Air Force Assistance Fund under way at Reese

Assistance Fund campaign began Monday and runs through March 29. "Commitment to Caring" is the campaign's permanent theme.

According to Capt. Jim West, Reese AFAF project officer, the goal for this year's ing campaign is $9,981.

AFAF raises money for four efiting active-duty, Reserve, Guard and retired Air Force people and their families, including surviving spouses and their families.

The organizations are:

☐ The Air Force Aid Society. The official charity of the Air Force, this program helps eligible active-duty and

Air Force to restore VHA rate

Most Reese people who saw drop in the Mid-February ariable Housing Allowance will have the 1995 VHA rate restored because of a provision in the recently passed 1996 Defense Authorization Act.

According to Air Force finance officials, the legislation included a provision for VHA rate protection. Basically, Reese people who were drawing VHA prior to Jan. 1, 1996, are entitled to the 1995 VHA rate. The provision is retroactive to Jan. 1, 1996.

"VHA rate protection has been approved," said an Air Force finance official. "What we don't know yet is when it will appear in pay checks."

Until VHA rate protection is implemented, Air Force people will continue to draw VHA at the 1996 rate, a drop for most at Reese. Reese finance officials will publicize he implementation date as on as it is provided by Air Force officials.

"The important issue," said Staff Sgt. Teresa Cooper, NCOIC of Reese Military Travel and Pay, "is that the 1995 VHA rate will be restored for most people here and that they will get the back pay to Jan. 1, 1996. We understand the frustration over the temporary changes in VHA payments and we will do every-

Major Sohan assumes command of 64th CES

Maj. James Sohan became the 64th Civil duty as the chief of the operations flight in Engineer Squadron commander during a change of command ceremony at the Reese Fire Department Thursday.

Sohan succeeded Maj. Leonard Fischman, who will join the Air Force Inspector General team at Kirtland Air Force Base, N.M..

Col. Edward De Iulio, 64th Support Group commander, presided at the change of command ceremony.

In addition to Sohan assuming command of the 64th CES, the squadron also welcomed a new first sergeant. Master Sgt. Harry Washington, formerly the first sergeant for the 64th Mission Support Squadron, replaced Master Sgt. Rick Miller, who has been reassigned to Dyess AFB, Texas.

Sohan has been at Reese since assuming

June 1995. The operations flight was recently named best in AETC. He came to Reese from Randolph AFB, Texas, where he served as the chief of civil engineering on the Air Education and Training Command Inspector General team and later as the executive officer for the AETC Civil Engineer.

A graduate of the University of Illinois, he received his Air Force commission through Officer Training School. During his career he has served at Chanute AFB, Ill.; Randolph; and Yokota AB, Japan.

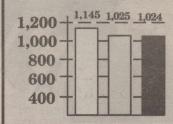

Fischman commanded the 64th CES for two years. During that period the squadron received several command and Air Force awards, especially in the areas of environmental planning and restoration.

Reese will host several special events in March in observance of National Nutrition Month.

Among these will be a healthy shopping tour and special cooking classes.

The 64th Medical Group Nutritional Medicine Office will be offering a commissary shopping tour that will show people how to "shop smart."

The tour will be March 14 at 9 a.m. in the base commissary. Call 3860 to

In addition, the office will sponsor two, "Cooking with the Colonels," low-fat cooking demonstrations. These will be held March 27 at 4:30 p.m. and March 28 at 11:30 a.m. Both classes will be held at the Reese

One class will feature Col. Monica Figun, 64th MDG commander. She will dish up a healthy baked-chicken recipe. The other will be conducted by Lt. Col. (Dr.) Miguel Ramirez-Colon, 64th Aerospace Medicine Squadron commander. Prizes such as cutting boards, measuring cups and water bottles will be given away during the classes. Contact the dietitian or diet therapy specialist at 3860 for more information or to sign up for these classes.

National Nutrition Month offers us the opportunity to focus attention on several key health issues. Recent reports reveal that over 300,000 deaths per year are related to diet and inactivity. We're looking for an easy answer to the question ... "What should I eat to stay healthy?" While there aren't always easy answers, we do have a simplified tool to help us make wise choices — the Food Guide Pyramid.

The five major food groups are listed on the Food Guide Pyramid. Each of these food groups provides some, but not all, of the nutrients you need daily.

The pyramid covers three essentials of a healthy diet: proportion, moderation, and variety.

Proportion is the relative amount of food to choose from each major food group. Major emphasis is on the food group that makes up the base of the pyramid, the grain and grain products group. This means a larger number of servings in our daily diet should come from this group. Coming up the pyramid, the next largest groups are the fruit and vegetable group. The milk/milk products group and the meat and meat alternates group should make up less of our daily intake.

The group at the peak of the pyramid, the fats, oils, and sweets, should make up the smallest proportion of our diet.

☐ Moderation means not overeating foods from any one group, or not overeating any one particular food. Follow the recommended number of servings, and the recommended serving size from each of the ☐ Variety means eating different foods from within the food groups. Each food, though it may be in the same food group, may provide different nutrients, all of which our bodies need. It is important that you consume foods from all the food groups, because each of the food groups provides different nutrients you need

Center your diet around the foods at the lower half of the pyramid. Adults and children over two-yearsold should eat nonfat or lower fat versions of foods when possible.

Senior AF enlisted woman reflects on career

by Staff Sgt. Toni Governor AETC News Service

RANDOLPH AIR FORCE BASE, Texas — In her more than 30 years of service, the senior ranking enlisted woman in the Air Force has seen many changes and met a lot of people along the way. But, as she says, "All good things must come to an end."

The chief of the Information Management Branch, Directorate of Personnel, Headquarters Air Education and Training Command, enlisted

1966, to be on her own. "This was during a time when women had to go through a screening process, so to speak, just to enter the military," said Hoffman, who boasts more than 10 years as a chief master sergeant. "You had to be 21 years old to enter without your parents' permission, have no family (i.e. husband or children), go through several interviews and submit a photo. It was tougher to get in then, but easy to get out — all you had to do was get married."

The Vietnam conflict was also at its height. "I was stationed at Stewart Air Force Base, N.Y. By law, women, except for the Nurse Corps, weren't allowed to be anywhere near the fighting. We were making progress in getting closer to the action by working in the Air Force March 17, staff positions over there.

There weren't many opportunities for women to support the campaigns then."

After serving through two wars and several campaigns, the Birdsboro, Pa., native has seen a definite turn in women's roles during conflicts and the jobs available to them. "The first time I remember women having an active role on the front line was during Desert Storm. The first woman prisoner of war occurred during that conflict. That alone illustrates the great change in women combat roles.

"When I came in, there weren't many jobs open to us — a limited number of career fields. I visited Lackland (AFB, Texas) when I returned for my last tour here, and was astonished at the career fields the female recruits were going into," she said.

The chief's career in administration, now called information management, has taken her all around the world and provided her opportunities to meet people from all walks of life. Her assignments include bases in New York, Washington, Germany, Texas, Guam, Massachusetts and Colorado.

"It's really hard to choose a favorite assignment, because at each of them something special happened. Ramstein (AB, Germany) is special because that's where I made chief," she said. "At Space Command I worked for General Moorman and at the U.S. Air Force Academy I served as the first female sergeant major for academy cadets."

While serving as the Air Force receptionist for then Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, she met several folks who made history. "A lot of great people came through that office—(including) former Presidents Lyndon Johnson and Richard Nixon," the chief said. "I also worked with former CMSAF Bob Gaylor while stationed in Germany."

The chief said she feels she's had a successful career, and her only regret is not becoming a senior enlisted advisor. "It was something I always wanted to do, but it wasn't available at the right time."

The married mother of two said her final message to the men and women of the Air Force "is to be the best in whatever you do, work together as a team, enjoy your career, and never give up your integrity. Integrity is number one with me. If you don't have integrity, how can you be honest with

Finance explains drop in local VHA

Under the VHA rate protection provision, Reese people who were drawing VHA in 1995 and whose housing costs have remained the same or have risen, will be paid at the higher 1995 rate.

Those who arrived at Reese after Jan. 1, 1996, or have had a change in residence that lowered their housing costs, will receive the 1996 VHA rate.

Because of the delay in DOD budget process, most Reese people saw their VHA rate drop last month. This was basically a result of the 5.4 percent increase in basic allowance for

"In a normal year," said Cooper, "we would have only one adjustment to the VHA. Because of the delay in the Department of Defense budget process, we received part of the BAQ increase in January and the rest in March. That VHA and added to the confusion for military members. It also prevented simultaneous implementation of VHA rate protection."

"Under the VHA rate protection provision," said Cooper. "Increases in BAQ will not affect the existing VHA payment. However, new arrivals will receive VHA based upon the normal VHA computation of local and national medians."

Cooper explained that the local and national medians are established by an annual housing survey. The new 1996 VHA rate is based on the survey conducted in 1995. In this survey, everyone drawing BAQ is given the opportunity to report what they actually spend for monthly rent, utilities, maintenance and renter's property insurance. That data is used to determine the average housing costs for each pay

"BAQ and VHA are designed to offset 80 percent of the national median cost for housing for each specific pay grade," said Cooper. "Everything is based on the national median

Cooper offered the following example: The 1996 nacaused two adjustments to the tional median cost of housing for an E-5 with dependents is $744. An E-5 in Lubbock draws $448.50 in BAQ and $60.21 in VHA. An E-5 at Tyndall Air Force Base (Panama City), Fla., draws the same BAQ but gets $106.04 in VHA. The difference in VHA is the difference between average housing costs in the local area and the national median for that grade.

"The premise behind VHA is to ensure that military members are not penalized financially for being assigned at specific locations," said Cooper. "By computing VHA against a national median, everyone in the same pay grade bears the same proportionate burden for their housing costs."

That burden, according to Air Force finance officials, is about 20 percent of the national median. Legislation authorizing VHA (37 USC 403a) specifies that the amount of the VHA for a given pay grade and dependency status in a specific geographic location is the difference between the local median monthly cost of housing for that pay grade and dependency status and 80 percent of the nationwide median monthly cost of housing for that pay grade and depen-

"VHA rate protection gives the Air Force another tool to ensure that people aren't tasked with an unfair share of the personal financial responsibility for their housing costs," said Cooper.

She has served at Luke AFB, Ariz.; Misawa AB, Japan; Randolph AFB, Texas; Torrejon AB, Spain; Kelly; and Reese. She arrived at Reese in 1992.

She is married to Chief Master Sgt. David Ptomey, 64th Flying Training Wing senior enlisted advisor.

CPO outlines fund performance

(Editor's note: The following information is provided by the Reese Civilian Personnel Office to help federal civilian employees better understand the Thrift Savings Program and the differences, including performance, of the investment funds. The data is based on information from the Federal Retirement Thrift Investment Board.)

The C Fund is invested in the Barclays Equity Index Fund which tracks the S&P 500 stock index. The F Fund is invested in the Barclays U.S. Debt Index Fund which tracks the Lehman Brothers Aggregate bond index. The G Fund is invested in special issues of U.S. Treasury securities.

The monthly C, F, and G Fund returns represent net earnings for the month, after deduction of accrued administrative expenses. The C and F Fund returns also reflect the deduction of trading costs and accrued investment management fees.

The C, F, and G Fund monthly returns are dollar-weighted: they reflect net earnings on the changing balances invested during the month. The C, F, and G Fund returns for the last twelve months assume, except for the crediting of earnings, unchanging balances (time-weighting) from month to month and assume earnings are compounded on a monthly basis.

The C and F Fund returns vary from the Barclays returns because of C and F Fund expenses and changing balances in the C and F Funds. The Barclays returns are time-weighted: they assume constant dollar balances invested during each month and throughout the period.

Future performance of the three funds will vary and may be significantly different from the returns shown above. See the "Summary of the Thrift Savings Plan" for detailed information about the funds and their investment risks.

Air Force receives more major slots

WASHINGTON (AFNS) — The Air Force's request for temporary grade relief became law when the president signed the fiscal year 1996 National Defense Authorization Act in February.

Temporary grade relief will help majors pin on sooner and result in nearly 1,100 more major slots in 1996 and 1997, said Air Force officials. The Defense Officer Personnel Management Act, or DOPMA, established guidelines for when people should pin on rank. For majors, the date is between nine and 11 years of service. However, over the past few years, the time it took to be promoted to major was sometimes more than 12 years, officials said.

With grade relief, captains promoted earlier.

The Defense Officer Personel Management Act, or years of service as early as OPMA, established guide-1997.

"This means accelerating the promotion of captains selected by the June 1995 major's promotion selection board by six months," the spokesman said.

Captains selected by the March 1996 board also will be

Source tax legislation changes

WASHINGTON (AFNS) — Most people did not know that many states had laws that allowed them to tax the retirement pay of servicemembers who served in their states — even after they moved.

However, President Clinton signed a law Jan. 10 that bans states from taxing the pensions of former residents who moved to other states, effective Jan. 1, 1996

The theory behind this so-called source tax was that since the pay was earned — or "sourced" — in their state, the state had the legal right to a percentage of the retirement pay, regardless of where the person moved, said Jane Love, the Air Force representative to the Armed Forces Tax Council.

Luckily, the vast majority of military retirees — most didn't know the tax was an issue — did not feel the effects of the tax, she said.

But some airmen paid source taxes on their retirement checks, even after moving to a state that does not collect an income tax. Alaska, Florida, Nevada, South Dakota, Texas and Wyoming do not collect income tax.

"Ironically, the people who got taxed were those who wrote back to the states where they once served to ask if they were subject to their source tax," Love said. "That's why this is such an important legislation."

Approximately 15 states had a source tax, Love said. "But most didn't apply it because there isn't an easy way to find out where military retirees live. Because of Privacy Act guidelines, the finance center will not release the names and addresses of retirees," she said.

But California aggressively sought to tax retirement income, Love said. It was making about $25 million annually from taxing retiree paychecks.

"California is pretty creative when it comes to tax matters and, sooner or later, they would have found a way to track down more military members and tax their retirement pay," she said.

Barclays to manage stock investment

The Federal Retirement Thrift Investment Board recently selected Wells Fargo Institutional Trust Company to manage the Common Stock Index Investment for C and F Funds. As of Dec. 31, 1995, Barclays PLC acquired Wells Fargo Institutional Trust Company.

As a result of the acquisition, the new name of the C and F Funds asset manager is BZW Barclays Global Investors. The C and F Funds will be invested in the Barclays Equity Index Fund and the Barclays U.S. Debt Index Fund.

The name change will not affect the way in which the C and F Funds are invested. The C Fund will continue to track the Standard and Poor's 500 stock index and the F Fund will continue to track the Lehman Brothers Aggregate bond index.

For more information call 3803.
