Child Welfare Survey in State Nears Completion

AUSTIN, Tex.—A child welfare survey of the State of Texas, which involved the counting of every child in Texas who is disabled, or whose father is a war veteran, or whose parents are on the relief rolls, will be completed in the early fall. This project, started by the Texas Relief Commission about a year ago, was abandoned in the fall of 1934 by that organization and was resumed by the Bureau of Research in the Social Sciences of The University of Texas. Collection of material was completed during the winter and spring, and a special investigator, Miss Grace E. Benjamin from the American Public Health Association, was employed this summer to make a number of special surveys and to write the report of the project, with particular attention to an analysis of some of the data shown by the statistics accumulated.

This study has involved the checking of 140,000 homes in 170 counties of Texas, and represents final case histories of more than one hundred thousand children. Results of this study have already become of use, according to Dr. W. C. Gettys, University professor of psychology and chairman of the research bureau in charge of the study. For one thing, cards containing case histories of disabled children in all of the counties contained in the survey have already been turned over to J. J. Brown, director of vocational rehabilitation in the State Department of Education. Legislative appropriations have been available for the study since 1928, and immediate steps are being taken after September 1 to provide vocational training for these disabled children.

DRY LAW REPEAL URGED BY SHEPPARD

Senator Points Out Disappointments In State Legalizing Liquor

WASHINGTON.—Senator Morris Sheppard, author of the Eighteenth amendment to the Federal Constitution, and for many years an advocate of national and State prohibition of the sale of intoxicating liquors, issued a statement here Sunday addressed to the people of Texas advocating retention of State constitutional prohibition. In 1933 Senator Sheppard campaigned throughout a large part of the State opposing the Texas vote to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment, using a sound truck and covering 4,870 miles within the State. Senator Sheppard's statement follows: "The failure of practically every assurance of improved liquor conditions which the wets said would come with the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment ought to serve as a warning to the people of Texas to retain State constitutional prohibition, and to continue the fight against liquor with every weapon at their command."

"We may reasonably expect from repeal of State constitutional prohibition in Texas what by far the greater part of the Nation is already realizing from total repeal, State and national. "This repeal of local and national prohibition in the larger part of the Nation outside Texas has not been followed by anything like effective regulation or control. It has not decreased the consumption of alcoholic beverages. It has not promoted temperance. It has not reduced crime. It has not eliminated the bootlegger, the gangster, the kidnaper or the illicit distiller. It has not produced as much as half the revenue expected, while the diversion of earnings to the purchase of intoxicating liquors on an accumulating scale constitutes a frightful economic and moral disaster. It has been marked by an increasing number of arrests for intoxication, for driving while drunk and for the offenses growing out of the use of liquor, by the return of the saloon or its equivalent with women and girls conspicuous among patrons, servers, bartenders. Does Texas want a condition of this sort?"

Crime Not Decreased

"How often were we told that the repeal of national prohibition was necessary in order to reduce crime? Undoubtedly our present national administration has made the most intelligent and determined effort to reduce crime that has ever been observed in our history. We are all gratified to note the progress it has made in apprehending gangsters, kidnapers and racketeers. We find, however, from official records that the volume of crime in the Nation has not been decreased by repeal of national prohibition and that the number of prisoners in our penal institutions is greater than at any prior time."

NEW BOUNDARY LINES ASKED FOR JUSTICE PREC. 4

Over 100 Names Affixed to Petition to Commissioners Court—Beer Affected

Hearing Saturday

A petition, signed by over 100 voters, has been presented to the Commissioners Court asking the members to reestablish the boundary lines affecting the McConnell and Plainview communities in Justice Precinct 4. A hearing has been scheduled for Saturday morning.

The voters signing the petition wish to be placed in Justice Precinct 1.

The Plainview voting environs take in a territory bordering the Jones county line at Stamford, thence west. Practically all of the beer gardens in Justice Precinct 4 are located on the highway between Haskell and Stamford.

In asking for a reestablishment of Justice Precinct 4 boundary lines, the petition failed to make any mention of the beer question which has been voted upon there several times.

Justice Precinct 4 is the only precinct where beer is sold legally, or without interference from the law. The county, during the statewide election voted preponderantly "dry" according to tabulated votes with the exception of the one precinct and beer has been dispensed there since a later precinct election.

The present boundary lines of Justice Precinct 4 includes the town of Sagerton, west of Plainview.

According to one county official, the present voting communities of McConnell and Plainview would remain places where beer could be sold even though transferred to Justice Precinct 1 unless an election was called to settle the question that the new boundary lines established would not affect the beer gardens in the least.

However, according to the same official, it is not exactly certain that such an opinion would be upheld.

RECIPES AND MENUS

By Department of Home Economics
Texas State College for Women
(CMA)

DENTON, Tex.

During the hot summer months salads are very refreshing and appetizing, especially the frozen ones. Many varieties may be made and they are easily prepared. The frozen ones may be packed early and when ready to serve may be put together with little or no trouble. Salads are more appetizing if they are not fussed or handled a great deal; they should be simple and yet attractive. Some of the summer salads are:

Date and Almond Salad—Put one package of seeded dates and one cupful of salted almonds through the meat grinder. Mix with boiled dressing. Top with lettuce leaves as a foundation in mound-like shapes and cover with coconut shredded.

Frozen Fruit Salad—1 large can of sliced pineapple (cut in small cubes), 1 pound of seeded small grapes, 1 can Royal Ann cherries, 1 quart double cream, 1 pint of mayonnaise, 2 small rolls of cheese, 1 pint maraschino cherries (diced). Cut and strain all of the fruit and squeeze out all of the juice. Put the mayonnaise on a small platter and add the cheese, mixing well. Add the cream whipped and then the fruit and mix well. Pack in a mould and be sure that the mold is lined with waxed paper. Pack in salt and ice and let stand five or six hours. Serve with lettuce.

Frozen Desserts

Tropical Triumph

Carefully combine and freeze thoroughly 2 cups crushed pineapple, 2 cups crushed ripe bananas, 2 cups whipped cream, 2 oranges (juice and grated rind), 2 limes (juice and grated rind), 2 egg whites, whipped light, 2 cups powdered sugar, 2 tablespoons vanilla. Serve with grated coconut. This serves 15.

Fruit and Nut Parfait

Soften 1/2 cup chopped candied pineapple, orange peel, and cherries in 3 tablespoons light cream syrup. Dissolve 1 teaspoon gelatin in 2 tablespoons cold water, melt and cool, then add to 2 cups whipped cream flavored with 1 tablespoon orange flower water and 1 teaspoon rose extract. Make an icing with 1 cup sugar and 1/2 cup water boiled till it threads, then pour in a fine stream over 3 egg whites whipped dry, beating constantly. Set pan in ice water and beat till cold and begin to set. Fold in whipped cream and candied fruit mixture. Then add 1/2 cup chopped almonds, pecan and pistachio nuts. Place in freezing compartment for three hours. Serve in tall glasses topped with large maraschino cherries and a little of the cherry syrup. This serves 12.

Pineapple Sherbet

Cook together juice of 1 large can crushed pineapple, 2 large lemons (juice only), 4 pints water and 1 cup sugar mixed with 2 heaping tablespoons flour. Strain, cool and partly freeze. Then add 1 cup light corn syrup, 1 1/2 cups powdered sugar and 3 egg whites whipped light. Freeze hard and let stand for three hours. It should be smooth and waxy in texture. This will serve 15.

Fancy Fruit Frappe

Dissolve 1 tablespoon gelatin in 1/2 cup water and melt. Then add 1 cup red currant juice, 1 cup red raspberry juice and 1 cup pineapple juice. Beat hard and partly freeze. Then add 2 cups powdered sugar and 3 egg whites whipped light. Freeze till quite fluffy, but not solid. This serves 21.

Miss Horton also said that in 1934 the Home Demonstration club women canned more than 4,000 carloads of food, planted 195,000 trees and shrubs, made 866,000 garments, repaired 15,000 pieces of furniture and helped 150,000 other farm women who were not members of home demonstration clubs, further reported Mrs. Bailey.

Those present were: Mesdames Charlie Childress, Paul Frierson, John Pitman, C. O. Scott, John Hayes, Hansford Harris, Chess Humphrey, Date Anderson, Homer Jenkins, Virgil Bailey, Misses Blanche and Willie Belle Frierson, Sibyl Scott and Evora Jenkins.

Kitchen Kinks

Prevents Silk From Slipping

To prevent silk materials from slipping while sewing, spread a large turkish towel over your lap; for machine sewing, pin it around the leaf.

Threading Your Needle

To readily thread any needle with a small eye, place a piece of white paper under it to reflect the light.

When Draw Spring Disappear

The ends of draw strings often slip and disappear. To prevent this trouble, sew a crocheted rosette, button or small ribbon rose on each end.

Remove Hair From Clothing

To remove the hair of our pets from our clothing and also automobile seats, we wring out a chamomile cloth real dry and wipe down the article. All the hair rolls into a little heap and so it is easily removed.

Leaky Fountain Pens

A small leakage between the head of a fountain pen and the ink barrel is caused by the joining parts being worn by constant screwing and unscrewing in refilling. I smear the screw of the head with vaseline before screwing it up and this makes an ink tight joint and insures a clean hold of the pen.

Presbyterian Sunday School Entertained.

The Presbyterian Sunday School was entertained at the home of the superintendent, Mr. Reynolds Wilson, last Friday evening. Picnic lunches were brought and spread on the lawn where all ages partook freely of the bountiful spread. One of the greatest delights was a large crock of delicious punch provided by the host and hostess.

Outdoor games and group singing were enjoyed until a "week's washing" was presented to the group's latest bride and groom. Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kelley. The "week's washing" turned out to be a sheet full of presents, which were opened and enjoyed by all.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Yancy, Mrs. Maymie Henderson of Lufkin, and Mrs. Elizabeth Riley of San Antonio, are visiting Mrs. E. E. Welsh and family of Midway.

Uncle Tobe Trice came in last week from Tipton, Calif., where he had been employed on a farm for the past three months. This is his second trip to Texas since going to California. He is convinced that Texas is the best place to be and Haskell the best in Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Myron Biard, Jr., are returning to Bible School in Los Angeles, Calif., via Plainview to visit with the former's sister, Mrs. Virgil Phillips.

Dinner Guests in Williamson Home Sunday.

Relatives taking dinner in the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Williamson Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. O. A. King and daughter Ilene, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest King of Hendrick, Okla., Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Rose H. D. Club.

The Rose H. D. Club met Aug. 6 at 2:30 p. m. in the home of Mrs. H. G. Scott. All members present enjoyed hearing Mrs. Spear's report on her trip to the Short Course. Our next meeting will be with Mrs. Henry Russell the first Tuesday in September. The girls club sponsor asks that the club girls meet with her at the same time at Mrs. Russell's and Ruby Stodghill will give her club a report on her Short Course trip.

YOU DON'T HAVE TO "BREAK IN" THE FORD V-8

You can drive it 50 miles an hour the day you buy it

THE FORD V-8 is ready for normal driving when you buy it. There is no tedious period of breaking-in for 500 or 1000 miles. You can drive it up to 50 miles an hour the first day. And after the first hundred miles you can drive it as fast as you desire.

That means greater motoring enjoyment for every motorist. It is especially important to motorists who are thinking about a new car for a vacation trip — to physicians, salesmen and all those who use a car for business. Instead of dragging along at slow speeds for days, you can make good time from the start.

The reason for this is as important as the result. The Ford V-8 needs no breaking-in because of unusual accuracy in the manufacture of moving parts and the smoothness of bearing surfaces. Clearances are correct when you buy the car. It is not necessary to depend on a long wearing-in period to eliminate tightness and insure smooth running. Longer life, greater economy and better performance are bound to result from such precision methods. The Ford V-8 gives you fine-car construction, along with fine-car performance, comfort, safety and beauty.

HENRY-LESSON RADCLIFFE

International Sunday School Lesson for August 16, 1936.

Golden Text: "Jesus loved Martha, and her sister, and Lazarus."—John 11:5.

Lesson Text: Luke 10:38-42; John 11:17-28.

Our lesson today presents a study of Jesus in the presence of friends, contrasted with his attitude towards those who were openly opposed to him. It was necessary, in both households, for Jesus to issue rebukes, but in one case he did so kindly, while in the other the denunciation was stern and unrelenting. Jesus knew the human heart beneath the external appearance in both cases and the difference there causes the difference in the treatment accorded.

Probably the home in which Jesus spent more of his time than any other during his active ministry was that of Martha, Mary and Lazarus in Bethany, a little village near Jerusalem, on the road to Jericho. Here he tarried often and seemed to appreciate retirement within its walls. The first part of our lesson tells us of an incident which occurred when Jesus visited this home and gives us a remarkable picturization of the different types represented by Martha and Mary.

Martha seems to have concerned herself more than Mary with the household duties. She was interested primarily in fulfilling the obligations of a hostess, seeing the little things necessary thereto as great duties. Mary on the other hand, appears to have appreciated the spiritual opportunity presented by the presence of Jesus and devoted her time to conversation with him. Feeling that Mary was not helping as she should, Martha presumed to command Jesus as to what he should do, in this case, make Mary help her. In a very considerate manner Jesus tried to tell Martha that it was not necessary to make so much fuss over him and his physical needs, that the more important thing was the spiritual values in life, which Mary had chosen.

The two sisters typified the spirit of service and the spirit of worship, each probably over-emphasizing the particular form. It would be much better to have a proper proportion, to cultivate a balanced service and worship. In passing judgment upon Mary and Martha it is well to bear in mind the lines written by Whittier:

When he, who, sad and weary, longing sore,
For love's sweat service, sought the sisters' door,
One saw the heavenly, one the human guest;
But who shall say which loved the Master best?

"Mary had the qualities that would make a better housekeeper than Martha," says Henry Clay Trumbull. "She could do more work, and do it better in an hour or in a day than could Martha; and she would make less fuss over it, and this would be less annoying to herself, to her family, and to her guests. We have every reason to suppose that this was evidenced in her every day practice. We have no authority for supposing that Martha was the only one of the sisters to attend to the housekeeping in the Bethany home, and that Mary left it all to her to do. The very fact that Martha was accustomed to expect Mary's help at ordinary times."

"Jesus Christ, in His own person, met the fact of fact and fought it, bringing life and immortality to light," says Albert Hughes. "Because He died, He becomes the Resurrection for other men who die. He was the first-fruits of all resurrections. Because He lives, other men in Him shall live also. If Christ be not risen from the dead, men can have no faith in their own coming from the dead. But now hath Christ risen up from the dead and become the first-fruits of them that slept. In his death God had a definite purpose, and this purpose was the smashing of sin and death. In his death Christ cried concerning that work, 'It is finished.' This is the hope of immortality for us. We through Him can look at death calmly and confidently and know with definite assurance that the cold and corrupt state is by no means the end."

Scientists Record The Songs Of Rare Birds

Expedition in the Southwest Preserves Voices of Unusual Species Before Their Extinction

BACKED by Albert R. Brand, Associate in Ornithology at the American Museum, the American Museum of Natural History-Cornell University Ornithological Expedition, a caravan of mud-spattered scientists and two truck-loads of delicate apparatus, are somewhere in one of the southern or southwestern States picturing rare and common birds and recording the voices of unusual species.

Catching the song of a rare bird, says The Literary Digest, is a gamble. At four o'clock in the morning the scientists are up, have their apparatus in place and, if their position is favorable, they may be able to record the song of a rare species which may be extinct in the future. The collapsible platform on the top of the truck, will permit photographers to have cameras, microphones and blind twenty feet above the ground. The recording "mike" has its back to the source of the sound. Like a telescopic mirror, its sensitive side, located at the focus of a three-foot parabolic reflector, brings the distant sounds to a point. The song of a bird at a distance of 1000 feet can be caught; at 400 to 500 feet sounds are faithfully reproduced.

The bird's song is recorded in straight lines, like a spectrum, at right angles to the long way of the film. The thickness of the lines represents the volume of sound; the number of lines to the inch, the pitch; and the film travels through the camera at the constant rate of eighteen feet per second. The "mike" disclosed the fact that, though the bird's song may be of short duration, it contains many notes. The winter wren's song, lasting a little more than seven seconds, contains 113 notes; but an experienced ornithologist, listening by ear, could only detect five separate notes.

Texas Cattlemen of Half Century Ago Fought, Laughed, Made History

Editor's note—The story which appears below appeared in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram on Friday, August 2, and is a story of Texas more than 50 years ago. It concerns Texas cattlemen and their convention which was held at Austin. Owing to the fact that Haskell county will celebrate its Golden Jubilee celebration here next fall in connection with the Central West Texas Fair, many of the Free Press readers may find it interesting to read of Texas, and of Texas men, when this county was in the process of being created. The writer, D. C. Earnest, now lives at Edinburg, Texas, but once lived on a ranch west of Colorado; punched cattle on Double Mountain, the Clear Fork of the Brazos, the North and South Concho River and west to Pecos.

(By D. C. Earnest)
About the year 1883, before the Driskill Hotel was erected in Austin, and the Avenue Hotel on Congress Avenue was the leading hotel in the capital city, the Texas Cattlemen's Convention was held there. Cattle were bringing good prices. There were millions of acres of free range, and cattlemen were unusually prosperous. They came from the Pecos, from Double Mountain, the Panhandle, the Conchos, the Clear Fork of the Brazos, the Nueces and from that great cattle territory west of Abilene. They came for the purpose of discussing with each other matters relating to the cattle business, to buy and sell—and for pleasure. J. W. Driskill, who afterward built the Driskill Hotel, and his three sons, all prominent cattlemen, were there; the Deats boys, Tom and Bob, from the Deep Creek outfit near Colorado, Texas; "Shanghai" Pierce from South Texas; Winfield Scott of Fort Worth and a thousand others.

One small rancher from out on the Staked Plains near Odessa, had never before attended a cattlemen's convention; in fact he had never before been financially able to get very far from his ranch, but this time he rode from his ranch to Odessa, where he caught a Texas and Pacific train and in due course reached the capital. The Austin hotels were crowded, but this bothered the small rancher not at all; it was his custom to "put up" at the wagon yard, so he finally located at a wagon yard on what was then known as East Pecan Street, now East Sixth street.

Couldn't Hear Preacher
The convention was held in the temporary Capitol at the head of Congress Avenue on the West side. The old Capitol had been destroyed by fire several years before and the new Capitol was not completed until 1888.

When the convention was called to order by the chairman, the small cowboy from the Plains was far in the rear of the crowded hall, but he was determined to see and hear. The chairman requested a local preacher to offer a prayer, and as he began in a low tone the small rancher assumed that the speaker was giving some inside information on the cattle business, and as he was unable to hear, he called out "Louder." This caused a subdued snicker over the audience, but had no effect on the preacher, who continued his prayer in a low tone, not audible in the rear of the hall. Then our small but alert cowboy from the Plains exclaimed: "Louder, old settler, we can't hear a dammed thing you say back here." The audience made no attempt to conceal its amusement, and the parson hurriedly closed his prayer.

After concluding the business of the convention, the cowmen dispersed to "take in" the city. Many who were thirsty were able to get relief at the Iron Front Saloon on Congress Avenue, near where the Stephen F. Austin Hotel now stands. Others congregated in the hotel lobbies and swapped yarns, bought and sold huge herds of longhorns, and still others visited J. C. Petmeck's gun store on the east side of the avenue down near the railroad station. However, they were not at Petmeck's to buy guns, but to buy the latest spur. The Petmeck's steel spur was the most popular manufactured in those days. They cost $5 a pair, regardless of quantity, and any cowboy or cowpuncher not equipped with a pair of Petmeck's steel spurs was not properly dressed.

Banquet Was Held

That night a cattlemen's banquet was held at the Avenue Hotel. The Governor and other notables were invited. There was an abundance of plain and fancy oratory; good stories were related. Champagne was as free as water. One of the most prominent and wealthy cowmen of Texas was there—better not mention his name, because in later years he was an ardent prohibitionist. Having consumed his full share of the champagne and other thirst-quenching beverages, he was in a reminiscent mood. He wished everybody to know how he had generated the Far West, driven the Indians back, tamed the West and established his ranch beyond the borders of civilization. To illustrate how he had quenched his thirst from a mud hole, he placed his glass of champagne on the banquet floor and got down on his hands and knees, but as he was in the act of drinking Ben Thompson of Austin, who resented the fact that he had not been invited to the banquet, came in with a six-shooter in each hand. Bang! Bang! Bang! And all the lights went out. When order was restored it was discovered that when the shooting began the man who had "tamed the West" had not taken time to rise to his feet, but escaped on hands and knees.

Early the next morning, after purchasing a dozen copies of the Austin Statesman containing an account of his "shooting up" the cattlemen's banquet, Thompson caught a train for Kansas City. It was his custom, after shooting up the town, to depart for Kansas City, there to remain until things quieted down. It was generally believed that the local peace officers always hunted for him up around the Capitol or over on Shoal Creek, west of town, when they knew he was down at the I. & G. N. depot waiting for a train.

After this episode, when banquets were held in Austin, Thompson's name always headed the list of guests. With all his faults, he was known as the best city marshal Austin ever had. He killed seven men, but those familiar with his career say he was never the aggressor; he always let the other fellow draw first. While serving his second term as city marshal, Thompson was persuaded by King Fisher to accompany him to San Antonio, and that night in Jack Harris' Theater, on March 9, 1884, Thompson and Fisher were shot to death without being given a chance to draw their guns.

THE MAIL HACK

Carried both passengers and express to Haskell county from Albany on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, and from Haskell to Albany on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. It consumed the entire day to make the trip. Oscar Cochran was the proprietor and he advertised in the Haskell City Free Press that "anyone could ride cheaper on the Mail Hack than by buggy—and I mean what I say."

We have many modes of travel today—the Haskell county citizens of 1935. And we have many plans suggested for the running of a business or a farm. Some of the plans are good—and some not so good, but this bank believes in many of the "old-fashioned" ways and will continue to serve its depositors in the best way possible while at the same time keeping in step with changing conditions.

We recommend that you see Will Rogers' picture coming to the Texas Theatre soon.

Corn Off the Cob —A Main Dish

Almost every truck garden in the United States boasts its small bed of corn, for to most American people corn is one of the most delicious dishes that the summer season affords.

Long before Columbus came to America, corn was growing in a wild state on the plateaus of tropical America, and was cultivated by the natives who not only roasted it on the ear, but ground it into a primitive form of what we, today call corn meal. It is said that Columbus carried the first grains of corn into Europe on the return from his first trip to America, but although it was introduced into Spain at that time it was not until the late sixteenth century that France became acquainted with the sweet American corn.

There can never be too much said about corn, whether it be of the yellow or white variety, or that most delicious and all too little known variety, the black Mexican corn, sweet as honey. Here, then, are a few more corn recipes, guaranteed to make the family more enamored with their favorite than ever before.

Baked Corn Veneza
Scrape 6 ears of corn (2 cups). Beat 2 eggs. Add corn to eggs. Remove the seeds from 1 green pepper and chop it finely. Add 1-2 onion grated. Cook in 3 tablespoons butter for three minutes. Stir in 3 tablespoons milk and 1 cup mild cheese grated. Add salt and pepper to season and dash of granulated sugar. Add to the corn mixture. Turn into a buttered dish and sprinkle with bread crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven until firm.

Corn Fritters
Beat 2 eggs. Add 1 cup corn, 1 cup milk, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar, and pepper to taste. Put all into double boiler and cook until thick. A little flour may be added to bring this thickness. When thick, pour out onto a large buttered plate and cool. Cut into strips, roll in egg, then in cracker crumbs, and fry in deep fat. Drain and serve hot. These are very delicious, and if made correctly, very light.

Corn Stew
Combine 3 cups of corn ears, either white or yellow, with 1 tablespoon flour and 2 cups scalded milk and put in double boiler. Cook until the corn loses the raw taste. Then season sparingly with salt and pepper and enough sugar to add to the sweetness.

Corn Sauté
Scrape the corn from the cob until there are 3 cups of kernels. Add 1 tablespoon flour, few grains of pepper. Salt, and saute all together gently in butter until brown and tender, 15 minutes is the usual cooking time. A bit of onion, grated, adds to the piquancy.

Corn à la Tomate
Leftover corn is excellent when put into the center of tomatoes, which have been scooped out. Mix the corn with the tomato that has been removed. Add salt and pepper. A bit of finely chopped green pepper gives a spicy touch. Fill the tomato cup with the corn mixture. Top with butter and a sprinkling of bread crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven until the tomatoes are done.

Navigation again has stated that it is considered that the careful selection, training, and seasoning of men importance that is of far more importance by pinning a chevron on a man who is barely qualified according to the minimum requirements.

U. S. Navy Will Begin Recruiting of Men This Year

Congress has authorized an increase of 11,000 men in the enlisted strength of the Navy during the fiscal year 1936. The Navy will begin the year with 82,500 men and finish the year with 93,500. About 5,000 of the increase will be required for new construction, and the remainder has been distributed through the service, as will be shown by the new allowance lists. Attention of the Fleet has been called to the fact that these 11,000 men will be recruits, and the Fleet is faced with the task of supplying the petty officers for the new construction in addition to their own attrition. Commanding Officers have been urged to encourage desirable men to complete the Bureau of Navigation training courses and otherwise qualify themselves for promotion. It is estimated there will be 6,000 advancements authorized each quarter. The Bureau of

Dog Days Old Folk Tale to Scare Boys Away From Creeks

Barefoot boys who forego their daily swims in "the creek" during the still, hot days of July and August through fear of "the dog days" are merely victims of an old folk legend that grips most of the Southern States even today.

Existence of any link between mad dogs, blind moccasins, water scum and malarial conditions, and heat to make life unsafe for people in hot regions was denied Wednesday by Dr. Horace E. Duncan, Dallas County Health Officer.

Facts Dr. Duncan cited to refute all the "dog days" beliefs, include: Dogs become rabid, all times of the year. The rabies menace does not increase during hot weather. Snakes go blind only when they are shedding. They shed often during the spring and early summer. Even then, they are liable to strike blindly only when they feel they are cornered.

"The dog days legend seems to have grown from attempts of old sages in Southern regions to correlate all the conditions peculiar to hot summer days," Dr. Duncan explained. "In reality each of the conditions credited to the dog days is independent of the others."
 The medical profession does not recognize even the legend.
 Dr. Duncan was unable to offer any explanation of the name given the 54-day hot period. He was unable to confirm the possibility that it was so named because Sirius, the "dog" star, is in conjunction with the sun during that time.

"Dog days" officially began Friday, by a ruling of United States naval observatory officials. The old legend is that swimming in an earthen pool during the "dog days" is certain suicide. Parents warned their children that dogs always went mad on banks of streams and pools at the sight of water, that blind moccasins would strike at any movement or sound and that if the summer transgressor gets safely past the dog and snake menaces, he would surely fall victim to malaria or the deadly virus contained in the green water scum.

SUCCESS ENVY AND MONEY

One of the strangest phenomena of human nature is the trait that impels some people to envy a successful person. We have seen evidences of this spirit in Haskell and elsewhere.

It would seem that mankind would respect a man who succeeds in the tasks he undertakes because, as a rule, it requires hard work and energy and other good qualities to be successful. That less fortunate people like to see failure follow triumph and watch with greedy eyes the apparent downfall of a high standard is, it seems, one of the unfavorable commentaries on present day life.

While we deplore this existing antipathy to well-to-do and successful people we realize that it has its foundations in the current, popular belief that much success is ill-gotten and rests upon laurels unfairly won. The judgment of the average man and woman does not rest entirely upon the height of the bank balance but also takes into consideration the verdict of society upon the methods of the man who has accumulated a competence.

We would not have the young people of Haskell county who read this to believe that the dollars amassed are the symbols of success. While very often a fickle popular regard is based upon the size of a man's bank balance there are evidences of respect and attitudes of honor that come to men only through lives of service to others. These are not to be won by the dollar-miser with all his bags of wealth.

PEACE PROGRESS SLOW

A little more than twenty years ago the world was on the verge of what many consider its greatest war, but even after the conflict started there were hopeful souls who saw the opportunity to set up effective machinery for peace after the conflict, and some even predicted a peace of "a thousand years" to follow the struggle that began in 1914.

Children born in that day are now voting and beginning to assume some of the responsibility that is associated with the right to govern. They find a world in which, apparently, peace has made little progress. Nations continue to carve out empires with the sword and look to armaments for salvation.

The present picture is discouraging, but the ideal is not dead. Some day mankind will abolish war with all its brutality. At present, however, it would be very foolish to assume that such a goal is near.

INVOLVES RACIAL TROUBLES

A phase of Mussolini's venture into Ethiopia that is receiving some attention by other governments involves the possibility of decided racial repercussions not only in Africa but in other parts of the world. The cold-blooded manner in which the Italian Dictator is planning the Italian advance gives ample time for the news to travel and sentiment among lesser peoples is gradually mounting against all white races.

The treatment of Ethiopia by the representatives of other powers, coupled with the practical boycott on war supplies by other nations, leaves an unpleasant impression.

If the Ethiopians, ill-equipped with modern means of warfare, manage to surprise the world by slowing the Italian advance, the possibility is that other subject peoples will take heart and cause trouble.

GRIM SATISFACTION

In a large middle-western city much is being made of the fact that for a period of 27 days, not a single fatal traffic accident occurred. The record is considered especially remarkable since it was set in a summer month. Twenty-seven days without one traffic death! What more glaring indictment of reckless driving could there be than this statement? Not one single death! The grim story of carelessness, of heedless speed, of complete disregard for law, seems more graphic, told in this report, than when presented in columns and columns of figures. The fact that the absence of accidents is considered unusual should, indeed, give pause to every automobile driver, every pedestrian. Surely the time is ahead when, even in our great cities, the occurrence of a traffic accident, rather than the absence of any, should be the exceptional thing.

PROTECT OUR LAND

Wind or water erosion is given credit for the destruction of 51,465,097 acres of formerly good farming soil. The area is almost as large as the State of Kansas, although it is, of course, distributed more generally.

Federal authorities predict that a continuation of the present lack of attention to this situation will mean that our agricultural lands will continue to be lost to these natural forces, which have been aggravated by the methods we have adopted, cutting down our forests and unwise methods of agriculture.

We won't say that war is certain but we will say that unless there is some fighting the nations have a lot of useless equipment on their hands.

When a lobby succeeds in promoting some legislation you might think that it would dissolve. No such thing. Jobs are hard to get in these days and rather than turn themselves out of work the lobbyists pick up another rag to chew and start working up new pressure.

It isn't hard to find somebody who is ready to condemn anybody.

It begins to look like recovery is beginning to reveal prosperity around the corner.

Self-control is a great virtue but under some circumstances it can be a mean vice.

Mussolini shows his faith in arbitration by sending another 75,000 soldiers into Africa.

The reason some states have foolish laws is because they have foolish people and foolish lawmakers.

When a speaker has only one idea it is just as well to go to sleep and let him talk himself to death.

If you have an idea your friends do not like you try inviting them over to the house for a good meal.

Japan seems to want to make everybody else worship the Emperor; that's what we consider real nerve.

First thing you know some aviator will start out on a trip to some star. He might make a part of the distance, at that.

The bonus, we see, is back in Congress; it will get a lot more attention before the veterans have a chance to cast a vote in 1936.

As close as we are able to make it out the Democrats and Republicans are both certain that they will win the Presidency next fall.

Our idea of a political joke is a state that spends about $15,000,000 a year trying to regulate a corporation that spends as much in a month.

Now comes the news that the United States has a ray that will locate ships fifty miles off-shore. If we could only find one that would locate jobs.

PAROLE SYSTEM FAILS WHEN ABUSED (Waynesburg, (Pa.) Democrat-Messenger)

J. Edgar Hoover, director of those "G-men" who have made such a notable record of late, has earned the right to be listened to with serious attention whenever he speaks his mind about crime problems. His recent attack on the evils of the parole system, therefore, is not the sort of thing that a believer in an enlightened penal system can afford to laugh off. Mr. Hoover told the International Association of Chiefs of Police that America's lack of a strong parole system is a "ghastly farce," and demanded an end to the common practice of making paroles, probation, and commutation of sentences easy to obtain. That the parole system in this country has been abused shamefully is beyond question. That an officer of Mr. Hoover's standing and experience should center a hot fire upon it merely confirms a long-standing suspicion.

Yet we should be exceedingly careful to see to it that the criticism falls where it really belongs—on the men who have abused the system, rather than on the system itself. Basically, the parole system is an intelligent and human part of enlightened criminology. It seeks to recognize the fact that the punishment ought to fit the criminal rather than the crime. Of two housebreakers, for instance, one may be a desperate thug who deserves to stay in prison for life while the other may be a man whom society can safely release after a brief period. The parole system is simply an attempt to adapt the penal machinery to such divergent cases. But any social instrument is, in the long run, just as strong as the society which tries to make use of it—and no stronger.

If society, for instance, fills its chief offices—its governorships, its mayoralities, and so on—with self-seeking politicians who are in public life solely for what they can get out of it, then no one need be surprised if the instruments which these men handle are debased and perverted. If our use of the parole provokes such a man as Mr. Hoover to righteous indignation, the fault lies with the persons who operate the system. And that, in turn, means that the ultimate fault is our own for putting them in office in the first place. The remedy is not to junk the parole system, but to elect to office men who will have honesty and intelligence enough to make it work the way it ought to work.

Income from the cotton crop of 1934 in this section of Texas, including 24 counties amounted to $21,682,101.78, of which $17,889,203.22 represents farm value of lint and seed and $3,992,898.56 rental and other payments to April 30, 1935 by the agricultural adjustment administration. Total value of the crop, including farm value of lint and seed and governments benefits for the past three crop years, amounted to $94,120,584.80. affecting young and old, is a serious type of stomach and bowel condition. So called "ptomaine poisoning," in nearly all cases, is none other than a food infection due to the presence in food of harmful bacteria or germs.

Perishable food, if contaminated, endangers human health. This hazard is greater in warm weather, because germs or their products multiply or develop more rapidly at high temperatures. Some of the most valuable foods are of perishable nature. Such foods demand the exercise of safeguards. Among well known precautions, which need to be used if perishable foods are to be kept wholesome, are the following:

1. Some form of modern refrigeration or cooling is necessary to preserve food from day to day. Lack of an effective cooling process causes meat to spoil and milk to contain a dangerously large number of bacteria.
 2. Resort to thorough cooking or boiling is the simplest and yet most useful method of preventing illness of food-borne character. This precaution applies especially to food prepared for infants and children.
 3. Contamination of perishable food is avoided through the constant exercise of cleanliness on the part of those who handle food.
 4. Pastries and other food products make a far greater appeal to the consumer or patron if there is an entire absence of flies. Adequate provision for screens and application of every known means of fly and insect extermination are also worthwhile.
- The rewards of improved sanitation include tangible assets in good health and sound business.

Tried and True--

Before a man can qualify to be a private in an army, he must be able to pass some rigid tests.

Many men are not accepted.

They cannot qualify.

Before those who are taken on trial can be promoted, they must have proven their merits.

In examining recruits for aviation and other specialized forms of service, most thorough and exacting tests are required. Some of those who have tried have proven true.

These principles apply to advertising. Tests are made. Some have tried mimeographed circulars and found them fallen by the wayside. Others have tried folders. These go to the wastebasket. Others have proven that the newspaper—an invited guest in the home—is given most reader consideration. STILL OTHERS have tried and found true a specialized combination of direct mail and newspaper advertising.

May we help you work out a campaign of action to help you gain your own particular objectives?

"THE LAST ADVERTISEMENT WAS PRINTED YESTERDAY"

What would the World be like if it were true?

The last advertisement was printed yesterday. You have cut it out and put it away to show your grandchildren. With it, a way of living as you knew it, has passed forever.

Tonight you will want to see a movie. You pull up to one—saw it last week. At another—but no, you don't like So-and-So's acting. Let's go home. It's too much gas and time to waste on a show. Next month half the theaters will close. Poor attendance.

Tomorrow you will want some groceries. You will go to the nearest grocery store and buy some. Rib roast, perhaps, and lima beans. You won't hear until tomorrow night at the bridge table that the store just next door was having a "special" on rib roast and lima beans. Pretty soon your husband will wonder why the food bills are so high. The last advertisement was printed yesterday.

Next month is Aunt Jane's birthday. Well, if you think I'm going to spend half a day tramping from store to store looking for a gift that I used to find by turning a page—can't afford gifts anyway. We're spending money like water and living like poor folks . . .

Old car's wearing out. Can't afford a new one . . . Chevies and V-8's are both $1600 . . . demand's fallen off . . . they've had to up prices to meet plant expenses. Most of the others have closed down . . . don't know how the government will feed all the new unemployed.

Fellow in Milwaukee is inventing an air conditioner to sell for $50. No one will hear of it. You will never see it. What is air conditioning anyway? The last advertisement was printed yesterday.

Advertising has brought us many things. Finer cars, better homes, silly fads and wonderful inventions that have made life easier—and longer. Advertising is no unmixed blessing. But it has helped give America a standard of living unmatched in any other place and time. That standard of living should persist as long as people have wants to fill and money to spend and eyes to read with.

It will persist only so long as the presses keep rolling.

Palo Duro Canyon Attracts Tourists From All States

AUSTIN, Texas.—Comparable in beauty and grandeur to the famed Grand Canyon, the Palo Duro of Texas, now a State Park, is drawing large numbers of tourists and other visitors to this State. This canyon, situated about 15 miles from Canyon City and 25 miles from Amarillo, is renowned in legend and science.

Carved by wind rather than water erosion, the Palo Duro winds a distance of 90 miles through the flat bald prairies of the Texas Panhandle, unseen until the spectator is almost at its very edge. Its width ranges from one to approximately 25 miles, in depth it varies from a few hundred to more than 1000 feet.

Has Strange Formations
Gigantic formations resemble strange monsters of animal life or structures created by the hand of man. "Sentinel Rock," the "Light-house," "Cathedral Peak," and the "Camel's Back" are but a few of these scenic wonders. Glorious colors make it a rare spectacle of nature, rivaling the Grand Canyon of Colorado in richness and beauty.

Historically, the Palo Duro seems to be mentioned first in the chronicles of the Coronado expedition of 1541. It was the refuge of the Conquistadors, and served as the winter home of the Comanche and Kiowa Indians until 1870. Archaeological specimens are profuse in the canyon and tell graphically their story of its prehistoric inhabitants. Legend has it that the early Spanish cached their loot in this fastness and it is still to be discovered and brought to light.

Except for an expedition by order of the War Department in 1852 to discover the source of the Red River, the Palo Duro was practically unexplored by white men until the coming of Col. Charles Goodnight in 1875. This pioneer cattle king, called the "Father of the Texas Panhandle," established his home within the basin of the Palo Duro, and the "Goodnight Trail" into the canyon and along its floor for many miles is one of the famous cattle trails of southwestern history.

Complements Grand Canyon
Geologically, the Palo Duro is a complement to the Grand Canyon, according to George L. Nason, senior regional inspector of the seventh region for the National Park Service. It presents a picture of geologic history since the Cambrian age, while the Grand Canyon pre-dates the Cambrian period.

In the canyon are to be found cedar brake, hackberry, some walnut trees, mesquite, cottonwood, and desert shrubs all relatively small, but dense in comparison with the barren plains of the remainder of the Panhandle.

In 1933, the state parks board purchased a strip of the Palo Duro, a strip about 10 miles long, comprising about 15,000 acres.

Two-Year Development
For two years, at an expenditure of $167,000 from the Emergency Conservation Works Fund, the National Park Service has been carrying on a development project in the Palo Duro Canyon State Park.

Civilian Conservation Corps men have built a roadway eight miles long along the rim of the canyon and descending to the floor. One of the tasks this summer is to camouflage this highway so that it will blend into the natural scenery. A natural rock lodge and concession house has been constructed just below the edge of the canyon, and it too has been so designed that it merges with the contours of the bluff. Only a short distance back from the canyon's edge, the lodge cannot be seen at all, and from below it melts into the landscape, appearing to be merely another stratum of rock.

Has "Cow Camp"
In the bed of the canyon a "cow camp" with several camp cottages has been built, and additional cabins will be constructed this summer. A dam creates a small lake in the canyon's bed. Natural springs furnish the water supply, and a small power plant has been installed to provide electricity.

A gateway, built of natural rock, and a small natural amphitheater, to seat 200 or 250 people, will be constructed, and space cleared for a tent camping ground. Further developments will be carried on in later years, Mr. Nason explained. "The matter of improving a park is a task that cannot be done in a day, but requires decades," he added. "The National Park Service has not tried to create a park in the Palo Duro, or to improve on the handiwork of nature, but has rather had the aim of making accessible the innate charm of this vast natural phenomenon."

Balanced Meals Will Be Served By Mrs. Hester

Balanced meals will be served this winter from the twenty-one varieties of canned fruits and vegetables in Mrs. Roy Hester's pantry, cooperator in the New Mid Home Demonstration Club. Mrs. Hester has canned 522 containers of food this year. Leafy vegetables, squash, carrots, English Peas, snap beans, beets, pickles, and cucumber pickles are in a majority of the containers.

Leans Chair on Truck; It Stars, Killing Him

ELBRIDGE, N. Y.—To prevent a truck from being moved after a dispute over a repair bill, William Kennett, 67, took his seat in a chair propped against the front of the big vehicle. Later, the driver, not seeing him, started the truck and killed him.

Ex-Gov. Murray Come "Into Own" Oklahoma Farm

BROKEN BOW, Okla.—The lean, brown hands of William H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray that once guided the State of Oklahoma, now hold the reins on a 1200-pound mule that draws his shiny new mail-order farm wagon.

The $55 one-horse wagon was assembled personally by the former Oklahoma governor after it arrived by freight on Monday.

High on the spring seat, Mr. Murray rode to his Yashau Creek farmstead in style. He no longer had to hitch-hike to town for mail and supplies.

Family Enterprise
Mr. Murray's one-man "back-to-the-land" movement is a real return to simplicity. He is supervising the erection of fencing and is planning farm buildings, though he is in no hurry.

Then, in the house, is Mrs. Murray. "All hands work around here," she observes, as she looks up from a pile of mending.

With her daughter Jean, Mrs. Murray has canned more than 60 quarts of fruit for winter use.

Experience on Soil
The Murrays are not the dilettante type of farmfolk. The former Oklahoma chief executive has an agricultural background gained in rural Texas, in southeastern Oklahoma and in Bolivia, where he led an agricultural colonization project, and he likes to explain his philosophy of the use of the soil. "Live at home," is his creed. "Raise what you need; sell the surplus."

There is no tractor at the Murray farm, but there are blooded hogs, a cow, a calf, two mares, two mules—and the brand new mail-order wagon with spring seat.

"Alfalfa Bill" apparently is as comfortable with his feet on the front dashboard of the wagon as he was in the overstuffed executive chair, where he often was seen with his feet on the executive desk.

CORN-HOG RESOLUTION

cupations just as well as to those engaged in farming.

We wish to commend and endorse the Corn and Hogs Section of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration in Washington for the splendid way they have carried out the program in Texas and the manner in which they have helped the Corn-Hog contract signers of Texas to meet each problem that has come up in carrying out the program.

We want to express the appreciation of the farmers we represent, to the Extension Service of the Texas A. and M. College for the capable way the program has been handled and the fair, impartial decisions that have come from the officials in charge.

We endorse the actions of the members of the present Corn-Hog Review Board and the way they have handled the job of allotment that has been their duty. The Board has been fair and just in all its decisions and rulings, and contract signers appreciate its impartial allotments.

This committee feels that the Corn-Hog program has been efficiently and fairly carried on in Texas. The County Agents, all Corn-Hog Committeemen and others connected with the program have worked hard in putting it over. The contract signers have been harmonious and have cooperated with the officials and this committee wants to express its appreciation to all connected with the program for the manner in which it has been handled.

Signed: J. P. Strader, Canadian, Texas, Chairman; J. S. Sharp, Paris, Texas, Vice Chairman; S. M. Ainsworth, Gonzales, Texas, Secretary; Treasurer; O. J. Edler, Crosbyton, Texas; R. E. Lee, Mason, Texas; George Slaughter, Wharton, Texas; Otho Morris, Laneville, Texas; Judson Wood, Sherman, Texas.

Texas, As Boston Sees It, Is Dream of Various Weaves

The following is the opinion of a Boston man written in 1922 and gives the Easterner's conception of the immense size of our state:

Texas occupies all of the continent of North America except the small part set aside for the United States and Canada. Texas owns the north of the Rio Grande the only dusty river in the world and also with the possible exception of the Trinity, the only river that is navigable for mud cats and pedestrians.

Texas is bounded on the north by 25 or 30 states, on the east by all the oceans except Pacific, on the south by the Gulf of Mexico and south Pacific Ocean, the Milky Way and the rest of the universe. If Texas were chopped loose from the rest of the United States and the Panhandle it would float out in the ocean, as it rests on a sea of subterranean fresh water. Texas is so big that people in Brownsville call Dallas people Yankees and citizens of El Paso sneer at the people of Texarkana and call them snobs of the east. It is 150 miles farther from El Paso to Texarkana than it is from Chicago to New York City. Fort Worth is nearer St. Paul, Minn., than it is to Brownsville.

The chief occupation of Texans is trying to keep from making all the money in the world. The chief pursuit of all the people in Texas was formerly Mexicans and Indians, but now it is land buyers, steers and crop records. Without Texas the United States would look like a three legged Boston terrier.

Texans are so proud of Texas that they can not sleep at night. If a Texan's head was opened a map of Texas would be found photographed on his brain. This is also true of his heart. Unless our front gate is 18 miles from your front door you don't belong to society as constituted in Texas. Mrs. King's gate is 150 miles from her front door and she is thinking of moving her house back so she will not be bothered by passing automobiles and peddlers. Other Texas landlords have whole mountain ranges and rivers on their ranches.

One Texan has 40 miles of navigable river on his farm. If the proportion of cultivated land in Texas were the same as in Illinois, the value of Texas crops would equal all the other 47 states.

Texas has enough land to supply every man, woman and child in the whole world a tract 5x20 feet and have enough left over to march the armies of the world around the border five abreast. Texas grows so much alfalfa that if it were baled and built into a stairway it would reach the pearly gates. If all the hogs in Texas were one hog he would be able to dig the Panama Canal with three roots. If all the Texas steers were one steer he could stand with his front feet in the Gulf of Mexico and one hind foot in the Hudson Bay, the other in the Arctic Ocean and his horns would punch holes in the moon and with his tail brush the snow off the North Pole.

If all the cotton raised in Texas annually were made into one mattress, all the people in the world could take a nap at the same time. Texas is rightly named "The Garden of the Lord."

Okra, A True Southern Dish

Although a southern vegetable, okra is quite plentiful in the eastern and northern markets. A few years ago it was necessary to walk several blocks, making inquiries at each vegetable market, in an almost fruitless search. Now okra is obtainable at almost all the green grocers. It is undoubtedly a most delicious vegetable, and can be prepared in several ways. I take pleasure in passing along these recipes for my northern friends.

Fried Okra
Cut off the stem ends of young pods. Slice lengthwise, in three sections. Sprinkle well with salt and pepper to taste. Dredge in flour. Fry in hot fat. Drain on paper. The flavor is very similar to scallops or fried oysters.

And that's why the tobaccos in Chesterfield are carefully balanced one against the other . . . not too much of one—not too little of another.

We take the right amounts of the right kinds of four types of tobacco—Bright, Burley, Maryland and Turkish.

It is this balancing of tobaccos that makes Chesterfields milder and makes them taste better.
