Byars clarifies fire department budget

Howardwick Mayor Greta Byars has clarified the city's new budget in terms of the funding for the fire department there.

Last week's Enterprise reported that the fiscal year 2019 budget approved by the city council September 11 included more than $3,000 in additional funding for the department. However, Byars points out that the department's discretionary funds have actually been reduced significantly.

The city's current budget included $3,000 in discretionary funds for the fire department, but the city's actual fire department expenses – for insurance, fuel, electricity, and propane – amounted to an additional $6,584.22 that was not previously budgeted in that line item. That brought the city's total expense for the fire department to more than $9,500 for fiscal year 2018.

The new budget line item for the fire department totals $6,475, covering department's expenses for fuel, insurance, and utilities but reducing the department's discretionary funds from the city to $500, a drop of $2,500 compared to the current year.

CISD moves ahead with security work

Clarendon CISD Trustees approved a contract to improve security at the school during a special meeting on August 27.

Attending the meeting was George Ramirez of Hohe Design Group and Joseph Huseman and Pete Ward of Huseman Builders, Inc., who discussed security plans with the board.

Trustees voted to enter into a contract with Huseman Builders, Inc. for construction management services on the Security Improvement Projects.

Superintendent Mike Norrell said this week there is no budget for the project as of yet because the project is still in the design phase. Once preliminary drawings are done, the construction company will then give the school a estimate.

Seliger praises CC at town hall

State Senator Kel Seliger (R-Amarillo) met with Donley County residents last Wednesday, September 19, at the Bairfield Activity Center to discuss issues that will be coming before the state legislature next January.

Clarendon College was highlighted in the senator's remarks, especially in terms of CC's efforts to expand dual credit. "Some of the best work being done in the state is being done in higher education," Seliger said. "We have some kids getting an associate's degree before they get their high school diploma."

Seliger talked about the rigor of dual credit classes meeting the same rigor as college work and talked about the benefits of getting an associate's degree before going to a four-year college.

"If you get your associate's from Clarendon College, you'll graduate faster at West Texas A&M than the kids who start there," Seliger said.

The state has goal of having 60 percent of Texans have at least an associate's degree or certificate by the year 2030, Seliger said, and he thanked CC President Robert Riza for his testimony the previous week in Austin on dual credit and workforce readiness.

Clarendon School Superintendent Mike Norrell also spoke in favor of dual credit.

"Dual credit saves our parents a lot of money," Norrell said. "I think larger institutions don't appreciate what community colleges are doing."

Dr. Riza also thanked the senator for what he does for the district in Austin and also for what he keeps from happening.

Seliger opened his remarks by discussing the importance of voter involvement at the local level and efforts at the state level to control local officials' ability to raise taxes.

"You don't need Austin to cut local taxes," Seliger said, noting that local officials can do that quickly and easily if it's really important to local voters.

"Local decisions are better made locally," the senator said.

"That used to be a foundational issue. Now the Texas Public Policy Foundation claims local control is a myth because the state creates these

City okays budget for FY 2019

The Clarendon City Council adopted a budget and tax rate for fiscal year 2019 and approved several perennial agenda items during its regular meeting September 13.

Aldermen unanimously approved the city's $8.1 million budget, which includes funding for the $3.9 million water infrastructure improvement project and the $1.9 million water recreation facility.

The council also approved setting the city's ad valorem tax rate at $0.75865 per $100 valuation.

Biennial Publicity & Tourism Agreements were approved with the Clarendon Economic Development Corporation (CEDC) and the Clarendon Chamber of Commerce to administer the city's Hotel Occupancy Funds.

The council voted to reappoint Dr. Robert Riza, Roger Estlack, Ronna Newman, and Alderman John Lockhart to the board of the CEDC.

Aldermen reviewed and approved the CEDC general budget and the CEDC Hotel Occupancy Tax budget and also approved the Chamber's Hotel Occupancy Tax budget.

A resolution was approved to adopt the City of Clarendon Funds Investment Policy, and in a separate motion the council named City Administrator David Dockery and City Secretary Machiel Covey as the Investment Officers for fiscal year 2019.

The council considered casting ballots for places on the Board of Trustees for the Texas Municipal League Intergovernmental Risk Pool and voted to support Randy Criswell, City Manager for the City of Canyon, for Place 11 on the TML IRP Board of Trustees for a six-year term.

The council also approved a See 'City' on page 5.

Cross Wagon wins Chuckwagon Cookoff

The Cross Wagon team was the overall champion of the 24th annual Col. Charles Goodnight Chuckwagon Cookoff last Saturday, September 22, as participants and guests enjoyed fair skies and beautiful weather.

The Vega chuckwagon team outshined 13 other teams, placing in three out of five food judging categories placing second in Overall Cooking to take home the custom cutting board designed by Clarendon artist Jack Craft.

Officials with the Saints' Roost Museum, which sponsors the event, said tickets to the event sold out last Thursday with wagons preparing food for a total of 700 people.

The 11th annual Junior Cookoff the day before the big event drew eight contestants, who were paired with experienced wagon teams to prepare potatoes for the cooks' dinner Friday night. Haidan Norman from Howardwick won first place and was teamed with the Crosstimbers Ranch from Mustang, Okla.

Chelsea Wright of Clarendon was second, working with the Trap Drag Wagon of Pampa; and Dani Middleton of Hedley was third and worked with the Tin Cup Wagon of Holly, Colo.

Other junior participants included Kami Duncan, Brooke Duncan, Addy Havens, Aubrey Stidham, and Bryce Williams, all of Clarendon.

Following the Junior Cookoff, 165 people braved cool, damp weather to enjoy a delicious steak dinner Friday night on the museum grounds, compared to 209 the year before. The invitation-only event was held exclusively for Chuckwagon teams and members of the Museum and their families as well as members of the Goodnight family.

The trade show was held throughout the day Saturday, and live entertainment was provided.

Relatives of Chuckwagon inventor Charles Goodnight also were present for their annual reunion.

Fourteen wagons served a menu of chicken fried steak, mashed potatoes, gravy, biscuits, beans, and cobbler. Wagons came from as far as Tennessee and Arizona to attend this year's cookoff, although the Chiricahua Cattle Co. Chuck Wagon was present for educational purposes only and did not participate in the cookoff.

Prizes totaling $3,250 were paid out to the winners. Complete results were:

Dual credit is an opportunity for success

Earlier this month, the Senate Joint Committees of Education and Higher Education held hearings in Austin on the subject of dual credit. There have been several studies researching the topic and two researchers were asked to speak during the hearing.

I was asked to testify at the hearing by Higher Education Committee Chair Kel Seliger to discuss the success our program has had and the opportunities it has provided to our students. Dual credit is where qualified high school students take college level courses and receive both high school and college credit. Much has been said about the "rigor" of dual credit courses, the qualifications of the teacher providing the class, whether these classes actually increase students' graduation rates, and the financial savings for the students who take dual credit classes.

Dual credit has seen significant increases in enrollment during the past ten years. At the hearing, TACC President Jacob Fraire showed that the enrollment of dual credit students has increased 57 percent from fall 2007 to 2017. During the same time, Clarendon College's dual credit enrollment has increased from 272 to 739 students this fall – a 272 percent increase. The majority of this increase has occurred in the past five years, going from a spring 2014 total of 338 to our current enrollment. During the past five years the number of semester credit hours has also increased from 1,689 to this semester's total of 4,353.

During the aforementioned hearing, much of the debate of rigor was finally settled. I can only answer to the rigor here at Clarendon College, but our course offerings are identical to the ones offered down the halls of this building and at our other centers. There is not a watered-down syllabus or course requirements, it is the same class. I make no apologies for our rigor and expectations - if you want the college credit, then you do the college level work.

Some institutions have a different interpretation of the requirements of our accreditor, SACSCOC. SACSCOC visited Clarendon College in the spring of 2015 and spoke highly of our dual credit program. The instructors of our dual credit courses are predominantly our full-time faculty. Some of our high schools have asked about using their respective faculty; and if they can meet the standards set for by SACSCOC, then that is something we will consider.

Do dual credit students graduate at a higher rate than students without dual credit? Again, all I will comment on is the College's own data. The latest data is from the 2012 cohort and it shows that 39 percent of our dual credit students finish a four-year degree in four years or less. When you look at the five-year rate, the percentage jumps to 49 percent. I can only imagine what the percentages will look like when this recent group of students begins to finish their four-year degrees.

An amazing point from two studies conducted by RAND the UT System was neither could confirm a financial savings to the student or their families from having dual credit hours. Senators Bettencourt and West had a very hard time understanding why the study could not provide any meaningful information on financial savings for families. During my testimony I was able to provide some anecdotal data concerning my children and the savings provided to us. A recent Clarendon High School graduate finished her senior year with more than 40 hours of dual credit and completed her Associate's Degree at the College in one semester. Maybe someone should ask her what the savings meant to her and her family.

Some other concerns have been voiced regarding advising of dual credit students. These students receive the same advising our traditional students receive, usually by the same individuals. Our advising is driven by our Core Curriculum, a set of 48 semester credit hours that can transfer in a block to a state institution. After being core complete a student needs an additional 18 credit hours to complete their associate's degree. I told the Committees that Clarendon College was recognized by the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board in April for our increase in our graduation rate for the past three years. During that time the College's graduation rate has climbed from 28 percent to 42 percent, indicating that our students are receiving proper advising and performing in the classroom.

Anyone that has heard me speak since I have been president has heard me state that I don't think everyone needs a four-year degree, but everyone needs something past high school. Dual credit is not simply General Education courses, but it is Career and Technical Education (Workforce Development) as well. We have worked diligently to push our CTE courses into the high schools to allow students to complete certificates while they are still in high school. Since the passage of House Bill 505, 84th Legislative Session, Clarendon College has issued 57 CTE certificates to high school students in the last two years. We have also had several high school students graduate from Clarendon College with their associate's degrees prior to finishing high school.

The College has worked closely with multiple local Foundations to fund all or part of the dual credit tuition and fees for students identified as low socio-economic. This enables students who are first-generation students to have access to college courses and support services to help them build a foundation to believe that they can also be successful in college.

In Clarendon specifically, the PEAK Scholarship has been expanded to include supporting Clarendon High School students with their dual credit tuition and fees. This has been done in partnership with the Clarendon College Foundation.

I have been told, that this is "not the way we used to do things." Texas law requires high schools provide access to dual credit courses for their students. If we at Clarendon College do not provide it, someone else will, and I am not very keen on other colleges being in our service area.

Why does relevance matter? Would you have ever imagined a Christmas without a Toys "R" Us store? We continue every day to make the College relevant in the Panhandle and in the rest of the state.

WE are Clarendon College: Without Equal.

Thinking of carnival rides and Oreos

It is likely true of all old-timers recalling pre-school memories. At times, weren't we all scared of our own shadows?

As a five-year-old, holding tightly onto my parents' hands, I took on the terrors of the midway when a carnival came to town. It was frightening enough to simply jostle through the crowds, and fears heightened as that first ride loomed.

It was unnerving, sitting atop the carousel hobby horse, even though my steed's only movement—upward and downward—was slow. Besides, my mom and dad were alongside in case I toppled off on either side....

That was the beginning. At ride's end, I was only slightly dizzy, thankfully unaware of future moments when there'd be much more to "churn up my innards," one being rides on the breathtaking "Tilt-a-Whirl."

It left riders "all shook up." I'm so glad that my growing-up years did NOT include current amusement rides like Six Flags Over Texas' Shock Wave and numerous other frightening roller coasters.

Now, there are ever so many more ways to become faint. Consider zip canyons, some claiming to drop thousands of feet to end up in ZIP codes different from where they began. And, if there'd been bungee jumps during my pre-school years, I'd never have made it to first grade....

Back in the day, food items that didn't mix well with thrill rides were limited. Cotton candy comes to mind.

Fast forward to current times, and do the math on many additional foods that cause nausea.

One need only visit the State Fair of Texas, where "pre-fair" publicity is generated by new deep-fried items introduced annually. Any of the dishes likely would do me in. Prizes this year were for Cotton Candy Taco, most creative; Fernie's Hoppin' John Cake with Jackpot Sauce, best-tasting savory; and Arroz Con Leche (cinnamon-spiced rice balls), best-tasting sweet. Over the years, there has been virtually everything one can imagine "deep-fried." Partakers ingest the "treats" gleefully, many admitting that later, they'll call to mind the old Alka-Seltzer commercial: "I can't believe I ate the whole thing..."

No longer do we live in a vanilla/chocolate/strawberry world. Baskin-Robbins took care of that with the introduction of 31 flavors of ice cream in the 1950s. Yep, since then, making choices can take more time than servers need to scoop the frozen treats.

Now, throw grocery items into the mix. What with non-fat, low cholesterol, lactose-free, gluten-free and much more, one wonders about challenges for employees. They must gather up groceries ordered on computers, doing so with warp speed to allow timely curbside pick-up or delivery.

the idle american
by don newbury

It's hard to spotlight individual brands that are foundational in the expansion of food choices, but if I had to pick one, it would be Oreo Cookies....

Not many years ago, Oreos were, quite simply, black and white.

If you haven't noticed, Oreo offers MANY more flavors now, and they remain the world's most popular cookies. Part of the ongoing success goes to Oreos becoming "culture specific." For example, two new Oreo flavors available now in China are hot chicken wing and wasabi.

Oreos' popularity in China "took off" with the introduction of these and other flavors. We are told that distribution may be limited to China. In this case, let us hope that what happens in China stays in China....

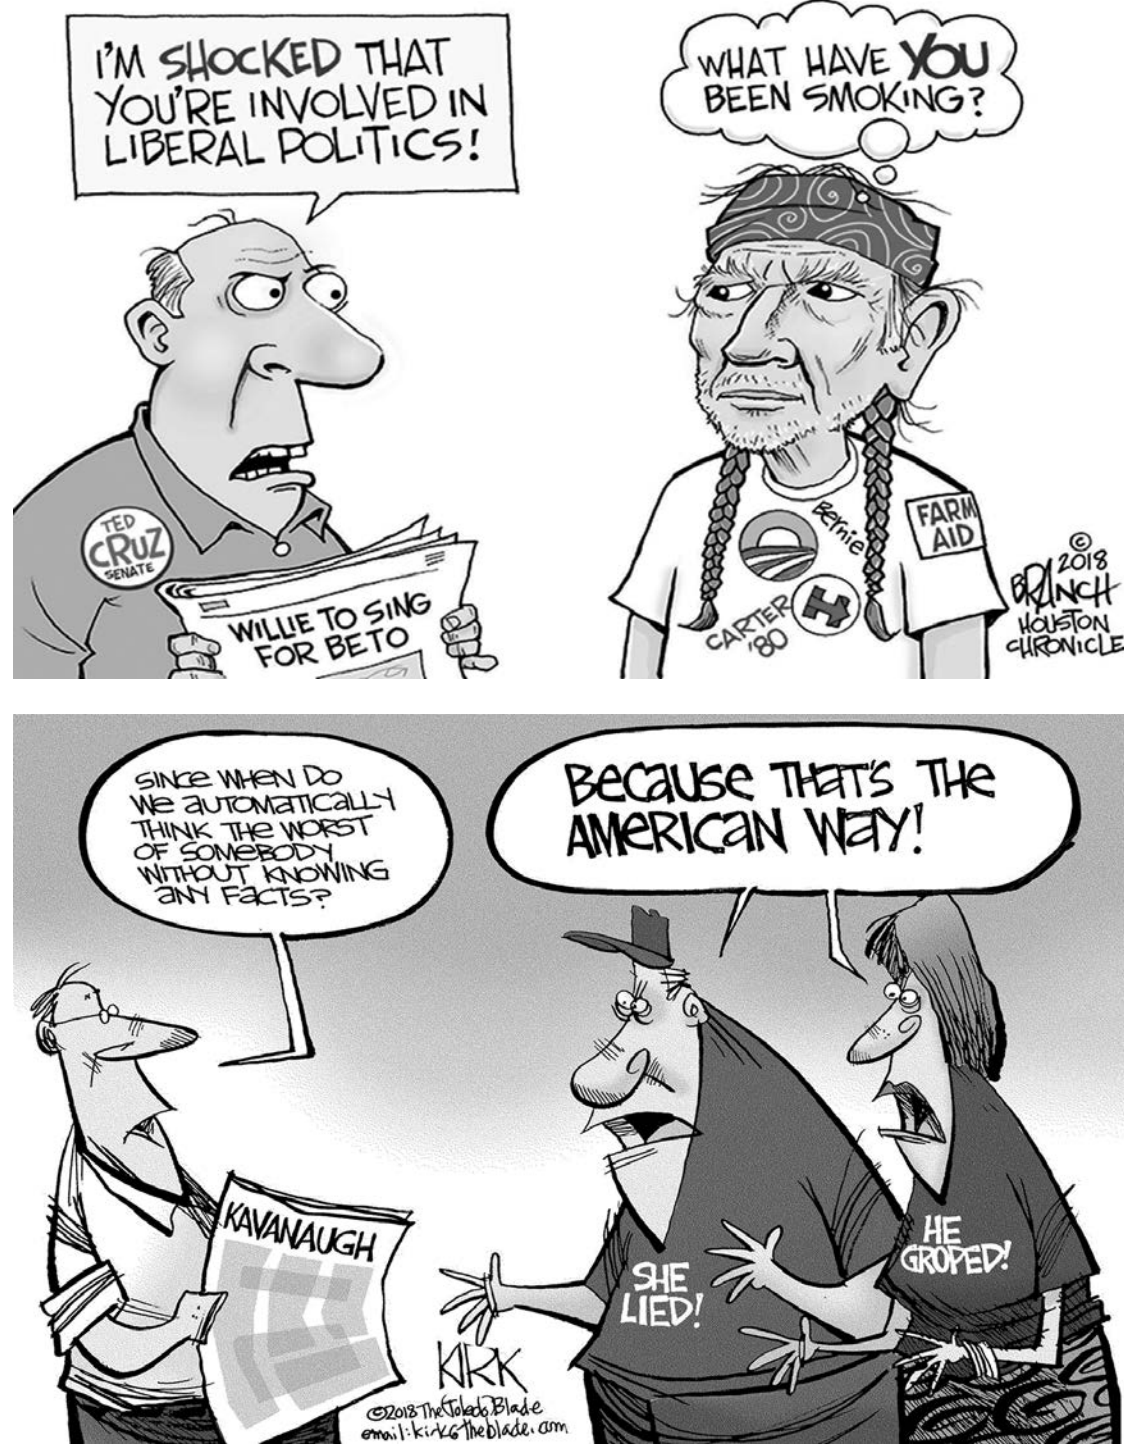

Words printed on our rearview mirrors warn that vehicles shown thereon may be closer than they appear.

Would that there might also be warnings in the future that there'll be more choices than any of us would like to make. Almost certain to be included will be even more thrilling amusement rides and food choices. We'll wish then for simpler "dizziness," such as that of a youngster atop a hobby horse on a carousel.

I'll attempt to simplify, and invite others to join me. Let's start with a simple menu for dinner.

Cornbread and milk sounds mighty good....

Craziness at Kavanaugh's hearing

By Noab Elam

To replace the retiring Justice Anthony Kennedy, President Trump has nominated Brett Kavanaugh who is serving on the DC Circuit Court of Appeals. His credentials include being the lead author of the Starr Report that helped in the downfall of President Clinton. Kavanaugh was actually a clerk of Kennedy.

Now I personally would have liked President Trump to have nominated someone else for the job, such as senator Mike Lee or Amy Coney Barret who is on the 7th Circuit Court of Appeals, simply because I think Kavanaugh is closer to Justice Roberts. The reasoning behind this is that Justice Roberts thought of ObamaCare as a tax instead of a fine. Roberts' reasoning for that actually came from Kavanaugh's opinion on the DC Circuit Court of Appeals. However, it is better than Obama's pick, which was Merrick Garland.

Even though some of Kavanaugh's views differ from mine, that is not the most controversial aspect of Brett Kavanaugh at the moment. Recently, Kavanaugh was accused of sexual assault by Christine Ford. Supposedly, according to CNN, during a party in the 1980s, Kavanaugh and a friend pushed Ford into a bedroom, tried to take off her clothes, and attempted to cover her mouth. These allegations could be true but, as of right now, they are not verifiable.

To begin with, the first time she mentioned this event to anyone was in 2012 when she told a therapist. This is around 30 years after the incident. Plus, the story to the therapist states that there were 4 men instead of 2 in the room with her and that there was no mention of Kavanaugh at all. Ford was apparently drunk that night and can't remember clear details. She can't name the date, house, time, or even the area of the event. She also won't testify her claims before the Senate unless Kavanaugh does first, indicating that she will testify based on what he said rather than her actual statement.

Additionally, Dianne Feinstein had the letter about the incident weeks before the story came out but didn't tell anyone until the right time fit for her party's best interests. And finally, many women have come out and said that Kavanaugh is not that kind of man that Ford claims he is.

Now Ford could be right, but I do not believe the accusations right now because the pieces simply aren't fitting together. Noab Elam is a senior at Clarendon High School.

New law allows free credit freezes

Hi, gang! Starting this month, consumers who are concerned about identity theft or data breaches can freeze their credit and place one-year fraud alerts for free.

According to information from the Federal Trade Commission, under the new Economic Growth, Regulatory Relief, and Consumer Protection Act, consumers in some states those who previously had to pay fees to freeze their credit will no longer have to do so.

A credit freeze, also known as a security freeze, restricts access to a consumer's credit file, making it harder for identity thieves to open new accounts in the consumer's name. The new law also allows parents to freeze for free the credit of their children who are under 16, while guardians, conservators, and those with a valid power of attorney can get a free freeze for their dependents.

In addition, the new law extends the duration of a fraud alert on a consumer's credit report from 90 days to one year. A fraud alert requires businesses that check a consumer's credit to get the consumer's approval before opening a new account.

As part of its work to implement the new law, the Federal Trade Commission has updated its IdentityTheft.gov website with credit bureau contact information, making it easier for consumers to take advantage of the new provisions outlined in the law.

To place a credit freeze on their accounts, consumers will need to contact all three nationwide credit bureaus: Equifax, Experian, and TransUnion. Whether consumers ask for a freeze online or by phone, the credit bureau must put the freeze in place within one business day. When consumers request to lift the freeze by phone or online, the credit bureaus must take that action within one hour. (If consumers make these requests by mail, the agency must place or lift the freeze within three business days.)

To place a fraud alert, consumers need only contact one of the three credit bureaus, which will notify the other two bureaus. Credit freezes and fraud alerts are two important steps consumers can take to help prevent identity theft. Identity theft was the second biggest category of consumer complaints reported to the FTC in 2017 making up nearly 14 percent of all the consumer complaints filed last year. Consumers who believe they have been the victim of identity theft can report it and receive a personalized recovery plan at IdentityTheft.gov.

Also check out these "10 Steps to Avoid Scams" from the Better Business Bureau.

There are thousands of new scams every year, and you can't keep up with all of them (we know, we try!). But if you can just remember these TEN THINGS, you can avoid most scams and help protect yourself and your family.

1. Never send money to someone you have never met face-to-face. Seriously, just don't ever do it. And really, really don't do it if they ask you to use wire transfer, a pre-paid debit card, or a gift card (those cannot be traced and are as good as cash). 2. Don't click on links or open attachments in unsolicited email. Links can download malware onto your computer and/or steal your identity. Be cautious even with email that looks familiar; it could be fake.

3. Don't believe everything you see. Scammers are great at mimicking official seals, fonts, and other details. Just because a website or email looks official does not mean that it is. Even Caller ID can be faked. Don't buy online unless the transaction is secure. Make sure the website has "https" in the URL (the extra s is for "secure") and a small lock icon on the address bar. Even then, the site could be shady. Check out the company first at bbb.org.

4. Be extremely cautious when dealing with anyone you've met online. Scammers use dating websites, Craigslist, social media, and many other sites to reach potential targets. They can quickly feel like a friend or even a romantic partner, but that is part of the con to get you to trust them. Never share personally identifiable information with someone who has contacted you unsolicited, whether it's over the phone, by email, on social media, even at your front door. This includes banking and credit card information, your birthdate, and Social Security/Social Insurance numbers.

5. Don't be pressured to act immediately. Scammers typically try to make you think something is scarce or a limited time offer. They want to push you into action before you have time to think or to discuss it with a family member, friend, or financial advisor. High-pressure sales tactics are also used by some legitimate businesses, but it's never a good idea to make an important decision quickly. Use secure, traceable transactions when making payments for goods, services, taxes, and debts. 6. Do not pay by wire transfer, pre-paid money card, gift card, or other non-traditional payment method. Say no to cash-only deals, high pressure sales tactics, high upfront payments, overpayments, and handshake deals without a contract.

7. Whenever possible, work with local businesses that have proper identification, licensing, and insurance, especially contractors who will be coming into your home or anyone dealing with your money or sensitive information. Check them out at bbb.org to see what other consumers have experienced. 8. Be cautious about what you share on social media and consider only connecting with people you already know. 9. Be sure to use privacy settings on all social media and online accounts. 10. Imposters often get information about their targets from their online interactions, and can make themselves sound like a friend or family member because they know so much about you.

Stay safe out there!

Granddog sends The Cat into hiding

I love the fall of the year especially when we get rain as we did Friday. Two inches of rain does so much for our thirsty land. We all predicted a cooler week because of the Tri-State Fair week, but a good rain is worth the cool weather.

I am writing today about the strange behavior of animals that call our house their home. About three years ago a little grey tabby kitten decided under our deck was a good, safe place to stay. Buffy the Wonder Dog was not so sure, but they kinda came to an agreement, and The Cat was now another mouth to feed.

I have never heard The Cat purr, but boy, can he meow. TC (The Cat) and Buffy tolerate each other. Buffy chases TC when I come outside, and Ole Jim feeds and gives out treats in the morning. If a car other than ours drives up, TC is gone over the fence and under a building or up a tree. TC keeps the place free of mice, rats, and other varmints, so he earns his keep. I forgot to mention his size. TC is larger than Buffy the Wonder Dog, and she has learned to stay away from the claws, but they still tolerate each other.

I babysat Teddy, my granddog, last week. He's a miniature pincher (Min Pin), which is smaller than Buffy the Yorkie and what do you think TC did when confronted with those two little dogs? He disappeared. Gone. The only way we knew he was still around was the food bowl was empty every morning and we hoped it wasn't a skunk eating it. The two dogs had fun running and looking for The Cat, but he didn't show up until Teddy's Dad came to pick him up. There was TC on the patio, and Ole Jim said he was doing his happy dance. As I say, animals have strange behavior.

Our condolences to Chris and Charlotte Durham on the loss of their daughter, Chandace Ritchie, on September 16, 2018. Our prayers are with this family as they grieve for their young daughter. God bless this family; give them strength to continue on.

Surprise guest makes entrance during sleep over

Last Saturday, me and my family went to the Chuckwagon Cookoff that is at the museum every year. We ate at the Honey-Do Spoiler chuckwagon, which is owned by my Dad's friend Kevin. The food was great and very flavorful.

Afterwards, my little cousins, Matthew and Monroe, got to come spend the night with us. We played Farming Simulator and walked my dog, Raider. We also went outside and pretended like we were camping. We built a fake campfire and camp site. Monroe also got to paint a picture with watercolors with my Mom and Ella. That night, me and Matthew cooked grilled cheese sandwiches for all the kids. We were about to give Matthew a bath when he and my sister ran out of the bathroom and said there was a snake in the bathtub! Me and my Dad went in and shut the drain on it as it was trying to go back down the drain. Luckily, I had my pliers on me, so we used my pliers to grab it and pull it out of the drain. It was a bull snake about 13 inches and a little bigger around than a pencil. We disposed of the snake and used a different bathtub that night.

I really had fun with Matthew and Monroe, and this was one sleep over that we will not ever forget!

Les Beaux Arts Club held monthly meeting for September

The Les Beaux Arts Club met for its first meeting of the year at the Community Fellowship Church on Friday, September 7, 2018. President Diane Skelton presided over the meeting.

She thanked everyone for their extra work during the summer months taking care of summer activities as well as preparation for the upcoming Arts Festival.

It was decided that Arts Club would fund an After School Art program for Junior High and High School students that want to participate. We were fortunate enough to get Mr. Rafael Canizares-Yunez, a very talented artist with a Master's degree to teach the program. The after school program is underway and is called the ACE (Arts Cultivate Enlightenment) program. Mr. Rafael Canizares-Yunez was the speaker for the September meeting and everyone present could feel the excitement as he shared images of his work, the slides of his student's art projects, and the progress that they have made under his guidance and direction. We are so fortunate to have him working with our students. In conjunction with the High School program, Arts Club members are now working with Elementary students in preparation for their art projects to be entered in our upcoming Annual Art Festival which will be October 26, 2018. Our scholarship recipient last year was Payton Havens, who is now attending Clarendon College.

Our hostesses for this meeting were Carol Allen, Jan Campbell, Carolyn Myers and Louella Slater. A delicious meal was served to those attending. Our next meeting will be October 5, 2018, at First United Methodist Church.

local entities.” Seliger also briefly discussed the state’s school accountability system before shifting his focus to school safety. “Things have changed,” Seliger said, referring to the dangers that are now faced by schools. “Solutions will be local solutions. The state can tell you how to make schools safer, but the state can’t tell you how to pay for it.” Seliger said he thought metal detectors in schools would take too much time and said he felt like schools would move toward having safety officers. He also said arming teachers should be a local decision.

On the subject of transportation, Seliger said he likes seeing traffic cones and barrels because it means TxDOT is spending money in our part of the state. Donley County Judge John Howard thanked the senator for his support of local governments and his influence in keeping the local driver’s license office open. Responding to a question from Mr. Norrell about teacher pay, Seliger said he prefers to increase funding to the basic allocation for schools and let schools decide where it’s needed. Seliger also discussed the danger of the “wealthy far right” trying to buy seats in state government. “That’s an oligarchy when you have wealthy people in control of the government,” he said. Clarendon third grade teacher Cobette Riza presented questions from her students, including: “What’s your favorite thing about your job?” “Being able to get things done that need to be done.” “How can you help our school?” “By doing a good job funding schools.” “How many people voted for you?” “80,000.” “Do you have a house like the governor?” “No.”

Trump signs bill to rename federal courthouse

WASHINGTON – US Representative Mac Thornberry (R - Clarendon) released the following statement last week after the legislation sponsored by him, US Senator John Cornyn (R-TX), and US Senator Ted Cruz (R-TX), H.R. 5772 - to rename the federal building and courthouse in Amarillo the “J. Marvin Jones Federal Building and Mary Lou Robinson United States Courthouse,” was signed into law by President Donald Trump, on September 18, 2018: “Judge Robinson is a legal pioneer who is universally respected and admired. She has always set high standards for herself and others. Our legal system has benefitted from her hard work,” said Rep. Thornberry. “I am proud to have the names of these two outstanding public servants on our federal building and courthouse in Amarillo, TX.” This is the first federal courthouse named after a woman within a five-state area. Thornberry also said, “Attaching Judge Robinson’s name to the federal courthouse in Amarillo is meant to honor her and her remarkable record of service, but it will also encourage and inspire others to follow her example.” Judge Mary Lou Robinson has been a valued member of the Amarillo community for nearly 70 years. After graduating from the University of Texas School of Law, she moved to Amarillo to work in a private practice until she was appointed judge of the County Court in Potter County. From there, she was elected judge of the 108th District Court in Amarillo from 1961-1972. In 1973, she was appointed justice of the Seventh Court of Appeals in Amarillo, making her the first female appellate judge in Texas. She was appointed Chief Justice of that court in 1977 and continued to serve as Chief Justice until her appointment by President Jimmy Carter to the federal bench. Judge Robinson’s name would join that of J. Marvin Jones. Mr. Jones was born in Cooke County in 1882 and served our country in World War I. He continued to serve our country as a Member of Congress from 1917-1940. Following his role in Congress, he became a judge of the United States Court of Claims in 1945, serving as Chief Judge from 1947-1964. In 1976, he was appointed as senior judge and remained active until his death in Amarillo.

resolution recognizing September 2018 as being National Preparedness Month. In his administrator’s report, Dockery updated the council on code compliance, the USDA grant/loan project, the water recreation project, the disposition of the former Antro Hotel, and work on the city’s sign ordinance.

The council voted to begrudgingly accept the resignation of Alderman Burrow, who later thanked the board and stated that she has enjoyed being on the council and will miss everyone. Mayor Sandy Skelton commended Dockery’s work for coordinating all the projects going on in the city at this time.

Let's Go To... The Pumpkin Patch!
 It's Harvest Time
 Color in your own pumpkin patch.

I want one this big!
 It's harvest time! Time to go to the pumpkin patch!
 Do you think that I could lift it?
 I love everything about pumpkins: from baking them into my favorite pies and muffins, to setting them on window sills to decorate, to carving spooky Jack O'Lantern faces in them and lighting them!

What do you know about pumpkins? Read the clues to fill in my pumpkin puzzle:
Pumpkins:
 1. are 90% _____
 2. are a _____, not a vegetable
 3. are healthful, with lots of potassium and _____ A
 4. are used in _____: soups, pies, breads, dips, coffee and spices
 5. may be turned gently while growing so they will have a nice _____ shape
 6. were first _____ in North and Central America
 7. (largest number) grown and canned are from the state of _____
 8. name comes from the Greek word 'pepon' meaning large _____
 9. can be huge; the record breaker (2012 in Rhode Island) was 2,009 _____
 10. are related to _____, zucchinis and other kinds of gourds

What kind of fun activities might you do at a farm with a pumpkin patch?
 1. turn right and left to find your way through the hay bale _____
 2. paint a _____ on a pumpkin
 3. ride in a straw-filled _____ pulled by a tractor or horses
 4. load a pumpkin into a large pumpkin _____ and let it fly
 5. knock down _____ pins by rolling pumpkins
 6. wander the pumpkin _____ and pick your favorite

What did Little Mouse make out of a pumpkin?
 A _____!
