually cross-out the rivals' graffiti and replaces it with their own. This often erupts in violence between gangs.

Gang language is unique and could literally fill its own dictionary. There are over 500 documented words, phrases and numbers that attach meaning to just about everything. Certain words and phrases are used within each gang, when dealing with rival gangs, using and selling drugs and even contacts with police.

Gang members are often proud to display their colors or "flags." Gang colors identify their gang and are worn in bandannas, hats, shirts, and even shoe laces. Members are often attacked by rival gangs just for wearing certain colors of clothing.

Handsigns are used in the same way gang language is used: to identify a certain gang or gang member, to serve as a symbol to take some type of action or as a warning to other members. Authorities must be very careful and attentive to words, phrases and hand-signs when dealing with gangs.

There are five levels of gang membership. A "buster" is a fake gang member. This person likes to brag about being part of a gang and may wear gang colors.

"Associates" are those who know gang members and may "hang out" with them, but don't take part in gang activity. Busters and associates usually haven't been initiated or "jumped in" as gang members. After being "jumped in," a new member is usually called a "baby gangster." A "wanna-be" is a gang member who has been in for a while and is usually more violent because they are out to make a name for themselves. An "OG" or "shotcaller" are the hardcore members. They usually plan the gang's activities and serve as the spokesmen.

There are many signs a child may be involved with a gang. The drawing of gang graffiti in notebooks or on clothing, the use of gang language, hand signs, receiving money or articles of clothing or jewelry without the parent's permission or awareness, using drugs or alcohol and negative contacts with authority figures.

Having open discussions about gangs and their illegal activities is one way to prevent children from being associated with gang members. Other ways may include involving children in sports, hobbies or scouting.

Although the presence of gangs in our communities may never disappear, prevention is one way to somewhat control it. One program that introduces the negative aspects of gangs is the D.A.R.E. (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) Program. This program is designed to give young people the facts about drugs and alcohol. The 64th Security Police Squadron has two D.A.R.E. instructors who teach at the Frenship Intermediate School. A new program was developed in 1991 by the Phoenix Police Department and targets gang awareness. This program is called "GREAT," which stands for Gang Resistance Education and Training. This program is being taught to police departments all over the United States and is becoming popular in schools.

If you have any questions about the D.A.R.E. program, contact SSgt. Roger Bass at 6261. If you would like further information about gangs, contact me at 3999.

54th FTS gets new leader

by SSgt. Mike Breslin
Editor

Lt. Col. Bob Herris assumes command of the 54th Flying Training Squadron from Lt. Col. Terence Gilbert at 10 a.m. today in front of base operations.

Colonel Gilbert, commander of the 54th FTS since June 1992, is departing Reese for an assignment at Osan AB, Korea.

Colonel Herris comes to Reese from Hill AFB, Utah, where he was the chief of wing plans and exercises for the 388th Fighter Wing. The colonel is a 1978 Air Force Academy graduate and a 1979 graduate of UPT at Vance AFB, Okla.

Since completing follow-on instructor pilot duty at Vance, the colonel's assignments have included MacDill AFB, Fla.; Torrejon AB, Spain; Spangdahlem AB, Germany; Ramstein AB, Germany; and Incirlik AB, Turkey, where he served during Operation Desert Storm and again later during Operation Provide Comfort. He has served in a variety of squadron-, wing- and headquarters-level positions.

"We are thrilled to be here," said Colonel Herris. "This is a great opportunity, and since we started in (this) command, it's a lot like 'returning to our roots.'"

The Ohio native is a command pilot with more than 2,700 flying hours in the F-16A/C, T-37 and T-38. His military decorations include the Defense Meritorious Service Medal, the Air Force MSM with two oak leaf clusters, the Joint Service Commendation Medal and the Combat Readiness Medal with one oak leaf cluster.

Colonel Herris and his wife, Alice, have two children — Erica, 13, and Justin, 9.

Everyone on base is welcome at today's change-of-command ceremony.

Programs now open to more people

by MSgt. Merrie Schilter-Lowe
Air Force News Service

WASHINGTON — People in the grade of staff sergeant and below, captains, nurses and staff judge advocates can now take advantage of the voluntary separation incentive and special separation benefit programs.

Air Force is expanding the programs to meet fiscal 1995 end-strength requirements, said Air Force officials here. Air Force must trim its ranks by an additional 2,500 officers and 17,000 enlisted members this year.

Personnel officials announced last year that they expected to meet end-strength goals through a phased program. The first phase began Feb. 1. So far, 65 percent of the enlisted goal — about 10,766 people — and 62 percent of the officer goal — 777 people — have been met but applications for the voluntary program have leveled off, said Col. Andrew J. Pelak Jr., director of military people policy here.

"To make up the difference, we're expanding the VSI/SSB programs to staff sergeants and below with more than nine years of service and to selected line captains in the 1986 and 1987 year groups," Colonel Pelak said.

Air Force is also expanding the temporary early retirement and VSI/SSB programs to non-line, non-deferred lieutenant colonels and majors in the nurse corps, and to selected non-deferred majors in the judge advocate general field. Non-deferred means officers who have not been passed over for promotion.

Applications are being accepted immediately for nurses and JAGs who must separate by Jan. 1, 1995. Everyone else can apply beginning July 1. People who separate must do so by June 30, 1995. Those who opt for early retirement must do so by July 1, 1995.

Another 300 enlisted members will be able to separate early under the date of separation rollback program. This program will affect people with fewer than six years of service, Colonel Pelak said.

"With these expansions, we should be able to meet our FY '95 goals without going to additional phases," he said.

With the latest phase, Air Force can draw from a pool of about 11,000 enlisted members and 3,000 officers. Air Force plans to cap non-rated line officer losses at 300, nurse corps losses at 60, and JAG losses at 20.

People in some career fields — primarily medical or those with selective re-enlistment bonuses — cannot apply for the voluntary separation programs, Colonel Pelak said. Pilots, navigators and nurse anesthetist are also ineligible.

At Reese

People in the following career fields are not eligible for the expanded program; all specialties listed are held by wing members (the numbers in parenthesis refers to the notes that follow the list):

1C1X1, 1C3X1, 1N0X1, 1S0X1(3,5), 1W0X1X, 2A1X3(1), 2E190, 2G0X1, 2S0X2, 2S090, 3C3X1, 3E0X1, 3E4X1, 3E4X2(4,5), 3E5X1, 3N0X1, 3M091, 3P0X2(4,5), 3R0X1, 3P0X2A(4,5), 3S090, 3U0X1, 4A0X1, 4A1X1, 4A2X1, 4B0X1, 4C0X1, 4D0X1, 4E0X1, 4F0X1, 4J0X2, 4M0X1, 4N090, 4P0X1, 4R0X1, 4T0X1, 4Y0X1, 4Y1X1, 5J0X1, 6C0X1(4,5) and 8F000(2).

(An "X" suffix includes the basic Air Force specialty code and all shredouts in that AFSC.)

Notes: 1 — Only prefixes "K, Q," and "X" excluded.

2 — Only master sergeants are excluded.

3 — Master sergeants and below are excluded unless their total active federal military service date is June 30, 1980, or earlier (must have at least 15 years of active service by separation date).

4 — People in these AFSCs are excluded unless they have a TAFMSD of June 30, 1980, or earlier (must have at least 15 years of active service by separation date).

5 — People in these AFSCs may apply if assigned to a base or unit that is closing in fiscal 1995. Senior master sergeants and below must have a TAFMSD of June 30, 1980, or earlier, and must have at least 15 years of active service by retirement or separation date. Staff sergeants and below with a TAFMSD of June 30, 1986, or earlier, must have at least nine years of active service by separation date.

Child centers earn DOD first

by Nancy McFadden
AETC Services Marketing Director

RANDOLPH AFB, Texas — Reese and 23 other AETC child development facilities received national accreditation by the National Academy of Early Childhood Programs, making the command the first to achieve the congressionally mandated action.

"AETC is the first major command in the Air Force and the Department of Defense to achieve accreditation in all of its child care facilities," said Louella Anderson, AETC child development specialist. This makes a total of 78 Air Force bases to receive such accreditation, Anderson added.

The facilities, located on 13 AETC bases, and Gila Bend Air Force Auxiliary Field, Ariz., serve more than 3,950 children ranging from six weeks to 12 years old.

"We always strive to provide the best service possible to Reese parents," said Viola Aikens, Reese Child Development Center director. "We're always looking for ways to improve."

She added that her thanks go to parents and staff members for the part they played in earning the accreditation.

In 1989, Congress enacted the Military Child Care Act requiring DOD to ensure the accreditation of 50 military child development programs. The Air Force policy exceeds Congress' mandate, requiring accreditation of all Air Force-sponsored child care programs as part of its effort to improve the quality of care and education provided to children.

The accreditation process involves three steps and generally takes two years to accomplish. First, a self-study and self-improvement process examines the quality of life of the children in the program and improves areas which might not meet accreditation criteria. Second, a validation visit is conducted to verify the accuracy of the program report on meeting NAECP criteria; Reese was visited last summer.

Finally, a decision-making panel accredits or defers the program after reviewing the validation report. Reese's center received its accreditation in October.

"This is a great accomplishment which required teamwork from commanders, base health care providers, safety and fire officials, as well as family advocates, child development providers and other service staff members," Anderson said. "Our hats are off to the children, parents, base agencies, commanders and child development staff members." (AETC News Service)

Reese Enlisted Wives Club

The Reese Enlisted Wives Club recently held their annual scholarship dinner at the enlisted club to honor 11 recipients with $7,500 in scholarships.

The Reese Top 3 Association donated $1,200 for the top scholarship, presented to Nancy Markham, a senior from Coronado High School. The next two recipients were Phillip Marzolino Jr., a senior from Lubbock Christian High School, and Lisa Gutierrez, from Lubbock High School, who each received $750 scholarships.

Air Force Sergeants Association Chapter 1068 presented a $600 scholarship to Ronnie DeForrest from Lubbock High School. This scholarship honors Josie Payne, an active member of the AFSA

Auxiliary who passed away in 1992.

Other recipients of $600 scholarships were Darrell "Andy" Johnson of Monterey High School; Eileen "Christy" Dobbs and Charles Lowell Gill, both from Frenship High School; Amanda Moore of Lubbock High School; Vanessa Quirino, also from Frenship; Amy Ward from Shallowater High School; and Carlos Marrero from Monterey High School.

The scholarship judging committee chair, Reese Staff Judge Advocate Lt. Col. Edmund Bloom, commented that the judging was extremely competitive. Other members of the committee were Don Neff, from United Services Planning Association; Billy Caviel, a registered pharmacist; and Dr. William Marsh from the Texas Tech Medical Department.

Notes

C-17 crosses the Atlantic

CHARLESTON AFB, S.C. — The C-17 Globemaster III made its maiden voyage across the Atlantic Ocean to Europe May 24 to test over-water navigational software and Air Mobility Command's en route structure.

The aircraft, from the 437th Airlift Wing here, gave the Army in Europe a firsthand glimpse of the core airlifter of the future, and it also participated in Air Fete '94, one of Europe's premier annual air shows, at RAF Mildenhall, England, May 28-29, said AMC officials.

While the European trip is another milestone in the C-17 program, training at Charleston continues with steady progress toward initial operational capability in 1995 with 12 aircraft and 48 aircrews, officials said.

The seven C-17s already here have accrued more than 1,100 total flying hours, 235 missions and 4,000 landings. Currently, there are 15 pilots, 53 co-pilots and 26 loadmasters at Charleston who are C-17-qualified, officials said. (Air Force News Service)

"JOC night" returns tonight

"JOC night" returns to the officers club tonight, with "Ground Zero" kicking off the music at 8 p.m. The Smokin' Hole opens at 4:30 p.m., the food line begins at 5:30 p.m. and a bar and grill menu will be available throughout.

Parenting class planned

Parents of children with chronic or disabling conditions are the target of a class scheduled for 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Life Independent Center off base. The topic of the class will be "Nurturing parents and children through discipline and guidance."

For details on the class, call Phillip Thierry, Reese Family Support Center, at 3305.

Yard sales in housing

People planning to have a yard sale in Reese Village should notify the housing office at 3913. Housing officials ask that residents also remember that while they are allowed to place signs in their yards, they are not allowed to do so on street signs, utility poles or government property.

ALS graduates June 17

Reese Airman Leadership School Class '94-C will graduate during a luncheon ceremony at 11:30 a.m. June 17 in the enlisted club. The luncheon is $5.50; R.S.V.P. is due by June 14. Call 3147.

Top 3 hold car wash

The Reese Top 3 Association will hold a car wash starting at 9 a.m. June 18 in the security police parking lot. Proceeds will be used to support various base activities throughout the year.

Disability group planned

A disabled children's/siblings support group will meet from 7 to 8 p.m. June 21 in Room C122 in Texas Tech's Thompson Hall, location of the Tech's

Mike Parrish

New York civic leaders visit Reese

Col. William Reynolds (right), 64th FTW vice commander, greets members of a New York civic leader group as they deplane Tuesday. The group's visit was part of the Air Force's civic leader tour program, which gives orientations on the service's mission and its stewardship of tax dollars to prominent members of communities throughout the nation. While here, the New York group toured wing facilities and learned about Reese's pilot training mission.

cerebral palsy clinic. For more information, call Phillip Thierry, Reese Family Support Center, at 3305.

Firing range open

The base firing range will be open for privately owned weapons firing from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. June 25. Interested people must make reservations by calling 3848.

Reese Manor changes

The extension for Reese Manor and picnic area reservations has changed, as has the location for key pick-up. The billeting office in Bldg. 1142, now takes care of these services.

Call 3155 between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. weekdays.

Personnel newslines back

RANDOLPH AFB, Texas — The Air Force Military Personnel Center's phone-in newslines service is back in service, providing the latest personnel news.

New hardware and software has enhanced the service and callers should notice better sound quality, said AFMPC officials.

The latest menu features the following news items: AFMPC releases new guide, Air Force selects top flights, foreign language pay problem, and latest force drawdown statistics.

To use the newslines, stateside callers can dial DSN 487-3081 from a touch-tone telephone. Questions and comments about the service should be directed to AFMPC's Public Affairs Office at DSN 487-6141. (Air Force News Service)

Check SGLI deductions

RANDOLPH AFB, Texas — Service members should check their leave and earning statements to ensure the right premium is being deducted for Servicemen's Group Life Insurance, said Air Force Military Personnel Center officials here.

They explained that a recent audit by some military personnel flights showed too little money was being deducted from some people's pay — $8 a month instead of $16 for $200,000 worth of coverage.

In such cases members will have to pay back the money owed, officials said. Accounting and finance officials will deduct up to 12 months of back premiums from the first month's pay and the remainder from the following month's pay.

People who face financial hardships because of the lump-sum deduction will be handled individually, officials said.

SGLI coverage currently costs 8 cents per $1,000 worth of coverage; however, this increases to 9 cents per $1,000 July 1. For more information, people can contact the military personnel flight customer service section at 3276. (Air Force News Service)

Volunteers sought

Volunteers are needed in the family services center, library office and legal office. To find out what these positions entail, call Cheryl Ortiz at 3305.

MAKING FAMILY LIFE MORE FUN

Eco-Cultural Activities Planned With Reopening Of Resort

(NAPS)—Families visiting Phoenix this spring and summer have a chance to experience Arizona's colorful culture, ecology and heritage through a series of activities planned at one of the area's top resorts.

The Pointe Hilton Resort at Squaw Peak will offer on an ongoing basis, arts and crafts workshops and nature hikes through neighboring Sonoran Desert wilderness on a newly improved trail system, to all guests.

At the center of the eco-cultural programming is Hole-in-the-Wall River Ranch, a new eight-acre water recreation and cultural center built during a $16 million renovation completed this spring. All activities and performances will be coordinated from this location.

The facility includes a network of pools, waterfalls and a river wrapped around Cactus Rock, a scenic geographic landmark. Other facilities include a Southwestern retail center and general store, ranch house restaurant, tennis facilities and Coyote Camp, an award-winning children's program with environmental programming.

Live performances by a strolling cowboy guitarist will be featured regularly to enhance the western atmosphere.

The resort will sponsor various mountain preserve improvement projects throughout the year in which guests can work alongside park rangers and desert experts.

Arts and Crafts workshops that feature ceramic/pottery techniques used by the Hohokam Indians will also be featured.

The All-in-the-Family vacation package makes planning a trip to this award-winning resort affordable. A family of two adults and two children receive spacious two-bedroom casita accommodations, daily enrollment in Coyote Camp, free bicycle use, spa privileges and more.

This summer, rates are $125 per adult per night based on double occupancy and two children stay free ($30 per night for each additional child).

Backyard Basketball System Really Scores

(NAPS)—A new, super-tough home basketball system is scoring big with basketball fans young and old.

Exclusively endorsed by the National Basketball Association (NBA), the Performance Series from Huffy Sports is made of a high-density, lightweight structural composite material that provides unmatched durability and performance. Because of its strength and toughness, the new system provides great action and a true bounce off the backboard.

To find a tougher system, you'd have to go to a gymnasium, according to Huffy Sports representatives. But the Performance Series is more than just a tough customer. It's also stylish, thanks to full-color, three-dimensional graphics that are attractive to both parents and kids.

"Over the years, the home basketball market has advanced from wood to fiberglass to graphite and acrylic construction. This is truly a step into the future of home basketball," says Jon Gallun, Manager of Marketing and Advanced Design for Huffy Sports.

The company also recently introduced its third generation of portable basketball systems that can be moved or stored when not in use. These systems—the hottest on the market today—have a base that fills with water and they're as stable as an in-ground unit or garage-mounted system. When you need to move the unit, you just empty the water and roll it away.

All of the company's products carry the NBA logo as an assurance of quality and value. To find out more about the Performance Series or the complete line of portable home basketball systems, visit your local retail or sporting goods outlet or call Huffy Sports at 1-800-558-5234.

Intramural golf season tees off

by A1C Timothy E. Dempsey
64th FTW Public Affairs

The 64th Medical Group "A" began their chase for a championship Tuesday by defeating the 64th Civil Engineering Squadron as intramural golf swung into action.

Col. Fred Guerra and teammates Lt. Col. Rich Willis, MSgt. Dino Carroll and SrA. Tom Watts won both of their nine-hole matches by one stroke, 37-38.

"He's an excellent player," said Sergeant Carroll about Colonel Guerra. "He said he's been playing since he was a kid, and it shows."

Sergeant Carroll said he feels confident about the team's ability this season to play with other squadrons. "I think we can give the flying squadrons a run for their money this year. They have a lot of collegiate experienced golfers."

MEDGP "A" will try to continue their success as they tee off against the 64th Logistics Squadron Tuesday.

In other matches Tuesday, MEDGP "B" brought another victory to the hospital as Amn. Kelly Collins and his teammates defeated LS. Scores and details on this and other matches were not available from intramural officials.
