All Around
The Town

BY MARY ANN SARCHET

Christmas was merrier for Rhonda (Sutton) McGinn and her family than they had thought it would be. A few days before Christmas, Rhonda had been at the dentist office for a couple of hours and when she returned home found her door open.

On checking the home, she found that the family's Christmas gifts, TV, VCR and other valuables were missing. It was even learned later that United Parcel Service had delivered a package to the McGinn home that the burglars had signed for and taken as well.

Jack and Teresa Sutton had attempted to re-purchase Christmas gifts for their grandchildren, and found things they needed were out of stock so close to Christmas.

On the late news Rhonda saw a police report about a car being stopped on a traffic violation and the pictures showed the car with the trunk open and parcels in the trunk. She remarked to her husband that it looked like their packages, but he refused to believe this.

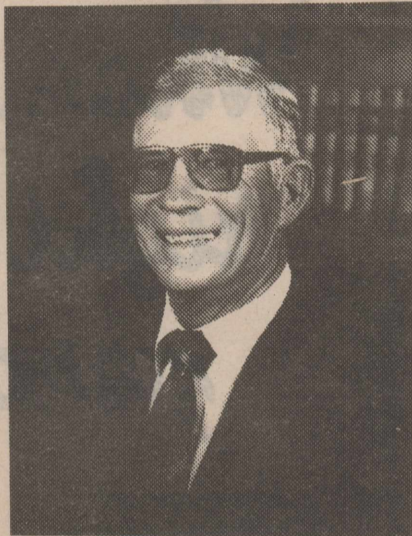

She was right, though. Those were their things and all of them were returned unharmed to the McGinn family before Christmas.

Do you believe in Christmas miracles now?

The next blood drive will be Tuesday, January 7, when the bloodmobile comes here from Coffee Memorial Blood Center in Amarillo.

The bloodmobile will be at City Hall in Silverton from 10:00 a.m. until 2:00 p.m.

Patton-Sanders Vows Exchanged In Double-Ring Ceremony Here

Lisha DeLyn Patton became the bride of Kelly James Sanders in an evening ceremony at the Silverton Church of Christ on December 21, 1991. Ray Cunningham of Lubbock performed the double-ring candlelight service.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Jerry H. Patton of Silverton, and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Harold Sanders of O'Donnell.

An a capella chorus composed of Mr. and Mrs. John Francis, Mr. and Mrs. Elton Cantwell, Mr. and Mrs. Barry Francis, Mrs. Fred Arnold and J. D. Nance presented wedding selections throughout the ceremony.

Wedding music included "Sunrise, Sunset," "The Wedding Song," "O Perfect Love," "Faithful and True," "Looking Through the Eyes of Love" and "You Will Never Walk Alone."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white crystal sheer Chantilly lace lavished with sequins and pearls which adorned the fitted bodice and high wedding band collar. Strands of pearls draped across the keyhole bodice back. The poet sleeves formed bridal points at the wrists. A full skirt and semi-cathedral train were circled with wide banks of Chantilly lace above deep ruffles of sheer crystal. Deep inverted V's of lace rose from the hemline to frame cascading rows of ruffles. A large bow of crystalline at the bodice back added the final touch.

Her veil draped in three sheer layers of crystal resembling ruffles. A band of fancy lights and candelabra accented with boughs of fresh evergreens and white doves. Pews were marked with sprays of fresh evergreen, white doves, white roses and white bows. Windows were decorated with large sprays of evergreen and votive candles. The center aisle was lined with white Christmas lights.

RECEPTION

Following the ceremony, a reception honored the newlywed couple in the Pioneer Room at First State Bank.

The bridal table was adorned with a white lace cloth and held a three-tiered wedding cake decorated with bride and cowboy groom. Staircases along each side of the cake led down to the four heart-shaped cakes decorated with red roses. A crystal punch bowl and red flowers accented the table.

The groom's table was covered with a Christmas plaid cloth with holly green floor-length underlay. Garland holly caught up with Christmas tinsel and gold leaves graced the table edges and elegant brass candelabra accented with red tapers and a pair of lovebirds enhanced the setting. The cheesecake served was encircled with green holly topped with a red chocolate poinsettia, and gold appointments completed the setting.

Guests were treated to a variety of hors d'oeuvres, coffee and spiced tea.

Serving at the reception were Tracy Stark of Lubbock, Faye Mullino of Rochester, Robin Ellis of San Antonio, Rebecca Pyron of O'Donnell and Allison Cornett of West Grove, Pennsylvania.

Following a wedding trip to the Bahamas the couple will reside in San Angelo where they attend Angelo State University.

COURTESIES

Miscellaneous showers were given for the couple in Silverton, O'Donnell and San Angelo.

A brunch was hosted by Derinda and Kari Patton honoring the bride and her attendants on the morning of the wedding.

pearls and sequins highlighted the silk headpiece.

Her bridal bouquet was a cascading creation of white roses, rosebuds, pesovian lilies, baby's breath, pearl tridescence sprays and English ivy. She carried three linen handkerchiefs in honor of her late Auntie, late Grandmother Minnie Haynes and Clara Clark for something old.

To further carry out bridal tradition, her gown was something new. For something borrowed, she wore a diamond drop necklace of her mother's. As something blue, she wore a blue comb in her hair. A garter made by Sylvia Fogerson of white satin trimmed with white lace inset with pearls also was worn. The pennies symbolized the year the two were born with a red satin bow.

Serving as maid of honor was Dawn Mitchell of San Angelo. Bridesmaids were Tara Nance of College Station, Keely Burson of Lubbock, Regina Cruse of San Angelo and Shellie Cornett of Lubbock. Jade Cornett of Lubbock, cousin of the bride, served as flower girl. The honor attendants wore dresses of red satin designed with fitted bodices, long puffed sleeves and were enhanced with large red bows. The teal-length bouffant skirts flared with white satin underlining.

Serving as best man was Ryan Gass of O'Donnell. Groomsmen were Scott Brewer of Lubbock, Wesley Little of Lubbock, Cody Crouch of Tescalo and Chad Coburn of San Angelo. Tye Culp of Lamesa, nephew of the groom, served as ring bearer.

Guests were seated by Craig Patton, brother of the bride, and Brad Davis of Lamesa.

Candlelighters were Katy Cornett of West Grove, Pennsylvania, cousin of the bride, and Jason McCleky of Hurst, nephew of the groom.

Alesha Patton registered the guests as they entered the building.

Jim Cogdell and Work Smooth in the National Cutting Horse Association World Championship Futurity in Will Rogers Coliseum in Fort Worth.

Young Rider Carries On Family Tradition

Jim Cogdell atop Work Smooth and Charlie Cord, the owner and rider of Whats Money, led non-pro division semifinalists with scores of 218.5 during the National Cutting Horse Association World Championship Futurity December 11 at Will Rogers Coliseum in Fort Worth.

Cogdell, 19, who lives in northern Briscoe County on his family's ranch, and Cord, a Ketchum, Idaho resident, advanced to the December 13 finals. Riders with scores of 213 or higher made the cut.

The December 12 show began at 8:00 a.m. with finals in amateur and limited non-pro divisions. In the evening, many people congregated at the Charles Goodnight Gala at The Worthington.

At the gala, Cogdell's father, Billy, 59, who owns Work Smooth, was inducted into the NCHA Hall of Fame. The road to earning one of the sport's highest honors hasn't been smooth for Cogdell, who was paralyzed by polio for nine months in 1952.

The Fort Worth Star-Telegram organized the gala which was a full evening of entertainment. The night started with a world class western art show and silent auction, followed by dinner, introduction of new NCHA Hall of Fame members, and a tribute to Perry Bass as the 1991 winner of the Charles Goodnight Award.

Music was provided by the 1990 Country Music Association group of the year, Highway 101. When Cogdell was recognized, they told of his accomplishments over the years, his involvement in the cutting horse industry and showed a slide show on a big screen of Cogdell, his family, parts of the ranch and a few of his horses. He was officially inducted into the NCHA Members Hall of Fame during the Open Finals of the Futurity on Sunday, December 15, in the Will Rogers Memorial Coliseum. Cogdell and James Kenney, the other Members Hall of Fame inductee, were driven around the arena in a buggy and introduced to the crowd before being presented their awards.

Billy Cogdell, who has owned a Futurity champion, now can walk, drive an automobile and has attended this year's event in box seats on the east corner of the arena right by the action. He went to the Futurity every day in a wheelchair after injuring his right knee in a fall two weeks earlier.

That week, Cogdell watched three of his four children—Billy Rank and Jim Cogdell and Penny Carpenter—compete in the non-pro division. He said his son, Dick, usually rides but sat out this week because of the recent birth of his second son.

"All of my children help me on the ranch," Cogdell said. The family trains cutting horses in an arena on the ranch.

"I've been in the ranch and horse business for 40 years," Cogdell said. "I showed in Fort Worth at the Stock Show in 1951. I had polio a year later."

The disease didn't stop him from becoming an owner to be reckoned with. He said seven of his mounts have advanced to the Futurity finals. In 1978, Larry Reeder won the Futurity on Cogdell's horse named Lynx Melody.

Work Smooth was just one of many promising, debuting three-year-olds Cogdell has brought to the Futurity.

"It's a big thrill to have a horse in the finals at this show," Cogdell said. "It compares with having a horse in the All-American Futurity (in Ruidoso, New Mexico). I've had both."

But the finals berth was a high point for Cogdell's son, Jim. The younger Cogdell said he never had advanced past the first go-round of the Futurity. He said his best outing was a finals qualification at the Non-pro Cutting Horse Show in Amarillo.

"It's probably the best I've ever felt on a horse," Jim Cogdell said. "It's one of the biggest thrills I've ever had."

"He (Work Smooth) will put his head down out there. He works really low headed. He can stop hard, turn on his hocks and turn back a cow."

Jim Cogdell's horse had just tied with Whats Money ridden by Charlie Cord of Idaho with identical scores of 218.5.

In the Futurity open division finals, Crackin, now owned by Gregory Williamson of Fort Worth, scored 217 to place seventh.

Crackin was raised by Billy Cogdell. Her mother, Lynx Melody, is owned by Cogdell and was the 1978 NCHA Futurity Champion. Her father, Smart Little Lena, was the 1982 NCHA Futurity Champion and Cogdell is one of the original shareholders in the Smart Little Lena Syndicate.

Billy Cogdell sold Crackin in the 1990 NCHA Futurity Sale to Williamson. Crackin was the high-selling horse of that sale. She also was the highest-advancing horse in the 1991 NCHA Futurity of those horses sold in last year's Futurity Sale. Crackin scored a 217 for her seventh place finish in the Open division of the Futurity. This earned Williamson $26,255.00. Cracken was ridden by Faron Hightower.

Crackin won an additional $13,000.00 to be split by Williamson, her owner, and Cogdell, her consignor in last year's sale, for being the highest advancing horse of those sold in last year's sale.

In the non-pro Futurity Finals, Jim Cogdell and Work Smooth won $11,121 for their efforts. The horse is owned by Billy Cogdell and was shown by Jim Cogdell. Jim marked a 218.5 in the Semi-Finals. He then progressed to the Finals where he tied for 11th and 12th places with a score of 211.5.

All events took place in Fort Worth from December 3 to December 15 during the 30th Annual National Cutting Horse Association World Championship Futurity. It is held every year in the Will Rogers Coliseum in Fort Worth and is for three-year-old horses that have never been shown in cutting horse competition before.

LET'S PRAY THIS NEW YEAR BRINGS PEACE AND PROSPERITY

We've just begun a brand new year,
For '92 at last is here.
We hope whatever will befall
Brings peace of mind to one and all.
The year just past sustained the blows
Of war and economic woes;
While other nations that we see
Are still determined to be free.
Their resolutions of this kind
Inspire us to keep in mind
Our own resolve to go and pray
That we may see a brighter day.
So let us worship God each week;
An opportunity unique
To help us keep our goals in sight,
And thereby start the new year right.
