Chamber, Bike Club to Sponsor 'Quest' Saturday

The Quitaque Chamber of Commerce and the local Caprock Bike Club will help celebrate National Trailsday by sponsoring a mountain bike race Saturday. The event, called "Quitaque Quest" will consist of three races: 40 miles, 18 miles and six miles.

The 40-mile event will start at 8:00 a.m. at the ADM Gin on highway 1065 going south to the dirt cap road. The riders then turn and ride up the dirt cap road until the road intersects with the Trailway at Woods Crossing. The riders exit onto the trail at Woods Crossing and ride the 20 miles back to Quitaque to complete the race.

The 18-mile race begins at 8:10 and travels south on 1065 to Fairmont Church. Riders then turn onto dirt roads and finally exit onto the Trailway at Monks' Crossing for the final trip to the finish.

The six-mile race will go south one mile on 1065 and turn onto a dirt road until it intersects with the Trailway. The riders will return to the finish on the Trailway.

The racing event is designed for beginners and experienced riders. The 40-mile race is open only to experienced riders while the 18 and six-mile events are open only to riders interested in a beginners category. Each race will provide age classifications for male and female riders. Each entrant will be provided with accident insurance ($1,000) with no extra cost on entry fee. The first 250 entries will receive a race-designed T-shirt and the first three finishers in each age class will be awarded medals.

Entry fee information can be obtained by calling Wilburn Leeper, at 1-806-455-1121. Mr. Leeper advises that entries will be accepted until race time on Saturday, but riders are encouraged to register early.

The Quitaque Chamber of Commerce is proud to invite you to its first annual "Trail Winds" Chili Cook-Off. This event will be held in downtown Quitaque across from Venture Foods on June 4 as part of Quitaque's second annual National Trail Days Celebration.

Pre-registration is open now. There is a registration fee. Please send the following information with the fee if Hamburgers and drinks will be supplied Friday evening, June 3. There also will be someone available that evening to register latecomers. You are invited to load up your pots and pans and your favorite chili recipe and join Quitaque folks for a "Chillin' Good Time"!

For more information, call Jennifer Pigg at 1-800-687-1329. Send information to Sassy Reynolds, Chili Cook-Off Chairman, P. O. Box 64, Quitaque, Texas 79255.

Make checks payable to Quitaque Chamber of Commerce.

Rock Jamboree Coming Saturday

Another big Jamboree is planned for Saturday, June 4. There was a large attendance at the last Jamboree, with over 450 people present.

Pam Landis, the fiddler from Happy, will be back with the Jamboree this month.

John Francis brought in a picture of the sink hole at Lakeview that he took recently. The hole is now 388' across and dwarfs the pickup parked on top. The land was being farmed in February 1994, but recently began to sink. It is thought that this is caused by the collapse of the salt formations beneath the farm.

It is a wonderful bit of forethought that there has been set aside a day designated as "Memorial Day," on which millions of the living gather in "silent cities of earth" to share comfort and encouragement, and as they disperse to carry with them new and cherished memories.

What "Memorial Day" really means to us as we stroll through the memory Garden, referred to by all as the cemetery, we look, in retrospect, and it becomes a day of past memories . . . We see again the battlefields upon which spilled the life's blood of friends and loved ones whose bodies we laid to rest here or on foreign land. Our memories are stirred by the sight of the flags that we cherish and love, indicating the exact spots where loved ones who died for us rest . . . With all that war implies, we look introspectively, and perhaps question ourselves: "Do I have a deep enough appreciation of the sacrifice which they made for us? Are we guarding the heritage that is ours by reason of their sacrifice?"

To those of you who are taking such wonderful care of our "Memory Garden" I wish that I had words to express the deep gratitude all of us who have loved ones resting there. It gives rise to a lump in my throat each time I enter to view it. When I hear so many, who come from afar, remark, "You folks have the most wonderfully-kept cemetery," it makes me proud.

Keep up the good work, and call on us when you have need. Because of Memorial Day, we instinctively look into the future. In the language of the battlefield, we anticipate the eternal camping ground—the great reunion—the last enemy destroyed—a citation of the Supreme Commander. "Well done."

 CAPITOL COMMENT
 U.S. SENATOR
KAY BAILEY HUTCHISON

Comprehensive immigration bill would regain control of borders

The staggering costs associated with the flood of illegal immigration are crippling state and local governments along our nation's borders. The U.S. Census Bureau estimates that at least 3.3 million illegal aliens live in this country, with more than 500,000 of them residing in Texas. According to a Rice University study, Texas taxpayers expended a net $1.2 billion in 1992 to provide federally-mandated services — including the cost of incarceration — to illegal aliens. The report predicts Texans will pay an additional $14.4 billion net over the next ten years. Tax payments by illegal aliens fall far short of reimbursing the state and localities for these expenses.

For these reasons, I have introduced the Illegal Immigration Control Act of 1994 to regain control of our borders.

Over the next five years, my legislation would add 6,000 federal agents and 1,000 inspectors to patrol America's borders. Most government benefits to illegal aliens would be prohibited as well. Emergency medical care and the Supreme Court-mandated schooling for children would continue.

The bill requires the federal government to take responsibility for aliens incarcerated in state and local jails.

How would we pay for all this? Most immigration bills now introduced in Congress impose a border crossing fee or a customs charge. But these taxes hurt business and consumers. My bill takes a different approach. I support funding its enforcement by capping overhead costs for federally-sponsored research at institutes of higher learning.

Universities that are awarded funds for government research can charge the government for overhead expenses, such as electricity and air conditioning costs. Overhead costs for research programs at Texas colleges and universities are currently held under the 50 percent cap.

By limiting these overhead reimbursements for all universities to a maximum of 50 percent of the contract, my legislation would reduce spending by an estimated $1.2 billion over the next five fiscal years.

Similar legislation has been offered in the U.S. House by Texas Congressman Lamar Smith. His bill, however, includes a border crossing fee.

Enough is enough. Securing our borders is a federal responsibility. It is time for the federal government to provide relief for the state and local taxpayers that have borne the financial burden in recent years because of the federal government's failure to enforce the law.

Social Security And Families

by Terry Richardson
Social Security Office Manager
Plainview, Texas

Some young workers regard Social Security taxes as an unwelcome deduction from the family's income. They think about how they could use the money to pay bills—or save for their children's education. Retirement often seems too far off on the horizon to care about.

But the Social Security taxes young parents pay can help with more immediate concerns should misfortune or tragedy strike. An unexpected serious illness or injury to a parent, or a young mother or father's untimely death, raises the question of 'what help is there for the children'.

You may be surprised to learn that more than 3.5 million children were receiving benefits at the end of 1993. Each month, Social Security paid nearly $1.2 billion to children in families where one or both parents were disabled, retired, or deceased. These beneficiaries are the biological or adopted child(ren), or stepchild(ren), of an eligible worker. To receive Social Security benefits, a child must:

- ★ have a parent(s) disabled or retired and is entitled to Social Security benefits; or

- ★ have a parent who died after working long enough in a job where he or she paid Social Security taxes; and

- ★ be under age 18; or
- ★ be 18-19 years old and a full-time student (who has not completed grade 12); or

- ★ be age 18 or older and disabled (with a disability that began before age 22).

When you apply for benefits for a child, you'll need to furnish the child's birth certificate and the worker's Social Security number. Depending on the type of benefit involved, other documents may be required.

Generally, child's benefits will continue until the child is age 18. If the beneficiary is under age 19 and attending an elementary or secondary school, benefits continue until the student graduates or is age 19.

A parent who is receiving benefits solely because he or she is caring for a child beneficiary may receive these benefits until the child is 16 years old. Then, although the parent's benefits stop, the child's benefits will continue for two more years (longer if the child is in school or meets the disability definition discussed above).

How much does Social Security provide?

There's a limit to the amount of benefits that can be paid to a family. For each family, the monthly maximum amount is determined when their benefits are computed. Generally, it is between 150 and 180 percent of the worker's basic benefit amount. If the total amount payable to all family members exceeds the limit, each person's benefit will be reduced proportionately—except the worker's benefit—until the total equals the maximum allowable amount.

If there are no children or the children are grown, Social Security pays benefits to the spouses aged 62 or older (including divorced spouses who were married 10 years) of a retiree worker. Surviving widows and widowers age 60 or older . . . age 50 if disabled . . . (including those who were divorced from the worker after at least 10 years of marriage) also may be eligible for benefits.

For more information about these benefits and other Social Security programs, call Social Security's toll-free telephone number, 1-800-772-1213, any day and any time and ask for Survivors (Publication No. 10084).

If you need to speak with a representative, call between 7:00 a.m. and 7:00 p.m. any business day. Social Security's telephones are busiest early in the week and early in the month.

Ross Hunter

Hunter Graduating As Salutatorian of Midland High School

Ross Hunter, son of David and Rhonda Hunter and grandson of Carrie Dickerson of Silvertown and Wayne and Jimmie Hunter of Flomot, is the salutatorian of Midland High School.

Hunter intends to pursue a career in mechanical engineering, planning to live in the Hill Country following college rather than returning to the plains of West Texas.

"I'll probably stay around the Austin area," said Hunter, who also is a three-year captain of the soccer team at Midland High.

He attributes his success in large part to his parents. "They kept me motivated... but they weren't going to cut off my food or anything for a bad grade," Hunter said, smiling.

Hunter was named Outstanding Male Athlete as Midland High celebrated its most successful spring sports season in recent memory at the annual Spring Sports Banquet.

A three-year letter winner for the District 4-5A and Region 4-5A champion boys soccer team, Hunter also is the offensive most valuable player of the district and was awarded the team MVP. Among the senior midfielder's other awards were all-region and all-state selections as well as playing in the state all-star game.

Hunter was honored with an Army scholarship for academic and athletic achievement.

John Deere Releases Tractor Safety Spots

Deere & Company has produced and released three 30-second public service announcements (PSA's) on tractor safety as part of its safety education efforts. The announcements were distributed via satellite to over 650 television stations throughout the U. S. during March.

"Accidents involving farm tractors of all sizes and brands claimed over 300 lives in 1992 according to National Safety Council estimates," says Al Higley, spokesman for Deere & Company. "These public service announcements represent one approach among many that John Deere is using to remind farmers and their families to operate tractors safely at all times. The goal of this and other efforts is to help reduce the number of tractor accidents and fatalities rural America experiences each year."

These PSA's address three of the most common types of accidents involving farm tractors: runovers, overturns and pto (power takeoff) driveline entanglements. Although John Deere tractors are shown in the announcements, the information on safe operation is appropriate for all tractor brands.

One of the PSA's focuses on resisting the temptation to let children (or anyone else) ride along on a tractor designed for only one person—the operator. A rider who falls from a moving tractor could experience a serious injury—or worse.

A second announcement warns farmers about the danger of attempting to bypass the normal procedure for starting a tractor. Bypass starting by shorting across electrical connections on the starter while standing on the ground is a dangerous practice. It puts operators in a position where they could be run over if the tractor is left in gear, starts, and moves.

The third PSA provides several safety reminders for tractor owners and operators. These safety messages include equipping older tractors with a ROPS (rollover protective structure) to help protect the operator should a rollover occur, wearing a seat belt with a ROPS-equipped tractor, keeping all pto and driveline guards in place and in good condition, and using proper lights, reflectors, and a slow-moving vehicle (SMV) emblem when traveling on roads.

More information about John Deere safety materials is available by writing Deere & Company, John Deere Road, Moline, Illinois 61265.

Social Security's Toll-Free Number Available Nights, Weekends

by Terry Richardson
Social Security Office Manager
Plainview, Texas

If you're like other busy people, finding time to take care of your personal business during the day is often a problem. That's why Social Security's toll-free phone number gives you service at night and on weekends, in addition to normal business hours.

When you call 1-800-772-1213 on your touch-tone phone at night and at any time during weekends and holidays, you get a recorded menu of choices that lets you take care of certain kinds of Social Security business. You can ask for:

★ An application for an original or replacement Social Security card.

★ A form to obtain a record of your earnings and an estimate of your future Social Security benefits. This is called a "Personal Earnings and Benefit Estimate Statement."

★ A document verifying that you receive Social Security benefit payments, Supplemental Security

Income, or both. You may need this document to show proof of your income to other agencies.

You can also call to ask for these forms during daytime hours—7:00 a.m. to 7:00 p.m. on business days. Our phones are busiest early in the week and early in the month, so if you business can wait, it's best to call at less busy times—such as nights and weekends, or later in the month.

Shifting your call to less busy times helps not only you, but all callers. About one of every five calls made during peak periods are to request one of the three documents listed above. So if those calls are shifted to less busy times, other callers stand a better chance of getting through without a busy signal.

Other services available to callers at night and on weekends include recorded information about Social Security programs and the opportunity to order popular Social Security leaflets.

CRP Crucial For Agriculture

by Lyndell Williams

Over the past 60 years, strong conservation programs have grown to be a very important element of federal farm policy. This commitment reached its peak with the passage of the 1985 and 1990 farm bills. In my opinion, there is no better illustration of the success of federal farm conservation policy than the Conservation Reserve Program.

The CRP was authorized in the 1985 Farm Bill and reauthorized in 1990. Its primary goal was to reduce soil erosion on highly erodible cropland. Under multiyear contracts, the U. S. Department of Agriculture pays farmers to protect this land by planting grass or trees. Farmers receive annual payments and a one-time "cost share" to defray part of the expense of conservation plantings. Most CRP contracts will expire by the year 2000.

Some argue that programs like CRP are desirable but too costly. The facts actually show that the reverse is true. One study by the University of Michigan reports that CRP has produced between $3 billion and $11 billion more in gains than costs. Dozens of additional studies confirm that the 37 million acres retired in CRP have been a winner for farmers, taxpayers, the federal government and society at large.

The studies show that CRP has brought about a savings of $1.6 billion in reduced soil erosion, $500 million in reduced wind erosion, and water quality benefits of $3.6 billion. The federal government and taxpayers have saved $500 million annually due to fore-gone crop subsidy programs. Net farm income has increased $9 billion to $20 billion because of rental payments to farmers and higher prices for farm commodities. In addition, wildlife benefits have increased almost $10 billion, including boosts in small game hunting.

In the 13th District, the boost in small game hunting has come from an increase in the pheasant population. With the pheasant population on the rise, thousands more hunters have visited the area, thus giving a boost to small businesses.

Most CRP acres have been planted in grass. But the CRP also contains 2.4 million acres of trees; 2 million acres of special wildlife practices; 410,000 acres of wetlands; and 5,200 miles of filter strips protecting water bodies.

The first CRP contracts, covering about 2 million acres, will expire on September 30, 1995. In 1996 and 1997, approximately 22 million acres of CRP contracts will expire. Right now, the CRP land area is somewhat larger than Iowa. But by the time the 1995 Farm Bill expires, it will be no larger than Hawaii, unless Congress provides otherwise in the 1995 Farm Bill. So far, there has been no indication from either the Administration or Congress that more CRP enrollment will be provided.

As for the 13th District, over 7,500 CRP contracts are held on over 1.4 million acres of land. The majority of these contracts will expire in 1997, and the final contracts will expire in 2003.

I believe the Conservation Reserve Program has served us well. It has protected America's most precious resources—its soil and water. It is good for agriculture, society and wildlife. It has prevented 700 million tons of soil nationwide from eroding each year. The federal government has saved $500 million a year in subsidies on lands which otherwise would have produced crops. The government also saves associated costs such as grain storage fees, export subsidies and others. And studies have shown that grain prices are even higher now than they would have been without CRP, thus further reducing government subsidies.

The Conservation Reserve Program has also provided much-needed income to rural communities and farmers. It is estimated that CRP has increased wheat prices 21 cents a bushel and cotton 5 cents a pound over what would have been their price in 1990 without CRP. Obviously, new jobs have been created in rural areas as a result of increased recreational opportunities produced by CRP.

Work on the 1995 Farm Bill already has begun, and as a subcommittee chairman on the House Agriculture Committee, I will continue to look for ways to continue funding the Conservation Reserve Program. I believe it is a good investment in our future.

Marketing figures and the average price received by farmers for the period January through March indicates lower cotton deficiency payments can probably be expected in 1994, according to Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers (PCG).

PCG officials note that tightening world stocks and increased demand have helped drive cotton prices higher, causing the weighted average price for cotton through March to climb to 66.1 cents per pound. Through the same period in 1993 the weighted average price was a full 12.9 cents lower, at 53.2 cents per pound.

Marketings during the first quarter of 1994 are running behind 1993 figures by some 749,000 bales. Cumulative marketings for the first three months of 1994 totaled 3,764,000 bales.

The United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) estimated the 1994 Upland cotton deficiency payment at 12.9 cents per pound in February with an advance payment of 6.45 cents per pound available at program sign-up.

Although it is still too early to recognize any meaningful trend from the year-to-date marketing and price information that has been released, given current marketings and the weighted average price received, the projected 1994 deficiency payment totals 8.26 cents per pound. After subtracting the advance payment of 6.45 cents per pound, many producers already have received the final payment which would total only 1.81 cents per pound.

"The good news for cotton producers at this time is the increase in the price of cotton over the last few months," notes PCG Executive Vice President Donald Johnson. "The only down-side to higher prices is its effect on the eventual size of this year's deficiency payment."

Historically, Johnson adds, the calendar year weighted average price of cotton used to figure deficiency payments is higher than the prices actually paid for High Plains cotton.

Upland cotton deficiency payments are calculated as the lesser of the difference between the 72.9 cent target price and either the Commodity Credit Corporation loan rate or the average price received by farmers weighed by total marketings for the calendar year.

GRANDPARENTS MAY BE ONLY AS OLD AS THEY WANT TO BE

Our so-called senior citizens come in many varieties these days, depending on their age, the state of their health, their mental attitude, and most of all, their lifestyle. Today, many people continue working beyond what is considered the normal retirement age, because of economic necessity or simply because they enjoy the work. They may also engage in their favorite recreational activities. In any case, whether it be your parents, grandparents, or any older people within your orbit, it's important to treat them with kindness and respect, but not to make them feel any older than they want to feel. The Bible is filled with admonitions about honoring your elders, so attend your House of Worship and learn the importance of making them feel wanted and loved.

You are young at any age if you are planning for tomorrow.
