

NOTES OF TRAVEL IN TEXAS—NO. 18.

REV. JESSE MOHR.

Before leaving Texana I found it necessary to supply myself with another horse, my gallant swimmer and good traveler having succumbed from overwork.

Monday.—Start westward—preach in Hodges bend—no signs of spiritual life; all earth, earth, still hope for the dawn of the living life.

Deficit strikes a good lick at the right place, and would that every steward in Texas would read, mark and inwardly digest.

but by their ability to collect money and their general popularity. Yes, Bro. DeWitt, give me a board of stewards.

THE CHRISTIAN'S SECRET OF A HAPPY LIFE.

The above heading is the title of a book which is advertised in the Nashville Christian Advocate.

"When on the Will" is an excellent treatise, it is the production of a master mind, but it would not benefit the average reader more than what this author has to say concerning the Will.

The chapter on Growth is clear, pointed, Scriptural and contains more Bible truth than the writings of so many of the subject who claim to be orthodox divines.

BE PATIENT.

We are to-day engaged in no ordinary conflict. It is light against darkness; virtue, clean morals and decency against coarse appetite and cruel greed.

DEFICIT.

Little Sermons on Little Texts.

NUMBER FORTY-TWO.

Are you a Christian?

"I have been baptized and am therefore a member of the church."

"It is my belief," she said, "that he has been starved to death; there isn't a spot in him that hasn't a bruise and a girl, I think I know where he came from—here mother became melodramatic and dropped her voice—"

Only two or three days ago, a boy but twelve years of age, who has been in the church since he was nine years old, was asked by some one, whether or not he was a Christian.

As Dr. Edwards says, this remark is as religious as it is sensible.

Girls. Don't Dance!

Those of you who are Christians cannot dance without breaking that solemn vow you made at the altar.

"How can I?" was her answer; think of becoming pious when I shall be banished the privilege of attending balls!"

The doctor tried to convince her of her error, and solemnly reminded her that she would yet see the difference between a life of amusement and a life of prayer.

"I am too weak to talk," was her answer; pray for me."

Nubbins.

It was just this time of the year when he came to us, and the first circus had passed along the day before, and we had all turned out to see it.

He had a matted yellow hair uncovered by hat or cap.

We went out and shook him up, but to all our inquiries he only gave brief and incoherent answers.

He did not get up then, he was far too weak, but he smiled feebly at us and kissed Tom's hands.

He looked, and saw a boy so small that he seemed a mere infant.

He was "knee high to a grasshopper," his parents said, for this was really Nubbins' father.

"This time," said the tender parent, "I really thought Nubbins was gone."

The last we saw of that thankless Nubbins he was standing up on the wagon seat blowing kisses of the tips of his small, lean fingers.

"So you ran away and left the circus folks, did you?" he asked in a matter-of-fact voice.

"Oh, a little bird," said Tom. "Say, now, did they beat you when you couldn't ride those horses right?"

No circus company put in an appearance, and for months we ceased to read the newspapers, for fear that our darling child's name would be advertised in their columns.

"I'm not ashamed, old fellow, to treat you so?"

"Nubbins was climbing into the back of the wagon, and the little girls and the woman overheard him with curses.

How many terrible aches one's poor head has, and what suffering is caused by this rheumatism.

"I'll be right in a minute," said the doctor, and he disappeared with a flourish.

We told him Nubbins' own story, he laughed a little and said the boy was "cute."

"He's our Sammy?" Nubbins heard, and jumped if he found.

"Sammy," screamed the woman, "oh, Sammy, come here! You dear boy, I'd most given you up."

The man came over and tapped Sammy on the head.

And guarantee speedy relief or not ask one penny for it.

He was "knee high to a grasshopper," his parents said, for this was really Nubbins' father.

How oft do they their silver bowers leave, To come and cheer us, as our succor want! How oft do they with golden pinions cleave The flitting skies, like flying pursuivant.

O thou, who art the God and Father of all men, we bless thee for thy goodness to all, for the providence which watches over every individual of our race in dear and precious ways.

Prayer. O thou, who art the God and Father of all men, we bless thee for thy goodness to all, for the providence which watches over every individual of our race in dear and precious ways.

O thou, whose mercies cannot be numbered, whose perfections cannot be uttered, grant that we may be enabled by thy grace so to use all thy mercies that we may be changed more and more into thy likeness, and that our infirmities may be put on the image of thy glory.

Experience. Before I was born again, my understanding was darkened. I knew nothing of what my soul was capable. But as soon as I passed from death into life...

It is very easy to love the Bible if one only will read it right. For instance, put the fifteenth verse of every chapter in the gospel according to St. John together, and you have a very full "life of Christ."

God leads the wings of private prayer with the sweetest, choicest and chiefest blessings. Ah! how often hath God kissed the poor Christian at the beginning of private prayer, spoken peace to him in the midst of prayer, and filled him with light, joy and assurance upon its close!

SOUTHERN METHODIST NEWS.

The Louisville Conference held its fortieth session at Greenville, Ky., Sept. 12-22, 1885. Bishop A. W. Wilson presided. Four were admitted on trial. Nineteen remain on trial; two were discontinued. Four were received into full connection; one was re-accepted.

A substantial citizen of Edinburgh, Scotland, says the Baltimore Sun is now on his way to Florida to make arrangements for the reception of two hundred and fifty families from the old country, each of whom will purchase forty acres of land on the Gulf coast south of Cedar Key, Fla.

The St. Louis Conference held its thirty-eighth session in Charleston, Mo., Sept. 23-30, 1885. Bishop Granbery presiding. Three were received on trial, six were continued on trial, one was discontinued, three were admitted into full connection.

The Mexican revolution in the State of Vera Cruz is a singular uprising. A tribe of natives who boast that they were never conquered by the Spaniards rose in arms against the State. They demanded the right to have religious professions and asked for the destruction of the Vera Cruz railroad.

The well-informed New York Sun published Saturday "The Daughter of Mendoza" with a letter stating that it was written by Secretary Lumar, of Mississippi, and that it has never been published. The correspondent says: "Mr. Lumar, while yet a young man, was traveling in South America for the benefit of his health."

The Indian Mission Conference was held at Oak Lake, in the Indian Territory, sixteen miles from Fort Smith, Ark., on the 17th inst. Bishop Granbery presiding. Most of the preachers, but few lay delegates, were present.

In 1852 there were 600 vessels from the United States in the harbor of Buenos Ayres—more than double the number from all the other nations on the earth combined. Now only two per cent. of the shipping annually reaching that harbor actually belongs to the United States.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Connected has the largest apple crop known since the war, and the fruit is of unusual excellence. Every day brings to light evidence of the great industrial movement now in progress throughout the South.

Mr. Daft, the electric motor man, has succeeded in drawing four cars on the New York Elevated Railroad with his nine-ton motor, Holman's Trucking.

Cleopatra's needle, the famous Egyptian obelisk now in Central Park, is crumbling away, and steps are to be taken at once to prevent its crumbling into dust.

Mr. W. Masters Canine, of Philadelphia, who is to design Mr. James G. Blaine's new house at Bar Harbor, has gone to Augusta to submit the drawings and plans to his distinguished patron.

Lieut. Greely was tendered a dinner recently at Pittsfield, Mass., by prominent business and professional men. His health has been greatly improved and he now seems to be quite well and hearty.

The family of the late ex-Secretary Frelinghuysen are spending the day at the old Thompson cottage, in Lenox, Mass. They drive a great deal, and attract much attention. Mr. Arthur spends much of his time at this house, and the gossip is busy in consequence.

A substantial citizen of Edinburgh, Scotland, says the Baltimore Sun is now on his way to Florida to make arrangements for the reception of two hundred and fifty families from the old country.

The editor of the Toronto News, who was brought before a Montreal court and fined and mobbed for libeling a French Canadian gentleman because of his editorial during the campaign, has canceled all the circulation of his paper in the province of Quebec.

Judge Meers, of the Wilmington, N. C. Circuit Court, has rendered a decision as to the drummers' tax, that is of general interest. A drummer was charged with soliciting trade without license. The law requires a drummer from another State to pay a state tax. A resident drummer is also required to pay the same drummers' tax, but the law of 1883 gives a rebate to the resident drummer of the amount of his purchase tax for the same time.

TRICKS ON THE TRACKS! Dangers from which Engineers Save the Public and Themselves.

The Railway Review. One who is accustomed to railway traveling can scarcely realize how much he is dependent for safety upon the engineer. Added to the responsibility of their station, engineers are in constant danger of accidents caused by the tricks of jealous rivals.

This rivalry, it is said, sometimes prompts to the doing of utterly mean tricks. A Nickel Plate engineer after his very first trip was laid off because he had "cut out" all the bearings of his engine. He was re-instated, however, after he proved that some rival had fitted his axle with a nut.

These intense jealousies, together with the terrible anxiety incident to their work, has a terribly straining effect on the nerve, and statistics tell us that though locomotive engineers may look strong and vigorous, they are not all a hearty class.

The Locomotive Engineers' Brotherhood has over 12,000 members and, per capita, has headquarters in Cleveland, Ohio, where Chief Engineer Arthur for twenty years has exercised almost dictatorial sway.
