Seventeen students pin wings on today General Griffith to address JSUPT Class 96-08 graduation

Seventeen Joint Specialized Undergraduate Pilot Training students receive their pilot wings today during a ceremony at 9:00 a.m. in the Simler Theater.

Lt. Gen. Clark Griffith, vice commander, Air Education and Training Command, Randolph Air Force Base, Texas, is the guest speaker. All base personnel are invited to attend.

The general served as commander of the 64th Air Base Group here at Reese between March 1985 and July 1986. He addressed the officer corps during an October officers call last year, ten years after his tour here at Reese. During his address he said, "Reese has been training top-notch pilots for decades — I know that tradition of excellence will continue through the last student."

Griffith graduated from the University of Alabama in 1963 with a bachelor of arts in business administration and management and was a distinguished graduate of the Air Force ROTC program. He completed pilot training at Craig Air Force Base, Ala., in 1964.

He was assigned to Laredo AFB, Texas, as a flight instructor from December 1964 until August 1968 when he was sent to Bien Hoa Air Base, South Vietnam. There he was forward air controller in the 1st and 9th Infantry Divisions.

Griffith returned to Craig AFB, Ala., where he was an instructor pilot and later assistant section commander, flight commander and T-37 standardization and evaluation chief.

In April 1972, he became a member of the standardization and evaluation team at Headquarters Air Training Command (now AETC), Randolph AFB, Texas, and later chief, rated supplement section at Headquarters Air Force Military Personnel Center at Randolph.

He finished Air Command and Staff College at Maxwell AFB, Ala., in 1977.

commander

The weather's changing...school's mid-term is on the horizon...football games are a part of the weekend...fiscal year close-outs... things keep right on moving. It takes each and every one of you to keep our mission going at Reese...I applaud your super efforts.

Yesterday we honored those prisoners of war or missing in action in a ceremony at the base flag pole. Thanks for participating in this moving event.

I invite you to the base theater today at 9 a.m. to help celebrate Reese's seventeen new aviators. As they pin on their wings, take pride in your contribution to our mission of training the world's best pilots.

From 12 to 5 p.m. today, I hope to see each and every one of you and your families in Hangar 82 for our base-wide celebration of a fiscal year well-done. Take a desired break and enjoy some German food and music.

This is our time to relax. We've earned it — but let's celebrate smartly and safely.

Monday is a goal day — enjoy the South Plains' great fall weather with family and friends.

I hope to see all of you at Lowrey Field in Lubbock Tuesday at 7 p.m. for the Lubbock Independent School District's Band Extravaganza "Salute to Reese." The night will honor the men and women who've not only served our country while stationed here, but this community as well.

Also, keep Nov. 16 on your calendar. The Texas Tech Athletic Department conducts its Veterans Day Salute during the game against Southwestern Louisiana. A featured part of the pregame ceremonies will be a four-ship formation flyover of T-38s piloted by Reese personnel during the National Anthem. The Goin' Band From Raiderland's patriotic music during the halftime show will be dedicated to the men and women of Reese Air Force Base-Lubbock Army Air Field and their family members. Tickets for the game are $10 and can be ordered through your squadron orderly room or from the civilian contractor managers.

Again, thanks for all your support and dedication. It will take all of us working together to make FY97 a success story!

Reese institutes curfew

Curfew requires juveniles younger than 17 to be accompanied by adults after hours

by Col. Edward De Iulio
64th Support Group
commander

Effective Tuesday, Reese Air Force Base will institute a curfew for juveniles younger than 17, not accompanied by an adult.

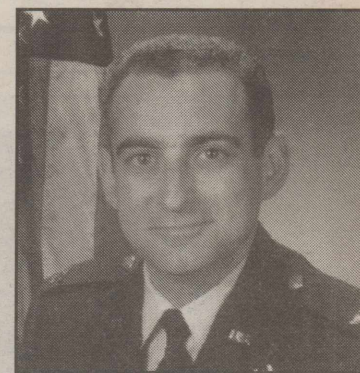

Security police will enforce the curfew and violators may be required to meet the Juvenile Assistance Council for action. The curfew prescribed below corresponds with the curfew enforced by the City of Lubbock.

Curfew hours are from 11 p.m. to 6 a.m. Sunday through Thursday and midnight to 6 a.m. Friday and Saturday. Summer vacation and school holiday curfew hours are from midnight to 6 a.m.

Juveniles in the immediate area of their assigned quarters or those traveling directly to and from employment or special events are not considered in violation. These cases, however, must be verifiable.

Security police, upon observing or receiving a complaint, will detain the juvenile and transport him/her to the law enforcement desk in building 500, for processing. The desk sergeant will contact the individual's sponsor and have him/her respond. Security police will accomplish an Incident/Complaint Report (DD Form 1569) and release the juvenile to the sponsor.

64th SPS conducts 100 percent ID check entering base housing

by Capt. John O'Connor
64th Security Police Squadron

Beginning Oct. 7 and continuing through Oct. 11, the 64th Security Police Squadron will conduct 100 percent identification checks on vehicle and pedestrian traffic entering Reese Village between 10 p.m. and midnight at the Mitchell Blvd. and War Highway intersection.

While identification checks are in progress, housing area entrances on Andrews Drive and Mars Road will be temporarily blocked with sawhorses and "detour" signs directing traffic to Mitchell Blvd. Security Police personnel will contact Reese Village residents for visitor sponsorship and issue visitors an Air Force Form 75, Visitor Pass, at the Main Gate.

After Oct. 11, security police will conduct random identification checks for Reese Village.

Reese Village identification checks are intended to enhance military housing area safety and security through criminal activity deterrence. These new crime prevention measures will not affect 100 percent identification checks at the main gate currently taking place from 10 p.m. to 5 a.m. every night.

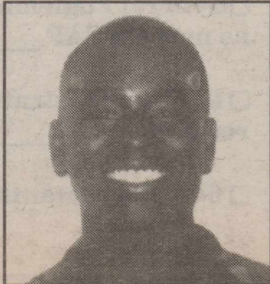

If you have any inputs or questions regarding this program, please contact security police operations at 3612 or 3949.

General Fogleman appoints Chief Benken as new CMSAF

WASHINGTON (AFNS) — Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Ronald Fogleman has named Chief Master Sgt. Eric Benken to serve as the service's 12th Chief Master Sergeant of the Air Force.

Benken will replace CMSAF David J. Campanale, who will retire Nov. 4 after 26 years of service to the Air Force and the nation.

"I want to personally thank Chief Campanale for his tireless efforts as an advocate for our enlisted force," Fogleman said. "I'm sure that all of you will join me in bidding him and his wife, Barbara, a fond farewell, and wish them great success in retirement."

Fogleman said selecting a new CMSAF was one of the most difficult decisions he has made in some time, since he is convinced that all of the candidates would have been excellent leaders for our enlisted force.

"Chief Benken is going to join the Air Force senior leadership at what I consider to be an exciting time for our Air Force," Fogleman said. "We are celebrating our 50th Anniversary and we're in the process of defining the Air Force of the future."

Benken, who was born in Cincinnati, entered the Air Force in March 1970. His background is in information management and he has served in operational, maintenance and support units from squadron to major command level.

He has served in the Republics of Taiwan, Korea and Vietnam, and in a joint service assignment at Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers Europe. Prior to his current appointment with USAFE — which began in October 1994 — Benken was the senior enlisted advisor to the commander of 12th Air Force at Davis-Monthan Air Force Base, Ariz.

Benken has two sons, Brian and Kyle. He and his wife, the former Johnne Ceravolo, have a daughter, Erica.

Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Ronald R. Fogleman named Chief Master Sgt. Eric W. Benken to serve as the service's 12th Chief Master Sergeant of the Air Force. Benken is currently the senior enlisted advisor to the commander of U.S. Air Forces in Europe, Ramstein Air Base, Germany.

Behind the campaign: A look at CFC's roots, structure

by 2nd Lt. Chris Almgren
Deputy chief, public affairs

Imagine being a non-profit charity without so much as a decent typewriter let alone a computer, and having to hit the streets every day and raise money to serve those in need on a meager budget at best.

Thirty-five-plus years ago, charities solicited federal workers year-round — even daily — in the workplace. To address concerns of fellow humans benefiting from the charities as well as to alleviate a constant call for donations, the civil service commission had an idea.

Why not organize an office to spearhead a collection for charities to the federal workplace audience during a particular period of the year and have that office write reports and authorize checks? The U.S. Office of Personnel Management (OPM) was designed, and it stated that only for a six-week period — between Sept. 1 and Dec. 15 — the federal workplace could be solicited for funds. Thus, in 1961, the Combined Federal Campaign was born.

Dianna Stewart, office manager for United Way of Lubbock, said her office is the local CFC manager and fiscal agent, in more formal circles called the Principal Combined Fund Organization (PCFO). She clarified that the United Way and the CFC are not one in the same as many people think. United Way is one of the over 2,000 charities eligible for contributions in this year's CFC.

According to Stewart, the PCFO's primary responsibilities are to manage the campaign fairly and equitably, consult with and consider advice from participating federations concerning campaign plans and informational materials, and prepare and print campaign materials. It also accounts for and disburses monies pledged to designated organizations, distributes undesignated funds in accordance with the formula established by laws and regulation, and publishes reports on its management of the campaign.

The PCFO is subject to the direction and control of the Local Federal Coordinating Committee (LFCC) and the OPM's director.

The LFCC, a committee of local representatives, actually drives the CFC locally. Reese CFC co-chairs, Capt. Colleen Brust and 2nd Lt. Josh Strickler, serve on the LFCC.

According to Stewart, the LFCC's primary duties are to organize the local CFC, determine eligibility of local voluntary agencies, select the PCFO and supervise its work and act on problems relating to a voluntary agency's non-compliance with CFC policies and procedures.

CFC work doesn't stop after the collection period, said Stewart. She compiles a substantial final report for the local area, which shows, by agency, what money was received, how much of it is payroll deduction, check and cash, and how many actual donors are involved. Stewart then compiles per capita gifts. If an agency's total distributed dollar is $249.99 or less, it receives a lump sum check in January. If it is $250 or more, the agency receives quarterly checks.

"I can guarantee as the PCFO that the money donated — whether to a local, state, national or international charity — gets there," said Stewart, who mailed out over 200 checks every 90 days during last year's campaign.

A separate checking account is maintained and is zeroed out at the end of each year's CFC, she said.

DoD demonstrates health care for eligible retirees

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Military retirees over age 65 got good news Sept. 11 concerning their health care: Announcement of a DoD demonstration of increased access to military medical facilities for Medicare-eligible beneficiaries.

Medicare Demonstration of Military Managed Care will test expanded care to older retirees. Under the provisions of the demonstration, the care cannot increase costs to DoD or the Department of Health and Human Services, which administers Medicare.

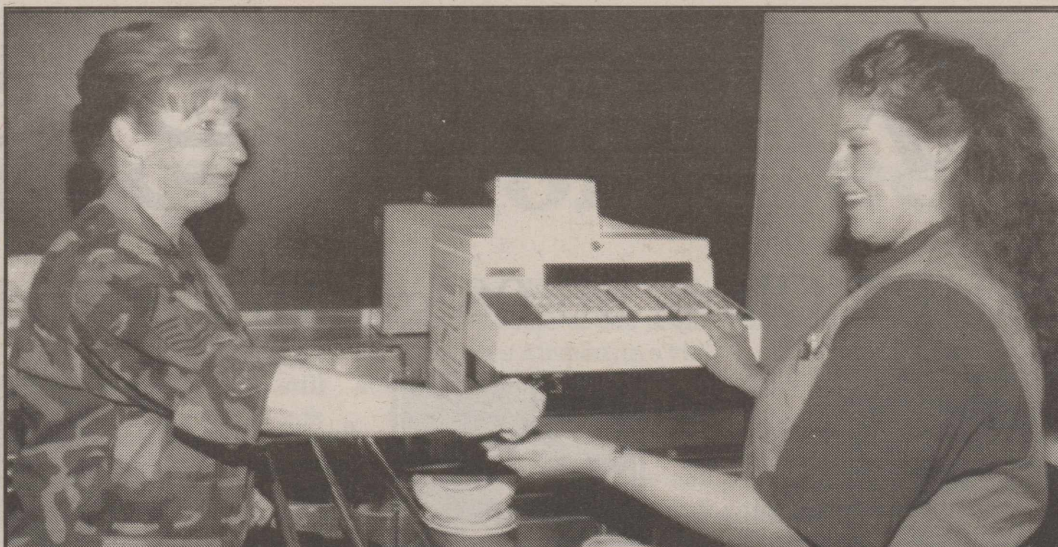

DoD officials said they expect Congress to enact enabling legislation this year. The demonstration will begin either 60 days following enactment or Jan. 1, 1997, whichever is later.

The demonstration will cover four sites in two regions of DoD's health care program, TRICARE. These include San Antonio, Texas, in Region 6 and the Tacoma-Bremerton, Wash., area in Region 11. The department will select three more locations in Region 6 to serve as comparison sites.

"Our Medicare and DoD dual-eligible beneficiaries have long asked that they be able to use the Military Health Services System as their health care provider," said Dr. Stephen Joseph, assistant secretary of defense for health affairs. "This demonstration will help to establish whether this is a workable, affordable option."

Federal law always has allowed treatment of beneficiaries, regardless of age, on a space available basis in military facilities. However, DoD facilities could not receive reimbursement from Medicare for patients over 65. For the past several years, DoD advocated changing the law to receive what it calls "Medicare subvention"—financial reimbursement for elderly patients. Until now, however, the department failed to find a means of satisfying Medicare that its trust fund wouldn't be depleted by the move.

Now, DoD and the Department of Health and Human Services have agreed on how to implement subvention. If successful, the initiative will allow DoD to expand health care options for Medicare-eligible beneficiaries, improve care for older retirees and their family members and still meet military readiness requirements. Officials said the initiative will produce savings for the Medicare trust fund by providing health care to military Medicare-eligibles at a lower cost.

Community notes

Shape kids -- be a mentor

Reese Air Force Base and Frenship Intermediate School have formed a partnership in order to provide a one-on-one support system to help improve math and reading skills and self esteem of students. Mentors are asked to spend one hour a week interacting with their student in the academic setting of the school.

The 1996-97 Mentor Program begins with an orientation at Frenship Intermediate School on Thursday at 1 p.m. At this time, new mentors will meet their students and past mentors will be reacquainted with the student they had last year.

If you are interested in helping shape a young member of the community, call Cheryl Ortiz at the family support flight at 3305.

After that, he was stationed at Seymour Johnson AFB, N.C., where he was operations officer, 334th Tactical Fighter Squadron and then commander of the 335th and 336th TFS.

After the National War College in Washington, D.C., the general was at Headquarters, U.S. Air Force as chief, flying training branch, directorate of personnel programs and later chief, training programs division.

From March 1985 to April 1992, Griffith's assignments included base commander at Reese; 47th Flying Training Wing commander Laughlin AFB, Texas; deputy chief of staff for personnel and director of assignments at Randolph AFB; and vice commander, Ogden Air Logistics Center, Hill AFB, Utah.

In April 1992, he was assigned to Keesler AFB, Miss., where he commanded Keesler Training Center and, later, the 2nd Air Force at Keesler. He was then assigned temporary duty as commander of the Joint Task Force in Southwest Asia.

In his present position, Griffith is second in command to Gen. Billy Boles, AETC commander. The command is responsible for recruiting and accessing Air Force personnel and providing them military, technical and flying training.

Yokota team deploys to Guam to aid Kurds

YOKOTA AIR BASE, Japan (AFNS) — A 44-member medical team left Yokota Air Base Sept. 17 along with an air transportable hospital for Andersen Air Force Base, Guam, to assist with medical care for 2,500 Kurds evacuated from northern Iraq.

The team, from Yokota's 374th Medical Group, become part of Pacific Haven, a U.S. Pacific Command joint task force overseeing the evacuation. The evacuees were foreign service nationals employed by the U.S. government during recent humanitarian projects in Iraq.

JTF Pacific Haven includes personnel and equipment from Pacific-based elements of the U.S. Pacific Air Forces, U.S. Army Pacific, U.S. Pacific Fleet, and a joint element from U.S. Pacific Command Headquarters at Camp H.M. Smith, Hawaii. JTF PH is commanded by Maj. Gen. John R. Dallager, 13th Air Force commander, Andersen AFB, Guam.

AF to hold non-line boards in February

RANDOLPH AIR FORCE BASE, Texas (AFNS) — Some members of the Nurse, Biomedical Science and Medical Service Corps will meet boards in February the Air Force announced.

All three specialties will compete for lieutenant colonel, while nurses will also have a colonel's board, and BSC and MSC members will vie for promotion to major.

All of the boards, Air Force Personnel Center officials said, are tentatively scheduled to convene at AFPC beginning Feb. 3.

Ellsworth completes silo destruction

ELLSWORTH AIR FORCE BASE, S.D. (AFNS) — The destruction of the 149th of 150 Minuteman II missile silos here took place Sept. 13. The remaining silo may become a Cold War historical site.

Ellsworth started destroying its deactivated silos in March 1994 as part of the Strategic Arms Reduction Treaty with the Commonwealth of Independent States (formerly the Soviet Union).

The base is the first to finish destroying its Minuteman II missile silos, Tim Pavek, base deactivation project manager, said.

The Air Force has nominated the remaining site, Delta-9 silo and Delta-1 launch control facility located near Wall, S.D., for National Historic Landmark status, Pavek said. "The plan," he said, "is to convert Delta-9 into a static display fitted with a glass enclosure for visitors. The silo would contain a dummy missile."

YC-15 to aid C-17 testing

WRIGHT-PATTERSON AIR FORCE BASE, Ohio (AFNS) — As the C-17 Globemaster III test program is reduced to a single aircraft, the Air Force will augment it with a refurbished YC-15 for future airlift testing.

After more than 15 years in storage in the Arizona desert, the McDonnell Douglas YC-15 is being brought out of mothballs to continue its mission as an advanced technology demonstrator. It is the first Air Force developmental aircraft leased back to a contractor under a Cooperative Research and Development Agreement.

The primary reason for the agreement is to provide a prototype to explore new technology applications for the C-17 and other airlift aircraft.

Tuskegee Airmen inspire volunteers

MCCHORD AIR FORCE BASE, Wash. (AFNS) — After 50 years, Lemuel Custis can't understand why people still make a fuss and want to talk about what he did during World War II.

"I'm shy about that kind of stuff," said Custis, who came to the Tuskegee Airmen Inc. 25th Annual National Convention, in Seattle Aug. 26 - Sept. 1. "It was 50 years ago; it's hard to believe people still want to talk about it."

There's a good reason why. Custis was the second person graduated from the first class of Tuskegee Airmen — the first person was Capt. Benjamin O. Davis, Jr., the leader of the Tuskegee Airmen, who eventually became a lieutenant general.

"We were aware of the burden we were carrying, but we were oh-so determined to succeed," Custis said. "It was tough at times, but we had to prove to people we could do anything. All we wanted was an opportunity. When we finally got it, we took it."

More than 40 volunteers from McChord AFB, who helped support the convention, didn't miss the opportunity to talk with Custis and other aviation pioneers.

"It's incredible having the opportunity to be in such close proximity to these men," said Capt. Raymond Robinson IV, a C-141 pilot with the 7th Airlift Squadron. "I've read the books, seen the movie, but to get the chance to see them, talk with them and put a face with the names...it is one of the highlights of my life."

Where Robinson grew up in Texas and later in Maryland, there was no mention in history books about the Tuskegee Airmen, he said. It wasn't until 1990, as a cadet at the Air Force Academy, that Robinson learned about the trials and achievements of the World War II African-American flying unit known as the Redtails.

Robinson, McChord Military Affairs Committee operations officer for the TAI convention, took advantage of a unique opportunity with the Tuskegee Airmen. He flew a

P-51 World War II aircraft, along with some of the original Tuskegee Airmen, in a virtual reality simulator.

One of those airmen was retired Col. Charles McGee, who flew 309 combat missions in World War II, Korea and Vietnam — among the most combat missions ever flown in the Air Force.

"He's fantastic," Robinson said about McGee. "I also flew with retired Lt. Cols. Bill Holloman and Ed Drummond. That was special. They talked a lot about how they flew their missions and how they would turn in this situation and that situation."

"I was awe inspired," said Senior Airman Pete Smith, communications and navigation systems technician with the 62nd Aircraft Generation Squadron. He wished he'd known about the Tuskegee Airmen earlier in his life growing up in Queens, New York.

"You read all about George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, stuff like that, but there is nothing in the history books about the Tuskegee Airmen," Smith said. "They are an inspiration to me and, even though at my age (28) I cannot become a military pilot, I can pass on to my sons what these men did and perhaps they'll join the military and become pilots."

It wasn't until Master Sgt. Elyse Gittens-Owusu was half way through her 20-year career with the Air Force that she first learned about the Tuskegee Airmen. While stationed at Tinker AFB, Okla., an original Tuskegee Airman who lived there told her about the Redtails. This convention was her first opportunity to participate in a TAI event.

"I've had the opportunity to walk around and talk with lots of different people," Gittens-Owusu said, chief of the communications center for the 62nd Communications Squadron. "When you think of what these men went through, it's awesome. They were part of an experiment that was designed to fail and they proved they were dedicated to duty. They did their duty with valor."

The volunteers from McChord had an easy time talking with the original Tuskegee Airmen, who posed for photographs and signed autographs.

"It's like walking through history," said Capt. James Starling, 62nd Communications Squadron. "Just talk to them — they have millions of stories that should be told. I like talking with the older guys, they're characters and have plenty of stories."

And the airmen would tell their stories to anyone who asked.

"I love talking with the kids," said retired Lt. Col. Bill Holloman, an original Tuskegee Airman who joined the Air Force in 1943 and graduated in class 44-H. "I started in 1943 trying to emulate the airmen who went before me — I wanted to be just like them — they were my role models. We (the original Tuskegee Airmen) have an obligation to talk with them and encourage them. Kids work harder if you give them something to work for. "We will always have to be role models."

Lockheed has new manager

Ray Reynolds is the new contract manager for Lockheed Martin Logistics Management here as of Sept. 1. A native of Lubbock, Reynolds retired as a chief master sergeant in the Air Force with 25 years of service. He has worked with LMLM since 1989, and most recently was the deputy contract manager here.

The end zone has become a familiar home for Will Hightower, while his teammates have stifled the opposition's offense.

The 64th Communications Squadron, along with Hightower, finished the intramural flag football season undefeated by beating the 64th Medical Group, 26-6, here Wednesday.

Hightower caught two passes for touchdowns and two passes for extra points. Teammate Korey Nowlin also got into the act with a touchdown reception and an extra point conversion.

Hightower capped off the 64th CS final bid for an unblemished regular season with six touchdown receptions and four extra point conversions in the last three games.

To secure the perfect season, the 64th CS had to face the 64th Mission Support Squadron, which was undefeated heading into the offensive showdown Sept. 19. The game was anything else but offense, as defense prevailed in a game plagued with penalties.

It was the 64th CS defense proving to be unbreakable with Hightower finding himself in the right corner of the end zone on an 18-yard pass from Antoine Banks. The extra point was no good.

Late in the game Banks found Nowlin in the end zone for a 7-yard touchdown strike. Banks completed the extra point play to Hightower for the final score of the game as the 64th CS shut out the 64th MSS, 13-0.

The 64th CS continued to show its air superiority through the tandem of Banks and Hightower as it defeated last season's champ, the 64th Logistics Squadron, 26-6, Tuesday. Hightower finished the night with three touchdown receptions and one extra point conversion.
