BARTON WELSH IS INJURED WHEN CAR OVERTURNS

Barton Welsh of this city sustained severe bruises about the body when a car which he was driving collided with a wagon and team on the highway south of Waco about six o'clock Saturday morning. The car driven by Welsh, a Chrysler roadster, was completely demolished, one of the mules was killed, but the occupant of the wagon, a farmer about 70 years of age, escaped injuries.

Mr. Welsh was pinned underneath the car when it left the highway and overturned, and was extricated by persons who were near the scene of the accident. An ambulance was called and the injured man carried to Waco. His injuries were thought fatal at the time, and relatives here were notified immediately, and left for Waco Saturday morning.

A brother, Dr. Hugh Welsh of Houston, whom Barton had been visiting, was also notified and left Houston for Waco. While en route Dr. Welsh's car also figured in a mishap, going into a ditch near Calvert, and he sustained severe cuts on the face and bruises on the body. He was able to continue the trip, however, and reached his brothers bedside late Saturday night.

Barton was able to return to his home here Wednesday night, after spending several days in the hospital where it was ascertained that he had sustained no serious injuries.

REGISTRATIONS FOR SHORT COURSE SHOULD BE MADE IMMEDIATELY

Registrations for attendance at the Twenty-Second Annual Short Course at A. & M. College, to be held July 27th to August 1st, should be made at once with Miss Eileen F. Partlow, county home demonstration agent, as these registrations must be sent to College Station within the next few days. A registration fee of $1.50 for room rent is charged.

Haskell county delegates will leave Haskell at 8:17 a. m. July 26 and arrive at College Station at 9:20 p. m.

The Short Course this year offers one of the most comprehensive programs ever arranged, according to Miss Partlow.

Prominent speakers will discuss the present and future of farm life, as affected by the Federal Farm Board, cooperative organizations, the coming of electricity to the farm and a score of other factors.

Sectional meetings will consider matters of home planning and beautification, new uses for cotton in the textile field, feeding the family, home industries to increase farm income, livestock farming, dairying, poultry raising, meat cutting and canning, marketing quality products, and making field and orchard more productive of dollars.

Recreation will be offered in the form of community plays and games, singing and motion pictures. Special programs have been prepared for boys and girls.

Railroads have reduced rates to permit those on the Missouri Pacific and Southern Pacific Lines to come at one cent per mile each way, and others to get round-trip tickets for two-thirds the regular one-way fare.

REPORTS COTTON BLOSSOMING

Cotton up to a good stand and in bloom in eight weeks from the time of planting is something of a record even in Haskell county, but J. A. Wimberly, farmer living a few miles south of town has accomplished this feat. Mr. Wimberly while in town Monday, told a Free Press reporter that cotton which he planted on Saturday May 23, was blooming out, with excellent prospects for a heavy fruiting. He stated that his first planting was completely hailed out by the heavy hail which fell in this section on May 21, and that the present crop was planted on May 23rd following the hail.

Presbyterian Boys Winners of First Matched Game

Winning their first matched game, the Presbyterian boys started their baseball competition Monday with a 6-1 win over a conglomerate team of the "regulars" taken from local teams. Because of a misunderstanding with the firemen these players were picked out and, in a five-inning set-to following the game they found holes in the defense of the opposition often enough to garner a number of runs and win. R. H. Moser assisted the Presbyterians, handling the pitching end of the first game in perfect style with Pete Frierson, the manager, receiving.

The Presbyterians have their second game scheduled today, playing the Baptist boys. Other games are being arranged with the manager. Members of the team besides the pitcher and catcher who played in the Monday game are: Calvin Frierson 1st, Austin Fullbright 2nd, Bruce Wilson ss, Aubrey Brown 3rd, Eugene Frierson lf, Julian Frazier cf, and James Brown rf.

Officers of this Sunday School Class are urging the young men of the city who do not attend other churches to join them on Sunday morning at 9:45 in their discussion of the problem of "Temptation—What Is It and How to Overcome It?" Much interest is being shown both by banner attendance and reflective thinking on the problem. Sunday's discussion will be concerning Simon Peter: Mark 15:66-72.

Services Announced For Presbyterian Church Sunday

Subject for the Sunday discourses at the Presbyterian Church have been announced by the pastor as follows: Morning, "About Face: From Man's Way to God's Way;" Evening, "I Don't Have Time." Worship services will be held at 11 a. m. and 8:15 p. m.

Other activities for the day include Sunday School at 9:45; the Young People of the Church, meeting at 7:30; and the Intermediates at 7:15.

JULIEN C. HYER CHOSEN PRESIDENT LIONS INTERNAT'L

JULIEN C. HYER
1935 PRESIDENT 1936
LIONS INTERNATIONAL

Julien C. Hyer of Port Worth, Texas, was today elected to succeed Earle W. Hodges of the Henry L. Doherty Company of New York City as President of the International Association of Lions Clubs, at Toronto, Ont.

The election was the climax of Lions 15th Annual Convention which attracted over 5,000 delegates from all over the North American continent and over-seas. Mr. Hyer begins his term of office with 2500 Lions Clubs in the association and approximately 100,000 members.

Mr. Hyer has for some time expressed the thought that a service club should serve its community, state, and nation economically as well as socially. While he believes that service clubs have a distinct part to play in welfare and social work, it is his thought that such an international chain of business men's clubs should be, and is powerful enough to have considerable influence in economic problems.

Mr. Hyer, having served in the World War as Captain of the 11th Trench Mortar Battery, and being at the present time Post Commander of the Ft. Worth American Legion, one of the largest posts in the country, feels that any detrimental factor working against international economic safety can, and should be, counteracted by sound and ethical business practice.

Pullen C. Hyer is a lawyer and a statesman, having served one term in the Texas State Senate. At the present time Mr. Hyer is practicing law in Texas and is recognized as one of the foremost lawyers of the state.

"What's Happening To Modern Home?" Is Sermon Subject

At the evening services at First Methodist Church Sunday, Rev. E. Gaston Foote will take for his sermon subject "What is Happening to the Modern Home?" An interesting discourse on this unusual subject is assured all who attend.

The services will be held on the lawn west of the church, where arrangements for holding services through the summer months have been made. Services begin promptly at 8:27 and continue for one hour.

STAMFORD MAN DIES OF WOUNDS RECEIVED DURING ALTERCATION

ATTENDANCE IS LIGHT AT MEETING OF BONEHEAD CLUB

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Bonehead Club was held Tuesday at noon in the Elks Club, with a light attendance, a number of members being reported out of town or on vacation.

A very interesting business session was conducted, the question of resuming the monthly Trades Days sponsored last year being the major topic under discussion. A committee on the project reported that a number of business men favored the adoption of the plan, and it was decided to stage the first event of the year on the First Monday in September. A committee of five business men are working on the program for the first Trades Day, and expect to announce the list of awards to be made at an early date.

Box Wilcox, former resident of Haskell, was a visitor and guest of the Club Tuesday.

Ralph Shirley, 27-year-old garage attendant of Stamford, died Sunday morning in the Stamford Sanitarium from wounds allegedly inflicted during an altercation Saturday night.

Cecil Hunter, 35, farmer living southwest of Anson, was charged with murder following Shirley's death and was placed in the Anson jail. Clyde Sanders of Anson was bound over as a material witness and J. B. (Red) Fare, at whose house Shirley was fatally injured, was jailed on charges of possession and sale of intoxicating liquor.

At the time of his arrest, Hunter would make no statement. Officers indicated they learned the affair was the outgrowth of previous trouble between Hunter and Shirley. Shirley was struck twice as he sat on the floor of the Fare residence in the northwest part of Stamford, the blows cracking the top of the skull and the bone above one eye. He was carried unconscious in a Ford truck by Sanders and Ed E. Duncan of Shawnee, Okla., to the sanitarium, where he died early Sunday morning.

SOCIETY and Club

Brides Show

On last Saturday Afternoon, July 11, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Crawford, the relatives and friends of Miss Zelma Anderson, who became the June bride of Mr. Donnie Campbell, gathered quietly and were escorted to the desk where the open brides book lay, for them to write recipes, good wishes and register.

When the bride arrived she was directed to a special chair and the party began with blind folded art work, snake walker and other indoor amusements. The prize winners, Mrs. Robert Campbell, Mrs. Date Anderson and daughter, Miss Marguerite, in turn gave the awards to the bride.

A telegram was handed the bride while disclosed our mission, and after a brief hunt the treasure was found. Upon opening a large laundry basket out came a lovely baby rabbit, a number of useful articles were given.

The refreshment plate which consisted of iced drinks, cake and miniature baskets filled with mints were favored.

We wish for Mr. and Mrs. Campbell who reside west of town many joys in this their new venture.

Library Notes

During the month of June the number of books loaned to girls was 347; number loaned to boys 126; number loaned to adults 180, making a total of 653 books loaned. Twenty-five magazines have been distributed among library borrowers, and three books have been given the library in the past month.

Captain of Camp and Three Little Women's Success—Mayre Letta Tubbs.
Julius Caesar—Mrs. F. A. Good-year.

The Library would be glad to have back numbers of good magazines if anyone cares to make this contribution.

Dinner Sunday Honoring Mrs. L. M. Hamilton

Honoring their mother on her 57th birthday, the children of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Hamilton gathered Sunday and gave her a surprise birthday dinner. A bountiful lunch was brought and spread. The only daughter-in-law, Mrs. John Hamilton, claimed the honor of preparing the large, beautiful birthday cake, which contained fifty-seven candles of corresponding color. Several gifts were received by Mrs. Hamilton, and numerous pictures were made during the day.

Many friends called to wish the honoree many more such happy birthdays. A delightful time was had by all, and each family departed for their respective homes at a later hour.

Those present were the honoree and her husband, Mr. Hamilton, Willis and Lewis Hamilton of Haskell, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Coates and children of Knox City, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Hamilton and children of Rule, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Rainey of Weinert, Mrs. L. D. Wilson of Abilene, and the honoree's sister, Mrs. W. A. Bates Thornton and Wallace Sanders left Monday morning for a few days visit in Lubbock.

AFTER WEAKENING SICKNESS

If you are run-down, or suffer from a weakened condition,—take Cardui, a medicine used by women for over fifty years. As your health improves, you will share the enthusiasm of thousands of others who have praised Cardui for the benefits they have felt after taking it.

"I had a spell of sickness which left me very run-down and weak," writes Mrs. D. L. Becker, of Ellington, Va. "I was not able to do my housework. I ached all over my body. My back and sides gave me a lot of trouble. A friend of mine told me to try Cardui. I took it for several months and I got strong and well." Sold at all good drug stores. —28-10

Brides Shower.

On Tuesday afternoon, July 14, at 4 p. m., a number of neighbors and friends met in the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Dotson, in an informal shower, honoring Miss Madge Hambleton, who became the recent bride of Mr. Carl Arbuckle, the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Arbuckle, all of this city.

Mrs. J. M. Crawford, assisted by the brides mother, Mrs. H. J. Hambleton, entertained with indoor features; and Mrs. E. Gaston Foote in her charming manner, gave readings pertaining to real life, which were appreciated.

All the guests registered in the brides book, upon arrival.

The bride received a telegram stating gifts were hid in the house, and that announced the object of such a gathering.

Many useful gifts were received, and from a statement from the bride, were sincerely appreciated.

The refreshment plate held a candle form dainties, with punch and miniature dolls in baskets were favors. Plates were served to thirty-five guests.

Intermediate Study Club.

The Intermediate Study Club met Tuesday evening with seventeen members present. We had a very interesting lesson on "The Seven Things the Disciples Knew About Jesus."

We were glad to welcome Tom Clifton, Ruth Welsh and Francis Wheeler as new members.

Our lesson for next Tuesday night will be "Stories from the Gospels." Heretofore we have been meeting at 8 o'clock and closing at 9. Hereafter we will close at 9:30. We are doing this so we will have more time for our study periods.

We want to urge that the members who were absent this week, be sure to be there next Tuesday night. —Reporter.

Post H. D. News.

The Post H. D. Club met Wednesday with 19 members present and 4 visitors, Misses Helan Hisey of Spur, Pearl Lee, Mrs. J. W. Adcock and Mrs. Raymond Lusk of Adcock. A very interesting program was rendered on butter and how to make it.

After the program, refreshments were served and several games were played.

Colossal Frozen Falls Unequaled for Beauty

Four thousand feet high and a mile wide—a solid mass of ice scintillating and gleaming with a myriad lights—the Rochester ice falls in the Tasman area of the southern Alps are one of nature's most marvelous sights. They fall from the Grand plateau and the Linda glacier and swell the volume of the mighty Tasman glacier three-quarters of a mile below. The eye of man has beheld no scene which is the peer of these colossal falls. Plunging precipitately down the rugged slopes of a mountain more than 12,000 feet in height, with a huge black rock in their midst is the only contrast to their dazzling purity, the falls are justly famed as nature's supreme gift to a beautiful world. One glimpse of such transcendent loveliness provides the awed observer with lifetime of vivid recollections. "There is every truth in the assertion that neither pen nor camera can convey an adequate appreciation of the glory of these falls, but in the minds of many people now departed over the seven seas they will ever remain an indelible and haunting memory.—Exchange.

Observe All Saints Day With Light and Music

In case any are further interested in the manner in which All Saints day is observed in Philippine cemeteries, we append the following additional characteristics of the annual celebration: The poor burn candles on the graves, while those who are financially able install electric lights. At night the cemeteries are seas of lights. Pictures of the departed persons are set up on the graves, and roving bands of musicians wend through the precincts and play pieces for them on the payment of 50 centavos (50 cents) by sorrowful relatives. The mausoleums of the rich are opened to the public, and long lines of persons course through them throughout the day and night.

The custom of playing lively rather than slow music in the cemeteries here is obscure, but it occurred during Spanish times. One story is that it originated during an appalling epidemic. People were dying by hundreds. The Spanish authorities, fearing the bad psychological effect of dirges, prohibited the playing of them.—North China Standard, Peking.

Memorable Blizzard

The storm of March, 1888, is generally known as the New York blizzard, and was one of the most severe ever experienced on the Atlantic coast. It was characterized by the rapidity with which its energy was developed and by the extreme precipitation, principally snow, which fell. The storm extended from Cape Hatteras to southern Massachusetts, obtaining its greatest violence in New Jersey, southwestern New York, Block Island, southern New England. The snow which fell was estimated at about forty inches. Railroads were blockaded and telegraph and telephone communication stopped. New York was entirely cut off from all communication with the exception of the Atlantic cable.

Many Oxfords in America

Seats of classical learning have exerted their influence on our country's nomenclature. Harvard, Yale and Princeton divide honors in this respect with Oxford and Cambridge. Twenty-three states of the Union have Oxfords on their rosters. Oxford, Ohio, is, appropriately, the seat of a college, but a crossroads hamlet of 100 persons bears that name in Arkansas, California and Maine, Florida and Michigan and a middle western group of Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska and Wisconsin are among the other states that share in the name of Oxford, the glory of a vision of gleaming spires.—Exchange.

Pottery of Roman Era Discovered in London

Pottery made by the Romans in the Second century has been recently unearthed during some excavations made in London's business district, in the heart of the old city. A layer of ashes was found by the workmen, who, digging deeper, discovered the earthenware articles which had evidently fallen there during a fire.

The pottery, which bears the marks of burning, has in many cases the names of the makers stamped on the various specimens. One has the name "Putrius," whose kilns are known to have been in Gaul during the reigns of the Emperors Trajan and Hadrian. Other potters identified by experts are Albius, Dagomarus, Avitus, Biragellus, Reginus and Ioenalis. All of them were living and working in the Second century of the Christian era. Many potsherds, some of the First century, have been found in the north of England. Most of the pottery has been acquired for exhibition in the Guildhall museum of the city of London.—New York Times Magazine.

No Dinner Bell Needed to Summon Hungry Bees

Bees don't carry wrist watches and they don't have any alarm clocks in their hives, but they are always on time for meals just the same. Not only that, but they quickly learn of changes in feeding time and adjust their schedules accordingly.

The time sense of bees has been investigated by I. Belling of Berlin-Dahlem, Germany, who has reported his results to the scientific journal Die Naturwissenschaften. He set out saucers of sugar water at a given hour of the day. In a couple of days the bees knew when to expect the "handout," and turned up on time, or even a little before time. They kept it up even when he stopped offering free food.

Then he changed the hour and also increased the number of feedings to two, and in some experiments to three. The bees quickly learned the new schedule and turned up expectantly at the right time.—Kansas City Star's Science Service.

Popular Cotillon

The cotillon is a dance of French origin, and is performed to quadrille music. It was a fashionable dance at the court of Charles X, where it had been adapted from a peasant dance. At first for one, then for two performers, it soon became a rondo dance, in which form it was introduced into England. There are hundreds of possible figures in the modern dance, and the accessories are most elaborate. The cotillon is begun by a small number of couples, who occupy the floor while the rest of the guests sit about the ballroom. These couples select others from among those seated, and, after going through a figure, all take seats and are replaced by other couples until the whole company has danced that particular figure. Another method is for each set of couples to dance a different figure.

Wake Up!..

..it's time to buy!

PROSPERITY is not dead in America—it has simply been asleep—dreaming bad dreams—dreams of depression; of the fear of spending—the delusion of hoarding. We've been in a lethargy from which only a real alarm could arouse us.

But we've heard the alarm now—the alarm of stagnant business; factories with muted machinery and deplorable unemployment—and we're ready now to get up and put our dollars to work.

No, Prosperity is not dead. America still has its great natural and industrial resources—its tremendous capital reserve—fertile lands! immense savings deposits in the banks; the greatest industries in the world; the most skilled workmen; the highest percentage of home-ownership; the highest percentage of literacy; the highest standards of living and the most cultivated desires for the better things in life.

It's time now for us to put activity back of our resources; to indulge our desires; to release the money we have been hoarding—in other words to buy so that merchants can move their goods, place orders with the factories for more; enable the factories to employ more men and give to those men in wages the means to buy what you yourself sell or produce.

But we must all do our part in this Buy Now program. Don't wait for "George to do it" or George will wait for us and none of us will get anywhere. You start patronizing George today and George will start buying from Tom, and Tom from Dick and Dick from Harry and Harry from you.

Depression is merely an obsession—a confession of fear—a compression on the pulse of prosperity that stops the circulation of money. And money is just as important to the life of business as the circulation of the blood is to the life of the human body.

PRONE PRESSURE METHOD SAVES WOMAN'S LIFE

An unusual case of lifesaving through use of the Schaefer prone pressure method of resuscitation was brought to the attention of company officials recently.

On the morning of June 24, Comer and an Abilene business man drove to town together. In the course of their conversation, the Schaefer method of resuscitation was mentioned.

That same night, the man, his wife and several friends attended a picnic at a nearby swimming pool. After the party had been swimming for some time, it was noticed that the business man's wife was floating around the pool with her head under water.

Her husband, rushing to her side, remembered his conversation of the morning with Comer, and, turning her on her stomach and draining the water from her lungs, applied as nearly as he could remember, the prone pressure method of resuscitation.

Doctors gave the opinion that without the prompt treatment applied, death undoubtedly would have followed the experience.

NEW ROADS FOR OLD

More road for less money is the present-day demand. Both for the sake of employment, and in order to give small towns and rural areas the year-round highways that are vital to their existence.

In all sections of the country there are old gravel and waterbound macadam roads suitable to serve as bases for new highways.

The recently developed bituminous type surfaces offer communities the advantages of low upkeep and original cost, coupled with dependability and safety.

Communities can start with the lowest cost bituminous construction, and then as traffic increases, develop their roads into long-lived, efficient highways, merely by adding more surface as they go along.

THE REAL ISSUES

Public officials who are now seeking to find which way the political wind blows have probably been interested in a questionnaire sent to 3,000 people by the National Economic League.

Prohibition came first, followed by administration of justice, lawlessness, unemployment, crime, world court, and taxation.

Of particular interest is the fact that the power issue—now being boomed in many states—was an after-thought.

All in all the survey is encouraging. Prohibition, crime, the world court and taxation are, no matter what side one may take, real issues of great significance.

THE MENACE OF "CHEAP" GASOLINE

The Oil Producers' Sales Agency of California recently appealed to the public, the producers and the marketers of oil products for general cooperation in rehabilitating the petroleum industry.

The agency points out that cheap gasoline, far from being a boon to the public, is really a menace. The great oil industry is so closely related to the people and businesses of the state that any condition that tends to disrupt it and cause losses must likewise work to the disadvantage of all other business.

A number of specific recommendations were made. It is urged that authorities enforce regulations concerning the conservation of oil and gas, and producers are urged to refine only enough oil to meet immediate requirements.

What is true for California is true for all other states where oil is a factor in economic life. Below-cost gasoline may seem attractive—but in the long run we must pay for it, and at a high rate of interest.

GERMANY WINS OCEAN TRAVEL

Goes in for Small Luxury Liners to Regain International Traffic.

Berlin.—The secret of Germany's post-war recovery is not in the making of cheap clockwork toys for the world's children, but in the building of large fast liners for the world's travelers.

Passenger traffic figures show that the modern German luxury ships at sea, notably on the Atlantic, pull the international traveler like magnets, and obtain most of the business.

While the chief shipping companies of the other three leading maritime countries—Britain, United States and Japan—have passed their dividends for the first time in history, the two German concerns, Norddeutscher Lloyd and Hamburg-American line, announce dividends of 8 and 6 per cent, respectively.

Has Newest Fleet.

At the end of 1930 Germany had, in a surprising way, regained her place as fourth shipping nation of the world, with a fleet never than any other.

Her defeat in the war had compelled her to hand over her old ships to her enemies, who found them mostly "white elephants," while she, combining and rationalizing shipbuilding on an intensive scale, produced a brand new fleet. Since then Germany has passed Japan and is now one of the big three maritime powers.

The average size of British ships launched in 1930 was 1,074 tons gross. In 1928 the German average size had risen to 4,647 tons gross. This included the two fastest liners in the world, the Bremen and Europa (40,000 tons each), the liners which won the Atlantic blue ribbon again from Britain, and the ships that carried the record number of passengers last year.

Has Best Motor Ships.

Germany has become the third motorship owner in the world, with 431 ships (British empire, 800; United States, 495), and boasts the best motor liners from Southampton to the British West Indies. There is no British line competing with her on this service.

The German companies lost no time in coming to grips with the worst depression the shipping industry has suffered, by reorganization of the administrative side, and the profitable combine between the two great concerns, Hamburg-American line and Norddeutscher Lloyd.

Hard work has infused into the shipping combines of Germany a new progressive force, and it has been done by the men at the top. The Germans have been quick to realize that giant floating hotels are not profitable today, and they are concentrating on the building of smaller luxury lines.

Posing as Detective, Man Helps Rob Bank

Hawk Point, Mo.—This little city is puzzled as the daring which led two men posing as a check forger and a detective to get into the cashier's cage before they drew their revolvers and robbed the People's bank here of $3,500 in cash.

Seven men and women were bound and forced to lie on the floor while the robbery went on.

A third man waited in an automobile outside while the robbery took place. One of the bandits went inside the bank and attempted to cash a check. The second bandit appeared while he was attempting the check forgery.

"The first in time," he said, flashing a badge under his lapel. "This man's a forger. I've been following him from St. Louis."

Before the teller could speak, both the bandits pushed their way inside the cage. The detective drew his revolver and the robbery was on.

England's Oldest Woman, 105, Dies; 106 Kin Left

London.—Believed to be England's oldest woman, Mrs. Elizabeth Hasler of South Primrose Hill, Chelmsford, has just died. Mrs. Hasler was one hundred and five, and at one hundred and two became the nation's youngest flag-bearer. She had her hair bobbed at that age. She is survived by eight children, thirty-five grandchildren, fifty-nine great-grandchildren, and four great-great-grandchildren—a total of 106.

Fire Destroys Hoboes' Paradise in Phoenix

Phoenix, Ariz.—From coast-to-coast, where drifters gather, regret is voiced because "Hoboes' Paradise" of Phoenix is no more. The place, a ten-foot room located on a site in the center of the stock yards here, was used by hoboes as a lodging place for years, but recently it was destroyed by a fire.

He Cares for Babies After Jailing Father

Seattle.—Paying the role of good Samaritan, Edward Graham, forty-five, service station operator, was instrumental in causing the arrest of H. C. McCumber on a bad check charge. Then he took McCumber's three children home with him to take care of them while their father was in jail.

Cobbler Welcomes Guest in Homes of Colonists

In the early days of the American colonies and for some years after the Revolution it was the custom for cordwainers, or traveling cobblers, to go from house to house for many miles repairing the old boots and shoes of the family or making new ones. Sometimes the cobbler would remain at one house for two or three weeks, receiving free board and lodging while employed on the footgear of master, mistress and children.

He carried with him not only his kit of tools but also different kinds of leather. The men usually wore heavy cowhide boots, well greased with mutton tallow to keep out the wet, as rubbers were then unknown. The children wore calfskin and the young women of the family morocco or kid, sometimes red or blue—and tied with silk tassels. The cordwainer set up his bench in a corner of the kitchen, and while he hammered away or stitched industriously at his work regaled his customers with the news he had gathered in his travels. He was a welcome guest in the absence of newspapers.

Enoch Crosby, the famous Revolutionary spy exploited by Cooper in a novel, was a cordwainer and gained much valuable information for General Washington while pursuing his trade among the Westchester farms.—New York Times Magazine.

Bathtub Frowned On by People of Middle Ages

It was the boast of Queen Isabella of Spain that she had had but two baths, one when she was born and one when she was married. But alas, the poor queen, who befriended Columbus, according to legend, was given another after her death, in preparation for her burial. The children of Edward I of England were given baths on certain religious holidays; they averaged four a year. No wonder Voltaire characterized the Middle Ages as "A Thousand Years Without a Bath."

From the famous Roman baths came much of the rottenness of the decaying empire, but it is a question whether or not there was a reason for this, or a mere coincidence. When the Barbarians entered Rome, in the reign of the feeble Romulus Augustulus, they found him in the baths, a sad Caesar compared to the hardy Julius of an early and sterner day.

Bathing was considered so much a sin in early Christian days that the first Pope Gregory had to issue a decree to persuade communicants to take baths. The decree permitted them to a moderate extent, and only on Sundays.—Exchange.

Photographer's Troubles

A photographer, compelled by the exigencies forced upon him by the physiognomies of his customers, hung a neatly framed sign in his studio bearing the epigram of Oliver Cromwell, spoken to the artist who painted him without the warts which are said to have ornamented his countenance: "Paint me as I am, moles and all, or, by my halldome, I won't pay for the portrait!"

To the gentle insinuation prompted by this sign, one of the photographer's sitters added in pencil: "When I pay you, it will be for making me look handsomer than I am. When I wish to behold myself as I really appear, I can always look in the mirror."

Daring

"In 1890, a fashionable woman's costume weighed no more than eight ounces," says a writer in Harper's Bazar. "Greek looking garments which included the long, transparent chemise, slit open to as high as the hip, were worn over flesh tights, all underwear having been discarded. The result of such folly was what doctors of the period described as muslin diseases, otherwise catarrhal complaints. A record exists stating that during the winter of 1893 alone 60,000 women suffered from what was nothing else but consumption."

Mental Test

An agent recently called on a North side mother trying to interest her in a set of books. Junior was peering through the pages so the caller showed him some pictures under "Mental Test." One picture was that of a wagon without the "handle." After asking Junior several questions the woman enlightened him by saying that the wagon didn't have a handle. Turning to a picture of a pig without a tail the youngster studied it intently for a few moments and said: "Why, the pig doesn't have a handle, either."—Indianapolis News.

Before Age of Baths

In the days of Cromwell public bathing, no matter how heavily attended the bathers were, was strictly forbidden and our Puritan forefathers brought this rule over to New England with them. So it is very likely that on warm days 200 years ago what bathers might be found on the beaches of Massachusetts were Indians, with, perhaps, an occasional backsliding Puritan.

Another Puritan law was that if a person must bathe, it should be in a dark room, with no mirrors, glass, and at night.

Umbrella Via Slot Machine

Forgetful people of Berlin, Germany, no longer have fear of getting caught in the rain while their umbrellas are somewhere else. By dropping the equivalent of 15 cents into a slot machine they get a folding emergency umbrella composed of a head of oiled paper and a handle of wood.

Housed Machines Yield More Work

Shelter Makes Possible Repair of Implements in Bad Weather.

(By WALTER O. WARD, Extension Architect, Kansas State Agricultural College.)

It pays to house farm machinery. Even though the all-steel machine may have few or no parts subject to decay rust attacks, making adjustments and replacements difficult. An adequate shelter makes possible the repair of an implement during bad weather, at a time that might otherwise be put to no profitable use.

Not Expensive.

An implement shed does not require expensive construction. Waterproofing is the main essential, and a great many farmers select galvanized iron.

The size and arrangement of an implement house will vary with the size of the farm and type of farming. A building with 1,500 to 1,800 square feet of floor area will house the equipment on all but the largest farms and permit an arrangement such that the machines are easily accessible. A fairly wide building is needed for machinery. It should be so arranged that implements used most often can be taken in or out without moving other units.

Place for Light Machines.

A wide shelf or gallery over the rear part of the machine shed may serve for storing light, bulky machinery. The driveway should be sufficiently wide and high to permit driving in with a load of grain or hay.

Pruner for Brambles

Very Convenient Tool

One reason why so many let their raspberry and blackberry patches go clear over to winter without taking out the old canes, is simply because they want to put off the disagreeable job of taking out thorny canes. Of course, the job cannot be put off indefinitely, and it really is a lot easier to take these old canes out immediately after the fruit harvest is complete. When the growth of cane is still thick and green, it is just that much worse.

In either case, even the owner of a small patch will find one of those long handled pruning hooks decidedly convenient. It is possible to reach down to the base of the cane without stooping or thrusting the hand down through the mass of canes. The well sharpened hook cuts the old cane clean, close to the ground.

Endeavor to Get Lime

Spread on Land Early

Make an effort to get the lime spread on the land this winter or early spring, if possible, as this will enable you to use it a year sooner than waiting until after the crop is cut next summer. If you can put it on now and allow it to work into the wheat during the winter, you might possibly get some benefit from the limestone in your clover crop next spring. Even if you cannot spread it until winter weather in the spring, you will probably notice some good results on the clover.

Some farmers spread their limestone with a manure spreader. This is done by putting in a layer of straw or manure and scattering the lime. This prevents the lime from going through the slats in the spreader, and puts it where you want it.

Fall Plowing Prevents

Erosion During Winter

In fall plowing it is important to consider the lay of the ground in laying out the lands, so that erosion may be avoided to the utmost during the late winter and spring months, when the ground begins to thaw out and become mellow. It is hard to realize just what an enormous loss of soil occurs by washing away during this time, even when precaution is taken to prevent it. This is especially true on ground which is plowed very late, and, on which no cover crop of volunteer grains or grasses had time to spring up. Out stubble plowed reasonably early will develop a root crop of volunteer oats that protects the soil greatly.

Farm Machines Better

Than Those Years Ago

Occasionally we still hear the remark that the farm machines of today are not so well built nor of so good material as they used to be years ago, but this idea only raises a laugh among the men who know. To be sure the quantity of material used is far less, but the quality and strength of material is far greater; and the machines of today are stronger and more durable, lighter in weight and draft, and more convenient and reliable in operation, and repair costs are far less. The improvement in quality and reliability in farm machines has almost kept pace with that of automobiles.

Too Many Weeds

Each season brings some revelations in the weed situation usually in the form of a new species that has crept in through the use of impure seed grain or with the clover. When such an intruder comes in, it is not recognized for years and no attempt is made to exterminate it. This is a case where the services of a district representative will prove valuable in identifying the pest and prescribing methods of treatment.

Moving Large Trees Done Successfully

Proper Attention to Details Quite Essential.

Moving large trees was once regarded as being so difficult that it was seldom attempted, but by the use of modern equipment and the exercise of care, it can be done successfully, says the United States Department of Agriculture.

Excellent Practice in Winter Care of Manure

The best practice in handling manure is to haul it out and distribute it on the fields every day. The attempt should be made to cover the more level and rolling fields as there is more of a tendency for the manure to wash and wash away on the hillsides.

Fall Plowing Has Many Advantages to Farmer

Fall plowing of land is advisable in many instances as it is more economical and not because it will increase the yield of corn in every case, according to D. H. Hughes of Iowa State college.

Wealth Showered Upon Favorites of Fortune

An American artist named Mott traveled to the Pribilof Islands in a sealing vessel a year ago to paint some pictures of seals in their native home, and one day noticed a curious bank of sand lying close along the shore. He dug into it, and found beneath the sand a mass of bones. They were seal bones—millions of them—which had been flung up by the sea in the course of centuries.

Dog Made Small Town Famous

Karasjok is a small town in northern Norway, above the sixtieth meridian in the center of the region known as Lapland. It lies a few miles west of the confluence of the Karasjok and Tana rivers, the latter forming the boundary between Norway and Finland.

Music Helps Efficiency

As far back as 1886 the head of a southern factory, where cigarettes were rolled by hand, placed good singers in his workrooms to increase efficiency and contentment in the plant.

Mr. and Mrs. Menard Fields and family of South Plains, Texas visited relatives in Haskell this week.

Cull Now With Eye on Breeding Stock

Owner Should Not Relax Vigilance for Nonlayers.

Vigilance of the poultry owner in weeding out non-productive hens from his flock should not slacken in the fall, although the purpose for which he is culling changes at that time. July and August culling is for the purpose of removing the slacker hens and thereby immediately cutting down production costs for the flock.

"Culling should be practiced from the time the chicks are hatched until the birds are disposed of," says a recent bulletin, "Culling Poultry," issued by the poultry husbandry department of the Ohio State university.

"Health, vigor, size, trimness to standard type and color, as well as heavy egg production, are points to consider in late fall culling. Some hens are able to stand the strain of high egg production and maintain good physical condition, while others 'lay themselves out.' The latter are of no use in the breeding pen and should be disposed of after they have finished their laying season."

Uniting Bee Colonies Increases Efficiency

To increase the efficiency of the bees in their honey production certain fall preparations are essential. It is suggested that the colonies be well provided with stores, and that the weaker colonies be united with the stronger ones.

The beekeeper should see to it that plenty of stores are on hand so that starvation will not occur during midwinter or before the bees are placed on their stands in the spring.

New Variety of Sweet Corn in North Dakota

A sweet corn which is 17 to 28 days earlier than golden bantam has been originated and produced by Prof. A. F. Yeager, horticulturist at North Dakota agricultural college. Its stalks stand four feet high while the yellow kernalled ears produce on the average eight rows to the cob.

Agricultural Hints

Niggardly feeding of good cows is mistaken economy; likewise, liberal feeding of poor cows is just as poor practice.

To prevent sprouting, kill the trunk and root system of the tree by sodium arsenate before the tree is felled.

Short pastures in late summer call for more grain and an increase in percentage of protein in grain mixtures for dairy cows.

The cost of bracing fruit trees with a heavy crop is small compared to the loss which is likely to result from breakage.

Personal preference is the first factor in selecting a breed of live stock. This does not prevent a farmer from picking good individual animals.

Raise heifer calves from only the very best cows. This is the time to improve the quality of the herd. "Keep down the numbers but improve the quality," is a good motto.

Laying houses should be ventilated as well as possible to prevent any sudden and unfavorable change when pullets are moved from colony houses or trees to permanent quarters.

Stinking smut is a costly pest of wheat. Treating the seed with copper carbonate dust will insure a clean crop. Thoroughly mix the grain with two and one-half ounces of dust for each bushel.

Training the show colt is essential to making a good impression on the judge. Animals that respond to the bidding of the exhibitor stand a better chance to walk off with the blue ribbon than the sulky, billy creatures.

New queens can be introduced most successfully to colonies during a honey flow. If introduced at other times, great care should be exercised to prevent robbing. There is less danger of robbing during the latter part of the afternoon.
