'Powerful advantage' for students CC, Texas Tech deal creates new opportunities

A new agreement offers Clarendon College nursing students a direct path to a bachelor's degree through Texas Tech University Health Science Center (TTUHSC), officials from both schools announced last week.

CC President Robert Riza, speaking before dozens of nursing students Thursday morning, March 24, said the agreement was the result of months of work by many people at both schools and was possible because of the cooperation of local communities.

"For these agreements to work you have to have support within your community, and we have that support in Clarendon as well as in Pampa and Childress," Dr. Riza said.

The concurrent admission articulation agreement between the schools will allow students to plan the transition into the TTUHSC School of Nursing RN to Bachelor of Science in Nursing (BSN) program upon successful completion of the CC Associate Degree in Nursing program (ADN).

CC Executive Vice President Tex Buckhaults said approximately 30 ADN students would be eligible to take advantage of the agreement when they graduate from Clarendon this May. Additionally, the classes through Texas Tech are online, which Riza says provides additional benefits to local students.

"It allows students in our area opportunities for education here without having to pack up and move," Riza said. "They can keep their families here, keep working, and improve their education and payscale."

Dr. Michael Evans, Dean of the TTUHSC School of Nursing, said students on track to graduate this May with an ADN from Clarendon will receive immediate benefits from the new partnership because they will be automatically accepted in Texas Tech's program if they choose to pursue a BSN degree.

"Some hospitals will only hire nurses with a BSN degree or nurses who are enrolled in a BSN program, so this is a powerful advantage for these students," Dr. Evans said.

Area members of the Legislature also praised the new partnership between Clarendon and Texas Tech with State Rep. Ken King (R-Canadian) saying it helps regional students get educational opportunities and find good employment close to home, and State Sen. Kel Seliger (R-Amarillo) calling it an "ideal agreement that showcases how cooperation between community colleges and universities can produce positive results for students and the workforce in Texas."

Riza expressed his appreciation to Rep. King for attending Thursday's announcement and also to Sen. Seliger as well as State Sen. Charles Perry (R-Lubbock) and State Rep. Drew Springer (R-Muenster) for their statements of support for the program.

TTUHSC President Tedd Mitchell, MD, praised the agreement for its impact to the area, and said "This agreement is a testament to our common vision to bring health services to the region."

This partnership will address the shortage of nursing professionals in Texas, serve unmet health care needs of the Texas Panhandle region, and assist in achieving the goals of completion and reducing student debt as outlined in the Texas Higher Education Strategic Plan 60x30TX.

To learn more about the agreement, contact Clarendon College at 1.800.687.9737 or go online to <https://www.ttuhschool.edu/son/undergraduate/rnbsn/clarendon/>

City okays drainage fix for 3rd

The drainage nightmare on Third Street is closer to being over following action taken by the Clarendon City Council during its regular meeting last Thursday, March 24.

Aldermen approved a $132,405 bid to address drainage problems on the street between Bugbee Avenue on the west and Broncho Stadium on the east.

A previous paving project installed a rollover (or flat) curb on the sides of the street in that area, but rainfall on multiple occasions resulted in dirt washing out behind the curb, leaving deep trenches along the outside of the roadway.

The project approved last week will install a 10-foot wide strip of hot mix asphalt behind the rollover curb. Additionally, concrete improvements will be installed where a drainage channel empties from the Clarendon ISD practice field onto Third Street. The improvements will be designed to slow down water rushing onto the street.

The bid from MH Civil Constructors was the only bid received before the deadline and was more than $15,000 over the budget for the project. A start date for the project has not been set.

In other city business, the council approved a recommendation of the water recreation steering committee to conduct further structural testing on the former Elizabeth Stevens School Building (the old Texas Saddlery building) at a cost of $35,000. Funds for that testing are being donated privately. Alderman Sandy Skelton said the committee will be meeting this week to further discuss site selection for the water recreation project.

Aldermen also approved appointing Sharon Braddock as the clerk of the municipal court, and Jim Braddock was introduced to the council as the city's new Code Enforcement & Animal Control Official.

Chase lands Colorado man in jail

A Colorado man was released on bond from the Donley County Jail Tuesday following a high-speed chase on US 287.

Donley County Sheriff Butch Blackburn said Jared Noble was charged with a third degree felony, Evading Arrest in a Motor Vehicle, after he did not pull over for a DPS traffic stop for speeding.

Blackburn said Noble reached speeds up to 120 mph before the chase came to an end without incident just outside of Memphis Monday morning. DPS and the sheriff's office were involved in the chase.

Justice of the Peace Pam Mason set Noble's bond at $10,000. The man has no criminal history, the sheriff said.

Large crowd expected for CC judging contest

Clarendon College will hold its annual Invitational Judging Contest this Saturday and attendance will once again double the city's population.

The contest attracts around 2,000 high school FFA students and 4-H students from around Texas and nearby states. As of Tuesday morning, there were more than 2,100 contest registrations for the event.

The number of registrations doesn't include the hundreds of parents and coaches who accompany the students to the contest. According to the 2010 US Census, Clarendon has a population of 2,026.

"We are very happy to host these young people," Clarendon Chamber of Commerce President Roger Estlack said. "This boosts our local economy and gives many students who otherwise may not ever consider coming to Clarendon an opportunity to see what we have."

Past contests have had huge impacts on the local economy. Restaurants are typically packed for the event, and this year will hopefully be equally successful.

In fact, the annual judging contest is the single biggest event to attract visitors from out of county for one day. By comparison, the July 4th Saints' Roost Celebration barbecue annually attracts about 1,000 people and the Col. Charles Goodnight Chuckwagon Cookoff records between 1,000 and 1,500 visitors each September. Each of those events, however, has hundreds of local residents in attendance. The greatest number of people at the judging contest will come from outside of Donley County.

In addition to helping local merchants, the event also presents a great opportunity for CC to showcase its campus, faculty, and programs for prospective students. Johnny Treichel, Clarendon College livestock and meats judging coach, said the event is a big recruiting tool for the college.

"This is the only time each year the college has this many potential students on campus," he said. "And we are pleased to have such positive support from the community year after year."

Tracing paths to success and to failure

By Richard W. Rahn, Cato Institute

Why is Hong Kong rich, Cuba very poor, and Puerto Rico struggling? Back in 1955, the islands of Puerto Rico, Cuba and Hong Kong had roughly the same real per capita income. They each took very different economic paths. Now, some 60 years later, Hong Kong is even richer than the United States on a per capita income basis. Cuba is an economic disaster, having gone from the richest Caribbean nation to the poorest, next to Haiti. And Puerto Rico finds itself flirting with bankruptcy, with a per capita income much higher than Cuba's but only roughly half that of Hong Kong. Incomes have increased approximately 22-fold in Hong Kong, 11-fold in Puerto Rico, and only fourfold at best in Cuba, in a little over a half-century.

Cuba became a communist nation, with the Soviet Union-Russia as its economic big brother, from which it received considerable subsidies. Puerto Rico has had the United States as its big brother — it is a largely self-governing territory of the U.S. — from which it has received considerable economic assistance. Hong Kong was a largely self-governing territory of the United Kingdom until 1997, when it became again a largely self-governing territory under China. Neither Britain nor China has provided subsidies to Hong Kong.

Cuba is relatively rich in natural resources, and Puerto Rico has some, but Hong Kong has almost none. The improbable success of Hong Kong and the improbable failure of Cuba is a direct result of the economic policies each followed.

Hong Kong is perhaps the best example of what can be achieved under the rule of law, with limited government and free markets. Cuba is a poster child of how rule by man rather than law, coupled with government ownership of the means of production and the destruction of the price system, results in no freedom and a great deal of poverty.

The Cubans like to brag about their health care system, while ignoring the fact that, when faced with a really serious illness, high-level Cuban officials have been known to go to Spain or other places for medical care. Life expectancy is a good proxy for overall health care; and it is true that among poor countries Cuba ranks high, but Puerto Rico has a slightly higher life expectancy and has made greater gains than Cuba over the last half-century, and Hong Kong has one of the highest life expectancies in the world (84).

Puerto Rico, while largely a free-market economy, has been plagued by corruption, destructive unionism and crony capitalism. The result has been a rapid increase in debt, which the government says it can no longer service, and economic stagnation. Many of Puerto Rico's most productive and educated citizens have moved to the U.S. mainland (note: Puerto Ricans are U.S. citizens).

The Puerto Rican fiscal problem has now reached crisis proportions. The government is currently selling assets from pension funds (which may be illegal) to pay money dedicated to one group of creditors to other creditors, as well as to pay for other government services. The U.S. Congress is now considering creating an oversight board with sufficient powers to deal with the debt and the underlying fiscal problems. The Puerto Rican government does not now have the legal authority to declare bankruptcy; and even if did, it would not solve the underlying problem of excessive spending. Bankruptcy would also be breaking a covenant with the existing bondholders — and would probably result in Puerto Rico no longer having access to the credit markets.

The intent is for the oversight board to work with the various parties to create a restructuring agreement, fair to all parties and which would not endanger the ability of Puerto Rico to re-enter the credit markets once the necessary reforms are put in place. The economic reforms need to be bold, such as radically reducing the size of government and the powers of the unions, deregulation, and fundamental tax reform resulting in a low top rate.

Some critics who think in only static terms will claim that tax rates cannot be reduced given Puerto Rico's debts. The fact is that Puerto Rico will never be able to service its current or future debt if the economy does not revive and grow rapidly.

Other countries have shown that tax rate and regulatory reductions spur growth and actually generate more tax revenue over the long run. Hong Kong not only gets by but prospers with a maximum individual tax rate of 15 percent, a maximum corporate rate of 16 percent, and a government that only spends 18 percent of gross domestic product.

If Puerto Rico had similar tax rates, hundreds of thousands of skilled Puerto Ricans would pour back into the island and create many new businesses and jobs. Many very rich Americans would also take up residence in Puerto Rico to take advantage of the lower tax rate, and all of their spending would also create many more jobs.

Hong Kong has demonstrated what works, and Cuba as demonstrated what fails. Puerto Rico's current ailments can be quickly cured by a good dose of greater economic freedom.

Four crosses on Church Street

Odds are, Shrimp Boat Manny's, on Church Street in Livingston, TX, may be the ultimate oxymoron. Where else, pray tell, can diners scarf down delicious Cajun food whipped up from Southern Louisiana recipes that owners Manny and Nancy Rachal have featured since 1985... then, pick up free crosses on the way out?

The intent is for the sealed cedar crosses — weighing 2.6 pounds each, 42 inches tall and 33 inches across — to be posted in yards or wherever. Painted in white on each cross are the words "JESUS IS LORD."

They are stacked beside each entry to the restaurant, and in three months, patrons have helped themselves to almost 3,000 signs. Oh, the oxymoron mentioned earlier; how 'bout "shrimp and salvation?" For those quick to criticize unintended irreverence, perhaps propriety might suggest that patrons find satisfaction for the tummy temporarily and the soul for eternity?....

Several years ago, Rev. Vic Bass, then pastor of a non-denominational church in a rural building between Diboll and Lufkin that once housed a honky-tonk, heard of a Nacogdoches man who enjoyed making crosses. Last spring, when he retired as a pastor of Faith Family Church, he took on a cross project himself, expanding it as he could.

In a single year, it has grown beyond all expectations. Between Easters of 2015 and 2016, about 100,000 crosses have been made and distributed. Thanks to the generosity of an anonymous East Texas businessman, two men have been hired full-time, and volunteers have popped up to help out.

So far, it has cost the anonymous underwriter between $10,000 and $12,000 monthly. There is no end in sight. Project leaders say they'll keep handing out crosses at least until the national election in November. And the generous provider nodded approval....

Dale Foux, manager of Shrimp Boat Manny's and a bona fide Cajun, is something of a "straw boss" on the distribution end of the project. His pick-up has a sign "free crosses," and folks take them as they please.

Foux and his followers sometimes leave "free cross" trailers on the side of the road, and David Landrum at "Cool Shades," a car-tinting/truck accessory place in Cleveland, also stocks them. Gary Vess, Jr., who lives in Livingston and owns a transmission shop in Lufkin, hauls completed crosses from Rev. Bass' place to Livingston on his way home most days.

Crosses are available, too, at Thomas Mercantile, a souvenir/tea room/sandwich shop on a gravel road near Livingston. Several churches also have partaken. When Bar None Cowboy Church, between Tatum and Henderson, featured historian David Barton and Duck Dynasty's Phil Robertson as speakers, they expected to need quite a few crosses. Founder Vic put 900 crosses on a cattle trailer; volunteers unloaded, and all were gone by service's end.

Then, the Bar None folks ordered 500 more for their Easter worship....

the idle american
by don newbury

*****

Foux has hundreds of Cajun jokes and stories. The Cajun Ten Commandments include: "Just be one God in heaven, Brought yo' self to church, Don't be kilt nobody, Don't yo took nothin', always told the troot and don't yo wish for yo neighbor's pirogue."

When the subject of crosses comes up, he's as serious as a funeral. He says NOT ONE patron of the restaurant has spoken critically of the project; in fact, many diners want to help out.

He believes when a 130-ton* project like this gets rolling, the outcome is unpredictable, well beyond our comprehension. (*the weight of the crosses built to date.)....

I pray the financier will never grow weary in well doing, and laborers for the cross will grow well beyond few. Workers on the project warrant deepest thanks and congratulations.

These yard signs have great permanence, with deep meaning from now on, long after temporary political signs are uprooted and gone. Whoever said it first got it right: "The ground at the foot of the cross is exceedingly level."

This project brightens the hope of Easter. It refreshes in a world of turmoil and discord, rife with distrust and disgust. So does the marquee of a Tennessee church: "Duct Tape May Patch a Lot of Things, But Three Nails Fixed It All." Stand and sing — or sit and hum — The Way of the Cross Leads Home....

Let's salute our Vietnam veterans

The jungle was thick, the heat insufferable, and the enemy fire never-ending.

During a particularly foggy day, one pilot had to trade out three separate helicopters due to damage from heavy enemy fire. He counted more than 400 bullet holes in his choppers by sundown.

Despite the odds, an elite group of U.S. servicemen carried on performing what's now considered by many to have been the most dangerous job in one of history's deadliest conflicts.

The Vietnam-era "Dust Off" crews, as they were known by their radio call sign, flew unarmed helicopter ambulances into hostile areas to rescue the wounded, providing critical emergency treatment as they evacuated troops out of harm's way to medical facilities nearby.

The characteristic thump of the Dust Off choppers became a welcome sound of safety and hope to those in battle. Although most wartime radio call signs were changed frequently to confuse the enemy, the Dust Off call remained consistent — those crews were too vital to the American effort to lose communication, even temporarily.

These four-man Dust Off crews bravely performed their mission in the face of terrible odds, which dealt them a one in three chance of being killed or wounded.

But it wasn't for nothing. We owe more than 900,000 lives to these crews.

Some of these Dust Off veterans have been recognized for their selfless dedication to saving American lives, even earning Medals of Honor. All members of these heroic crews deserve to be honored, and I've introduced a bill in the US Senate that would make this group of brave Americans eligible to receive the Congressional Gold Medal.

Texas is the proud home of nearly 1.7 million veterans — including many Dust Off crew members. The remarkable story of the Dust Off crews is a truly Texas story — these heroic pilots were trained to fly at Fort Wolters in Mineral Wells and at Fort Sam Houston in San Antonio, and the UH-1 'Huey'

texas times
by sen. john cornyn

choppers they flew over the jungles of Vietnam were proudly built in Fort Worth.

Of course, our state has a proud tradition of support and appreciation for all those who have served. But this Vietnam Veterans Day, 43 years after the last American troops left that nation, we especially honor those 500,000 Texans who served there, the more than 3,400 Texans who died in the conflict, and the more than 100 Texans that went missing in action.

To commemorate the 50th anniversary of the Vietnam War, the Department of Defense is holding events all across Texas, including many in conjunction with Vietnam Veterans Day on March 29.

So whether we honor these brave soldiers in person at one of those special events, with a private moment of silence, or by learning what those brave soldiers laid on the line for their country, on behalf of 27 million Texans, I want to thank those who served in Vietnam, and to all who have worn the uniform of our great nation.

City action removes two CEDC members

The Clarendon City Council took action during its regular meeting March 24 that resulted in the removal of two board members from the Clarendon Economic Development Corporation Board of Directors.

City aldermen first learned of issues with the CEDC during the council's March 10 meeting. The chief problems were passages in both the CEDC bylaws and the articles of incorporation that require board members to be residents of the City of Clarendon and a provision in the bylaws setting the date of the regular monthly CEDC meetings.

At that time, city officials said the 1995 bylaws needed to either be followed or changed.

At last week's meeting, City Administrator David Dockery reported to the City Council that he had consulted with city's attorney about the issue. Correcting the bylaws would be a simple process, Dockery said, but changing the articles of incorporation would require legal work and submission of the changes to the Texas Secretary of State.

After discussing the matter, the board voted 4-0-1 to approve a motion by Alderman Larry Jeffers, seconded by Alderman Beverly Burrow, to administer the bylaws as written and inform CEDC board members living outside of the City of Clarendon that they no longer qualify to serve. Alderman Doug Kidd abstained from the motion as a member of the CEDC board.

CEDC board members affected by the decision were Roseann Mayer and Jack Craft.

CC Regents okay administrative renewals

Clarendon College Regents renewed 14 administrative positions during their regular meeting on March 24.

The re-hires followed the recommendation of CC President Robert Riza and are 12-month appointments beginning in fiscal year 2017.

Those positions approved included Tex Buckhaults, Executive Vice President of Academic & Student Affairs; Ashlee Estlack, Assistant to the President & Marketing Coordinator; Brian Fuller, Associate Dean of General Education; Becky Green, Associate Dean of Enrollment Services; David Hall, Associate Dean of Career, Technical, & Continuing Education; Brandi Havens, Registrar; Aaron Lopez, Director of the Childress Center; Pamela Reed, Director of the Library; Lana Ritchie, Vice President of Administrative Services; Susan Russell, Associate Dean of Financial Aid; Dr. Robert Taylor, Director of Institutional Research/Title III Project Director; Will Thompson, Director of Information Systems & Computer Operations; Johnny Treichel, Division Director for Agricultural Programs; and Brad Vanden Boogaard, Athletic Director & Director of Student Life.

In other college business, regents ratified the hiring of Yvonne Stephenson as a part-time library assistant.

The board also approved the 2016-2017 academic calendar and accepted the "Express Path" 12-month online associate's degree plan, which will launch this fall.

The board also received an update on the progress of the Trane project, which now has set new HVAC units on the Bairfield Activity Center, the Harned Sisters Fine Arts Center, and the Courson Ranch Operations Center.

Keep your identity protected

Hi, gang! This one a little short but very important. Please read. Check with your older relatives and older friends we need somebody to help us. We don't understand this identity theft. Or at least most of us don't.

"Identity theft protection – You can do it!" by Seena Gressin Attorney, Division of Consumer & Business Education, FTC

You've probably seen ads offering "identity protection" services. In fact, nobody can guarantee you won't experience identity theft. Those services offer identity monitoring and repair – things you can do yourself, for free.

Concern about identity theft has spawned many companies that watch information sources – most notably, your credit report – for signs that an identity thief may be using your personal information to get loans, open credit card accounts, or otherwise cause financial havoc. You can pay them to alert you to possible trouble, or simply keep watch yourself.

If you're open to being a do-it-yourselfer, here are some free and low-cost alternatives to buying identity theft protection services: Check your credit reports for free. Your credit reports usually will show if an identity thief opens, or tries to open, an account in your name.

Federal law requires each of the three major credit bureaus to give you a free credit report each year at AnnualCreditReport.com, the only authorized website for free credit reports. Place a credit freeze on your reports. A credit freeze blocks anyone from accessing your credit reports without your permission. Because potential creditors can't check your files, a freeze generally stops identity thieves from opening new accounts in your name.

Review your monthly credit card, bank, retirement, and other account statements for transactions you didn't authorize. Better yet, log in to check them more frequently.

Fires blow through the Panhandle

As many of my faithful readers know, I always predict cold weather on Easter. Once again, I was correct.

Even though we did not wake to snow on the ground as Amarillo did, there were no cute sleeveless dresses showing at our little church. Jackets and sweaters were necessary.

By far the worst two days of the week were the 23rd and 24th with strong winds of 20-30 sustained and Clarendon recorded a 68 mph gust.

Wild fires were being fought in Armstrong, Randall, Potter, Hutchinson, Gray, Wheeler, Carson, Childress and Donley counties. The National Weather Service in Amarillo said strong winds, no recent rainfall, humidity as low as 8 percent, and large amounts of tall grass due to last year's record rainfall all came together to create the perfect conditions.

Highways were closed, and the most significant was I-40 from Highway 70 to Shamrock (about 60 miles), 287 from Claude to Clarendon, and many more.

Eggcellent Easter weekend

Last weekend I played with my cousins Nathan and Daniel. We got a balloon kit so we blew up a lot of balloons and launched a lot of balloons out of the back of the Gator. The balloons went flying everywhere. Then we had to go pick them up. Some of the balloons landed on the roof. Then we launched them at each other.

For Easter, first I went to my Andy's house, and we got to hunt a lot of eggs. All of us were trying to find the egg that had $2.50 in it. My sister ended up getting that egg. I got two eggs that had 50 cents in them. Then we went to the Church and got so many eggs that they wouldn't fit in to most of our baskets. At one point Nathan took Ella's hat and starting putting eggs into it. After we finished on our side, we had to go check where the little kids hunted for eggs they missed. Then we went to my Nanny's house and we got to hunt in the back yard. I spent all my time trying to get the eggs in the trees, and ended up only getting nine eggs. Even the little kids had more eggs than I did. Happy late Easter.

Drugs in the News

New Hemophilia B Treatment Approved

The US Food and Drug Administration recently approved Idelvion (Recombinant Coagulation Factor IX, Albumin Fusion Protein) for use in children and adults with Hemophilia B. Idelvion is the first product that combines a coagulation factor and an albumin fusion protein through the use of genetic technology. Idelvion is administered by a healthcare professional to help stop uncontrollable bleeding emergencies after surgery and to help prevent bleeding events when used as a preventive measure.

Research from two large clinical studies helped support the approval by the FDA. Hemophilia B, also known as Christmas disease, is condition that affects the ability of the blood to clot normally due to a mutation in blood clotting factor IX. Without this clotting factor, a person with hemophilia B is more prone to bleeding with a simple injury because the blood does not clot normally.

Ryata Daniel of Clarendon College is the WJCAC Pitcher of the Week. The sophomore from Alamogordo, New Mexico, went 3-0 in four appearances last week. # Bronco JV win over Borger

The Clarendon Bronco junior varsity team hustled up a come-from-behind win to put the Borger Freshmen down 8-6 last week. Nathan Shadle got the win by striking out eight hitters in six innings. Noab Elam came in the seventh to save the game. According to coach Brad Elam, the Broncos trailed 0-3 after the first inning, but were able to tie the game after the second inning.

"We got behind again, but were able to take the lead 6-5 in the fifth inning," Elam said.

The Bulldogs were able to tie the score again in the back and forth game in the sixth inning. But the Broncos would not be denied and came storming back in their at bat in the bottom of the sixth and score two runs.

"We were able to hold them off in the seventh," Elam said. "And Payton Hicks and Noab Elam both scored two runs each."

They played the same team again and defeated them in two games at 9-3 and 8-1.

"The JV played really well in both games," Elam said. "The pitching was outstanding and we had many players with good hits including Damarjae Cortez, Noab Elam, Payton Hicks, Payton Havens, Isaac Dunham, Anthony Michaud, and Ryan Ward. In 10 innings of pitching, Josh Cobb, Preston Elam, Noab Elam, and Nathan Shadle struck out 18 and only walked two allowing only four runs. They were outstanding."

The Bronco JV will travel back to Borger April 2 and 9 to take on the Borger Freshmen again.

Early lead spells victory for Broncos

By Sandy Anderberg

The Clarendon Broncos are continuing their tough schedule and breezed by Valley last Saturday 15-4.

The Broncos scored 11 runs in the first three innings of play and had little trouble with the Patriots.

The Broncos posted a dominating first inning to get the big lead as Kade Hunsaker hit an RBI single, Nick Shadle slammed an RBI double, and Andy Davis added a two-run single.

In the second inning of play, Caleb Cobb had an RBI double, and Shadle was able to come up with another RBI single. Preston Elam had a big game for the Broncos getting on base four times and scoring three runs with one RBI. Elam hit a double in the first inning and singled in the third and fourth innings.

The Broncos had a total of 14 hits, 10 RBIs adding to their run total. Josh Cobb and Clay Koetting also added to the scoreboard for the Broncos.

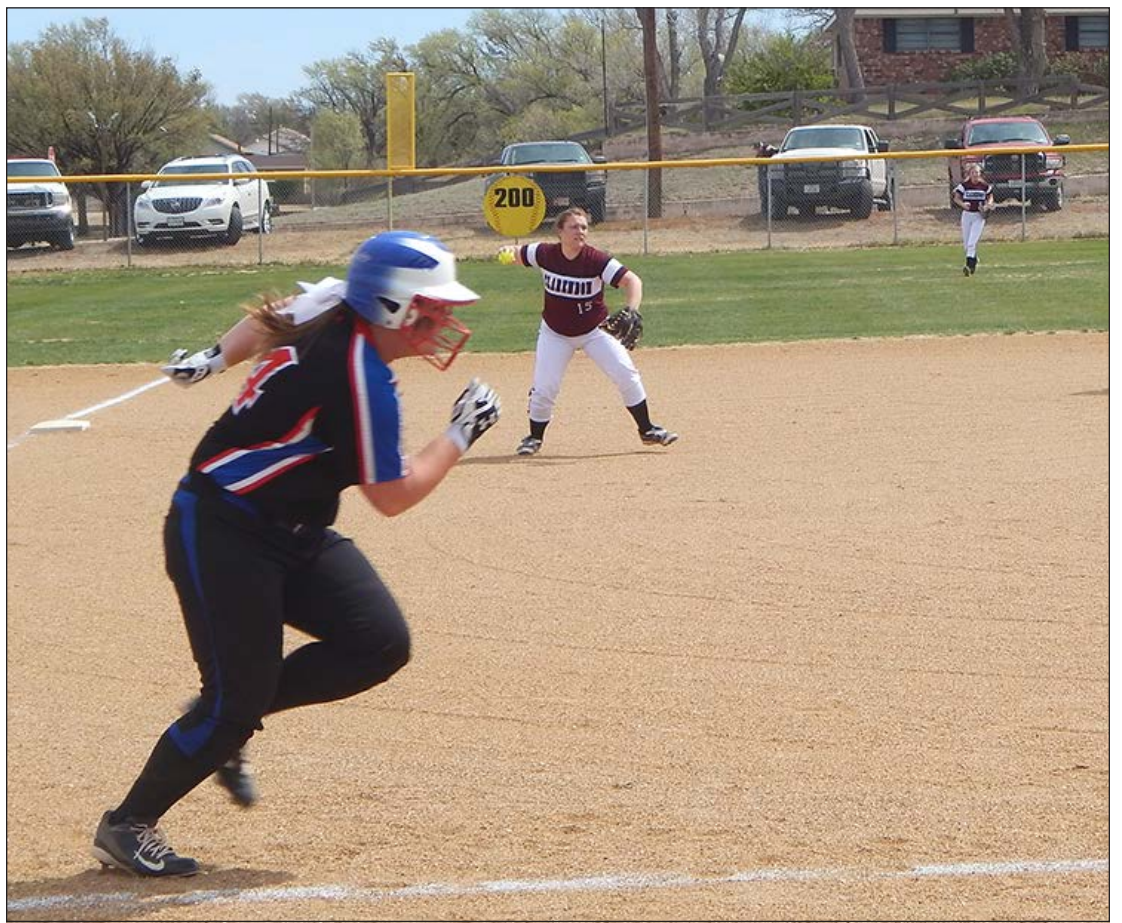

The Broncos ran into a roadblock against River Road last week. They lost at home to the Wildcats, 9-11.

River Road took an early lead in the match up as they scored three runs in the first inning. But a Bronco error allowed the Wildcats to score a pair of runs. The Broncos were able to put some runs on the board in the third, sixth, and seventh innings, but River Road took the lead for good in the ninth to get the win.

"We didn't hit or field very well," coach Brad Elam said. "Our pitching walked too many people and we were still in a position to beat an undefeated and very good River Road team. I thought we were farther along than we really are, so we will go back to work and clean some things up."

The Broncos will be at home against Kress April 1 at 1:00 p.m. and travel to Wellington April 4 at 4:00 and host Nazareth on April 8 beginning at 4:00 p.m.

Out!

Third baseman Shelby Baxter recovers an infield hit by Claude and makes the throw to first to get an out for the Lady Broncos. The ladies defeated the Lady Mustangs 12-2. The Lady Broncos will travel to Stinnett Saturday, April 2, 2016 to play West Texas High at 1 p.m.

Lady Broncos split district games last week

By Sandy Anderberg

The Lady Broncos added one to their winning column last week as they defeated Claude at home in a big way at 12-2. But they also added one to their loss column at Gruver with an 8-18 final.

According to head coach Gary Jack, the Lady Broncos played well against the Lady Hounds, but let one inning get away from them.

"We were ahead at one time 6-1," Jack said. "It was then tied at eight all, but the sixth inning killed us."

That one big inning hurt the Lady Broncos' chances of pulling out the win.

They were able to rebound quickly and soundly defeat the Claude Lady Mustangs at home.

"The girls played a really good game," Jack said. "They also played good against Gruver, but they let that one inning hurt us."

The Lady Broncos will be playing at West Texas High on Saturday, April 2, beginning at 1:00 p.m. They will travel to Memphis on Monday, April 4, and play at 4:00 p.m.

Extension testing farming tunnels

AMARILLO – When planting season comes around this summer, Dr. Charlie Rush, Texas A&M AgriLife Research plant pathologist in Amarillo, won't be planting traditional crops or in traditional fields.

Rush is beginning a new project looking at high-value vegetable crop production under high tunnels, particularly tomatoes this year. High tunnels are Quonset hut-type structures similar to greenhouses in appearance but lacking artificial heat. As water concerns continue to rise, the potential for making more money with the available water is really good, he said, so that's one of the reasons to look at this new production system with high tunnels and high-value vegetable crops.

"One of the reasons we're doing this research is because the Ogallala Aquifer is certainly limited and in most cases the water level is dropping," Rush said. "In areas south of Amarillo particularly, the water availability is becoming scarcer every year."

It's more difficult for farmers to pump due to the depth of water and the cost involved, he said.

"So obviously it's really important that everybody make the most out of every inch of water they apply that they can," Rush said. "We strongly believe that in some of the areas where they are running out of water, they're no longer going to be able to grow high-value crops like peanuts or potatoes and even corn, because these all require a lot of water.

"Whereas, if you had a high tunnel, you could grow tomatoes and the amount of money you could make for every inch of water vastly outpaces what you could make on any other crop we're currently growing in the Panhandle."

Rush said he has multiple research projects to conduct under the high tunnels with a growing interest being expressed by retailers. H-E-B is currently supporting one project with the Texas Department of Agriculture and United Supermarkets also expressed interest in collaborating.

"The potential for retail grocers to increase availability of high quality vegetables by purchasing from local growers is quite high," he said.

So far, the frames of four individual high tunnels have been erected with a target date for having tomato seedlings planted by the first week of May, Rush said.

Rush said the tomato cultivars have already been selected and are growing in a greenhouse setting. The seed came from Dr. Kevin Crosby, AgriLife Research vegetable breeder in College Station, and also from some commercial tomato breeders in California.

"The little seedlings are growing and looking great," Rush said. "They'll be ready to go by the middle of April, and then it just depends on when we are able to get everything we want done out at the high tunnels as to when we plant the tomatoes there."

Each high tunnel is 96 feet long, 30 feet wide and 12 feet tall, said Jimmy Gray, AgriLife Research technician in Amarillo. Each will have six, 60-inch beds that will be plowed and shaped up prior to completion of the tunnel building in preparation for planting.

The high tunnel metal frames will be covered with a fiberglass impregnated tarp to allow sunshine in and keep most of the weather out, Gray said. The sides will roll up about 5 feet. The end walls have a 20-foot by 10-foot door that will roll all the way up to allow a breezeway through the high tunnel.

"We are also installing drip tape – both subsurface drip irrigation and root-demand irrigation – along the length of each 5-foot bed," he said. "We will have three beds per zone and four zones per tunnel, so about 40 foot lengthwise by three 5-foot beds will be one irrigation management zone. And those will be controlled individually with RDI on two of the zones and SDI on two of the zones."

A similar irrigation setup will be developed in the open field, Rush said. This way researchers and engineers involved in the project can compare vegetable production and water use inside the tunnels and in the open fields. Rush said this will allow them to conduct precision irrigation and fertilizer practices as they grow tomato plants, and develop best management practices to pass on to producers who adopt high tunnels in the future.

"Eventually, we will look at more than just tomatoes; we will look at all sorts of other specialty crops including vegetables to be grown under high tunnels," he said. "We're going to have to work out a cropping system because you can't grow one vegetable every year inside the entire tunnel, so you need to do just like you would in a field and have rotation schedules."

Rush said some of the management techniques they will study concern irrigation frequency and method.

"We are excited to look at the new root-demand irrigation," he said. "Instead of having our traditional subsurface drip or drip tape on top of the bed, root-demand irrigation tape is buried in the bed around the root zone, and as the root grows into contact with that, the roots are actually able to extract water directly from the tape when they need it."

Once it is installed, Rush said, theoretically producers should not have to worry about irrigation scheduling and the plant should never be exposed to stress because water is always available.

AgriLife Extension insect scouting school to be held April 5 in Amarillo

AMARILLO – The Texas Panhandle Scout School, hosted by the Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service, will be held April 5 at the Texas A&M AgriLife Research and Extension Center, 6500 Amarillo Blvd. West, Amarillo. The training is open to anyone interested in learning about scouting and identifying insect pests of corn, grain sorghum and cotton, said Dr. Ed Bynum, AgriLife Extension entomologist in Amarillo.

Bynum said the school should be beneficial to crop consultants, farmers and their workers, and AgriLife Extension employees.

Registration will begin at 8:30 a.m. and sessions will go from 9 a.m.-3 p.m. There is a $10 fee payable at the door.

Speakers, all with AgriLife Extension, in addition to Bynum will be Dr. Jourdan Bell, agronomist in Amarillo; Blayne Reed, integrated pest management agent for Hale, Swisher and Floyd counties; and Dr. Ron French, pathologist in Amarillo.

Topics will include agronomy, herbicide injury, diseases and both beneficial and pest insects in corn, cotton and sorghum.

Three Texas Department of Agriculture continuing education units – two integrated pest management and one general – will be offered.

Those planning to attend should preregister by April 1 with Ronda Fisher at 806-677-5600 or at rkfisher@tamu.edu.
