General Moorman stresses need for 'core' values

COLUMBUS AFB, Miss. (AETCNS) — Integrity first, service before self and excellence are core values people must believe in if they believe in the quality movement going on in the Air Force, said Gen. Thomas S. Moorman Jr., Air Force vice chief of staff, during a recent visit here.

"We must have integrity, the sense of selflessness and we're about excellence," Moorman said. "In the current quality movement, it's important to have these (core values) out in front of you because they give you a goal to shoot for."

General Moorman said major command quality chiefs got together to work on paring down the previous six core values — integrity, courage, patriotism, competency, tenacity and service — into an "irreducible" whole. "The three we now have capture the essence of the profession of arms."

A strong belief in core values is one of the traits of an effective leader, and developing leadership skills is a continual process, General Moorman said. "People need to work at it, they need to establish their own leadership criteria and find out what works for them. Leadership is a skill no one is born with."

"I like to talk about leadership and distinguish it from management. In essence, you lead people and you manage things."

"The Air Force needs people who do both, but you must understand the distinction. Look for good leaders you admire and take from them what you feel comfortable with and constantly refine your own leadership style."

General Moorman said in some respects Quality Air Force is about leadership. "(Quality Air Force) is about empowerment, motivation, trust and improving workplace effectiveness."

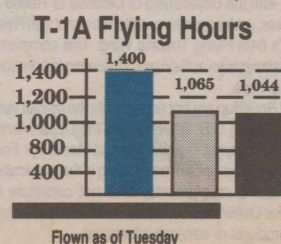

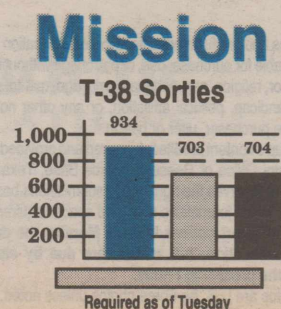

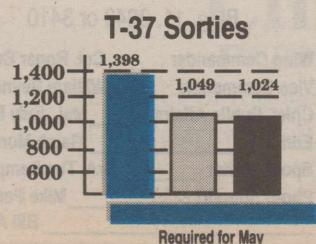

"Given that the demands on the Air Force are still high and we've cut about 200,000 people in the last eight to 10 years, if we didn't have a quality movement, we'd have to invent it," he said.

"We are still very early in the quality journey. There is still a lot of work needed to instill quality throughout the Air Force. Quality Air Force is here to stay; we must have it."

Quality is one thing the Air Force won't sacrifice in its continuing effort in attracting potential recruits, General Moorman said.

"The Air Force will not sac-

General Viccellio salutes fallen comrades

Memorial Day observance pays tribute to those who made 'ultimate' sacrifice

by Gen. Henry Viccellio Jr.
AETC Commander

RANDOLPH AFB, Texas — Memorial Day is set aside to honor those members of the armed forces who have made the ultimate sacrifice in defense of our great country and the democratic ideals upon which it was founded.

Monday marks this year's observance of the holiday to honor our fallen comrades. Not only should we remember their sacrifices this Memorial Day, we should also take a hard look at the reasons they made them, then rededicate ourselves to the ideals our forefathers knew would ultimately form the greatest country on earth.

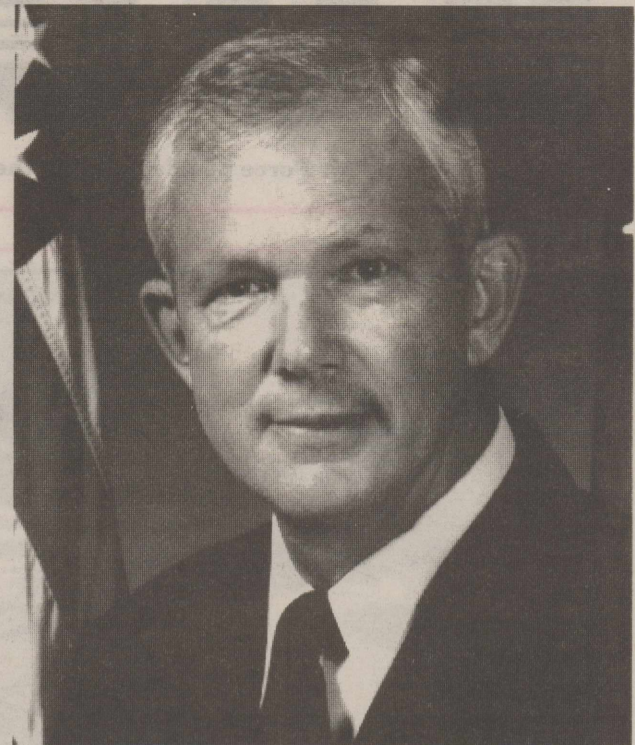

They knew the cost of freedom would be high.

But, knowing that, they were willing to pay the price for the good of the nation. Service above self! The hundreds of thousands who sacrificed their lives have done so to preserve all the things that helped make America what it is.

Today we continue to protect their vision. Men and women now serving in our armed forces have made the same commitment to pay whatever price is required to maintain our freedom.

Memorial Day is not only a day to honor our country's fallen, but also a day to reaffirm our devotion to the land of liberty for which so many patriots gave their lives.

Please take a moment to offer your personal gratitude to those who paid the ultimate price. Promise them that we won't forget as we enjoy the freedom these men and women selflessly died to maintain.

Spring clean up can reduce fire hazards

by Arnold Miranda
chief fire inspector

The fire department would like to offer you some helpful hints to reduce fire hazards in the home and work place.

Spring cleanup involves good housekeeping

practices which is a combination of good storage and preventive maintenance practices. In essence, it means that all waste and storage is kept to a minimum and the facility is kept neat and clean.

Every home or work place has a storage room or area. These areas require special attention because of the amount of materials that accumulate in them.

Storage rooms or areas should be checked for items that are no longer needed. Organize storage areas to provide free access to all areas. Check to see that light switches, electrical outlets or circuit breaker boxes are not being blocked from access. Flammable liquids should be stored in approved metal lockers. Any liquids not needed should be disposed of properly.

Another key area is the kitchen. The stove makes this area a potential fire hazard. All combustible materials must be kept away from the stove or oven to include curtains and trash receptacles. Check the stove and oven for grease and cleanliness.

The outside of the facility is just as important as the inside. Check the outside to ensure that there is no dry vegetation, leaves or trash accumulated alongside the facility. If there is, collect and bag them up for normal trash collection. Burning rubbish on base and in base housing is prohibited.

These safety hints should help reduce the potential for fire in your home or work area.

However, there are situations which are out of our control for which we need to be prepared. You can be prepared by having a portable fire extinguisher available and know how to use it effectively. The fire department provides extinguisher training on request.

It is important that everyone knows what to do if fire occurs.

If you discover a fire, alert the facility occupants by any possible means. This could be by activating a fire alarm pull station or by yelling, "Fire!"

If the fire is in the beginning stage, attempt to extinguish it with a portable fire extinguisher. Most importantly, notify the fire department, (on-base and in base housing call 911) and provide the following information:

- What is on fire
- Location of fire
- Facility number or location
- Number of people inside the facility

Then wait outside until the fire department arrives and show them the location of the fire. To be well prepared for a fire situation, you should plan ahead. The fire department can help you develop a pre-fire plan for your facility.

Core values critical to quality AF

 rifice quality for quantity. We continue to have a 99 percent high school graduation rate.”

People have the misperception that the Air Force is not hiring, and this has raised the consciousness to put more emphasis on the recruiting process, the general said.

“We have about 363 training seats that are going unfilled as of the end of April, and at this point, we’re about 2,300 new contracts behind. One of the steps being taken by Air

Education and Training Command leadership is that they’re putting more money into advertising.

“The advertising budget this fiscal year is up from $7 million to $11 million, and in fiscal year 1996, it will go up to $13 million,” he said.

General Moorman applauded AETC’s efforts to expand the recruiting efforts throughout the Air Force. He especially cited the command’s “Everyone’s a Recruiter” program.

Joint effort and training is also required by the U.S. armed forces in the face of budget reductions and limited resources.

“As far as I can see, ‘jointness’ in training is not only a great idea, but it has been a big success story,” Moorman said, in reference to consolidating joint primary aircraft training with other services.

The Air Force and Navy are currently exchanging training instructors who are teaching initial pilot training skills to exchange students.

DOD reissues membership guidance

In the aftermath of the April 19 Oklahoma City bombing, Secretary of Defense William J. Perry asked the service chiefs to re-emphasize the standing regulations which forbid membership in certain groups.

As spelled out in Air Force Instruction 51-903, Dissident and Protest Activities, “Mere membership in an organization is not prohibited,” note

Air Force officials.

Being an active participant is prohibited in certain cases.

Active participation is defined as publicly demonstrating or rallying, fund-raising, recruiting or training members organizing or leading such groups.

Groups that advocate supremacy, discriminate based on race, creed, color, sex, religion or those that use force or violence to deprive people of their civil rights are not compatible with military service and are prohibited.

Service members should check with legal officials before joining an organization to avoid facing “actions up to and including trial by court-martial.” Call the Reese Legal Office at 5505 for details.

The regulations does not apply to Air Force civilians.

Clean up continues

John Eberly, right, and Mike Mullins drill a monitoring well behind wing headquarters. Several wells are being drilled around the base as part of the effort to clean up the groundwater. The drilling may cause excessive noise. To keep this to a minimum the contractor will only drill from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Parents should instruct children to keep away from these or any other construction sites.

A Lasting Tribute . . .

This Memorial Day, taps will sound across countless graves throughout the land, as a thoughtful nation pauses to honor those men and women who have given their lives in the service of their country.

Since the days of our forefathers, so many brave Americans have made the ultimate sacrifice in order to preserve our way of life.

Monday, we will be honoring their memory with many lasting tributes. But the most lasting tribute of all, is the dedication of all Americans to the goal of peace.

Let us remember the departed most fittingly by achieving that peace.

. . . The Goal of Peace.

High tech equipment deters shoplifters

Exchange cuts costs by preventing thefts

by SrA. Tim Dempsey
Public Affairs

If you think you can get away with shoplifting at the Reese Base Exchange, think again!

The exchange installed a new electronic surveillance system in February which serves three purposes: to deter shoplifting, to assist in the apprehension of shoplifters and to improve customer service.

According to John Sharp, general manager of the exchange, "The system itself is a deterrent for those individuals who might be tempted to shoplift.

The system is an invaluable apprehension tool, continuously videotaping the activity on four video cassette recorders. "When we make a stop of a suspected shoplifter, we have everything on tape," explained Sharp.

The system has cameras mounted throughout the store that rotate 360 degrees and pivot 180 degrees. "There are enough cameras where we cover 99 percent of the sales floor and other areas," said Sharp. "The cameras have the capability of zooming in to an object to tell exactly what it is and where it is being concealed."

"There's a trade off in the cost of the system and the benefits in stopping and deterring shoplifting," said Sharp. The base purchased the system from Lowry AFB, Colo., after it closed. The system cost Reese $9,000, whereas a new system runs approximately $60,000.

Another benefit of the system is its impact on morale, welfare and recreation services. "The exchange is only allowed to spend its revenues to update and improve the facilities at the exchange or as a return to MWR benefits to the installation," said Sharp. "When you lose an item from theft, you not only lose the cost of the item, but it comes straight off the bottom line." To make up for the loss of the item, the exchange has to sell numerous items of the same value to break even.

"By deterring shoplifting, more dollars will be donated to MWR services," concluded Sharp.

In addition the exchange security system allows for monitoring the sales floor to see if a new check-out line needs to be opened, if sales associates are needed in certain areas and other customer assistance needs.

AFMPC explains how promotion 'zones' work

RANDOLPH AFB, Texas (AFNS) — For Air Force promotions to major through colonel, officers compete both below-the-promotion zone, or

BPZ, as well as in- and above-the-promotion zone, or I/APZ, Air Force Military Personnel Center officials note.

Officers are eligible to compete BPZ during the two promotion boards immediately preceding their primary consideration. All eligible officers receive a promotion recommendation form for their BPZ consideration and all records are reviewed by the board.

Below-the-promotion zone and I/APZ records are never scored together.

Promotion boards begin by first scoring all I/APZ records. Once these records are scored and an order of merit established, the board begins reviewing the "below-the-promotion zone" officers.

All BPZ records are initially scored using a "yes/no" system. "Yes" indicates "exceptionally well qualified" for promotion.

With five scoring board members on each panel, three or more "yes" votes are needed for that record to be rescored using the 6 to 10 scoring scale.

The same procedures that are followed during the I/APZ process (split resolution, building an order of merit, applying the BPZ promotion quota, and resolving the gray area) are then followed during the numerical scoring of the "exceptionally well qualified" records to determine the BPZ selects and non-selects.

One of the last actions of the promotion board is to confirm that the BPZ select records are indeed better quality records than the in- and above-the-zone non-select records, since BPZ promotions come at the expense of the IPZ and APZ officers.

The entire board compares the lowest BPZ select record to the highest-scoring IPZ or APZ non-select record. A majority of the board members must agree that the BPZ record is better than the I/APZ record for the BPZ officer to "displace" the I/APZ officer. If it isn't better, that I/APZ officer becomes a select and the BPZ officer becomes a non-select. This process is repeated until a BPZ officer displaces an I/APZ officer.

The "displacement" process ensures that officers selected for promotion below-the-zone are indeed of such quality that they should displace officers from selection in and above the zone.

Just as with the I/APZ portion of the board, the board president is a non-scoring member of the selection board for BPZ selections. The progress of the board is monitored by the board president who ensures the board is conducted in accordance with the Air Force secretary's guidance and instructions, and conducts a quality review of those BPZ records that score very close to the final cut line between selects and non-selects.

The board president also reviews a large number of records from all the scoring panels to ensure that the quality of BPZ officers selected for promotion is consistent between the panels.

More information on the below-the-zone selection process, is available from the local military personnel flight.

Civil War Battlefield Commemorative Coins

Reverse

The obverse of the silver dollar shows an infantryman raising a canteen to the lips of a wounded foe. The reverse displays a quotation from Joshua Chamberlain, the college teacher from Maine who became one of the heroes of Gettysburg.

(NAPS)—Whether you collect coins or just enjoy looking at them, you may find yourself spending a great deal of time admiring the new Civil War Battlefield Commemorative Coins.

Issuance of the coins coincides with the centenary of the movement, begun by Civil War veterans from both sides, to preserve historic battlefields. The coin series features a clad (copper and nickel) half dollar, a silver dollar, and a gold five dollar coin.

The obverse of the clad half dollar is a tribute to the Civil War drummer boys. The reverse depicts a battlefield scene below the inscription, "Enriching Our Future By Preserving The Past."

The obverse of the silver dollar shows an infantryman raising a canteen to the lips of a wounded foe. The reverse displays a quotation from Joshua Chamberlain, the college teacher from Maine who became one of the heroes of Gettysburg.

The obverse of the gold five dollar coin shows a Civil War bugler on horseback sounding a call to the troops. The reverse carries the image of a bald eagle, a symbol of American strength.

Obverse designs for each coin are by Civil War artist and historian Don Troiani, known for his historically accurate paintings and limited-edition prints of Civil War scenes. Reverse designs are by Mint sculptors/engravers Alfred Maletsky for the gold five dollar coin, John Mercanti for the silver dollar and T. James Ferrell for the clad half dollar.

Surcharges included in the price of each coin will be paid to the Civil War Trust and designated for preservation of Civil War battlefields. Civil War Battlefield Commemorative Coins will range in price from the gold five dollar coin ($35 surcharge) to $34 for the silver dollar ($7 surcharge) and $11.75 for the clad half dollar ($2 surcharge). If all 3.3 million coins authorized to be minted are sold, over $21 million in surcharges will be generated for battlefield preservation.

"This constitutes the largest private-sector opportunity for funding battlefield preservation in U.S. history," remarked Civil War Trust President Matt Andrews. "With so many significant Civil War sites at risk, this program merits support from preservationists and Civil War enthusiasts everywhere."

MEMORIAL DAY SERVICES

RESTHAVEN announces two memorial services to be held in Resthaven Memorial Park on Monday, May 29, 1995.

TRADITIONAL SERVICE

10:00 a.m. at the Flagpole

The Veterans of Foreign Wars will present a flag raising ceremony with members of the 4th U.S. Cavalry Regiment (Memorial) preceded by an address as detailed below.

SPEAKER

James Reckner, Ph.D.

Lt. Commander, United States Navy (Retired)
Director of the Center for the Study of the Vietnam Conflict
Assistant Professor of History, Texas Tech University

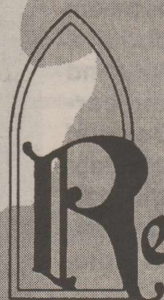

10:45 a.m. in front of the Mausoleum

The Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center will present a special public service at the memorialized grave space (near front door of mausoleum) in which have been interred the cremated remains of those bodies which have been donated to the Health Sciences Center. Resthaven salutes the memory, and thanks the loved ones, of those persons to whom this service is dedicated.

In accordance with custom, Resthaven personnel will be available at the 19th Street entrance to assist you with grave site location, and refreshments will be served.

Miniature Flag Placement Note: Resthaven gratefully acknowledges VFW Post #2466's efforts to mark every veteran's grave at Resthaven with a miniature U.S. Flag. The Post places a flag on every grave marked by a veteran's grave marker. If your loved one was a veteran and his or her grave is not marked by a veteran's marker or a flag, please see Resthaven's personnel by the 19th St. entrance for a miniature flag. In addition, be sure the individual's name is included on the "flag list" that will be used for future flag placement.

YOU ARE CORDIALLY INVITED TO ATTEND
EACH OF THESE INDEPENDENT SERVICES.

CAR WASH HOW-TO's

- Never use household detergents—they strip the wax, causing the finish to oxidize.
- Never wear clothes that can scratch the paint, such as a belt or shirt with buttons. Dedicate sweats and a cotton t-shirt as "work clothes."
- Use the right tools for the job. CleanTools™ Wash Mitt has deep fibers that capture dirt and hold it away from the surface.
- Use a separate wash mitt and water for dirtier areas, below the side molding, the grill, so dirt doesn't scratch the paint in more visible areas.
- Keep the whole car wet to prevent water spotting, or wash small areas.
- Take the nozzle off the hose to rinse the car. A light stream of water sheets off, protecting against chemical residue.
- Physically dry the car or minerals in the water can etch into the paint.
- Using the absorber dries the car faster, and is safer on the paint; it's also easier to wring out. Since it "pulls" less wax from the surface, it protects the paint and it can go longer between each waxing.

AF news notes

O-6 promotion board to meet in October

RANDOLPH AFB, Texas (AFNS) — The calendar 1995B Colonel Central Selection Board is tentatively scheduled to convene at the Air Force Military Personnel Center here Oct. 10.

This board is considering line of the Air Force, judge advocate, Medical Service Corps, Biomedical Sciences Corps and Nurse Corps members for promotion to colonel.

Officers being considered for promotion should ensure information in their records is current and accurate.

Beginning with this selection board, the following recommendations from the Officer Evaluation System Review Group will be implemented:

- Senior raters and management-level reviews can use "whole-person" factors such as professional military education and advanced academic education on the Promotion Recommendation Form.

- Bullet statements are mandatory in Section IV of the PRF.

- PRFs from previous boards won't be included in the record of performance.

- So-called "Top Promote" or "Super Promote" comments aren't allowed to differentiate between officers who receive a "Promote" recommendation. In other words, management levels can't use comments such as, "If I had one more Definitely Promote to award, Lieutenant Colonel Jones would earn it." However, senior raters may differentiate among their eligible officers.

- All PRFs and records of performance of officers in and above-the primary-promotion-zone will be reviewed at the management level.

High-year-of-tenure clarified

RANDOLPH AFB, Texas (AFNS) — Air Force Military Personnel Center officials here report receiving numerous queries concerning the Air Force's intent to return to pre-drawdown high-year-of-tenure, or HYT, points for the enlisted force.

As part of the drawdown, the Air Force lowered the maximum number of years most enlisted members could remain on active duty without being promoted to the next grade. Although the Air Force's long-range plan may be to return to higher tenure points, there is no intent to do so in the next several years, say officials.

New study material out soon

RANDOLPH AFB, Texas (AFNS) — The new Promotion Fitness Examination Study Guide (Volume 1) and the new USAF Supervisory Examination Study Guide (Volume 2) are currently being distributed.

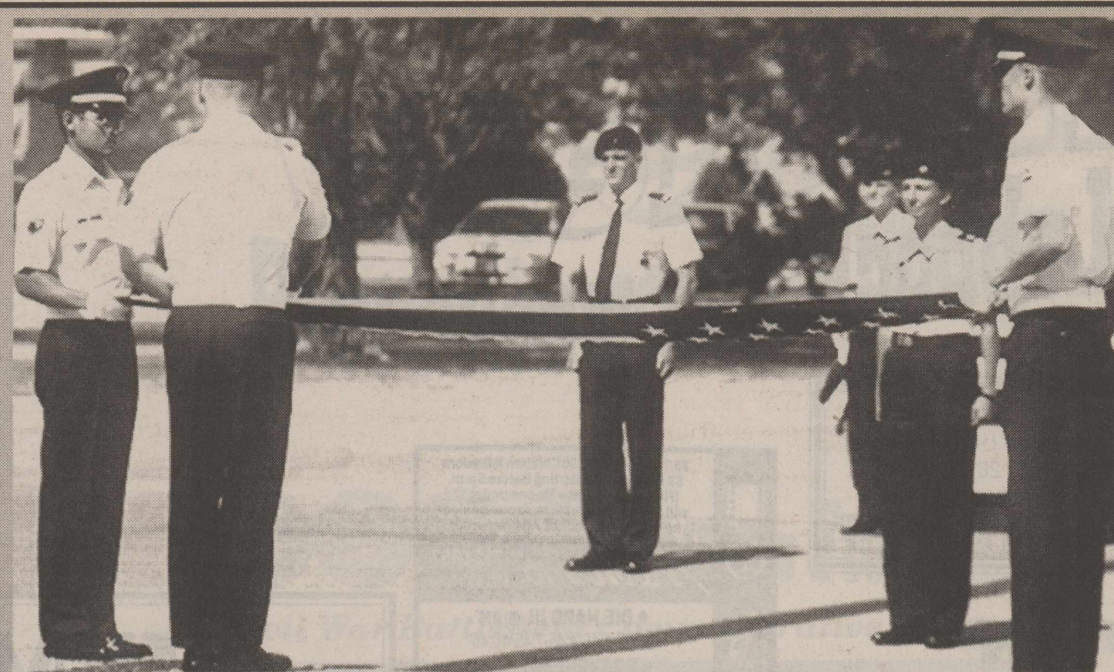

The first shipments are on their way to overseas locations. All overseas and stateside units should expect to receive their study guides by early June. Both publications have a July 1 effective date and are the required study references for promotion cycles 95E9 and 96E8.

Senior master sergeants competing for promotion during Cycle 95E9 test in August, and master sergeants competing for promotion during Cycle 96E8 test in October.

Units will ensure promotion-eligible senior and master sergeants receive copies first before other enlisted members. Only Volume 1 of the PFE Study Guide is the required reference for members testing for staff, technical and master sergeant beginning in January.

The study guides have been revised to reflect the most current information on Air Force programs. A summary of changes is included with each volume.

For more information contact the career enhancement element of the Reese Military Personnel Flight at 6465 or 3145.

Police week salute

Members of the 64th Security Police Squadron participate in a National Police Week retreat ceremony here May 19. The ceremony included representatives from many local law enforcement agencies.

Uniform changes take affect soon

RANDOLPH AFB, Texas (AFNS) — Two uniform changes take affect soon regarding the wear of U.S. insignia on the old and new service dress coats, and the wear of rank insignia on battle dress uniforms.

Beginning June 1, officers and enlisted members must wear only the highly polished U.S. insignia without the circle on the old and new service dress coats.

"All accouterments such as badges must also be highly polished regardless of whether or not you're wearing the old or new service dress coat," said SSgt. Keith Lawrence, noncommissioned officer in charge of Air Force dress and appearance at the Air Force Military Personnel Center, Randolph AFB, Texas.

The proper way to wear the U.S. insignia on both coats is to align the bottom of the insignia halfway up the seam of the collar and horizontal with the ground, explained Sergeant Lawrence.

Air Force members have until Oct. 1, 1997, to replace aircrew-style name patches on their BDUS with the U.S. Air Force and name tapes. Sergeant Lawrence noted that rank insignia must be sewn on within a few months.

"People who continue wearing the name patch must have on rank insignia (chevrons or officer rank insignia) by this Oct. 1," said Sergeant Lawrence.

For more information on uniform changes and wear, contact the Reese Military Personnel Flight customer service element at 6465.

Colonel Philpott retires

Col. Monica Figun presents Lt. Col. Timothy Philpott with a Meritorious Service Medal here May 18. The medal was awarded during a change of command and retirement ceremony for Colonel Philpott. Lt. Col. Richard Rowe is the new 54th Aerospace Medicine Squadron commander.

Conservation tip: Water lawns in early morning or in the evening.

PCS peak season

From May through September military and civilian moves increase. If you have a change in duty station this summer, allow a two- or three-day period to avoid unforeseen problems such as carrier shortages.

This means scheduling your pickup before the last day of your lease.

Another important thing to do is have the name and telephone number of a point of contact at your new duty station. This can save a lot of hassle at your destination.

With the increased work load, it takes a few more days to schedule deliveries out of temporary storage. For more information call the traffic management office at 3944.

Civilian positions available here

The Reese Civilian Personnel Office has announced vacancies in the following positions:

Child Development Clerk -- GS-303-03-part-time; Office Automation Clerk -- GS-1601-06-permanent; Grounds Contract Monitor -- GS-1601-06-permanent; Worker Trainee -- WG-2805-10-term; and Electrician -- WG-2805-10-term.

A Thank You

. . . From the Publisher

The Roundup publisher expresses a "Thank You" to those firms whose ads and whose support of Reese activities continue to make events such as the weekly newspaper and the Air Show special issue possible.

The special Air Show issue was visible all over the flight line on Saturday and Sunday as guests to the base were given the program for information concerning the Air Show.

Many folks used the program to obtain autographs from the Thunderbirds and Reese personnel in uniform. Many of the programs will be kept for years as a souvenir of the Thunderbirds' visit to Lubbock and Reese.

We thank you for making this special program possible.

Thanks from . . .
