

News of Farmers

City of Weinert shows... The early settlers of any section should hold first place in the hearts of the people who come after them. They are the ones who bore the burden in the heart of the day that others through their sacrifice might live and enjoy the prosperity made possible through their endurance. A. Mayfield is an old timer of the Cottonwood community. He came to that section from Denton County 32 years ago. He erected his home where he now lives 31 years ago and soon after building his home he grubbed out his farm with his own hands. He might have had some help from small children, but the responsibility fell on his shoulders and he did not shirk his duty. He came from Tennessee to Denton County in Indian days and learned the hardships of an early settler first hand. He and Mrs. Mayfield have reached a ripe age filled with experience and it is a joy to us to visit this home. Mr. Mayfield has been successful. He always rallied on the farm for his needs and it always gave bountifully. He keeps a small herd of good cattle in connection with his farming.

August Rueffer—
A believe it or not story is furnished by August Rueffer of Vontress who killed a two year old Hog the other day which weighed 796 pounds dressed. Hayden McDonald of Haskell bought one of half of the hog after the head and leaf fat had been removed and it weighed almost 300 pounds. August is one of our substantial farmers who makes his living by the sweat of his face, but always takes time off to see after the cow, the sow, and the hen and lets them do their part for a profit. We have known August for almost twenty years and he has sat steady in the boat, lived on the same farm, watched the corners and was satisfied with well doing. His quiet success is a lesson to us fellows who sought the fountain of perpetual youth, by roving. The honey pond is where you dig it and the Fritter tree is where you plant it.

J. L. Wright—
Nearing the close of a beautiful day last week we drove to the home of J. L. Wright in the Cottonwood Community and spent the night. We found the family in good health and feeling good over the inspiring condition which prevails in this home. Mr. Wright had just tuned up his tractor and had it ready for the work of breaking ground for the new year's crop. He bought the farm where he now resides a few years ago and he has everything pitched and planned for success. He is not pursuing the one crop regime, but is using every means possible to make the farm pay. A few of the things he is promoting we will mention here, but so much to sound the praise of Brother Wright, but to encourage others. He is milking a number of thorough bred Jersey cows from which he sells from 25 to 35 pounds of butter weekly. Cash realized from the sale of butter alone last year was more than $500.00 besides the increase in cattle and the skimmed milk products which keeps the pigs, chickens and cats rolling in fat. He grows his own feed. During the shortage in feed last year Mr.

Wright had plenty of feed to tide him over and did not have to buy any. He has a feed mill and grinds the feed for his dairy cows and young stock. He made world of bundle feed this year. He says that he used about 90 pounds of twine in binding. He still has some feed in the field to haul in. He made some good corn and lots of maize. He had a good garden and used the canner freely. The extra work makes Mr. Wright a busy man but he says that he enjoys it and also likes the cash it brings in. He says that everything on the farm is work anyway, and what's the difference. He has made the change from a tenant farmer to a home owner, the route many good men have traveled and the route we hope and trust many others will journey.

History—
It's always interesting to know who started a thing whether the thing it's self amounts to much or not, but in the things herein mentioned doubtless we are all interested. Pete rich of Weinert, who came to this section in the year of 1895 'speaking of the grade of cattle on the range at that time states that there were considerable improvement in the cattle from the old Long Horn which was the primitive stock on Texas range when he came. He says that the cattle at that time had been bred up with the red durham mostly and that they were thrifty and good grazers. The first Jersey male he ever saw in this country came from Young County soon after he arrived. He thinks that the first white faced cattle were brought in here also from Young County as early as 1890. The late J. S. Boone was the first to stock the white face cattle according to Mr. Rich and at a later date around 1900 the black pole cattle were brought in. The three principle breed to-day are the Jersey, the white face and the durham. The Jersey and white-face are in greater numbers. Mr. Rich rode the range in his younger days and knows all of the principal ranch owners at that time in a wide area.

I. E. Goodson—
We had occasion to stop at the beautiful farm home of I. E. Goodson near O'Brien a few days ago. He is a young and favored son of Haskell County who sat out early in life to make good. He bought a good farm erected a nice home and is shouldering the burden of the farm work himself, which beat all to a frazzle sending the other fellow to do the work while the owner is gadding about town. I. E. was cutting stalks and Mrs. Goodson was busy with the affairs of the home. We notice some nice hens on the yard. She stated they had about 400 laying hens and she was talking egg marketing by the case. These hens were mostly white leghorn and produce the pearly white eggs which are always in demand.

J. S. Abernatha—
While driving through the country east of O'Brien the other day we found an old friend J. S. Abernatha who was in fine health and spirits and said that everything was going well with him. He and Mrs. Abernatha seem to be back where they started life with all of their children married and gone out for themselves. But they are both strong and healthy with many more years of happiness ahead. Mr. Abernatha has been using a tractor for the past 8 years in his farming. Before the days of his tractor experience he always kept a bunch of good mules on the place, but we did not see them this trip. He is a former commissioner of Haskell County and he took his raps like other commissioners who do their duty. Some of the boys will kick if you do, and some will kick if you don't. We are just wondering if this kind of punches did not cause the great Seer to write "Chop to the line and let the chips fall." Mr. Abernatha seems not to have any political aspirations. He is leaving that to others. He is content on making a good living and enjoying life away from the throng. He has lived on this farm a long time and it will still produce good crops. Mrs. Abernatha did lots of canning from the garden and orchard and some one must have been watching for they sawed the lock off the cellar door one night and carried away part of her canned vegetables and fruit. But still she can set a good table on short notice. We are going back one of these days when we can remain longer and enjoy a visit again.

Joe S. Smith—
We called by the home of Joe S. Smith of near Knox City last week. He is an old timer, a good farmer and a man that every one appreciates who know him. He reads the Free Press and enjoys Haskell County news because he has lived in Haskell County many years of his useful life. The thing we wanted to mention most is that Uncle Joe as he is familiarly called is selling 30 pounds or more of butter each week and he churns this cream in a 5 gallon old fashioned church with an old time dasher that goes up and down when you push down and pull up on it. He finds a market for this butter in Knox City, his home town. He makes the market twice each week and the product he sells is the best to be had. We are stressing the point that quality products are always in demand at a fair price. People appreciate good quality in butter and eggs and they will not pay very much for the poorer quality if they buy them.

sitting here on the grass. I love your head and your shoulders and that tiny vein in your ankle that looks like a thread of blue silk. I love everything about you and all you do. I love your voice and your laughter and the glorious light in your eyes...

"One moment," I said. "I must think." I thought very fast. Hypothesis or no, here was a good explanation of my cousin's failure to come. "I must go at once," I said, and picked up the map. "To Plumage, John?" "I nodded. "I must get a car somehow and drive there as fast as I can. I can hide the car near the high road and go through the woods to the farm. There's not an instant to lose—we're three days late. Together we studied the map. I glanced at my watch. "With average luck," said I, "I ought to be there not later than six."

played with Max. "Oh, John, why wasn't I born to a life like this? The life I lead is a duty—and that's the truth." "We're not born to idylls," said I. "We've no such luck." Helena crossed her ankles and laced her delicate fingers behind her head. "D'you find it idyllic, too?" "I tried to say so this morning," Helena knitted her brow. "Then you said it very badly," she said. "I thought you were jibing at being here alone with me." "For me, that's the idyll," said I. Helena turned her head and gave me a dazzling smile. It was when we had eaten our supper and the infant was fast asleep that Sabre was given his orders and we set out with the petrol to seek the Rolls. The dust would come in, I judged, by the time we had crossed the clearing and gained the track, and that was just what we wanted, for so we could use the daylight, yet be wrapped in the cloak of darkness by the time we came to the road. For all that, I was none too easy, for if, by some evil chance, friend Pharaoh had found the Rolls, his instinct might well have suggested that we should return at nightfall to try to recover the car. And if he was lying there, waiting. . . Five minutes later, perhaps, the darkness ahead was lightened, and I knew we were approaching the road. With my right hand upon my pistol, I moved like any shadow along the side of the track. Arrived at its mouth, I waited, straining my ears. So perhaps for three minutes. Then I stole around the corner and on to the edge of the road. The Rolls was gone. I was up betimes the next morning and had shaved and bathed and dressed before Helena called to me to know if I was awake. In my note I had asked my cousin to bring some food. I judged that my cousin would reach us by five o'clock. And that would be the end of my idyll; with his and Barley's coming, my present estate, my kingdom must be resigned, my lovely hour would be over, and never so long as I lived should I ever be given another that smelled so sweet. From a covert which we selected we could see the way to Witchcraft.

support of the new bill and expresses the confidence of the Haskell County Farm Producers Association in the present attempts to control farm products and accord the farmer the same protection that tariffs afford other industries.

WE THEREFORE appeal to the United States Senators and Congressmen to use their very best efforts and such means as necessary to secure for the producers the same protection that is accorded other industries as Secretary Wallace and the farm organization, that were called in Conference, January 10, 11, 1936, and have agreed on a platform. We express our hearty approval of this platform and the building of a new program and earnestly appeal for your support.

The resolution follows: WE THE CITIZENS OF HASKELL COUNTY, TEXAS IN MASS MEETING ASSEMBLED, DO HEREBY ADOPT THE FOLLOWING RESOLUTION:

As the Supreme Court of the United States has declared the AAA unconstitutional and thereby destroyed the only protection the producers ever had, leaving them in open competition with all foreign countries with cheap labor.
