Expect Crop of Wheat to Equal Last Year's Wheat.

Munday Times— Despite the fact that the wheat and oat crop in portions of the Munday territory likely will be short, the yield for this section as a whole probably will be about as much as last year, according to report to Jack Mayes, manager of the Munday Mill and Elevator Co. While the average per acre yield may be somewhat less than a year ago, the acreage has been sufficiently increased to more than make up for the drop. Mr. Mayes does not believe, however, that the per acre harvest, when the section as a whole is considered, will be materially less.

Sleep Center in Brain?

A sleep center in the brain is postulated by the Austrian neurologist, C. von Economo, in the American Journal of Nervous and Mental Diseases. While this center is not exactly located, he says, those diseases which show disturbance of the sleep function, such as the abnormally prolonged slumber of encephalitis, show lesions in the neighborhood of the third ventricle of the brain. Cats have been made to yawn and assume positions of rest when this region is stimulated with electricity. Von Economo believes that the nerve cells of this region are particularly susceptible to some fatigue substance which circulates in the blood and that once stimulated they inhibit the action of the higher nervous centers. Thus it is able to act as a sentry for the rest of the brain.

Bear Family Widespread Throughout the World

From Polar regions where the huge white bear is the ruler of the snowy wastes, to the tropics where the little cinnamon bear haunts the jungle, or to the Antipodes where much smaller plantigrades are styled bears, every part of the world has, or appears to have had, some member of the bear family among its aboriginal inhabitants. Despite the evidence of Scripture skeptical critics for years derided the idea of bears existing in Syria or the Holy Land. Ignorance of ordinary historical facts was part of the equipment of these doubters. They knew nothing of, nor studied the accounts of the life history of the good knight Godfrey de Bouillon, who with his brothers Eustace and Baldwin led an army of forty thousand German soldiers to join the crusade to deliver Jerusalem from the Saracens towards the end of the Eleventh century, and who during the long siege of Antioch in Syria went alone to the defense of a poor woodcutter against a fiercely attacking bear, in which encounter he was badly mauled, although he did come out of the conflict victoriously at the last. Certainly Godfrey de Bouillon would bear witness to the fact that there was nothing incongruous in the story David told of having killed a bear in protecting his father's sheep at Bethlehem (Samuel 17:34-36).

Impossible to Acquire Real Ability to Spell?

It was a ruthless spelling bee that the Catholic Actors' guild held. According to all reports, the spellers who remained in the lineup towards the finish had to submit to heckling by the members already downed, and the announcer was severe with all attempts to get a word repeated. In the old-fashioned spelling bees it used to be all right to ask teacher to repeat while the speller thought furiously in the minute gained. The rule in this one was elimination of the person making the error. In school you went to the foot of the class and tried to work your way back to the top, but it was a hopeless game for a naturally poor speller. At the end of the session there was a gloomy little group down at the foot, always composed of the same sad individuals. How the good spellers manage it is a mystery to those who cannot. They can tackle and conquer a word of which they probably never heard through some special faculty—probably just a sense of spell.—New York Times.

Snow Drift Control

Control of snow drift is accomplished in a variety of ways by the departments of the various states, according to a survey of snow-removal methods. The most common method of drift control is by means of portable fencing. Location, position of fence and the number of rows must be determined by experience. Hedge and shrubbery have been planted in some states to provide natural drift control. A snow fence of sacks has been used in Michigan effectively.

Hens Are Ancient

The earliest actual reference to poultry is said to be that the Chinese emperor Fu Hsi, who lived from 3341 to 3227 B. C., taught his people to breed fowls. The Chinese Encyclopedia, thought to have been compiled about 1800 B. C., mentions fowls as "creatures from the West." Later they came to Europe from central China by way of Siberia and Russia.

Fine Ships in Days of American Naval Glory
 American history often speaks of Joshua Humphreys as the designer and builder of the Constitution, the Constellation, the Congress, the President and the United States, which were the greatest ships of their day. The United States was built at his own private yard in Philadelphia. The others were built from his designs and under his supervision in the different yards he was commissioned by congress to choose for such work.
 To show what Joshua Humphreys himself thought, there is still a letter in existence addressed to Josiah Barker, naval constructor at the Charlestown navy yard, Boston, Mass., thanking him for a cane made from some timber taken from the Constitution when first repaired at Boston. He says, in thanking Barker: "This cane is of double value to me on account of it having been taken from one of the frigates I constructed in the year 1794, forty-two years ago, under the administration of the ever memorable Washington and General Knox, then his secretary of war. The five frigates, the United States, the President, the Constellation, the Constitution and the Congress were all built by drafts and moulds sent on by me to the different posts where they were to be built." It was the famous Nelson who remarked of these ships, at a later time, "There is in these transatlantic ships a nucleus of trouble for the navy of Great Britain."

Historic Mount Vernon
Noted for Hospitality
 In a day when every true son of the Old Dominion prided himself on being a genial guest and a generous host, General Washington of Mount Vernon was famed for his hospitality, not only in Virginia but throughout the length and breadth of the Atlantic seaboard. Morris from Philadelphia and New York met Adams from Boston, Carrolls from Carrollton and Byrds and Carters from the James at his table, and often a visiting Frenchman or two.
 Humble visitors, too, were always assured a welcome at Mount Vernon. The rule was that none was allowed to go away hungry. Washington himself once described his home as "a well resorted tavern," and in a letter from Mount Vernon after his second term as President he wrote: "Mrs. Washington and myself will do what I believe has not been done within the last 20 years by us—that is, sit down to dinner by ourselves."

That Word "Celt"
 Apropos of a controversy on the pronunciation of the word Celt, a correspondent writes to the London Daily Telegraph: "None of your correspondents has pointed out that the Celts who were originally a race spread over western Europe, were known to the Greeks as Keltoi. The Latins called them Celtae. But there being no 'k' in the Latin alphabet, the 'c' had nevertheless the pronunciation of that letter. Most people will, I expect, continue to speak of Celts. I might add that 'c' is a superfluous letter in the English alphabet, having no sound of its own, but borrowing its sound from 'k' or 'g' as the case may be. It might as a letter be dropped out altogether without much loss."

Moa's Egg Found
 A moa's egg has been presented to the Alexander museum in Wangnui, New Zealand. This rare find was made by a party of men who were working on a cliff-face of shellrock on Tokomaru West road. A hollow in the rock was uncovered by blasting operations and lying in it was the egg. Unfortunately a workman broke it with his shovel, but an expert skillfully repaired the smashed portions, and the breaks are not noticeable. It is stated that there are not more than ten moa's eggs in existence. The moa was a dinosaur-like bird having enormous legs and three toes. Its wings were obsolete. Some were 10 or 12 feet high.

Ancient Tale and Towers
 In Somersetshire, about 25 miles from Bath, in Glastonbury, is where legend states, was built nearly 1,500 years ago, England's first Christian church. It is claimed, also, that St. Patrick was born here and came back to die after his famous missionary activities in Ireland. Here, also, Joseph of Arimathea came with the Holy Grail, planting his staff on the hill, where it grew into the famous Glastonbury thorn, which blossoms at Christmas time every year. It is a delightful region for those who love ancient tales, ancient towers and ancient moorlands.—London Mail.

Fabulous Birds of Old
 Mostly portents of good luck are birds of fantasy and fable, bringing joy to those they favor. More forceful in the griffin, with its bird head and lion body. This weird animal with its dual personality was reputed to punish greed by leaping on depositors of the earth's riches and tearing the offenders to pieces. In Asia, the griffin prowled and hovered over deposits of gold and precious stones, guarding them from adventurous treasure trove hunters. The griffin was supposed to be a cross between a lion and a griffin.

No Profitable Market for American Seaweed

America's interest in its own seaweed resources dates back to pre-Columbian times, when Indians used it as fish bait and for basket weaving. In 1902 a scientist discovered that seaweed on the Pacific coast contained potash, important fertilizing element. But he could interest no one in his discovery for a decade.

As in the case of many other raw products, a World war was necessary to make its importance known. German potash supplies were cut off. The farms cried for potash, so the government set out to find a source. A company manufacturing explosives also needed a substance from seaweed as an ingredient for its products, so it built a $2,000,000 plant in California. Groups of men first attacked the vast seaweed "plantations" with sickles, but it was not long before steam and gasoline-propelled scows equipped with mechanical harvesting machinery dotted the Pacific seaweed fields. A dozen or more plants were established.

When the armistice was signed, the companies disbanded almost as quickly as they were established. Today one remains. The others succumbed to cheaper German potash or imported seaweed products.—National Geographic Bulletin.

Fierce Tasmanian Wolf Doomed to Extinction?

The Tasmanian wolf is one of the rarest and most extraordinary beasts in the world. The species is said to be nearly extinct, and the few remaining specimens are rigorously protected. The first of the many extraordinary things about the Tasmanian wolf is that it is not a wolf at all, though it looks more like a kangaroo than anything else. The animal is really more akin to the kangaroo and wallabies, for it has a large pouch to carry the litter of young. Curiously enough, both the male and the female are equipped with one of these pouches. The Tasmanian wolf does not bark, but gives a series of wheezy coughs, and it is said that when pursued it will get up on its hind legs and jump like a kangaroo. They are fierce, and some years ago when they were plentiful there was a bonus of $25 offered for every head, because so much damage was done to sheep and cattle.

Seward's Ill Luck in '65

The surrender at Appomattox occurred on April 9, 1865. On the fifth day of April Secretary of State Seward had been thrown from a carriage. He was picked up unconscious with his jaw broken in two places and his shoulder dislocated. He had many other bruises and strains. His jaw was placed in an iron frame and he could speak with difficulty, if at all, for many days. He was still confined to his bed on the night of April 14 when Lincoln was assassinated, and when the attempt on his life was made; in fact, it was nearly a month before he was able to attend a cabinet meeting even in his own house.

Roman Relics in Museum

Three stone sarcophagi, one of which dates from the Fourth century, are among a collection of new objects which have been added to the Roman finds on exhibition at Wallraf-Richartz museum, in Cologne, Germany. The Fourth century sarcophagus is of particular interest, because it is marked with pentagram, or pentalfa, consisting of two triangles so set together as to form a five-pointed star. It was used by the Pythagoreans as a symbol of health.

Dean of Battleships

H. M. S. Implacable is the oldest battleship afloat, and has a great history. Originally French, she was launched as long ago as 1789 under the name of Duguay Trouin, and after Trafalgar she was rounded up and taken as a prize to Plymouth. The Duguay Trouin would not surrender until 150 men and her captain were killed or wounded. Not for nothing, when the re-christening set in, was the name "Implacable" chosen.

Gold Dollar Coinage

Gold dollars were coined by the United States government each year from 1840 to 1880. In 1902 and 1908 Louisiana Purchase exposition coins were minted. In 1904 and 1908 Lewis and Clark exposition coins were minted. In 1915 Panama-Pacific International exposition coins were minted. In 1916 and 1917 McKinley Memorial coins were minted and in 1922 Grant Memorial coins were minted. All of these coins were $1 gold coins.

Care of Goldfish Pota

Goldfish should never be subjected to extreme changes in water temperature, and it is, therefore, advisable to let the water stand in the room before putting the fish in the aquarium, so as to take away the chill of the freshly drawn water. For this same reason it is a good plan to remove and replace only part of the water at a time. Unless the aquarium is overcrowded with fish it is not necessary to change the water often.

"But" and "However"

A rule that H. G. Wells taught me was to be very sparing in the use of "however." One files to "however" when one has exhausted "but." One may trail on indefinitely with "buts" and "however's," balancing and qualifying until the reader is muddled.—J. A. Spender, long editor of the Westminster Gazette, in "Life, Journalism and Politics."

The Center Point H. D. Club met with Mrs. W. T. Morgan last Thursday with 12 members, 3 visitors and Miss Partlow present. After an interesting program the hostess served iced tea and cake. The club adjourned to meet the third Thursday with Mrs. T. M. Patterson. Visitors are welcome.

Methodist W. M. S.

The Society met Monday afternoon in the main auditorium of the church, which was beautiful with flowers. Mrs. Patterson played softly on the organ for Meditation. There was a missionary song and prayers by several. Mrs. Earnest read the scriptures and Mrs. F. T. Sanders gave the last chapter of the book "Korea, Land of the Dawn." She presented a number of beautiful posters. Mrs. Baird sang "Make Somebody Happy Today." Mrs. Kimbrough read resolutions of love for Mrs. Alexander, a copy to be given the family, one to the Free Press, and one put in the minutes of the Society. Mrs. Smith gave a good report of the Northwest Texas Women's Conference she attended recently in Abilene.

League News.

The Leaguers are still active and are always doing something. Ten of the Leaguers went to Throckmorton as representatives of the Haskell League May 7-8, and best of all our League won the prize for the best assembly song. We certainly were proud of it and were planning on sending a delegate to assembly with the money. That Throckmorton district league meeting was a knockout. There were about two hundred delegates from all over the district. Our League was one of the best represented and the peepiest of all.

The song we won the prize with is this: "Our hearts have swelled with pleasure at the thought of coming here, To see and greet the Leaguers known and loved in former years. Assembly's quite the place we feel, to quiet doubts and fears, For Leaguers march on!

"Forward, Forward, On to victory; Hear, Oh! Hear Ye, Stamford District. Gird yourselves for further conflict. Our Leaguers are marching on! "At home we worked so hard to keep our lovely colors bright, we want the world to know them: They're none but gold and white. A program filled with worship, culture, Missions, play and "pay." Makes Leaguers follow on!

Grow 'em Bigger!

Grow 'em quicker! Grow 'em fit for laying eggs—and ready for laying a month earlier than pullets fed other feeds. You can do it with Purina Growena, the pullet feed that contains Ingredient "X" (syn-cron-ized proteins.)

Don't neglect your pullets when you get them six or eight weeks old. You've got them started but it takes feed, good feed, to finish the job and build the egg factory. Pullets fed Growena cost no more than those fed other feeds but they develop better and quicker; they lay eggs months earlier—and they lay longer. They lay eggs in the fall and winter months when eggs bring good prices. They make more money.

THE POLITICAL TREND

The steadily increasing registration of Democrats in the preferential primaries clearly shows which way the tide is running. At the recent primary more than 80,000 Democratic votes were cast in North Dakota as against a previous maximum for that party of 13,000. New Hampshire, according to the New York Times, rolled up what was "apparently the heaviest Democratic vote ever cast in a Presidential primary." A similar report came from Nebraska, where extra Democratic ballot sheets had to be printed before the polls closed. In Illinois the Republicans lost 350,000 votes, while the Democrats added approximately 500,000, compared with the 1928 primary. In Wisconsin the Democrats turned out the greatest vote in their history, exceeding by 75,000 their 1928 showing—to the detriment of the La Follette Progressives, who lost many thousands of followers to the opposition party. Registrations in other states show a like trend. For example, the number of Democratic voters registered in California, President Hoover's state, increased by 388,739; at the same time Republican registration dropped 237,493.

This should be a Democratic year and it will be if the Democrats do not make fools of themselves. Real Democrats should see to it that the interests opposed to Democratic success are not permitted to jeopardize the best chance the party has had since the election of Woodrow Wilson.

JAMES SMITHSON'S GIFT

One of the most remarkable gifts in history, both with respect to the circumstances under which it was given and the results which sprang from it, was that of James Smithson, an Englishman, who left his fortune of about $540,000 to the United States about 100 years ago.

From this legacy has arisen one of the leading scientific establishments in the world, in accordance with the terms of his will, which provided that the money should be used to found in the city of Washington, under the name of the Smithsonian Institution, "an establishment for the increase and diffusion of knowledge among men."

A strange fact connected with the gift is that during his life James Smithson never set foot on American soil. He was born in France, of English parents, the son of Hugh Smithson, who afterwards became the Duke of Northumberland; his mother was Elizabeth Keate Macie, a descendant of Henry VII. Smithson was a scientist of some note, deeply interested in research, particularly in chemistry. Just why he left his fortune to the United States is unknown.

In any event, it was recently said, "Smithson's bequest became the inspiration of American science and even to a measurable extent of world science." Besides it has served as an example to other men who have given princely gifts to promote the spread of knowledge.

In 1904 Smithson's remains were brought from Genoa, Italy, where he died in 1829, and interred in the grounds of the Smithsonian Institution.

PAY THE SMALL BILLS

It is no doubt true that one of the reasons for the prolonged business depression is the decreased purchasing power of the masses.

Decreased purchasing power means that the people have little ready money to spend for either the necessities or the luxuries of life.

The scarcity of ready cash among those whom we call the middle class could be relieved somewhat if those who have money, or who may have a bank credit, would use their resources to pay all bills promptly.

Bills rendered for labor, and repair work, such as plumbing, electrical work, printing jobs, garage bills and the like, should be paid upon receipt of the invoice instead of delaying payment until a statement is rendered or until settlement is requested in some other way.

In some cases the little fellow is afraid to dun his big customer for fear of offending him and losing his future business, and the big fellow who could easily pay these small bills promptly, holds them up under the impression that the little fellow does not need the money right away, or he feels that the bill is too small to warrant the bother of paying it out of the ordinary routine. The bill that seems small to the big fellow is large to the little fellow, and he, not getting the money for his labor, will, of course, be unable to buy that new suit or that new hat or a pair of shoes that he needs so badly, and so is forced to make the old things do. The natural consequence is that the retail store registers a decline in sales. This in turn affects the manufacturer, making reductions necessary all around, including further wage cuts and further discharging of employees.

The prompt payment of bills, as herein stated, is not a cure-all, but if put into practice by the thousands of people who are able to make prompt payment, there is no question but that it would be a factor in hastening the return of the country to normal business conditions. Try it.

TODAY

With the setting sun, your hopes of yesterday died out. All right. That was yesterday.

Things didn't materialize the way you dreamed they would. All right again. Now—the present hour—is Today. Yesterday bears no relation to it, except perhaps, the relation that a nightmare bears to the morning after.

Forget all about yesterday . . . it is dead and buried in the cemetery of Time.

Today is alive. Are you? Well then, get busy! Plunge from your shoulders the depressing weight of those hopes that haven't come true. Stand erect. Man, the world is yours! You have just as much claim on its good things—on the things you've longed for and prayed for and worked for—as the other fellow has.

This hour has been handed to you as a gift from the overflowing storehouse of Eternity.

What are you doing with it? Answer that. Moping? Growing? Despairing? For shame!

God has favored you with another chance to make good. He has given you Today. Prove your appreciation by making it a stepping-stone to happier, worthier tomorrows!—The Imprint, St. Paul, Minn.

Mother Earth Gets Spring Facial

A REMARKABLE RECORD

When I went to the county superintendent's office to get certain information concerning the indebtedness of the schools of the county, I found several indications of the quiet but thorough work going on in that office.

Everyone who has had experience with school management knows how hard it is to prevent school districts from accumulating overdrafts. The record shows that the persistent effort to reduce this evil has resulted in reducing the number of districts having overdrafts from 37 to 1, and that one with an overdraft of only $65.

A complete record is kept of the bonded debt of every one of the 44 common school districts of the county, showing the amount of each bond, the number of them, date when due, date when given, interest, and every other detail concerning them. At a glance, one can see what each district owes and when it is to be paid.

A large county map has been prepared showing the boundary and location of each of the 44 districts and the number of the district.

Also a separate map of each of the 44 districts showing the surveys in each district, enabling trustees to tell what land belongs to each district.

Then a separate list of all the land surveys belonging to each of the 44 districts with the acreage of each survey.

In addition to all this, neatly pasted on one large board is a picture of the school building of every school district in its proper location, and with the district number given under it.

As complete a record as can be found in the most exacting business corporation.

Besides all this there is a system of supervisory work going on which I will not set forth here, but is a credit to the county.

If any office in the State can make a better showing than this I would like to see it. Such efficiency is the result of natural ability based on many years of actual experience in town and country schools. If any teacher has a better record he has a good one.

This is certainly a remarkable record. And this statement is based on personal knowledge of much of the work. I think public officials who work faithfully should be given credit for efficiency where it exists.

R. E. Sherrill.

Anyway, the people are all willing to patronize the charity entertainments to which no admission is charged.

One of the modern wonders is how the girl of today escapes a touch of painter's colic.

With the jazz orchestras playing the popular songs all the time, many of us are longing for the unpopular ones for a change.

The girls are blamed for calling up the boys and asking for dates, but anyway this habit swells the telephonic company revenues.

People who want their names kept out of the paper when they have done something really exciting, often want them put in when they have done nothing worth mentioning.

Congress should amend the migratory bird law to provide a sanctuary for the lame ducks.

Getting rid of bad habits is a good habit to get into.

Advertisements Printed for Your Convenience

"Suppose all the advertisers in your favorite newspaper should stop advertising for a week.

What inconvenience would result! How much telephoning and shopping around to get the answers to such questions as: "What's playing at the theatres? When will that new vacuum cleaner be on sale? Who is offering shoe bargains? Where can I buy that dry shampoo Emily told me about?"

The answers to these questions, and to hundreds of similar ones that people ask every day, are news. VITAL news. You're really interested to learn that a certain store is selling a product you need for a price you can afford to pay.

Furthermore, the advertisements save your time, for you can read them quickly. They save your energy, for you can read them at home and plan just what to buy and where to buy. And they save your money, by enabling you to adjust your needs to the limitations of your budget. In short, they are pocketbook editorials, condensing and interpreting for you the merchandise news of the day.

was unusual—always best. To her loved ones was a pathy and 'the consolation Gospel from which she derived her life.

Mrs. F. G. Alexander
 Mrs. Alexander was born in Kaufman county, Texas, January 2, 1856, and was married to F. G. Alexander September 28, 1878 and moved to Haskell county in 1894. She joined the church in childhood and has been a faithful Christian worker throughout the years. She was one of the charter members of the Methodist Church here. The First Methodist Church and Missionary Society in Haskell were organized in her home, and by her earnest, faithful work in the service of the church she was known as the Mother of Methodism in Haskell. She has written a history of the Woman's Missionary work here that is prized very highly by the organization. Her presence will be missed in the services of the church and its various branches of work.

Mrs. Alexander passed from this earth to her heavenly home April 11, 1932. Her pastor, Rev. Gordon and a former pastor, Rev. Vaughn of Spur, conducted the funeral services amid a veritable embankment of flowers, the beauty and fragrance of which were emblematic of her pure and consecrated life which was a beautiful service given unreservedly to her Master. Her friends were numbered by her acquaintances. Her influence will live on, leading them on and her own loved ones to the higher life. Her devotion

She Should Own a Boat

There was an accident on a suburban highway recently, just a simple one involving a lady driving north and a gentleman driving south. The cars collided head on. Both drivers climbed out. The lady was very apologetic. "It was all my fault," she said. "I was way over on the wrong side of the road. I can't imagine what I was thinking about. It was entirely my fault."

The gentleman stopped her with a courteous gesture. "Not at all, madam," he replied gallantly, "not at all. I saw you coming for half a mile back, and I could easily have turned off on at least two side roads and gotten out of your way."

Go Window-Shopping in Your Easy Chair

Relax for a moment and turn the pages of your newspaper. Let the advertisements help you to make your shopping plans. Do you need a dress, or a coat, or a hat? Perhaps a new blanket for a guest-room, some curtain material, or even a few new pots and pans for the kitchen? Of course, there are many things you want and need . . . but you may be letting many of them wait until you see in a store or a window exactly what you have in mind, at an especially alluring price.

Those are the very things you will find in advertisements. Attractive articles, new and improved ones, prices that make quick action an economy. Think how many steps it can save you to hunt out these things, and find them, in comfort at home! If a special opportunity is offered, you'll know about it in time. When new articles are announced, you can have them before they are the least bit out of date. And you can save hours of waiting and asking, miles of steps—and money too!

These are but a few of the ways the advertisements in your newspapers can serve you. If you read them regularly, you are sure to grow wise in the ways of purchasing . . . and saving.

Jumbled Calendars in India

India today still lives in constant chronological confusion due to its use of 17 different calendars.

Odd Cause of Stammering

It has been generally known that a naturally left-handed child forced to become right-handed may become a stammerer.

Temperature on Mars

Radiometric observations made at Lowell and Mount Wilson observatories agree that the temperature on the surface of the planet Mars rises well above freezing at the equatorial regions.

Represents the Ultimate

The word climax is from a Greek word meaning ladder, and is the rhetorical figure in which the sense rises gradually in a series of images.

When is a Goshawk?

Two distinct headmarks distinguish the goshawk from other hawks; a white band above the eye, widening out onto the back of the head and a black or blue-black skull-cap.

Actor (to colleague)—"What delightfully cold weather, Laddie. We're sure to get some good applause today from the unreserved parts of the house while they're getting their hands and feet warm!"—London Humorist.

First Commemorative Coins

The silver Columbian half dollar, 1892 and 1893, and the Isabella quarter dollar, struck in 1893, for the World's fair in Chicago, were the first commemorative coins made in the United States.

Eight Centuries Old

The eighth centenary of Waverley abbey, 1128-1928, was recently celebrated at Farnham, England.

Good Friends

Take time to select a good library for the growing boy or girl. Good books at hand in their room will prove fine comrades and they will soon learn to disdain books of low caliber.

Statistics of Longevity

English people live longer than Americans. Our death rate for adult women is one-third higher than theirs, and for adult men 15 per cent higher.—Woman's Home Companion.

Beaten Kettle Two Feet Deep

A kettle hammered from a huge nugget of copper and believed to be 200 or 300 years old, is owned by Francis Mark, an Ottawa Indian.

Unbent Twigs

Modern schools insist that the tender twig of a child's personality should be encouraged to grow, unbent and untrammelled.—Woman's Home Companion.

Light Not "Matter"

Light is not generally classified as matter, since matter is anything that occupies space and has weight.

Back to the Farm

In all history we hear much of the simple, better life on farms, and of strong men developing from such surroundings.—Country Home.

Waterfront is Far-Flung

There are 771 miles of waterfront in the port of New York—a basic reason for the maritime greatness of the western metropolis.

Unkindest Cut of All

The unkindest cut is that which affects the pay check.—Omaha Evening World-Herald.

Limit to Ferbearance

There is, however, a limit at which ferbearance ceases to be a virtue.—Burlingame.

Ideal of Truth-Telling

"Hardest Thing in Life"

On the moral side an inflexible habit of truth implies most of the virtues. Courage, for example, "Without courage, for example, truth, and without truth there can be no other virtue."

It is also a social grace. There is no greater bore than the man who, from some mental twist or defect, is habitually slipshod in his statements of fact.

But when we pass from the obvious duties of not telling cowardly or cruel lies and of aiming at the rough-and-ready fidelity to fact which ordinary life demands, we find the ideal of truth-telling a difficult one—the most difficult thing in life.

Discovers Evidence of Old Hawaiian Culture

Paved stone foot trails extending over the widest and rockiest stretches of lava, artificial fish ponds, which are formed by building a barrier of rock across a narrow bay or cove, and playgrounds represented by prepared tracks down grassy slopes for sled coasting are among the accomplishments of a forgotten culture found by W. M. Walker.

He also found sites of 230 altar places, usually on headlands overlooking the sea and oriented towards the ocean, which evidently had a prominent place in the old religion.

The old chiefs, Mr. Walker found in his research, carried on under the auspices of the Bishop museum of Honolulu, were buried in almost inaccessible cliffs where it is practically impossible to find their graves.

Crafts of England

Of all the souvenirs which tourists love to bring back with them, objects of national or local craftsmanship hold a first place. In England many old crafts still survive in the country places, but they must be searched out.

Meteors Move Fast

Meteors travel at the tremendous speed of 25 miles per second. This will explain why some meteorites are hot when picked up immediately after they fall and why other meteorites, excavated some hours after they fall, are at that time so cold that frost forms on them as soon as they are exposed to the air.

Mysterious Magnetic Rocks

Magnetic bowlders may have played a part in a shipwreck when the American liner Western World went aground off Ponta do Bol, on the Brazilian coast.

Changed Meaning of Names

The meaning of words is always changing and one reason for this is because we adopt a word from another language and incorporate it in our own, giving a different interpretation to its meaning.

Indian Relics Gathered

From New Jersey Caves

Scientists carefully going over the ground at Moody's Rock and Bevens have recovered some very interesting relics of the Indian occupancy of that part of the state of New Jersey.

At Bevens there are two caves, opening to the left and right of the rock roof projection, which is about 60 feet long. The cave to the right is low and damp, the one to the left is dry, habitable and 7 feet high.

Fabulous Birds Feature of Old Songs and Story

Crane, dove, heron and duck are among birds of historic times which resemble the fabulous birds of ancient days. Scratched on stone, the Chaldeans left behind them a bird with sharply curved beak, its long wings, outspread, look like two fine-toothed combs.

The albatross is in the procession of feathered spirits, with its long pocket-tipped beak and bright eyes. So is the Ancient Mariner, with the shadowy albatross tied round his neck, on the deck of a ship that drifts becalmed upon "a painted ocean."

New York Cold Spot

The coldest spot in the eastern part of this country is thought to be Owl's Head, in Franklin county, New York. Temperatures of 30 to 40 degrees below zero are not unusual there.

Paradise for Shoppers

For centuries the center of Japan's arts and crafts, Kyoto, the ancient capital, has never relinquished its leadership in the creation of things beautiful. Here, in tiny shops handed down from father to son, the secrets of the craft are jealously guarded.

Don't Overfeed Goldfish

Overfeeding is the commonest cause of death among goldfish. Feed them only every other day, and just what they will eat. At the start you will not know just how much to feed them for a meal.

Bears' Complete Stupor

When a bear retires for the winter, his sleep is very little like ordinary sleep. The state of unconsciousness is much deeper and far more difficult to break. Only one thing can break this death-like sleep, and that is temperature.

Not All Men are Stevedores. As the magnificent steamer into Boston harbor, the stevedores dragged their bows.

The officer of the liner picked up his magnifying glass and said, "Hi, there, he yells, a dirty little tub of yours is in the way."

A small man at the hotel dragger stuck out his jaw sively.

"Are you the captain of the ship?"

"No," returned the officer.

"Then you'd do well to get to your equals!" snapped the fellow.
