PANAMA CANAL 20 YEARS OLD

Advertising Rates Will Be Gladly Given Upon Application

Next Wednesday will mark the twentieth anniversary of the completion of one of the world's greatest engineering projects-the Panama Canal which was opened August 15, 1914. Traffic through the man-made waterway connecting the Atlantic and Pacific during its early years was not heavy, due to land slides which closed the channel from time to time and also because the reduced movement of shipping due to the World War, and the canal was not declared officially open until 1920, since which time something like 70,000 toll-paying commercial vessels have passed through it, paying tolls exceeding $300,000,000. In addition many American warships and other government vessels have used the canal, toll-free.

Up to 1933, expenditures in building and improving the canal had reached 540 million dollars, the interest on which at 3 per cent is more than 16 million dollars a year. Contrary to the general belief, the Panama Canal has not been a paying proposition for the United States Government, when its investment in the project is considered. During the past few years the deficit has exceeded four million dollars a year. The only way in which the canal can be considered an asset to the federal government is by taking into account its supposed value to our national defense, but this was the real purpose in the construction of the canal. The importance of such a waterway was emphasized during the Spanish-American War when the Atlantic fleet was compelled to travel several thousand miles around Cape Horn en route to Manila. Whether the canal could be defended against a first class power in time of war is one of the nation's most important military problems. This problem did not arise during the World War as the Central Powers did not have a fleet in either the Atlantic or Pacific after the United States entered the conflict. Protecting the canal from the air as well as from the sea is the problem that now confronts our military and naval authorities in case of some future war involving the United States.

The canal stands as a lasting monument to the engineering genius of the late General George W. Goethals who was placed in charge of the construction when President Theodore Roosevelt decided to cut the big trench through Panama. One of the problems that confronted the American engineers when they went into Panama was sanitation for the country was rampant with yellow fever and malaria, but this difficulty was overcome and today these diseases are no longer common in the Canal Zone, which is now one of the most beautiful and sanitary spots on the globe.

LANGLEY CENTENARY

One bundred years ago on August 22, the eminent scientist and pioneer in the field of aerial navigation. Samuel Pierpont Langley, was born at Roxbury, Mass. Langley is generally recognized as the first to build a practical heavier-than-air machine capable of flight.

Langley was a most gifted and versatile man, a civil engineer, architect, mathematician, astronomer and inventor, and from 1887 until his death in 1906 he was secretary of the Smithsonian Institute in Washington. Like most pioneers, Langley was ridiculed for his belief that man could build a heavier-than-air machine that would actually fly, but he persisted and after extensive experiments and many discouragements he announced the attainment of mechanical flight. His work was encouraged by a small appropriation from Congress, but when his first airplane capable of carrying a man was wrecked in launching, the government support was withdrawn. There seems to be no doubt that Langley would have been entirely successful had he received a little further financial aid, but his experiments in the field of flying paved the way for man's conquest of the air, and his investigations into lifting force and air resistance proved most valuable to other inventors who followed in the trail he blazed.

To Haskell County Voters-

Words cannot adequately express my true appreciation to those of you who cast your vote for me Saturday in the run-off primary, and helped make it possible for me to be elected to the office of Representative. It shall ever be my desire to show my gratitude by being a true representative of all the people, at all times.

I wish to also convey to everyone that I harbor no ill-feeling towards anyone and sincerely hope that any small differences which might have been generated during the heat of the campaign, be forgotten.

I intend to exert my best efforts in your behalf.

Sincerely,

Dr. J. C. Davis

And the election is over. Forgotten by many people are the caustic expressions used by various candidates, and perhaps it is well that such gutter expressions can be forgotten, but we're serving notice on everyone NOW that we'll probably be eligible to vote in Texas next time and will, by that time, be able to work ourselves into a "lather" over some candidate that never heard of us. We're starting in today to read the dictionary (the large one at that) in order that we have an extensive vocabulary of "dirt-digging" words with which to villify "our friend's" opponent. We'll be a sure-nuff hoity-toity citizen then!

Most candidates for office speak out vigorously that they are in avor of lower taxes, but the only way the entire country will have ower taxes is for everyone of us to quit 'wanting" so much for our own particular territory. And just try and do that!

S'funny! Before the election we heard several remark that Ferguson a influence would beat Allred, and now we hear that the same influence was the very thing that caused Hunter to be defeated.

MANY people find it a good purchase when buying a car, to consider first what it does to make motoring more enjoyable; next, what it costs to operate; and last, its price. Proceeding thus, you find that Chevrolet alone combines Knee-Action, Body by Fisher, a valve-in-head engine, and cable-controlled brakesdefinite additions to motoring pleasure. Further investigation reveals that owners say a Chevrolet saves on gas, oil, and upkeep. If you now consider price you discover that the Chevrolet is priced extremely low. Feminine World Remains Loyal To The Useful Suits

The oft-repeated masculin as sertion that the women are fickle, hangeable creatures, droppin, becoming fashions without rhyme or is effectively contradicted by the Pull vogue for suits. Last spring, suits were among the most important styles and it was almost impossible to find a smart wardrobe that did not include one or more. Having worn them throughout the spring and summer, and having thoroughly tested their convenience and practical features, did women then discard this mode? The answer is a hearty "No". For they continue to be among the most important of fashions. So accustomed are we to suits by now that it would be difficult to plan for a clever winter season without them and fortunately there is no need to do so this year.

Tweed is the favorite fubric and eith good reason. It's so warm and sturdy, so adapted for the hard nocks of a busy season and so pracal for business and all around With sporty accessories it is ical for football games and the untrajor add a satin blouse and baret and you can fare forth renely confident to tea or bridge. There are many lovely domestic and imported tweeds, conspicuous among which are the nubby, closely over textures with flecks of conrasting color. Herringhouse effects and smooth woolens are also seen.
