GLOOM OVER COTTON PICKER

With increasing regularity dire predictions about the cotton farmers' future are appearing in the daily press. They deal usually with the impending doom of the tenant whose labors in gathering the South's great fiber crop to be superseded by the mechanical cotton picker. Even President Roosevelt seems impressed with the gloomy outlook for tillers of the soil when technology gets into full stride and ruthlessly tramples under food those who would toil with their hands.

The 38-page report to the President by the National Resaurces Committee entitled "Technological Trends and National Policy" seems to be a document filled with a wide variety of conclusions, some of which seem not any too well grounded. This is particularly true of the mechanical cotton picker, a machine on which tens of millions of dollars have been expended by inventors and corporations since the Civil War without having in any sense influenced the gathering of the crop which goes on about the same as it did in the days of ancient India. Eastern writers especially have indulged in far-fetched conclusions about the sociological implications of a successwul machine which would gather cotton and displace millions of tenant farmers and their families, whose livelihood largely depends upon whisking with nimble fingers the seed cotton from the bolls. The report emphasizes the need for supplying these discarded human pickers with badly needed jobs. On this score the report is entirely too fantastic when viewed practically.

That the South needs industries has long beer acknowledged by Southern leaders acquainted with its lopsided agricultural economy centering around cotton. That Southern forests will be converted into newsprint and other paper and thus give employment to thousands whether they remain cotton farmers on the side or not is becoming a reality. That cemistry and physics will transform Southern agri- ger trains Nos. 5 and 8 will be culture from producing merely food, feed and fiber as it has for 150 years, to supplying protein, starch, oils and cellulose to vested industries is also certain. # WAY BACK WHEN

POET WAS ONCE A LAWYER

R EAD this story of the conventional lawyyer who became one of our most famous poets. Not a dreaming, unsuccessful lawyer, but a man with a profitable and important law practice, important enough to associate with Clarence Darrow at one time. A busy man of commerce who became a writer of songs and poems, sonnets, essays and drama!

Edgar Lee Masters was born in the little town of Garnett, Kan., in 1868. His father was a descendant of old Virginia stock; his mother, the daughter of Methodist minister and descendant of Israel Putnam of American Revolutionary fame. The family moved to Petersburg, Ill., and later to Lewistown, where Edgar was raised in the typically respectable atmosphere of small town America.

He did newspaper work for the local weekly, learned the printing trade, and studied law under his father, who was one of the leading lawyers in the state. In 1891 Edgar Lee Masters was admitted to the bar and practiced in partnership with his father. The following year he opened his own office in Chicago lawyer until 1920.

But even in high school, Edgar Lee Masters was interested in writing and he never forgot his ambitions. He contributed to the Waverly Magazine of Boston and the wrote poems for a Chicago news-Northwestern from Breckenridge tablish a practice in Chicago, was called simply "A Book of Verses." "Songs and Sonnets" followed, but none of them attracted much attention until his "Spoon River Anthe 'ogy" was published in 1915. Poems, stories and philosophy followed rapidly.

Vast Air Base For Army Use Rises In West

Work is being rushed at Sacra-mento, Calif., for the completion by January, 1939, of what will be one of the nation's most important military aviation centers.

When completed it will be a base for the repair and maintenance of all army flying fields, planes and materials west of the Rocky Mountains.

The new Sacramento air depot will be located on a 1,200 acre tract of land seven miles north-east of the state capitol. It will include an amazing array of huge steel and concrete buildings, housing plane shops, warehouses, engine shops, aero shops, hangars, offices and many other structures. It will also have a military post,

When finished and in public service the depot will provide regular employment for about 500 civilian mechanics and a good ized staff of office workers. Its military force will consist of from 25 to 40 officers and 150 enlisted men. The outstanding feature of this reat base will be the building which will house the engineering shop and the repair dock. It will be 900 feet long by 600 feet wide, where he was a highly successful or approximately three city blocks long and two blocks wide, covering nearly 13 acres.

Although it will be only one story high, it will require 5,530 tons of structural steel. Its three main doorways will be 250 feet wide by 50 feet high. The doors will be opened and close by powerful electrict motors. Surmounting the vast structure will be a 90-foot flying control tower.

Within this 13-acre plant will be ow on row of aeronautical machinery including everything necessary for overhauling and repairng any type of plane.

Adjoining the engineering shop will be the depot supply ware-house with nearly 10 acres of floor space. It will be 850 feet long and 430 feet wide with a one-story height. Most remarkable from the standpoint of construction, how-ever will be the two story equipment repair building, in which plane instruments will be kept in ip-top shape.
