MURCHISON HOME DESTROYED BY FIRE EARLY SATURDAY

The palatial residence of Judge and Mrs. W. H. Murchison of this city, together with all contents, was totally destroyed by fire Saturday morning about three o'clock. Flames had spread through several rooms of the large house before Mr. Murchison and two sons, Walter and Thomas, were awakened, and they barely had time to escape from the burning building. Firemen were unable to check the flames, which had spread throughout the building when the apparatus arrived. One of the fire trucks, the pumper, was out of commission and could not be used in fighting the fire, and flames quickly spread to the garage and other outbuildings despite efforts of firement.

Everything is in readiness for Trades Day, Monday, September 7th, according to the committee in charge of the program—and the day promises to be one of the best ever staged in Haskell. In addition to the usual attractions there will be a continuous Free Picture show at the Texas Theatre for all who care to go. The management has secured a good Western Picture for this special show, and it will only be exhibited here for the Trades day attraction. Music will be furnished by the Haskell High School and Municipal Bands.

BILIOUSNESS CLEARED UP

Biliousness may show itself by a coated tongue, bad breath, headache, spots before the eyes, dizziness, poor appetite, "dopiness," but prompt relief may be expected from taking Theodor's Black-Draught.

"When I got bilious, I had a bad taste in my mouth, and then severe headaches that put me to bed," writes Mrs. Anna Copeland, Anderson, S. C. "I found Black-Draught relieved this. I felt better after taking it. Black-Draught certainly is a good medicine."

It would not have been used so long, or by so many, if it wasn't really good. Get a 2 1/2 package at the drug store.

Mr. M. E. Park Entertains Relatives and Friends With Big Fish Fry.

On Tuesday of this week and Friday of last week, Mr. M. E. Park entertained his children and families and other relatives and friends with two big fish fries. Early in the morning the men seized one of the holes in Lake Creek that runs through Mr. Park's pasture and the spoil netted over two large tubs of fish on each occasion, cat, drum, perch and bass. These fish ranged in size from the smallest to over two pounds. Then as soon as the fish could be prepared they were fried in a wash pot, frying it half full each time, this frying took place some six or eight times. Large pots were put on for coffee and tea and when the fish were ready the ladies brought on the bread, cookies, pickles, and other accessories and then such a feast. It was noted that Mr. Park and Mr. J. F. Pinkerton ate more than any other three present. In the afternoon games, contests and stunts were indulged in by all. Mr. Park, who by the way is seventy-six years old, began the sport by chinning the bar, "skinning the cat," and in the regular setting up exercises he and one of the high school boys from Munday were the only ones who could accomplish one difficult act. Mr. Park's physical strength, vitality and buoyancy were common topics of conversation. Then before departing for their homes the guests were served canteloupe by Mrs. M. E. Park, fresh from her garden. Those who enjoyed the days together were the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Park, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Kaigler and children, Haskell; Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Pinkerton, Haskell; Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Koonce and children, Haskell; Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Pinkerton, Haskell; Mr. J. M. Thompson, Munday; Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Mosier and children, Haskell; Mrs. Holt Eastland and son, Haskell; Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Thompson and Everett Thompson, Munday; Mrs. Cecil Merchant and daughter, Haskell; Mrs. H. K. Miss Madeline Hunt was hostess to members of the 4K Klub and former members of the Lucky Thirteen Club, last Friday afternoon, naming Mrs. J. A. Stephens of Marshall, Texas, a charter member of the Lucky Thirteen Club, as honor guest.

The entertaining rooms were decorated with rose buds and bachelor buttons where three tables were laid for bridge. At the conclusion of the games, Miss Hunt served a delicious plate of fruit cream and cake with olives to the following:

Mesdames J. A. Stephens, Marshall; Richard Sherrill, Pittsburg; Jno. V. Davis, Fred Mauldin, Albany; J. B. Post, Roy Killingsworth, Lola Welsh Bledsoe, Bert Welsh, Oscar Oates; Misses Ermine Daugherty, Lois Earnest, Lela Welsh, Nettie McCollum.

Friday night Mr. and Mrs. Courtney Hunt were host and hostess to two tables of bride honoring Mrs. J. A. Stephens. At a late hour refreshments were served to the following: Mrs. J. A. Josselot Home Coming.

The Josselot Home Coming met at Mrs. Marvin Medford's last Sunday August 30, the day before Dave Josselot and family left for their home in Sierra Blanca. Dinner was spread in the yard under two large trees on a long table and every body helped their plates cafeteria style and in spite of hard times a bountiful dinner was served to all the Josselot relatives.

In the afternoon we all assembled in the living room and Mr. Josselot made a talk to his children concerning his estate. Daddy Josselot realizes his days are few and he doesn't hesitate in making preparations for the future. For a man of his age he is very thoughtful and very considerate and still has the knowledge of a young man.

He then requested some of his favorite songs be sung and Ruth and Dorothy Josselot gave some readings with harmonica music. Then it was getting late and we bid Dave and family good-bye till our home coming next summer.

Birthday Party.

ALSO EMPLOYS WIDOWS

Manager Tubbs of the Haskell Laundry asserts that he is up against a problem of competition that he is finding it exceedingly difficult to meet, in view of his investment. He reports that appeals have been made to his customers to transfer their patronage to "widow women" who have installed home washing machines at an investment of $10 or $20.

Mr. Tubbs said he did not blame anyone for making an appeal for work these days, for no man or woman worthy the name was going to beg as long as they can make their own way. Neither are they going to see their little ones hunger or without clothing. "But, says he, "many of them make an appeal on the strength that they are widow women, when as a matter of fact, I am employing several widows in the laundry." (adv)

THE HUEY LONG PROPOSAL

The following timely editorial appeared in the Wichita Times last Tuesday regarding the cotton situation.

"The support which is being given the Huey Long plan to plant no cotton at all next year illustrates the temper of these times. Preposterous as the proposal seems, it is finding many earnest advocates. One cannot discuss such schemes by calling them revolutionary; in times like these drastic measures are apt to find favor where conservative, rational ones could not get a hearing.

"The question of the constitutionality of a law embodying the plan is difficult to answer. If military forces may be legally employed to prevent the pumping of an oil well, we would hesitate to say that they could not be used to prevent the planting of a field of cotton. There is no difference in principle, even though oil production is shut down in the name of conservation. That word could not be invoked, save in a theoretical way, on the cotton plan, but words do not necessarily count for much in the crisis that the cotton industry faces. It may be difficult to laugh the Long plan down.

"We can assume that the plan can be adopted; that is, that the necessary legislation could be enacted and forced. We can assume, further, that it would tend to do for the price of cotton all that the South would like to see done. We can make these assumptions and still find ourselves very far from accepting the wisdom of the plan.

"Those who have accepted it are overlooking three factors that it will not do to overlook. One of these is the foreign cotton crop. Another is that the plan would leave the South with no cash crop. The third is the violence which would be done to American traditions and American ideals.

"Adoption of the plan would bring about a tremendous increase in acreage in Russia, Egypt, India and South America. That cotton could be kept out of American mills, it could not be kept out of European and Japanese mills.

"What would be planted on the fields now used for cotton? Feed and foodstuffs, someone answers. The cotton farmer could at least raise corn for his animals and raise much of the food his family requires. But there would be no cash crop. That would affect not only the farmer, but the merchant and the banker—and the tax collector—in the hundreds of communities dependent on cotton. It would be worth much to the South to have a year's object lesson in the importance of "living at home," but the South's economic structure is based on an annual cotton crop that puts cash into circulation.

"The third major objection is the most important one. We will be getting into extremely dangerous ground when we concede to any constituted authority the right to say what shall not be done with our fields. We would be sacrificing a principle and not even 30-cent cotton could compensate, in the years to come, for that sacrifice. We would pay too big a price for the subversion of principles that the plan would involve.

"Some good may come of the proposal, at that. It may bring home to the South the imperative need of reducing acreage in a sensible way. Perhaps that benefit will justify the fantastic folly of the proposal."

WHAT OF OLD AGE

While not a pleasant subject to dwell upon, an occasional look ahead to the condition which may surround old age would be advisable, even for those whose circumstances in early life are satisfactory and whose future seems secure.

We may well be reminded that nearly 80 per cent of old people are dependent upon others for support. Yet many of these in early and middle life were prosperous, some even wealthy.

Who can not look about him and see acquaintances who were once the envy of their neighbors, but who through business reverses, accidents, illness or extravagance are now brought to feel the sting of poverty?

Usually such disasters might have been averted by a reasonable exercise of prudence and thrift. Keeping up with one's neighbors in a false display of prosperity is a fruitful source of old age poverty, and there are many others. Much of the misery which usually accompanies old age might be avoided by looking ahead before it is too late.

HINTS FOR POULTRY RAISERS ON CARE OF THEIR FLOCKS

Farmers throughout the county are losing poultry at this season of the year due to causes generally unknown to them. Losses of this kind are common to all poultry raisers who do not follow a systematic treatment for worms. Such losses may be prevented by simple treatments that even the unskilled can give to the birds. This is true in both turkeys and chickens.

General symptoms of worms: birds unthriftness, loss of weight, pale head and comb, practically all flesh off of breast bones, tongue and ultimate death in many cases.

Treatment: Many good commercial worm remedies are on the market and can be bought at all drug stores and others that carry poultry supplies. The common worm capsule or gizzard capsule for the double treatment of both Turkeys and Round Worms as an emergency found in both chickens and turkeys.

Now is the time to put the flock of laying hens on full mash feed in order to get them in condition for the fall laying time. The mash layers should all be culled from the flock and others put on full feed. The unthrifty birds cannot be expected to lay a large number of eggs.

Turkey feeding for the market is a plan that good turkey raisers follow. Turkeys that are expected to be put on the Thanksgiving market should be put on a fattening ration. A good farm ration is equal parts of wheat, milo or other grains.

Turkey growers have found that the addition of meat scraps and oyster shell to the ration is good. It has been found that turkeys on the range that can get plenty of limestone in the form of snail shells are rarely ever found with cracked breast bones.
