

Weinert Is Scene of Various Events

Work is the order of the day here as the fine rains of last week have been growing fast, and the crops are showing signs of being well in the neighborhood, and the work looks deserted.

Recent Bride Honored

Mrs. A. L. Smith and Mrs. J. F. Cadenhead, were joint hostesses last Thursday, honoring Mrs. Hoyte Gilbreath, formerly Miss Valeria Sadler, at the home of Mrs. Smith. The lovely home was decorated with red roses and larkspur. An interesting program was given. Mrs. Irvin Cugin gave a toast to the bride, who responded with a toast honoring those left behind. Miss Thelma Therwanger gave a reading, "He and I," by James Whitcomb Riley. Mrs. Otis Burnett advised the bride how to cook the groom, which was a very fine recipe. Little Linnie and Gwnalee Smith, dressed as a bride and groom, who had just married, and starting on the honeymoon, came in our midst asking us to go with them to the station to see them on their journey. The company followed and there were surprises in store for the bride. The dining table was loaded with beautiful and useful gifts for her. After receiving these gifts, the bride in a very sweet way, expressed appreciation for the many things she had received. Delicious refreshments were served the guests.

MEMORIAL DAY

Amid its preoccupation with economic stress, the nation paused Wednesday to celebrate with solemnity and pride the deeds of bravery and patriotism performed by its sons on land and sea in the hour of emergency.

Each year more and more graves of our soldier dead claim the loving attention of relatives, friends and living comrades, who on May 30, place upon them flowers and flags as loving tributes to those who sleep.

This beautiful custom is said to have originated at Petersburg, Va., where, on June 9, 1865, the citizens decorated the graves of a number of Confederate soldiers who had fallen in the battle while defending the town on the same date a year before.

Accordingly, he issued a proclamation next year, calling upon all posts of the G. A. R. to observe May 30 as Decoration Day, or Memorial Day, by which it is also known, and this day is now a legal holiday in 40 states and in all U. S. possessions.

In recent years, especially since the World War, this date has been observed more generally in the South, under the auspices of the American Legion, although all Southern States also observe Confederate Memorial Day on different dates in the various states.

National Decoration Day, on May 30, is the occasion for especially impressive ceremonies at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington Cemetery, Washington, D. C., where the President and high officials of our own and foreign governments usually participate in the exercises.

Each recurring Memorial Day ought to impress upon Americans anew not only an appreciation of what they owe the survivors of the fighting men of the sixties whose "thin line of blue" is rapidly growing thinner, but a determination to avoid, if possible, in the future every influence calculated to lead the country into new conflicts.

Memorial Day, and every other patriotic holiday, may well be dedicated to the thoughts of peace—present and future—as well as to thoughts of wars passed. We have seen the devastation and tragedy of conflict. It remains for us as a nation, devoted to the arts of husbandry and industry, so to meet the issue of the hour as to make unnecessary the repetition of such sacrifices as come to every American mind on Memorial Day.

PREPARING TO BARGAIN

Anticipating favorable action by Congress on the proposed bill empowering the President to negotiate reciprocal trade agreements, certain foreign countries are reported as subjecting American manufacturers shipping goods abroad to a number of new and oppressive trade restrictions.

Recently more than ten nations have established new regulations which bear heavily upon American goods. France through quotas and marketing regulations, Switzerland by establishing quotas on American products and a number of Latin-American republics have set up restrictions which will injure exporters of many lines of goods.

We have no doubt that such practices will be given due consideration if and when negotiations for reciprocal trade treaties are begun by the United States.

These countries will find that they cannot put anything over on President Roosevelt.

We read that the United States fleet has left the Pacific for the Atlantic. Someone must have seen Dillinger in the East.

A news item says that the air in some of our industrial centers is polluted with sulphur. Especially, just after General Johnson has been in town.

There's one thing we'd like to see organized in Haskell—a soft baseball league, composed of young business men, whether fat or lean. About four teams would be sufficient, and the games could be of about five or six innings duration.

RAMBLING — Whew! These swatches! Even the fellows who follow the professions have jerked at their coats. . . . P. L. Daugherty nudged us as we were leaving down town the other morning and remarked that we help him break a limo out of a mesquite tree which had grown so long that it scarred paint on passing cars.

A Salt Lake City man stole a bathtub from his neighbor. That's one way to keep from being pestered by singing. A Philadelphia heart specialist advises men to quit golf at 45.

Government officials are disappointed in the revenue yielded by legal liquor. And the consumers are disappointed in the quality of the stuff, too.

There seems to be a decided trend toward consolidation anymore. Often it's a case of merge or submerge. "What's more refreshing than a cold bath in the morning?" asks a writer. Answer—No cold bath.

More RAMBLING—According to Roy Sanders, "that's what you would call a 'litter' ". . . . Carlsbad is said to be a nice place for honeymooners to visit. . . . Possessing no golf clubs, no golf shoes, no golf balls didn't keep us from losing a game in the tournament Tuesday.

Mrs. J. F. Pinkerton and family wish to thank the many friends for their kindness and sympathy during the illness of our husband and father.

EXPERIENCE AND PRACTICE

Practice is doing the same thing over and over again whether it is done in the right way or not. Experience carries with it constant improvement...

It has been our policy to never let Kinney Funeral Service degenerate into mere practice. Perhaps that is why our Funeral Service is a superior service...
