The wounds that we all carry

Understanding the pain of others can help heal an entire society

by Capt. Sharon Bailey chief, 64th MDG Behavioral Medicine

As a social worker, I make a living out of hearing people's problems.

People have asked me how I do it all day, every day. I don't know how I do it, but I do know why.

I listen to the hurts, frustrations and injustices of people because I know the power it has to transform a person's life. I know the relief one feels when they have someone who's willing to listen to them. Willing to understand. Willing to go through the pain with them.

That person is transformed by telling their story.

I see the emotional pains of others as splinters that have gone under the skin and have often become infected. Any time someone bumps up against them, they become very protective of that

They may express that pain by withdrawing, fits of rage or striking back. Whatever the reaction, the source of the reaction is that of being

I had a bad ingrown toenail that I was trying to nurse back to health. I didn't want to go to the doctor for something so minor. One day, my husband and I were preparing for bed. He wanted to dance. His second left foot stepped on - you got it -- that toe! The next thing I knew. my brain said, "Intruder - kill, crush and destroy." Before I knew it he was standing outside our bedroom window. (I was glad we were living on the first floor.)

My husband suffered minor cuts. I was truly embarrassed and he laughed for months about it. That toe, the pain and my husband's being unaware of my dilemma caused a near-fatal disaster.

I'm glad he understood my dilemma and he was able to continue in a loving relationship with me.

I believe that for so long African-Americans have been nursing the wounds they have received from the injustice of prejudice. These wounds would get infected by one experience or another.

Those observing the African-American may misunderstand that reaction and re-injure the individual by either discounting (at times ignoring) the great pain that has been suffered by this group of people or by reinforcing false images.

If I (an African-American) am suffering, the nation is suffering. If single parents are suffering, the nation is suffering. If children are suffering, the nation is suffering. If the suffering continues, the anger will continue and intensify.

If we don't all realize an injustice has been done, the riots will continue, the hangings will continue and the bloodshed will continue.

The Bible says, "A house that is divided cannot

The past cannot be changed. What we need to do now is come together, talk about the pain that we all (male, female, all races and religions) have

This is very important to do in order for us to heal and move on to rebuilding a nation we can all be proud to be a part of.

Volunteers

Reese, local community need helpers

by Cheryl Ortiz Reese Family Support Center

The Reese Volunteer Program promotes volunteerism on Reese and in the local community.

The program places volunteers in agencies as well as recognizes volunteers for their contributions. Often times the family support center staff must work closely with local agencies in the community to enhance programs established on base.

George Ferguson, Reese Volunteer Program manager, works hand-in-hand with the Volunteer Center of Lubbock as a board member.

The purpose of the center is to identify and develop resources to meet community needs by linking volunteers and to provide management assistance to nonprofit agencies in the Lubbock

The center was established in 1990 and is an agency of the United Way of Lubbock.

The center sponsors many programs that * benefit the Lubbock area. Programs that are coordinated and sponsored in order to enhance volunteerism include volunteer recruitment and referral, volunteer support and recognition.

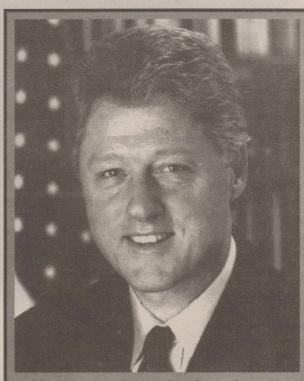

Programs included in the area of management assistance are board training, strategic and long range planning, personnel matters, and grant writing.

Each year the Volunteer Center of Lubbock works with community entities to help recognize community volunteers.

These programs include the J. C. Penny Golden Rule Awards, News Channel ll's One Who Makes a Difference and Southwest Airlines' High Flying Heroes.

There are never enough volunteers to support all of the worthwhile agencies that need help here at Reese and in the local community.

If interested in becoming a volunteer, either at Reese or through the Volunteer Center of Lubbock, contact the family support center at 3305.

AFAF begins Monday

Annual drive supports four agencies

The 22nd annual Air Force Assistance Fund campaign begins here and throughout the Air Force Monday.

The goal for this year's drive is $10,528. The drive ends March 31. Last year's Air Force-wide contributions totaled nearly $4.5 million, with approximately $18,000 coming from Reese.

The organizations supported by the AFAF are:

☐ Air Force Aid Society.

The official charity of the Air Force, this program helps eligible active-duty and retired Air Force members with financial emergencies.

Assistance is provided through grants or interest-free loans for such things as food, rent, utilities and other essential goods and services. The society also sponsors an education grant program.

☐ Air Force Enlisted Men's Widows and Dependents Home Foundation Inc. The home is located in Fort Walton Beach near Eglin AFB, Fla.

The home foundation provides widows of retired enlisted people with housing facilities and related services

The home foundation also cares for retired Air Force enlisted members, 62 and older, and their spouses.

☐ Air Force Village Indigent Widow's Fund. The village, located in San Antonio, is a life-care community for retired officers, spouses, widows and family members.

☐ General and Mrs. Curtis E. LeMay Foundation. This foundation was established in 1990 to provide direct support to indigent officers' widows in need of financial assistance.

Donations to the AFAF campaign can be made through cash or check contributions or payroll deduction.

According to Capt. Dan Sprunk, Reese AFAF project officer, unit keyworkers will be contacting people soon to ensure everyone has the opportunity to participate. Contributions are voluntary.

Reese and Lubbock - a Loyal Partnership

We in Lubbock and the South Plains area appreciate the model relationship which exists with the Reese Air Force Base community. This relationship which has endured for years because of the many valuable friendships made, is among the best base-host community cooperation efforts.

Reese and Lubbock people are amazingly similar. Both are inherently outgoing, friendly and industrious. Their tastes, likes and dislikes parallel in many ways. Many Lubbock area natives are in the Air Force. Many others make their homes in West Texas while stationed here, and many return to live in Lubbock after they separate from the Air Force.

Reese workers — officers, enlisted men and women, civilian employees and contractors — will earn combined salaries of more than $80 million this year. Most of this payroll will be spent in Lubbock and the surrounding area. Air Force people with their stable income can afford quality goods and services.

You can increase your chances of winning Reese customers by advertising in The ROUNDUP, the base's weekly — and only— newspaper, published by Chandelle Publications in Lubbock.

Through The ROUNDUP, Reese people and their families find out what's happening on base, in Lubbock and in the Air Force.

You not only increase your chances of tipping the profit scales in your favor by placing ads in the base paper, but you also help out the military. The number and depth of articles depend on the size of the paper.

Your advertising, then helps your business while it helps keep Reese people informed.

Finance ends advance travel payments Wednesday

Government travelers to use AMEX card for cash advances

by 1st Lt. James Chitty Financial services officer

All Air Force travelers -military and civilian, regardless of rank or the frequency of travel -- are eligible American Express government cardhold-

Beginning Wednesday, the Reese Financial Services Office is no longer authorized to pay advances for temporary

Instead of cash advances, all personnel will have to use the AMEX government card to pay for travel expenses.

With this in mind, it is imperative that members expecting to travel in the near future ensure that they have an AMEX government card and valid personal identification number. It normally takes approximately six weeks for a member to receive a card once their application has been for- ceed the daily per diem multiwarded to American Express.

Unit account representatives in each squadron will be able to assist in the application process.

The card should only be used for expenses such as billeting, commercial lodging, and airline tickets.

Meal and incidental expenses should be paid for using cash advances.

The customer service counter of the financial services office can help travelers estimate how much of a cash advance they will need. The cash advance should not explied by the length of the stay.

For example, if staying for five nights in an area with a $20 per diem rate per day, the cash advance should be limited to $100. American Express will charge a 2.75 percent fee for the $100 cash advance which will be reimbursed when the travel voucher is filed.

The AMEX government card is not a personal credit card. It is to be used for official travel expenses only.

Members must be in receipt of official travel orders to use the AMEX government card.

American Express bills are American Express has not granted exceptions to this policy. Cardholders pay off their bill by using the money received once the travel voucher has been settled.

Members on extended TDY and unable to receive mail should call 1-800-492-4922 to make arrangements to pay monthly charges. Any amounts 60 days past due are considered seriously delinquent and will result in suspension of card privileges

For additional information call the financial services office at 6323.

64th LS technician earns AETC munitions award

by SrA. Tim Dempsey 64th FTW Public Affairs

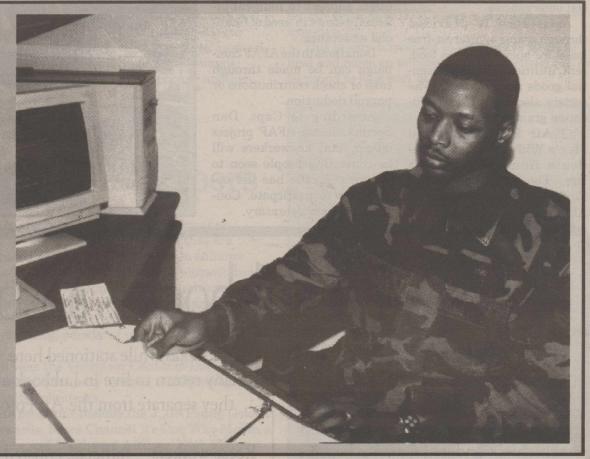

The Lt. Gen. Leo Marquez Award is not an unfamiliar award for a member of the 64th Logistics Squadron to win.

The award is given to the outstanding munitions technician supervisor. SSgt. Edward E. Daniel was awarded the honor for 1994 in the command.

"He's an articulate professional," said SMSgt. Marion Tate, superintendent of materials, about the 27-year-old Chicago native. "The bottom line is, if any supervisor had five SSgt. Daniels, they could run the Air Force.'

This marked the second straight year a member of the 64th LS has won the award. Last year's winner was TSgt. Dale Tucker.

SSgt. Edward Daniel looks over some maintenance reports. The sergeant was recently recognized by AETC as the best munitions technician supervisor in the command.

Fiscal 1996 DOD budget reflects readiness concerns

WASHINGTON — The fragile nature of readiness is apparent in the Air Force's $72.9 billion portion of the president's fiscal year 1996 budget, a senior Pentagon official said earlier this month.

Though the budget provides continued funding for quality of life programs and supports the force structure as required in the "bottom-up review," Air Force is at the "limits of acceptable risk in readiness," the official said.

"We can't afford to absorb any additional operational costs for contingencies," he said. "We must receive supplemental funding for contingen-

The official stated that Air Force overall is "as ready as we've ever been in the recent past."but noted "readiness is a fragile and complicated thing."

"It's married to the age of weapons systems, to the status of depot maintenance and very, very much tied to the adequacy of operation and maintenance funding, which supports the weapons systems and the people who operate and support them," he said.

"And if we end up having to spend money out of our readiness accounts on deployments and contingencies then we can become unready very quickly."

To date, Air Force has been able to balance readiness, force structure and modernization "because we jumped on base closures early and effected reductions in manning and force structure early on," he said.

Air Force, in this budget, maintains the 20 fighter wing equivalents — 13 active duty and seven from the reserve components — as required by the "bottom-up review."

But the number of people on the payroll will continue to drop in fiscal 96, according to the budget. The active-duty end strength—slated to be 400,051 by the end of fiscal 1995 — will decrease by 11,851 to 388,200 by the end of fiscal 1996.

On the civilian side, the 190,061 end strength targeted for the end of fiscal 1995 — will slide downward by 5,663 to 184,398 by the end of fiscal 1996.

The fiscal 1996 budget reflects the Air Force's commitment to the F-22 stealth fighter as "most important ... because it guarantees air superiority into the next century," the offi-

Tornado Alley

Possibility of severe storms prompts wing to schedule mandatory weather briefings

Understanding the various severe weather classifications and being prepared to take appropriate action could be the best insurance Reese people can obtain for their families' safety.

Reese lies in the geographic region known as Tornado Alley. Therefore, the severe weather conditions to be most concerned with are thunderstorm watches, thunderstorm warnings, tornado watches, and tornado warnings. Each of these conditions represent a different level and threat of severe weather. As conditions change, so do the precautions people should take.

To ensure all Reese personnel know what to do during severe weather, the wing has scheduled tornado briefings March 1 at 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. in the Simler Theater. These briefings are mandatory for active-duty military. Reese civilian employees, contractors and family members are encouraged to attend the briefings.

Capt. Greg Brown, chief of the 64th Civil Engineer Squadron Readiness Flight, says people must be aware of warning signs and prepare to take the proper actions if severe weather is approaching or is present. People can stay abreast of the local weather conditions by tuning into local television and radio stations. KFYO AM-790 is the designated emergency information station in Lubbock.

All of the local broadcast stations provide extensive severe weather coverage, frequently breaking into scheduled programing to provide upto-the-minute reports on area weather. In addition to these updates, each television station displays a thunderstorm or tornado symbol on the screen to indicate a specific weather watch or warning within a viewing area.

A watch means that conditions are favorable for a specific severe weather activity. A warning is issued when that activity is actually taking place or considered imminent.

An outlined thundercloud signals a thunderstorm watch. A filled thundercloud means the condition has been upgraded to a warning. As with thunderstorms, an outlined tornado indicates a watch and a filled tornado is a warning. Most stations will supplement the watch and warning symbols with the names of affected counties.

On Reese, the 64th Operations Support Squadron Weather Flight continuously provides severe weather updates to the command staff and command post. When there is a significant threat of severe weather affecting the base, the command post will issue Emergency Broadcast System audio updates simultaneously on all Mission Cable channels. A test of the EBS is conducted on the last Friday of the month between 6:00 and 7:00 p.m. If you do not hear the test, contact Mission Cable with the information. Reese residents who are not connected to Mission Cable will not receive these EBS updates.

When the threat of a tornado striking Reese is imminent, the command post will activate the base siren. Once activated, the siren will sound a steady tone until the threat of a tornado has ended. Captain Brown stressed that base personnel and Reese Village residents should take immediate cover if they hear the tornado warning siren. Reese personnel should take cover in their facilities' designated tornado shelter. Reese Village residents should seek shelter in an interior hallway or bathroom. Do not go outside to look at the tornado. Once the siren stops, the command post will issue additional guidance on the EBS system. The EBS system will be supplemented as necessary by base law enforcement and disaster response officials. A five-to-10-second test of the warning siren is conducted at noon the last Friday of the month during the winter. During the summer, it is tested at noon every Friday unless there is inclement weather in the area.

The command post and security police ask that people refrain from calling emergency response agencies to get weather information. People should stay tuned to their televisions and radios. Captain Brown also suggests each family prepare a home "storm kit." These kits should contain such items as candles, flashlight (with batteries), water and a portable radio. Have this kit available for immediate use and frequently check the contents for serviceability.

Captain Brown stressed that Reese people living on base and in the local communities must be aware that weather conditions in Tornado Alley can become severe—literally without warning.

What to do during a ...

Tornado watch

A tornado watch indicates that weather conditions are favorable for the formation of tornados. Tornado activity is possible.

- ☐ Secure loose items outside.
- ☐ Restrict the movements of children to the immediate vicinity.
- ☐ Have your storm kit ready.
- ☐ Monitor weather broadcasts on local television and radio stations.

Tornado warning

A tornado warning means that a tornado has actually been sighted or identified on radar.

If Reese is in the expected path, the command post will sound the base siren, directing base people and Reese Village residents to seek immediate shelter.

- ☐ Take shelter immediately and stay there until the siren stops (on base) or notified via the Emergency Broadcast System that it is clear to leave (off base).
 ☐ Don't wait for the siren if you goe as board a torread.
- if you see or hear a tornado approaching. Seek shelter immediately.

 Do not needlessly tie up
- emergency phone lines. Monitor radio and television broadcasts for updates.

Where to go

- ☐ If driving in open country, move away from the funnel at a right angle.
- Greatest safety is in the center of the basement, a central hallway or bathroom
- ☐ Take cover under heavy furniture and stay away from windows.
- ☐ Do not stay above the ground floor of any building.
- ☐ Do not stay in a mobile home. Even a drainage ditch is more protection.

Tickets are $10 per person and reservations must be made by March 8.

For more information call 3466.

Gasoline service interrupted

Reese Service Station is currently unable to sell gasoline.

The temporary halt in gasoline sales is due to a renovation project on the underground tanks. The project is expected to take several weeks to complete.

The retail store and the auto maintenance bay will remain open under modified hours of operation. The new hours are from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Saturday. The service station will be closed on Sundays.

Civilian SOS registration opens

Civilian employees in grades GS-9 through 12 are eligible to register for Squadron Officer School.

For information about registration call the Reese Civilian Personnel Office at 3803.

Reese CDC offers respite care

People who need a break from the responsibility of providing around-the-clock child care can get help at the Reese Child Development Center.

The program, called Respite Care, is for children 10-years-old and under.

The program is open to active-duty military families in three categories. These are:

Families with special needs (a child with an extended illness or disabled)

☐ Families with an active-duty member on temporary duty assignment of 30 or more days

Families going though extreme stress

The program offers up to four hours of free child care at the center twice per month.

Participants in the program must obtain a referral from a commander, first sergeant, base chaplain or the 64th Medical Group Family Advocacy Office.

Funding for the program is provided by the Air Force Aid Society, one of the agencies supported by the Air Force Assistance Fund.

For more information about Respite Care call Viola Aiken, center director, at 3317.

Open house presentation cancelled

The open house scheduled by the Reese Behavioral Medicine Clinic for today has been cancelled.

The open house was cancelled because of delays in renovation efforts.

Call 3739 for additional information.

Reese youth performs in symphony

Adam Dorrance practices his flute in preparation for an upcoming performance of the Lubbock Youth Symphony Orchestra. The son of TSgt and Mrs. Carrie Dorrance, has been playing the flute since 1989. Earlier this year Dorrance was selected to the Texas Music Educators Association All-Region Band. He is curently a student at Frenship Intermediate School. In addition to playing the flute, Dorrance will also play the piccolo in the LYSO performance of Beethoven's 5th Symphony. The LYSO concert is at 5 p.m., March 4 at Coronado High School in Lubbock.

Youth center offers variety of activities

Education, growth focal points of innovative center programs

by Debbie Burlingame Roundup correspondent

Do you know just what's going on at the Reese Youth Center?

Capt. John Povelones, the 64th Services Squadron commander does, and he has some good things to say about the many changes that have taken place there

"There is a new energy and excitement at the youth center," said Captain Povelones. He recommends parents take a second look at this under-used resource on

If you've always thought of the youth center as just a safe place for kids to hang out after school, you're only partly right. There's a lot more happening there lately, and the main reason for this is John Bailey, who arrived here in August.

John Bailey, youth center directer, gives a hand to Nyn Dutkowsky. At 6 foot 9, Bailey literally gives the children someone to "look up to."

Bailey brings a wealth of experience to his job. The father of three boys, he was involved with the "Boys' Clubs of America" for a number of years and is a licensed social worker. He began his education as a PE major at Long Island University and finished with a Bachelors in Social Work. "The philosophy of the BCOA is Beatthe Streets," said Bailey.

"Although Reese doesn't have the problems that kids in larger cities encounter, the challenge remains to find positive outlets for youth to enjoy themselves."

Bailey has been involved with youth for over twenty years and now brings his experience to the center.

Bailey wants parents to see the center as a place where kids can develop cognitively, physically, emotionally and socially. These goals are accomplished through a variety of new programs.

One of the most exciting and innovative of these is called "Power Hour," which is a homework assistance program directed by Amy Wagner, a graduate assistant at Texas Tech. This program, for kids in kindergarten through fifth grade, teaches good study habits, provides reinforcement and allows students to become comfortable with computtimate Journey," which educates kids on the fragile nature of our earth by studying ecology. This group, led by Suzie Noland, is one of the center's most energetic recreation aids.

The kids have taken field trips to Animal Control, where they learned about the hazards of pet overpopulation; Prairie Dog Town, where they learned about wild life indigenous to our area; and the Lubbock Landfill and Sewage Plant, where they learned some eye-opening (and nose opening) facts about pollution and its effect on their environment.

In addition to the excellent educational programs provided, the center also offers an extensive sports program for all ages. Soccer registration is currently underway and will be coached by Carlos Melgar.

Other intramural sports Cultural and ethnic di- offered are T-Ball, flag footversity is also a focus of ball and basketball. The many center projects. One sports and physical education coordinator Robert Honshtein also insures that kids are involved in physical actvities in the "After School Care" program.

Bailey credits his caring staff with the revitalization of the center. Shelly Williams, a recreation aid, and Shannon Demerson, the operations clerk, contribute to the "family-like" atmosphere among the staff.

Sandy Franks can attest to the dramatic changes that have taken place since the arrival of the new director. Franks has worked at the center for four years and says, "Bailey really treats the staff like a family. The working environment is relaxed and warm, and you feel that you have the freedom to be creative with ideas."

She also points to a dramatic increase in center participation since August.

When you have a truly talented and dedicated staff, a director is free to supervise and delegate," said Bai-

One member of the center team who has extensive experience working with the director is his wife of 14 years, Capt. Sharon Bailey. Captain Bailey is the Family Advocacy Officer and also works with the journal club which meets Saturdays.

A few new things to look for in the coming months are the new playground which is scheduled to begin construction this spring, and the resurfacing of the basketball and volleyball courts, also scheduled to begin soon. These additions coupled with classes on teen finance management, teen dating responsibility, chess club, and arts and crafts activities, make the youth center an exciting place

It is a safe place for your children to hang out when you're at work, but it's much, much more than that.

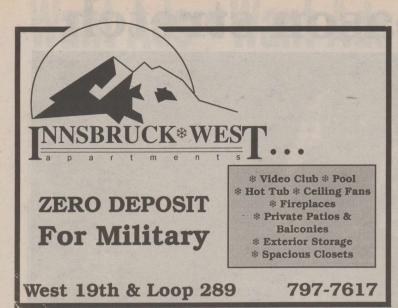

If you'd like your child to become a member of the youth center, the yearly fee is $24 for one child and $36 for two or more.

This fee allows your child to take advantage of the after-school and weekend actvites provided

Contact the center at 3820 to find out what they have to offer your child, or stop by sometime to get a

You'll probably be surprised at what you discover there.

And next time someone asks you, "Just what goes on over there at the Reese Youth Center?" you'll know the answer -- "A lot! "

IM cagers head for season stretch

As intramural basketball heads into the final stretch of the season, the National League teams are beginning to spread out while the AL is still clustered.

In the NL, the 64th Logistics Squadron-A extended its lead over the 64th Medical Group by 1 1/2 games last week. The 64th LS-A kept its unblemished record in tact as it defeated the 52nd Flying Training Squadron, 53-47, and squeaked past the 64th Security Police-A, 68-66, in overtime.

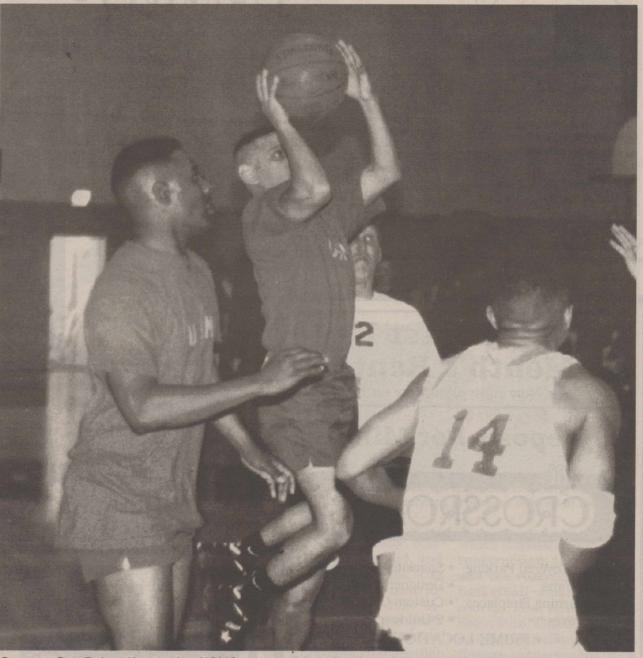

The 64th MDG, boasting the second best overall record, continued its near perfect season as it defeated the 64th Services Squadron,49-45. The 64th MDG continues to nip at the heels of the 64th LS-A as it looks for a playoff rematch.

In the AL standings, the two top teams fell to the 64th LS-A last week. However, the 64th Security Police-A remained in first place by defeating the 35th FTS-A 54-47. And, the 52nd FTS pulled out victories over the 35th FTS-B, 46-44, and the 54th FTS, 43-40. The loss by the 35th FTS-B and the 54th FTS left the teams tied for third.

The player of the week for Feb. 16 was SrA. Michael Garduno, 64th LS-A, who scored 26 points in his teams victory against the 64th SPS-A.
