Juvenile in custody after local break in

A juvenile male is in custody in Colorado following the burglary of Wooten's NAPA here early Friday morning, October 12.

Donley County Sheriff Butch Blackburn said his department was notified of the break-in and discovered missing cash from the business and also discovered a customer's pickup had been stolen as well. A stolen Jeep from Austin was found at Floyd's Automotive.

Blackburn said the pickup was wrecked in Colorado that same morning and a 14-year-old male was arrested. He has four charges on him in Colorado as well as charges through Austin Police Department, and Donley County has filed on him for Unauthorized Use of Motor Vehicle and Burglary of a Building.

Firemen work two Hedley fires Oct. 10

Volunteer firemen from Hedley and Clarendon worked two structure fires in Hedley last week.

Hedley Fire Chief Neil Koetting said his department and Clarendon's responded to a report of a fire at former convenience store on US 287 Wednesday morning, October 10. The fire appeared to have started in a storage building behind the store and then spread to the main building, Koetting said. Firemen had to cut holes in the roof of the vacant store to get access to the blaze.

The cause of the fire was not determined immediately and was being investigated by the Donley County Sheriff's Department and the State Fire Marshall's office.

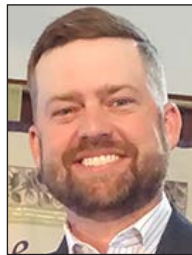

Wednesday evening, another fire was reported. Koetting said the home of Dusty Wilkinson was a total loss, and he said the fire appeared to have been caused by an electrical fire in a wall.

CC, WTAMU to sign nursing degree agreement

Clarendon College and West Texas A&M University will sign confirmation of an articulation agreement to streamline the transfer process of nursing graduates at Clarendon College at 3:15 p.m. Thursday, October 18, at the Barfield Activity Center in Clarendon.

"WT's nursing program is very highly regarded in the Texas Panhandle, and this partnership is outstanding for us," Clarendon College President Dr. Robert Riza said.

The agreement will allow associate's degree receiving students with up to 90 credit hours to automatically initiate the transfer process for a bachelor's degree at WTAMU even before enrolling. Formalizing the transition will allow aspiring RN licensed nurses opportunity to scholarships, academic support and advising resources at WTAMU.

"At its core, this articulation agreement between Clarendon College and WT's RN-BSN program will facilitate a seamless transition for students with an associate's degree in nursing to pursue a baccalaureate in nursing at WT," Dr. J. Dirk Nelson, dean of the college of nursing and health sciences, said.

"This is a win, win, win. Students will benefit by earning a BSN; both Clarendon College as well as WT will benefit; and the public will benefit from healthcare being provided by additional baccalaureate educated nurses in our region," Nelson said.

With the convenience of online courses, the nursing program at WTAMU serves hundreds of transfer colleges across the country and has received nearly 50 national rankings since 2014. Students are able to apply up to 56 credits for core and prerequisite courses from their community colleges and 34 hours of nursing course credits toward an RN license.

"This agreement provides a great opportunity for our residents working in healthcare fields," Riza said. "It allows us to be a vehicle to help them in achieving their goals and furthering their education without leaving their jobs and families."

This is the second articulation agreement for students in the Allied Health Department at Clarendon College. In 2016, CC partnered with Texas Tech University Health Science Center on a "3+1" Bachelor of Science in Health Sciences degree.

First work

John Morrow of Morrow Drilling tests the well for the Clarendon's future water recreation facility last Tuesday, October 9. Morrow donated his service to drill the well, which he said hit a very good stream of groundwater; and during testing last week, the well was pumping about 100 gallons per minute, which Morrow said was about the limit of that particular pump. The well will be restricted to a much lower rate of pumping when it's completed. Solicitation of bids for the water recreation project is expected in the near future. District court hears three local cases

Three Donley County cases were on the docket when the District Court met in Panhandle last Tuesday, October 9, to hear 27 pleas.

District Attorney Luke Inman, assisted by Harley Caudle, prosecuted the cases for the State of Texas, with the Honorable Judge Stuart Messer presiding.

Suk Jin Park was placed on probation for a period of two years for the Class A misdemeanor offense of unlawful use of a criminal instrument. Park pleaded to an information filed by the State on July 5, 2018 and was placed on deferred adjudication for the offense.

Park, 26 from Garland, was arrested in Donley County by DPS Trooper Emily Ruhl on May 26, 2018.

Pursuant to the plea agreement, Park was required to pay an upfront fine of $4,000 to Donley County, $458 in court costs, $180 lab restitution, and complete 100 hours of community service. If Park violates probation, he could face up to one year in the Donley County Jail.

Matthew James Dickey was placed on probation for a period of two years for the Class A misdemeanor offense of unlawful use of a criminal instrument. Dickey pleaded to an information filed by the State on July 5, 2018 and was placed on deferred adjudication for the offense.

Dickey, 26 from Richardson, Texas, was arrested in Donley County by Ruhl on May 26, 2018.

Pursuant to the plea agreement, Dickey was required to pay an upfront fine of $4,000 to Donley County, $458 in court costs, $180 lab restitution, and complete 100 hours of community service. If Dickey violates probation, he could face up to one year in the Donley County Jail.

Thinh Tony Nguyen pleaded guilty and was placed on deferred adjudication for two years for the second degree felony offense of possession of marijuana.

Nguyen, 30 from Orlando, Fla., was arrested in Donley County by Bowden on October 8, 2017. Nguyen pleaded to an information filed by the State on February 23, 2018.

Pursuant to the plea agreement, Nguyen is required to pay a $6,000 fine, $458 in court costs, $180 lab restitution, successfully complete 300 hours of community service, and a $500 out of state probation transfer fee. If Nguyen violates probation, he could face up to 20 years in the Institutional Division of the TDCJ.

H'wick action limits aldermen who volunteer

The Howardwick City Council approved a resolution regulating aldermen who serve on volunteer organizations at its regular meeting last Tuesday, October 9.

Action on the resolution came early in the meeting which lasted almost three hours as Alderman Debbona Sharpton said she believed that Alderman Bryce Hawley has a conflict of interest as a member of the volunteer fire department.

"Every time you're voting for the fire department not for the city," Sharpton said before moving to go into closed session.

Hawley objected to going into closed session and asked for the issue to be discussed publicly.

Sharpton said Hawley is supposed to recuse himself from discussions about the fire department and votes affecting the department but has not. Alderman Marietta Baird pointed out that the council had asked Hawley to be a liaison with the fire department earlier this year.

"Why can he not speak up?" Baird asked.

At one point, Mayor Greta Byars said she had the power to make motions and moved to adopt Resolution 152. As discussion continued, Hawley asked to strike language in the resolution that prevents aldermen who are volunteers from participating in discussions affecting their volunteer organization, but he received no support for that position.

The board ultimately approved the resolution, allowing aldermen to serve volunteer organizations but preventing them from participating in discussions or votes regarding that organization.

Early in the meeting, Byars announced that an attorney would be coming to future council meeting to train aldermen on the Open Meetings Act and admonished the council about walking quorums or serial meetings of less than a quorum outside of a posted meeting to decide how to vote at an upcoming meeting.

"I know this is happening," Byars said, calling it "very, very illegal."

Byars said that aldermen are sometimes "almost stacking the vote before we come to a meeting."

The meeting was also marked by aldermen having to ask Mayor Byars to be recognized by her before speaking, something Byars had requested during her mayoral comments at the opening of the meeting and she said is required by Ordinance 111.

Other items before the council last week included a discussion of building codes and the enforcement of those code.

City sales tax income posts large increase

Clarendon's sales tax revenue recovered substantially from its September dip when Texas Comptroller Glenn Hegar distributed October funds last week.

The city received $34,348.92 this month, an increase of 26.74 percent over the same period in 2017.

Last month, Clarendon's sales tax revenue dipped 8.28 percent, marking the city's first drop after seven months of increasing sales tax revenues.

Clarendon's calendar year-to-date total now stands at $344,139.71, which is up 8.21 percent compared to one year ago.

Howardwick's revenue also climbed this month, posting a 151.56 percent gain at $3,111.41 and driving that city's year-to-date total up 31.25 percent at $12,430.67.

Hedley was down this period 32.16 percent at $293.20, but the year-to-date figure there is still up 71.10 percent at $10,259.89.

Statewide, Hegar sent $735.9 million in local sales tax allocations for October, 11.4 percent more than in October 2017.

These October sales tax allocations are based on sales made in August by businesses that report tax monthly.

Old-timer's reason to doubt Thomas

The caller was gracious, complimentary and far more composed than some of the senators who "duked it out" during the recent Supreme Court confirmation hearings.

It usually suggests a change of direction, usually downward. "You made a mistake in last week's column," he advised.

Oh, I could argue being "half right," but he had good reason to "doubt my Thomases."...

Jim Bronstad of Corsicana was right, of course, in challenging a quote I had attributed to Thomas (Hollywood) Henderson. It actually belongs to Duane Thomas, who, like Henderson, played for the Dallas Cowboys in the 1970s.

Whatever, it was Duane who questioned why so many people believed the Super Bowl to be "the ultimate game." He asked, "Aren't they playing the game again next year?" That's probably his most memorable quote.

In my defense, I should receive half-credit for getting "Thomas" right. Further, this allows me to mention Thomas "Hollywood" Henderson's wonderful line slamming Pittsburgh Steeler Quarterback Terry Bradshaw's IQ. "He's so dumb, he couldn't spell "cat" if you spotted him the "c" and the "t"..."

I thanked Mr. Bronstad, asking him to "cut me some slack," and that at age 81, I still try hard to get things right.

He responded that he's 93. I asked him what has helped most to attain this age.

"Well, for one thing, I haven't requested 'slack-cutting' very often."...

Neither Thomas nor Henderson endeared themselves to legendary Coach Tom Landry, who probably wasn't sure what to do with either of them.

Henderson played for six professional teams, and after football, became "clean and sober" of drug and alcohol problems in 1984.

He twice won the lottery, once for $28 million and another for $20,000. He established an Austin, TX, charity called East Side Youth Services and Street Outreach....

Uncle Mort, who lives down in the thicket, has reached age 106. Right now, he's working on a kit that can turn fishing rods into extensions for smart phones. "I'll make it a whole lot easier to make 'selfies'," he claims.

He asked me if I know how the "selfie" term came about, and I admitted being clueless.

"Because 'narcissistic' is too hard to spell," he laughed....

A preacher friend, now 90, keeps on chugging. He's been in ministry for more than 70 years, and was a seminary professor for almost half of that time.

the idle american by don newbury

He recalls many church arguments, skirmishes and disagreements.

Some of them, he remembers, didn't rise to the level of minutia....

One church - like a host of others - had "record signs" hanging, to the left and right, on the wall facing the congregation. They had changeable letters and numbers, used mostly to display attendance, giving, baptisms and the like.

During a period of remodeling, two indentions in the lobby wall were made so the signs could be placed there. For weeks, they were secretly moved back and forth from their longtime placement on the sanctuary wall to the new wall placement in the lobby.

Opinions varied and became heated, so a church business meeting was called. There was much discussion, followed by a vote. The minutes of the meeting suggested the secretary may have revealed a personal bias.

On the other end of the age scale, a four-year-old girl, thrust into soccer play, remained motionless on the opposite end of the field from where the action was occurring.

"Hurry up and run down there where the other girls are," her mother screamed.

"There's no reason to, Mom," she protested. "They'll be right back." You know, she may have a valid point....

Haley's great record as ambassador

By Noab Elam

On Tuesday of last week, it was announced that Ambassador to the United Nations, Nikki Haley, has resigned and will depart sometime at the end of the year.

The reason for her resignation, as stated by President Trump during the interview, is she had been looking to take some time off, saying "She told me probably six months ago, 'maybe at the end of the year... I want to take a break.'"

Haley's view on the resignation is similar to the President's declaring that her position as the ambassador to the UN was "an honor of a lifetime" and "the US is (now) respected". That statement is exactly right and it is because of what she has been able to execute while ambassador to the UN.

Her accomplishments at the UN, along with the political views she holds, have made her popular with most Americans. According to a Quinnipiac poll, Haley has a 63% approval rating from Americans and even a 55% approval rating from Democrats.

Jerusalem. She also condemned the Obama administration for its support of the Castro regime in Cuba and Russia for their support of the Assad regime in Syria.

Haley also dismissed rumors of a presidential attempt in 2020 last week by stating that she will not be running for President Trump. This could be an effort to maneuver through the controversial Trump regime and keep her superb approval rating with both parties for a future attempt at the presidency.

Her magnificent record as the ambassador to the UN will be hard to match by the new ambassador. It will be interesting to see who is nominated to fill that position and what the future holds for Nikki Haley. Noab Elam is a senior at Clarendon High School.

America needs Johnson as senator

I recently moved to Portales, New Mexico, to attend college. As anyone who has read my previous articles knows, politics is something that I find very interesting.

This year, the state of New Mexico has some very great candidates. Aubrey Blair Dunn, son of Libertarian State Land Commissioner Aubrey Dunn Sr., is running for Attorney General.

New Mexico, is running for Secretary of State. However, the most vital candidate in these midterm elections is Gov. Gary Johnson.

If elected, Johnson would effectively put an end to the two-party system as we know it. Johnson has been a heavy hitter on very important issues like the debt and deficit, welfare reform, tax reform, balancing the budget, and individual freedoms.

A Senator Gary Johnson is what this country needs. We desperately need to have real conversations about the debt, deficit, and budget. We are tired of politicians who tow party lines and accomplish nothing; constantly falling short on their campaign promises.

Missing reporter should concern the entire world

By Gene Policinski

Journalist Jamal Khashoggi is missing — and the world does not know if he is alive or dead.

That there is no answer yet is, in itself, a tragedy. But depending on that answer, it may well become an atrocity.

Turkey's government said on Oct. 8 that Khashoggi, a prominent journalist from Saudi Arabia now living in the United States and a regular contributor to The Washington Post's Global Opinions page, apparently was killed in the Saudi Consulate in Istanbul last week.

Saudi Arabian officials strongly deny that declaration. But the government of Turkey — even though it's rated as one of the most repressive nations in terms of press freedom — stands by its assertion.

What we do know is that Khashoggi entered the Saudi Arabian mission offices on Oct. 2 and has not been seen since that time. His fiancée, who waited outside for hours that day, said she has not seen him since he went into the mission. A surveillance camera outside the consulate shows Khashoggi entering, but no video has been produced showing him departing.

We also know that Khashoggi was a vocal critic of Saudi leaders — and of a government that has been cracking down on dissent and criticism.

Khashoggi had fled to the United States over his criticism of the Saudi royal family and its influence in that nation. He went to the embassy in Turkey to obtain copies of personal papers needed for a planned marriage to a Turkish citizen.

"If the reports of Jamal's murder are true, it is a monstrous and unfathomable act," Fred Hiatt, The Washington Post's editorial page editor, said in a statement. "Jamal was — or, as we hope, is — a committed, courageous journalist. He writes out of a sense of love for his country and deep faith in human dignity and freedom. He is respected in his country, in the Middle East and throughout the world. We have been enormously proud to publish his writings."

Khashoggi's disappearance and possible murder comes at nearly the same time when, in Bulgaria, the body of Viktoria Marinova, a journalist with TVN, was discovered Oct. 6. Marinova, 30, had been raped, beaten and strangled, according to media reports and Bulgarian police.

Reporters Without Borders, an international group that tracks assaults on journalists, now lists 57 journalists, 14 citizens working in journalism and four press aides as having been killed thus far in 2018.

In its latest report, the nonpartisan human rights organization Freedom House notes that just 13 percent of the world's population lives in nations where the press is considered free.

You may well be asking, "Why should I get angry over the as-yet undetermined fate of a journalist whose work, outside of the Washington, D.C. area, it's likely I have not seen?"

Well, each time a Khashoggi disappears under suspicious circumstances or a Marinova is savagely killed, it diminishes all of our freedoms; there's a bit more tarnish on what our still-strong First Amendment protection for a free press has always meant to the world.

It's as simple as that. We care because we value freedom — the freedom to differ with those in power or others in our society, the freedom to speak or write our views, without the fear that someday we may enter a government building on a simple task and vanish.

Yes, there's great debate around what a free press means today in the United States. But even the most vitriolic attacks often have a call for journalism's essential values of fairness and accuracy. It's those values we defend in defending journalists, even those we don't know.

As a nation, we must declare every time that an attack on journalists anywhere in the world — through violence, threat or faux rule of law — is an attack on a core principle of our democracy. And we do not surrender those principles to tyranny, injustice or criminal acts.

Where is Jamal Khashoggi? His family should know. His colleagues in the profession should know. Every person in every nation around the globe should know.

In the name of press freedom and what it means to us as citizens of the United States and part of humanity, we not only expect an answer, we demand it.

Scammers target elderly people

Hi, gang! I received this from a friend. Just received a call from 800-847-2911. They claim they are from Visa/Master card services and my card had been compromised and they would handle this for me if I would give them card number, expiration date and code number. How stupid do these idiots think we are? I have fraud protection on my cards, and they never ask for my number or any other info and advice to contact my bank for further information. I told this guy I wasn't giving him my number and he asked if he could ask me one more question. Don't let them, hang up! The question was disgusting and not appropriate to post.

Be aware this scam is big in Texas. The Attorney General's office is on to them.

I also came across some new information about a Federal agency that is designed to help "us" older folk from scammers and teach us some very good information about money matters. Money Smart for Older Adults (MSOA) Version 2.0 is now available in Spanish.

The MSOA educational program is a free, easy-to-use resource for older people, caregivers, and service providers, produced by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) and the Bureau of Consumer Financial Protection. They are needing Volunteer English and Spanish teachers. Bob "Money Smart for Older Adults" (MSOA) Version 2.0 is now available in Spanish By Stacy Canan and Jenefer Duane.

The MSOA educational program is an easy-to-use resource for older people, caregivers, and service providers, produced by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) and the Bureau of Consumer Financial Protection. The instructor-led curriculum has new topics and fresh graphics to help older adults and their caregivers recognize and prevent fraud, scams, and other types of elder financial exploitation.

Older adults are prime targets for fraudsters. Elder financial exploitation happens when someone uses older adults' resources improperly or deprives them of their benefits, resources, belongings, or assets. Older people are attractive targets for fraud and scams. Some may be especially vulnerable due to isolation, cognitive decline, physical disability, language barriers, or health problems. While financial fraud against older adults is widespread, few cases come to the attention of adult protective service or law enforcement responders.

bob's whittlin' by bob watson

The MSOA program raises awareness of common frauds and scams and encourages older people to prepare for the loss of the ability to manage their finances. Planning ahead may actually help you stay in control because, as we age, sometimes we lose the ability to manage our own money and property.

Download the MSOA Instructor Guide and PowerPoint in English or Spanish for free. Plan a Money Smart lesson in your community MSOA is fully scripted and can be delivered in brief segments over time. An Instructor Guide with a corresponding PowerPoint presentation allows senior service providers, legal professionals, financial service professionals, and community volunteers to lead the presentation. The stand-alone Resource Guide is for participants to take home and use as a reference tool. All of the materials are available in English and Spanish and printed in large print to make it easy to read.

"I'm Stacy Canan, I lead the Office for Older Americans at the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau, and I'm never going to call you to confirm that you have won a lottery or sweepstakes. I just found out that my name is being used in an elaborate imposter scam. An imposter scam happens when a criminal tricks you by claiming to be someone you trust. In this case, the scammers are claiming to be me in order to take advantage of you and steal your money.

"This scam has four basic parts: You receive a call notifying you that you've won a lottery or sweepstakes prize. Several other calls will follow. One of these calls may come from an imposter claiming to be Stacy Canan, or another CFPB or U.S. government agency official who confirms that you've won the prize.

"Later, you're told that in order to collect the prize, you must pay the taxes upfront. You send the money to pay the taxes and never hear from any of the callers again.

"Signs of an imposter scam: Scams like the above can happen on the phone, through the mail, e-mail, or over the internet. They can occur in person, at home, or at a business. Here are some common signs: You are told you won a sweepstakes or drawing that you did not enter. You're asked to pay upfront taxes or fees. You're being pressured to act now. Scammers don't want you to take the time to do research or to think too carefully before parting with your money. A person claiming to be a government official contacts you to confirm your winnings, the CFPB does not contact consumers about sweepstakes winnings. Learn more about protecting yourself from financial scams or check the FTC's website to stay up-to-date on the most recent types of fraud.

"Suspect you are being scammed? Report it! If you suspect a scam, there are a few important steps you should take right away: Report imposter scams to your law enforcement's non-emergency number. If you think someone's safety may be at risk, call 911. If you suspect that someone is a victim of elder abuse or financial exploitation, report it to Adult Protective Services (APS). Find your local APS at eldercare.gov. Report imposter scams and financial abuse to your state attorney general and the Federal Trade Commission (FTC). Visit the National Association of Attorneys General website for the contact information of your state attorney general. Report scams to the FTC at ftc.gov/complaint.

"While it's true that I lead the CFPB's Office for Older Americans, I do not have access to lists or records of sweepstakes winners, nor do my colleagues. I'm angry that a scammer is using my name and taking advantage of trusting people to con them out of money.

If someone calls you and claims to be a CFPB official confirming a sweepstakes prize for you, this is a scam. CFPB staff do not collect information about lottery or sweepstakes winnings, nor do we call people to confirm winnings. Help prevent this scam and others like it from spreading. Share the tips above with your friends, family, and community."

Stay safe out there.

Weather predictions fall short of reality

What a long, boring weekend Ole Jim and I endured after listening to the weather-guesser all week explaining how some storm in the Pacific Ocean was going to bring a gully-washer of a rainstorm followed by a hard freeze to our little part of the world.

We were prepared. The guest house (travel trailer) was winterized, outside waterlines were emptied and covered, the pantry was stocked, and the heat was in working order. Then reality set in.

Yes, the patio was wet Saturday morning, but it seemed more fog than rain.

We turned on the television to Turner Classic Movies and did some binge watching.

I had never seen Gunga Din, based on the story by Rudyard Kipling. Ole Jim had never seen Mrs. Minerva, a movie about an English family during the bombing of London by the Germans. Both were good movies and didn't cause your ears to hurt from all the noise. No more rain but the wind was now beginning to blow.

Sunday morning the wind was howling and the temperature was dropping like a rock, but at least we had football. We watched the Houston Texans win followed by the Dallas Cowboys entertaining us with a big win over the Jacksonville Jaguars and thinking about that hard freeze.

Guess what. Not only did we not get that gully-washer, but also it did not freeze at our house. The lowest temperature was 34°, so we can't officially claim to be in Indian Summer at this time. Indian Summer is defined as warm, dry weather following a sharp freeze. Who knows what is going to happen? I think I can guess as well as those TV weather-persons.

Hermesmeyer

Phillip "Hunk" Hermesmeyer, 88, of Clarendon died Wednesday, October 10, 2018, in Amarillo.

Rosary will be said at 7:00 p.m. Thursday, October 11, 2018, in Immaculate Heart of Mary Catholic Church in Groom. Mass of the Resurrection will be celebrated at 10:00 a.m. Friday, October 12, 2018, in the Church with Fr. Arokia Raj Samala, as the celebrant. Burial will follow in St. Mary's Cemetery in Groom.

Hermesmeyer

Arrangements are under the direction of Robertson Funeral Directors of Clarendon.

Hunk was born July 26, 1930, on a place sheltered by cedars at the edge of the caprock southeast of Jericho. The Hermesmeyer brothers moved there in 1907 and for 99 years, Hermesmeyer lived and worked there.

"They didn't know much about Catholics in Jericho," Hunk said of the time his family settled there. "My family either managed to go somewhere to Church or have the priest come to them." Hunk was a faithful Catholic his whole life.

Hunk spent his working life taking care of farms and ranches and helping neighbors. He spent many years tending to the Johnson Ranch. He had fond memories of neighbors like Charlie McMurtry and John Blocker. Hunk and his brother Johnny were very active in the rodeo association in Clarendon.

Hunk retired in 2005 and moved to Clarendon. He said he could have moved anywhere, but "this is the kind of people I like." In retirement, Hunk drove the whole Panhandle collecting an enormous amount of cans and scrap aluminum. Hunk collected pocketknives and had much respect for craftsmen of all kinds. Hunk had a bottomless well of jokes and loved to make friends, neighbors, and strangers laugh.

He was preceded in death by his sweet wife Geraldine; parents, Frank and Nell Hermesmeyer; brothers, Frank "Bud" and Johnny Bill; and sisters, Mary Pauline Kline, Nell Britten, and Bernadette.

He is survived by his sister, Joan Gulde of Amarillo; many nieces and nephews, including Cindy Foster and husband Brett of Borger and their sons, Brady and Brody; as well as Bill Hermesmeyer of Panhandle; and two step-daughters, Jeri Lynn McGowan and husband David and Patricia Ann Coffey and husband Bob.

The family requests memorials be sent to St. Mary's Catholic Church Building Fund in Clarendon.

Code Officer Jerry Mulanax is proposing the city adopt new building codes, and he had two experienced building inspectors with him to speak on that topic.

The issue of adopting new codes as well as the pricing and requirements of permits for buildings was tabled for another meeting.

Jeremy Kindle's request to set a food truck on Lots 185 and 186 in the Navajo section of the city was approved.

The council approved a motion to purchase a new back door for City Hall as part of its work to come into compliance with a report from the state fire marshal.

Mayor Byars reported on an ongoing situation with John and Kristina Rucker and their desire to put a "tiny home" made from a storage container in the Nocona Hills section. Current zoning rules require that homes in that section be a minimum of 1,000 square feet, and the structure in question is less than that.

Byars said the storage container is already on the property without the city's permission, which led to a discussion about not needing permission or a permit for storage buildings.

The council approved a motion by Hawley to declare the structure a storage container with the council agreeing that if the Ruckers try to move into the structure they will be in violation because of the building not meeting the 1000-square-foot requirement.

Byars and City Secretary Sandra Childress also reported to the council about their meeting with Red River Water Authority on a number of issues. Chief among those was the discovery that several residents are receiving water services without paying for them and that some residents don't even have water meters.

While the lack of meters or payment for water obviously impacts the water authority, Red River collects the city's trash payments through the water bills as well, city officials said.

Childress said that she has calculated that the city is experiencing about $4,000 per year in lost revenue because of those residents not being billed.

City Hall is continuing to investigate this problem and is working with Red River on a new franchise agreement.

CJH Colts take down Stratford

The Clarendon Colts outlasted the Stratford Elks at home last Thursday night and won 46-26.

"They played a great game on both sides of the ball," coach Clint Conkin said. "We had several guys making tackles all over the field."

Josh Dunn caught a pass from Sylvester Ballard for a Colt touchdown, and Ballard found the end zone six times plus converted a couple of extra points according to Conkin.

"I thought all of our kids played great," Conkin said.

The Colts will take on Booker at home on Thursday, October 25, beginning at 5:00 p.m.

Clarendon's Clay Ward struggles to bring down a Stratford Elk during last week's loss during the district opener. The Broncos have an open week this Friday and will face Booker next week.

Broncos fall in district opener

By Sandy Anderberg

The Broncos' great start to their season hit a roadblock last Friday night in Stratford. After going 5-0 on the year, the Broncos suffered their first loss to the Elks at 14-42.

The Broncos struggled to stay in their game plan against the Elks but stayed close on the ground with 178 yards rushing compared to 209 for Stratford. Ryan McCleskey continued his great season rushing as he accounted for 163 of those yards on 21 carries. McCleskey also posted one touchdown in the game. Dalton Benson had two carries for 10 yards, and Collin Butler carried once for 10 yards. Quarterback Noab Elam was four of thirteen passing for 44 yards and made good on a two-point conversion to Butler in the third quarter.

Stratford scored twice in the first, second, and fourth quarters, while the Broncos found the end zone in the second and third.

Defensively, Benson intercepted a pass and ran it in for a touchdown, and racked up 15 tackles with one QB sack, and Preston Elam had 13 tackles in the game. Caton Grahn grabbed 11 tackles, and Jamal Butler helped with seven.

The Broncos will rest this week and will continue their District schedule Friday, October 26, when they travel to Booker. The junior varsity Broncos will play Wellington at home on Thursday, October 25.

The Clarendon Lions Club held its regular Tuesday noon meeting October 16, 2018, with Boss Lion John Howard in charge.

We had 14 members and Sweethearts Emily Johnson and Brandalyn Ellis this week.

Lion Landon Lambert reported on the county and said that Batpocalypse 2018 is over at the Courthouse with no signs of vampirism. Trees are being replanted on the lawn, which could benefit the displaced bats.

Lion Jacob Fangman reported on the city, which should receive an improved fire rating due to an examination of the fire department and improvements being made to the water system.

Lion Mike Norrell reported on the public school and said the band will compete this weekend.

Lion Ashlee Estlack reported on the college where the meats team won the American Royal and the rodeo team won its third team championship this year.

Plans were discussed for the upcoming annual banquet on October 30, the Pancake Supper on November 2, and our next flag service day on Veterans Day.

There being no further business, we were dismissed to spread Lionism and good cheer throughout our fair county.
