It is not a bit of it. Let the people demand that none shall be appointed, and, better still, vote for no man or party who would make such appointments.

Why is it that so many of our public men and office-holders are wanting in that which is the first qualification for official position, good moral character—Central Christian Advocate.

Not because of a want of moral men accepting office, nor yet because the moral element can not control the ballot; but rather the lack of interest on the part of the better element in elections and conventions.

A prominent lecturer before a Boston audience, recently, after using strong arguments against probation after death, gives some hope to those who believe in death-bed repentance in the following:

I believe that in ordinary death it is not safe to assert that the soul leaves the body precisely when the breath dies, and that death is not over, and probation has not closed till the soul is separated from the body, and the mighty light which comes in the last and highest moments of spiritual experience before death ends, may have been enough to bring many a man who gave no visible sign of repentance into loyalty with God.

Free Whisky.

To the honest advocates of free whisky the following should prove startling figures. They are given by the Geneva correspondent of the London Times. He says:

The vice of intemperance is growing so fast in Switzerland as to occasion grave anxiety among public men. The total amount of whisky consumed in that country in 1871 was valued at 2,728,188 francs. The population has increased 22 per cent. The taverns have increased 22 per cent. In Geneva alone, taking the Confederation throughout, the proportion is one every 150.

Our condensed correspondence is beginning to tell how the pulse of Texas Methodism beats on the question of missions. One report from a quarterly conference in the North Texas Conference not far from its frontier tells us that in answer to the appeal of the presiding elder, double the amount called for was raised in a few minutes. All our people need to be told the want of the mission field. They believe the Bible and realize that the commission Christ gave his church on Mount Olivet comprehends the whole world. Let them know that men are as willing to go to the end of the earth as Paul was to answer the "Macedonian cry," and they will respond to the appeal.

A Memorial Volume.

The Texas Conference at its last session requested the editor of the Advocate "to get together all the materials possible and prepare for publication a volume of memoirs of Rev. Robert Alexander and other of the deceased members of the Texas Conference." We now call on those who have material for such a work to furnish it to us without delay. A large portion of the history of our church in Texas has been lost in the death of the men who performed the work. If the material is placed in our hands, it will be carefully preserved and in due time placed upon permanent record.

The records of the Texas Conferences were lost during the late war, so that we must rely on the memory of brethren for dates and other facts of importance in such a volume. We would also be glad if brethren and friends would write up and send us such reminiscences as they have at command of the life and labors of the men who have gone before us.

Every day we read in the papers of some stupendous enterprise projected or consummated for the development of the material resources of the world. The iron ribs of the earth are being torn out to prepare a pathway across the continents for the commerce of nations. Rivers are spanned and mountains are tunneled to shorten roadways of trade. So familiar are these enterprises that the wide-awake journalist can give only a brief paragraph to enterprises in which millions of money are expended, and which will add millions to the material wealth of the nation. A few weeks ago the papers announced that the work of dredging the Caloosahatche river in Florida had reached Lake Okechobee, and a navigable channel was now open from the Gulf of Mexico to the center of the everglades of that land of flowers. Several millions of people in these United States did not know there was such a river or such a lake in Florida, and yet more money has been expended by a private company on this one enterprise than the Methodist Church of Texas contributed last year for the conversion of the heathen world.

A Divine Telephone.

It is stated that the bombardment at Alexandria, in 1882, was distinctly heard at Malta, six hundred miles distant, by means of a telephone attached to the telegraph. This, by the way, is considered wonderful, but by some others it is looked upon as one of the slow processes by which science is fulfilling her obligations to mankind in developing natural laws and natural resources. Human experience is not the measure of possibility. Snatchers in science have often told us they had learned it pretty much all; but further on they have discovered, or others have discovered it for them, that they were yet in the a, b, c, of discovery. To have a reverse science! And how I despise snatching!

Doctor Hitchcock published his great work, Religion of Geology, about twenty-five years ago. On page 110 we read: "The discoveries of modern science, however, show us that there is a liberal sense in which the material creation receives an impression from all our words and actions that can never be effaced; and that nature, through all time, is ever ready to be testimony of what we have said or done. Men fancy that the wave of oblivion passes over the greater part of their actions. But physical science shows us that those actions have been transferred into the very texture of the universe, and no erosion, comminution or metamorphoses, can obliterate them.

"The principle which I advance in its naked form is this: Our words, our actions, our every thought, our every feeling, our every emotion, our every deed, are all being recorded in a permanent, indestructible, and universal book."

This proposition I shall endeavor to sustain by an appeal to well established principles of science."

Professor Huxley, one of the most scientific men England ever produced, and who wrote a few years before Dr. Hitchcock, says, "The air is one vast library on whose pages are forever written all that man has ever said, or woman whispered." Again:

"When man and all his race shall have disappeared from the face of our planet, ask every particle of air still floating over the unpeopled earth, and it will record the cruel mandate of the tyrant. Interrogate every wave which breaks unimpeded on ten thousand desolate shores, and it will give evidence of the last gargle of waters which closed over the head of his dying victim. Confront the murderer with every corporeal atom of his immolated subject, and in its still quivering movements he will read the people's denunciation of the prophet King."

Intentionally was published a few years later. The 7th chapter is on "The Intercommunication of Ideas." It does not see the telephone in form, but it insists that the present means of communicating ideas are crude, primitive and cumbersome, and it holds science bound at no distant day to increase these instruments and facilitate a thousandfold. Nature has scarcely begun to develop her vast resources. Our ideas are in their nature infinitely transmissible. All we need is scientific instrumentality. We hold science to a strict and full performance of her assigned duties.

Merciful God! And is it so, that nothing is hid; nothing out of sight; nothing covered; nothing forgotten? It is even so. Is the world absolutely full of instruments for the universal and inimitable transmission and unimpeded diffusion of knowledge of our most private as well as our most public acts? It is even so. Is the world itself a vast universal whispering gallery? It is even so. Is nature a telephone, and every zephyr a transmitting wire? It is even so.

How superficially and how incorrectly many parts of Scripture were read until science, its great minister, began to grow up and coarsen its language correctly. Science is the great minister and friend of the Bible! Let this great genius of truth continue the good work which is but just begun, of unfolding clearer and still clearer light over the vast pages of both Nature and Revelation.

We may grope along here day after day with mere animal vision, and behold a few men as trees walking, and we may call that knowledge. We may give correct names to those five little instruments we call senses with which we communicate with things outside ourselves; and we may suppose our knowledge to comprehend at least most of knowable things. So Swift's Lilliputians thought that Lilliput was the world. There is no obligation, nor memory is perfect. Even human memory may pass under a cloud for an hour, but only to shine more brightly afterwards. But the memory of the stars, the forest leaves, the mountain sides, the dew drops, the breath of summer, the cascade's spray, the atmospheric sentinels—every million at his post—these have no recollection—they never forget!

Fellow-sinner, we live in a world of record, of universal, ever read, and never forgotten history, where our actions and doings and misdoings are embazoned in ineffaceable print upon the very face of nature itself. "Joshua said unto all the people, behold this stone shall be a witness unto us; for it hath heard all the words which the Lord which he spake unto us. It shall be therefore a witness unto you, lest you deny your God." Habakkuk declares to the Chaldeans, on account of their wickedness, "Thou hast counseled shame to thy house by cutting off many people, and hast sinned against thy soul. For the stone shall cry out of the wall, and the beam out of the timber shall answer it." When the multitude cried out, Blessed be the King that cometh in the name of the Lord, which he spake unto us. It shall be therefore a witness unto you, lest you deny your God." Habakkuk declares to the Chaldeans, on account of their wickedness, "Thou hast counseled shame to thy house by cutting off many people, and hast sinned against thy soul. Domestic Slanders.

The law of libel has a quick and stout grip upon open slander. If a man or woman name charge any one with fraud or theft or arson or unchastity, the next morning I might have a peremptory summons served on me, and in dollars and cents I should have to pay for what damage I had done that one's character. But the creature spoken of by St. Paul are so quiet and so lowly that they live on and live on, escaping courts and juries and penalties. The district attorney cannot find them. The grand jury cannot indict them. They are not one of the two thousand individuals who everybody knows everybody, but our lawgivers have a full share. They are our crying dilemma. They look into the basement windows to see people at the morning and evening meals. They can see as far through the keyhole as other people can see with the door wide open. They can overhear conversation at the water-spigot gallery. They put the worst construction on everything. A man is descending the street with eyes a little dim with tears, the event is stimulating to the tale-teller and sets the whisperer up in his stride. "What many weasels!" "Guess that husband and wife don't live happily together!" "Outragious!" "I shall go over and tell the neighbors for this thing has got to be stopped!" "I shall bring the matter before the church!" she rushes in out of breath, saying: "Don't you think, all-car that our neighbor poor thing, came out of bed looking this morning crying? That brute of a man has been abusing her!" "I'll tell you, she's a good one, having our neighborhood disturbed by such goings on!" Well, I have suspected it for a long time. I saw him down the street with a very serious and gloomy face. I thought that he might be getting home and pay attention to his own family, or that he might be at the very best sitting up stairs crying their eyes out. Now, do persuade your husband to do over and put an end to this outrage. Don't you see, isn't it awful? Whispers! The fact is that one woman set out with a malicious spirit can keep a whole neighborhood afloat. She does not have to be endowed with any special train. It is quite enough that she be not accommodated with a large family. That would keep her home. Such matters as a single or have no children, in order that she may have time to attend to all the secret affairs of the neighborhood. Men with large families seldom succeed as whisperers. If a woman were her ear and all the households of all the town. For good health in us she has no appetite, she is not eating, she is not drinking, she is not sleeping. The only day when she has time to go to the office is when she has a new divorce case in the papers with three or four delightful columns of newspaper published. That morning she has no time to read even her Bible. She may saunter out toward light, just to get motion in her joints. There are an innumerable of the case that hold of. Sarah does not have to look very sharp for his evil dominion in that neighborhood. He has let out to her the whole content. She puts her hands and feet in antagonism and makes the pastor disgust with his church, and the church irate with the pastor and makes neighbors who feel kindly toward each other suspicious and critical, blowing through their teeth as one pipe out in a dark corner, saying: "We would keep carriage if we never had our facts." If a woman is a gossip, she makes her mouth meet, they sit a saloon that makes me think of the three witches of "Macbeth," dancing around the boiling caldron in a dark cave. I have more respect for a poor wail of the street, howling down under the gaslight, with no home and no food, for she does not die as to what she is, than for one of those bags of a special society who are so careful of their death with a fine shawl and holds the top of her heart with a diamond brooch. -Dr. TALMAGE, a Fruit Lick, N. Y. Advocate.

The Mountain Top.

Even the greatest and best of men are more or less creatures of the mountain top. As a rule, we all grovel. The interests of the material and perishable press upon us with almost irresistible force during the greater portion of our lives. Mean cares and sordid aims absorb and blind us to the earth. The wisest and holiest of men has his living to make, or his fortune to preserve. Very often, and for very long periods, he is so absorbed in the muck-rake as to quite forget the angel and the crown. Then again, he relaxes from toil, and gazes upward at the lights of contemplation which shine in the firmament above him. Sometimes, but rarely, they lure him from his daily task and he climbs the mount of vision. But even then-when in the climbing man when the stars look down with silvery hands held down, and Eolian voices urge him on-even then the height to which he climbs is limited by the vigor and nerve which the toils of common life have left him; and these again limit the extent of vision. The prospect can be no grander than the elevation he has attained naturally commands. Hence, so few of us reach, and reach so seldom, and stand so short a time upon the mountain-top.

How Does Compound Oxygen

We answer in two important ways: First, by a rapid purification of the blood, in consequence of a larger supply of oxygen to the lungs, and second, by revitalizing all the nerve-centres, the Compound Inhaled having in its manufacture become medicated. It gives it the quality known to chemists as "ozone." A new and healthy action is at once set up in the diseased system, and general improvement follows as surely as effect follows cause. If you wish to know all about this new and remarkable remedy, the use of which is rapidly extending to all parts of the country, send to Drs. STARKY & PALLEN, Nos. 1169 and 1111 Girard Street, Philadelphia, for their Treatise on Compound Oxygen. It will be mailed free.

My dear fellow, said the late Lord Chancellor Westbury one day to ex-Chief Justice Esher: "Why do you not attend the judicial committee of the Privy Council?" "Because I am old, deaf and stupid." "That is no reason at all," rejoined the acidulated Chancellor. "For I am old, Williams is deaf, and I am not deaf and stupid, yet you make an admirable Court of Appeal." -English Paper.

Hall's Vegetable Sillian Hair Re-ener

imparts a fine gloss and freshness to the hair, and is highly recommended by physicians, clergymen and scientists as a preparation accomplishing wonderful results. It is a certain remedy for removing dandruff, making the scalp white and clean, and restoring gray hair to its youthful color.

Perfecting Holiness.

(Wesleyan Christian Advocate.) Mark you, therefore, it is holiness which is to be developed to its utmost extent, holiness as already begun by the Holy Spirit, holiness in its capacity for growth and enlargement as indicated in the word "perfecting." If we have been regenerated, born of God, and adopted into his family, there is a work begun which continues for years or essential part of our life. There is then a beginning, only a beginning however, and hence, the ground and reason for perfecting the process already commenced. The consecration to God as to spirit and mind is not entire. Latent organs are in the new-born soul, unused capacities un-realized powers-just as in the infancy of the human body, there are organs and aptitudes which are essential to their full development before they can fulfill their divine intentions by completing the manhood. The idea is implanted in conversion; the ideal is set before us; and the ideal is the perfected idea. Toward that ideal the disciple, the student, the ideal of perfect love, love that casteth out all fear, love that fulfills the law, we are to struggle and toil and strive, until it is realized in blessedness immeasurable as an attainment here upon earth, and "here in the body penit." With what tenderness of affection, St. Paul urges this high exhortation: "Dear beloved" are words from his heart, and with these words come the assurances of these "promises."

Pay as You Go.

(Mississippi Methodist.) A future liberality, based on contingencies, is no liberality at all. It deceives no one but the poor soul who makes the promise. The only way to do so is to give all that you are able to give. This plan will keep your own heart open. It will cultivate the grace of liberality. Those who are not able to give something are few and far between; and those who give the least, are more numerous than those who give largely, if they only had the will to do it. A nickel is often more to a poor widow than a hundred dollars would be to a man of wealth. It is not what we give, but what we have left when we give that is the test of Christian liberality. A hypocrite may give largely out of his abundance, while a poor widow may give more by casting in two mites, because it is all her living. She throws in her life-her living. The membership of your church, and your charge may be poor, none able to give much, but if all give something, the aggregate will be enough to meet the demands. The support of your preacher is not a question of ability, but of willingness. Will you do it if you will, and you will do it if you love God more than self. Pay your preacher at once. Don't delay.

Reminiscences of Isaac Walton.

It is an astonishing fact, that notwithstanding the admirable example set by the renowned Isaac Walton, there are but few men in this world who really understand the art of fishing. Walton always selected a secluded little nook, and there he would sit all day long, in the shade, hooking the speckled beauties. Now-a-days the average fisherman will sit for hours slumming in the hot sun, and return home affected with sick headache, biliousness, and a score of other complaints, which none but SWAYNE'S PILLS can cure.

A witness who had been called to give evidence as to the defendant's character testified that he had always moved in good society.

"What do you mean by good society?" asked the court. "Society in which it is fashionable to speak evil," promptly answered the witness. -Brooklyn Eagle.

We assert without fear of contradiction that Baly's Saline Aperient is cheaper and more pleasant than any pills ever made for constipation, torpid liver or sick headache, that it never produces the least unpleasant feeling, and its action never ceases to be a pleasant one. It is a reliable remedy for all ailments, driving them from every fibre. It is so nice, pleasant, cleanly, and prompt in action, whether on steamboats, railroads, hotels or at home, that all ladies are delighted.

There is a point to which we would advert and that is the general ignorance of those suffering from diseases of the chest to acknowledge their malady in any danger until their disease has reached an advanced stage.

It has been concluded by eminent scientists that outward applications, such as rubbing with oils, ointments, liniments, and soothing lotions will not eradicate these diseases which are cured by SALICYLICA.

SALICYLICA works with a renovating effect on the system and removes the disorder. It is now extensively used by all celebrated physicians in America and Europe.

REMEMBER that SALICYLICA is a certain cure for Rheumatism, Gout and Neuralgia. The intense pains are obtained almost instantly.

A WONDERFUL AND SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY.

These Glasses are chemically treated in the process of manufacture, and possess the property of keeping your eyes in good condition, as when first you use them.

1. The chemicals soften the light to the eye, completely doing away with that tiresome sensation that is usually experienced in using glasses after one or two hours' use.

2. The chemicals make the glasses hard; they retain their polish. Hence you will always see through them as bright and clear as at first.

3. The chemicals keep the glasses cool, and the result is that the optic nerves are always cool, doing away with any feverish sensation to the eye.

4. With these glasses you can read, write or sew all night, the light having no effect on the eye, with no distressing or tiresome sensation, which necessarily improves the eye.

SECLAR SUMMARY.

The only bright thing about some men at their boots.

The Caldwell Register is a pretty good temperance paper, although edited by Beer.

Miss Francis E. Willard is in New Orleans prosecuting as usual her great work in the temperance cause.

The condition of the French Republic may be properly termed political chaos. What the outcome will be, no estimate can be made.

The senate tariff bill proposes a reduction in duties from $215,917,000, as collected in 1882, to $170,768,000—that is, a reduction of $45,049,000.

The children of the famous scout, Kit Carson, who live in Las Vegas, N. M., and are very poor, will be granted a pension by the United States government.

A latent ballot-box is before Congress for adoption. It will be a compromise-piece of about two-thirds of our voters—that is, monopoly will have a proprietary right in it.

It seems pretty certain now that letter-postage will be reduced to two cents. But newspapers will still have to make up deficient postage on obituaries and spring poetry.

"I am out of politics," too often means in Texas "I have ceased to howl to buzzards, to shake hands with saloon keepers, and to laugh at the obscene jests of the 'great unwashed'."

THE N. O. Times-Democrat says the ladies of the Presbyterian Church at Memphis invited Mrs. Langtry, an actress of unsavory reputation, to dine with them. The T-D. ought to prove it.

GEN. HAVEN, chief of the signal service, was arrested in Washington for neglecting to clear the snow from his sidewalk. He delights in foretelling the weather, but don't seem to enjoy shovelling it.

This item from the St. Louis Republican is commended to our Texas legislature: "The grand jury reports that there is incontestable proof that eighty per cent. of the crime and pauperism in St. Louis come directly from the saloons."

J. G. WINDERSMITH, a Texas man, and correspondent of the Galveston News at Washington, has a fair showing for door-keeper of the next House. Mr. W. is a deserved popularity at Washington, and will be faithful to any trust reposed in him.

The Melex Lodge justifies mother Eve in eating the forbidden fruit, because it was rebellion against sumptuary law. In this taking issue with the justice of God's commands, the Lodge offers a fair type of the modesty of those who oppose moral enactments.

Hotel keepers in continental Europe make exorbitant charges if a guest die in the house—charging for re-furnishing and refitting his apartments, etc. If the rule existed in this country it would suggest that the fare on some-time gets is a strategy looking to a subsequent hotel funeral and big bill.

J. W. Wilson, a St. Louis crank, who had been fasting for seventeen days, was arrested by the police, forced to resume his meals and sent to the city hospital. If this were in Texas, members of the legislature would object to interfering with Wilson's "sumptuary."

MARCELLUS KRENE, the keeper of a leading gambling-house in Baltimore, was sentenced to jail for six months, and all the dens in that city closed their doors. Here is another State interfering with the liberties of the people. Texas is too advanced (?) to do this kind of thing, you know.

The Sunday-law now pending in the senate at Austin absolutely prohibits the hunting with fire-arms on Sunday. Sportsmen are not allowed to shoot at birds and beasts up to 9 a. m. and after 3 p. m.—but the saloons may, however, blaze away at men and boys within the hours named. What a consistent cluster of jewels is the average political conclave!

The funeral of the Burned. At Milwaukee the funeral services of the unrecognized victims of the Newhall disaster were held last week. All the prominent business was suspended and an immense throng of people took part in the services. Twenty-three of the bodies were assigned to the Protestants and three to the Catholics. Those given to the Protestants were buried from the Exposition building. Both Protestant and Hebrew clergy took part in the exercises. Over five hundred people were present. The Catholic services were held at St. John's Cathedral, which was heavily draped in mourning. At the conclusion of the services two lines of procession were formed, which met at a given point, forming a line of two miles in length.

Death Roll. Nine members of the present Congress have died since their election: O'Connor of South Carolina, Allen of Missouri; Hawk of Illinois; Smith of Alabama; Lowe of Alabama; Hill of Georgia; Undergrad of Ohio; Orth of Indiana; and Checkford of North Carolina.

AN EAR FACTORY.

Apollo, according to fable, being unfavorably compared with Pan, caused the ears of the offending critic to be turned to those of an ass, and thus made perpetual the advertisement of his ignorance and stupidity.

Discussions upon almost any measure would furnish some work for the articular artificer, but when he bent his hearing to those on the Sunday law, fear would seize him that endurance would be strained.

A bill has been offered as an amendment to the existing law allowing Sunday business to be carried on up to 9 a. m. on a latter p. m. The logic of those who support the bill proceeds, of course, upon the assumption that the Sabbath is a civil institution solely, which men can keep or break by law—in whole or in part—as may please them.

It proceeds upon the assumption that the churches and people of the land must adjust themselves and their religious services to any law in the premises, albeit it may be enacted at the behest of anti-Sabbatharians or bought by the money of the saloon and the beer-garden.

It proceeds upon the assumption that the employes of all the Sabbath-breaking businesses of the land are sufficiently protected by law if they can secure seven hours' rest out of seven days' employment.

There is an element in the legislature that opposes all legislation of this character because, they assert, it is a sanctuary. They believe in men and business doing as they please on Sunday, and esteem it interference with liberty to prevent them. It is unnecessary to say the longest ears of the god could manufacture would be attached to those composing this element.

TEXAS LEGISLATURE.

The Advocate does not attempt to give a full summary of proceedings. We have not space, and the matter would not be worth publishing, if the space was at command.

January 24th.—The senate passed a bill providing that in case two or more parties are jointly indicted, and severance is demanded, they may agree upon the order of trial, but disagreeing, the court may determine which party will be first tried. A bill passed repealing the act granting land-pensions to crippled Confederates. A bill passed giving the land office six months to dispose of the land, but it is not yet passed.

Immigration. The immigration statement of the treasury department for the past year has just been published. It shows that the immigration of 1882 was 71,312, an increase of only 1 per cent over the previous year, which numbered 69,313. Immigration jumped from 177,826 in 1870 to the highest figure up to that time, 230,000 in 1871, and then declined to 100,000 in 1872, and 100,000 in 1873.
