Appearance of the dread Rocky Mountain Fever in Texas was evident this week when two cases of the disease reported in Southeast Texas were officially diagnosed as such by Dr. R. R. Spencer, spotted fever expert of the United States Public Health Service. Dr. Spencer, vacationing in San Antonio, was pressed into service by State Health Officer Dr. Geo. W. Cox, to diagnose the two cases, one of which proved fatal.

Dr. Spencer's diagnosis is the first official recognition of the presence in Texas of spotted fever a disease transmittable to men by the bite of infected ticks. Although many wood and dog ticks are not infected with the fever, the disease in man is serious enough to warrant the practice of precautionary measures. A person with spotted fever will develop the disease within 2 to 12 days after receiving the infection.

When the ticks appear, they are uninfected and are seeking some animal to attach themselves to and suck blood. When the tick drops on an animal, including man, it does not start feeding at once, but usually spends some time searching for a suitable place. Experiments have shown that a previously uninfected tick will attach itself to the body and feed for a few hours before transmitting the infection but it then becomes highly infectious.

Three measures may be used to prevent spotted fever: avoid ticks, remove ticks from the person as soon as possible, or be vaccinated. Vaccine to prevent spotted fever is not readily available so precaution should be used to avoid or eliminate ticks from the person immediately.

Mr. and Mrs. Press Perry returned to Fort Worth Monday after being called to Haskell to attend funeral services for Mrs. Perry's brother, little Billie Jack Wilfong.

REAL PUBLIC SERVICE WITHOUT THE ORATORY

Back of the swarm of statistics currently being submitted to the public some very interesting stories are often hidden. One of these cases involves the growth of the Boy Scout organization and its independent work in youth "rehabilitation."

The bare figures themselves show that on April 30, Cubs, Scouts and adult leaders in the United States organization totaled well over a million, with a gain of nearly 60,000 over the roster of April, 1936. More than seven and a half million boys and men are or have been connected actively with the Boy Scouts of America since the movement began in 1910.

But the significance of these figures does not by an means match that of the program actually carried on by the Scout organization.

When the movement began, it was beset by scores of difficulties. Before long it was being called "sissy", a class group and for many years was accused of being the training ground for soldiers of the future. Worst of all, it was earmarked by fanatics as a vehicle for religious discrimination.

Fortunately, the basic principles of the Scout movement were sound enough to disprove the charges, absorb the handicaps and move ahead to new fields of immense private and public service.

Its benefits to individual members may be taken for granted as a great feat in character building. But greater than that is the Scout work in remaking whole gangs of tough, ragged urchins who previously had defied efforts of police and social workers to reform them.

In Cleveland, one of the great problems of a general campaign against crime was solved almost magically by the Scout organization. One large section of that city, overrun by rival "teen-age mobsters who were aping big shot criminals was brought back to respectability by interesting these youngsters in Scout work. Within a year practically all the boys who had been thieving and roistering were working at honest jobs or going to school. They even formed an "improvement" board for the civic betterment of their neighborhood.

This example has its counterpart in many communities and as Scout membership continues to mount, so will its possibilities for public service.

In addition to this work at home, there is an international aspect which, because of its spontaneity, has shown itself superior to the newly popularized student exchanges between nations. When the national Scout jamboree is held at Washington in July, 400 Scouts from 24 different lands will join 25,000 American boys on a plane of common understanding.

As against idealists who are trying to attain Utopia by mechanical education, soap box oratory or just plain shouting, the Boy Scout technique affords a refreshing contrast.

GOOD PLACE TO RELAX

There must be advantages to life in a backward and isolated community. You might miss some of the conveniences of this modern world but you would also miss a lot of grief.

Consider, for instance, the Guatemalan village of Agua Escondida, recently visited by Dr. Robert Redfield, dean of the division of social sciences of the University of Chicago. Dr. Redfield says that the villagers of Agua Escondida know nothing of the world's news; they have never even heard of the Dionne quintuplets, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, or the romance and marriage of Wallis Warfield and the Duke of Windsor.

It must follow, logically, that they know nothing of sitdown strikes, an unbalanced budget, the Supreme Court revision plan or the civil war in Spain. How peaceful and uncomplicated life in Agua Escondida must be!

CONQUERING DISEASE

Although medical science still has many knotty problems to solve, it has at least freed us from some of the perils which beset former generations. An illustration is provided in figures on the death rate from typhoid fever as compiled currently by the Journal of the American Medical Association.

In 78 American cities last year, the death rate from typhoid fever was .94 per 100,000 of population. This compares with a death rate of 20.54 per 100,000 of population in 1910.

Here, in other words, we have the record of one dreaded disease which has been conquered: Doctors know exactly what causes typhoid fever and they know exactly how to prevent it. A malady that took thousands of lives years ago is now reduced to comparative insignificance.

The figures are a striking testimonial to the advance of medical science.

Floyd Gibbons' ADVENTURERS' CLUB

HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF!

"The Human Sandwich"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter.

THOSE countless hazards faced by men in construction make them adventurers all. You get a crick in your neck watching those fellows, with nerves as strong as the steel they work with, riding the beams aloft to where a new red skeleton scrapes the sky.

And, if you are like me, it is with wonder that you sometimes read of those sturdy, husky sandhogs sweating in a chamber under air pressure, pushing the shield of a fresh tunnel deeper into the bowels of the earth.

And seeing men clinging like so many ants to the delicate webbing of a new bridge actually gives me the shivers. They have plenty of adventures, these fearless workers in construction, but it isn't often a forty-ton crane—eighty thousand pounds of it—falls on one of them and he lives to tell the tale. Well, that's exactly what Max Pujanic is telling us about today.

Max, on the date of his adventure, November 19, 1936, was working on a tunnel job in Berwyn, Ill.

Forty Tons Come Tumbling Down.

They can't all go into the tunnel and Max's job on this day he will never forget was helping on some construction work on the topside. A forty-ton crane was lifting to its foundation a hoist that itself weighed seven and a half tons.

Max and his partner each manned a tagline attached to the hoist and it was their business to see that the hoist did not spin while it was in the air. They were walking along slowly with their lines, keeping their eyes on the hoist while the crane was making a half-turn with its heavy burden. Suddenly Max realized something had gone wrong. Glancing over his shoulder he saw that the forty tons of crane had toppled half way over and was headed directly toward him. He had only time enough to take one single step and give his partner a shove.

The step, Max thinks, saved his legs and perhaps more, and the shove saved the life of his partner. The crane hit Max with such terrific force the corrugated iron sheeting around its base was bent in four inches by his back!

And he was saved from being smashed to smithereens only by the fact the giant boom of the crane fell on the roof of a strongly built engine room and held there!

It's a Wonder He Was Still Alive.

Max found himself belly down on a bed of steel beams. His face, which he had managed to turn sideways as he fell, was pillowed on a five-inch I-beam, the crane pressing it cruelly and so tightly he could barely open his mouth.

His chin was cut, his teeth were chipped and loosened, his left arm was broken and his left foot was so badly crushed he had convulsions. Above all, there was the enormous pressure all over his body from the crane atop him, and he could breathe with difficulty. But he could still breathe and that was something.

A vast crowd was attracted by the plight of the trapped man to watch the rescue work. The police came to maintain order, the firemen to help get this suffering worker out of his jam. And they even sent a priest.

The first thing the other workmen did was to cover Max as warm as possible with clothing to keep him warm. Then they brought in some five-ton jacks, the only ones they could get, to pry those tons and tons of crane that were crushing Max into the girders underneath.

The capacity of these jacks was too small to lift the much greater weight that was threatening to make hamburger out of Max' bruised body.

A Quarter of an Inch From Death!

In fact, the use of them in the rescue work added to the danger, and it was quite possible the rescuers would finish the job the crane had started. You see, a pair of five-ton jacks have a combined lifting power of only ten tons, which is thirty tons less than the weight that was overlying Max. They lift to the limit of their power and after that, when the pressure becomes too great, they collapse; the weight they were trying to lift sags with a jerk, falling a little lower than its original position.

I want to tell you boys and girls if that forty-ton crane sagged another quarter of an inch Max would be squashed right in front of the eyes of the rescuers!

Well, Max had been lying there for forty minutes and his suffering wrung the hearts of those who wanted to help him. Those two jacks were all they had and Max told them to go ahead and use them.

Every time the crane bulged a fraction of an inch, Max would groan with pain and the foreman would crawl under and find out the situation. Nursing those jacks like a jock nurses a horse, urging them, swearing at them, coaxing them, those construction men must have squeezed more than ten tons out of them. For they finally got that crane in a position where they could pull Max with his broken arm two feet to the right.

Max Thought He Might Leave a Foot Behind.

That is, they pulled all of him but his left foot, which was still crushed to the asphalt paving. His leg, bending back at the knee, enabled them to do that.

Max almost passed out of the picture when they moved him, but now he had a coat for a pillow instead of a five-inch steel girder and the meat he could now lose was a foot.

How to get that foot out from beneath the crane, which their jacks definitely could not lift, presented a stiff problem. Finally, they decided to use a jackhammer, that pneumatic tool with a steel drill in the end that you see almost everywhere in the hands of men digging up pavements.

Then they applied the pressure in a way intended to lift and at the same time move it slightly to the left.

When they started Max let out a howl that could be heard above the bark of the tool, for the vibration of the drill on the asphalt had shut the pain from his foot with such force he thought the top of his head had come off. But it was the only way out.

Pain Nearly Drives Victim Crazy.

Eventually the workmen began to pull small pieces of paving from around the foot. They went on and on, drilling only a little at a time so that Max would not go crazy from the pain.

Bit by bit that asphalt was chipped away in a semi-circle around that imprisoned foot and then they began to work under it. With infinite care they chiseled away while Max squirmed and groaned. At the end of two long hours the foot was lying in the hole they had made for it.

Max was lifted tenderly on a stretcher and placed in an ambulance, in mighty bad shape, but still living. There was a roar of gladness from the crowd as it clanged away.

Well, sir, that was a day in November, 1936. Max wrote me in March, 1937, of his great adventure and he was still in the Berwyn hospital convalescing. He added that while his foot had been a proper mess, a safety shoe had prevented bones from breaking.

Let cool. When it begins to set add vegetables and let chill in the refrigerator until firm. Use small individual molds or one large ring mold. If large ring mold is used fill the center with a lettuce cup containing mayonnaise.

Molded Corn Beef
Soak 1 1-2 tablespoons gelatin in 1-3 cup cold water. Dissolve 2 bouillon cubes in 2 cups boiling water and pour over gelatin. Stir until dissolved. Add 1-4 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce and 1-2 teaspoon salt. Chill. When the mixture begins to thicken, add 1 cup diced celery, 3-4 cup canned peas, drained, 1-4 cup sliced radishes, 1-2 cup diced pickled beets and 6 ounces pressed corned beef pulled in pieces. Mold in any shape desired. When thoroughly chilled turn out on crisp lettuce leaves and garnish with cucumber pickles and serve with mayonnaise.

Molded Beet Salad
Cook red beets until tender, saving the juice in which the beets have been cooked (about 2 cups). Dice enough beets to make 1-2 cup. Have ready 2 tablespoons gelatin; 2 tablespoons cold water; 2 cups liquid in which the beets were cooked; 1-2 cup diced cooked beets; 1-4 cup diced celery; 1-4 cup diced cucumber; 1-2 teaspoon salt; 1 tablespoon sugar; 1 teaspoon vinegar; 1 tablespoon lemon juice.

Hash De Luxe
Cut up boiled potatoes into small and even pieces, and cube left over meat to the same size. Melt 2 tablespoons butter in a double boiler, add 2 cups of cubed boiled potatoes, mix, and then pour in 3-4 cup cream with 2 teaspoons chopped parsley. Lastly add the cubed meat — 2 cups is the right amount. Mix, but do not break or mash the potatoes. Mold lightly in a single flattened loaf or in individual portions. Put in a buttered pan, butter well and bake until well browned — 15 to 20 minutes. Indent the top of the hash with the underside of a tablespoon and place in the indentations one poached egg to each portion. Dust the eggs with paprika, garnish with parsley and serve.

Scalloped Chicken and Macaroni Au Gratin
2 cups boiled macaroni
2 cups cold chicken cut in large pieces.
1-2 cups white sauce
2 tablespoons grated cheese
Arrange half the quantity of macaroni in a baking dish; cover with cold chicken. Cover chicken with remaining macaroni; pour white sauce over all. Sprinkle with grated cheese. Bake in a moderate oven about 20 minutes or until delicately browned on top.

Veal In Aspic
1 quart clear soup stock
2 tablespoons gelatin dissolved in 1-2 cup cold water
1 cup cooked peas
1-2 cup celery cut in cubes
3 pimientos cut in cubes
2 cups left-over veal cut in cubes
1-2 teaspoon onion juice
Juice 1-2 lemon
1 teaspoon salt
Mix dissolved gelatin with hot flavored soup stock. When cold pour a little of this liquid in a moistened mold. Chill. Wheat set, add alternate layers of vegetables, meat and liquid. Put in refrigerator for several hours or over night. Serve with pimento mayonnaise on a bed of watercress and garnish with hard-boiled eggs.

Pineapple Frozen Salad
2 cups crushed pineapple and syrup
1-2 cup grated fresh American cheese
2 cups cottage cheese
1 envelope granulated gelatin
1-2 cup cold water
Soak gelatin in cold water for 5 minutes. Heat pineapple syrup. Add to gelatin and stir until dissolved. Cool. Combine with both kinds of cheese and the pineapple. Turn into freezing tray. When semi-frozen serve in squares on lettuce with mayonnaise. For variations add chopped parsley, pimento, green pepper, maraschino cherries or walnuts.

Lamb En Casserole
2 cups cold cooked lamb
1 large can prepared spaghetti
1-2 cup tomato catsup
1-2 cup water
Put cold lamb through meat chopper. Put a layer of minced lamb into casserole; then a layer of spaghetti and repeat until all ingredients have been used. Add catsup and water and cook in a moderate oven 30 minutes.

Left Over Roast Pork With Spaghetti
1 medium onion minced
1-2 cup celery finely chopped
4 tablespoons butter
1-2 cups cooked pork, diced
1 tablespoon flour
1-2 cup milk or water
1 large can prepared spaghetti in tomato sauce.
1 teaspoon salt
1-4 teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1-2 cup grated American cheese
Cook onion and celery in butter until tender. Add pork, sprinkle with flour and brown. Add milk or water, stirring until thickened, then add remaining ingredients except cheese. Cook until spaghetti is thoroughly heated. Serve hot and sprinkle with grated cheese.

Giant of Cactus Offers Unique Sight
Columns of huge cactus plants stretching mile after mile in the desert east of Tucson, Ariz., offers a unique sight. The saguaros as the giants of the cactus world are known are characterized by immense trunks two to three feet through, says the National Geographic Magazine for April. They rise 15 to 40 feet and their huge branches are often as much as a foot and a half in diameter. During April and May, after the saguaro has reached eight to 12 feet, it produces flowers in profusion near the tips of the branches, the topmost buds usually opening last. These large white or slightly creamy flowers, two to three inches across, crown the massive trunk and give way to a mass of fruits which break open at the top and split down, exposing a carmine pulp. In this stage the fruits color the landscape and look like irregular flowers, being in many ways more interesting than the flowers themselves. The fruit of the saguaro with its pulp of brilliant carmine color and hundreds of small black seeds, furnishes excellent food for birds and man. The Papago Indians gather these fruits for dried sweetmeats, jams and jellies, and the pulp is in taste comparable to that of the best watermelons. The saguaros are easily destroyed. Says South Must Rebuild Agriculture

Unless foreign markets are restored in the near future, the 2,000,000 cotton growers of the South must revalue their resources and build an agriculture on a domestic market basis, Dr. A. B. Cox, director of the Bureau of Business Research, University of Texas, said Friday.

He said that the South once held a dominant position as a cotton exporter, but now foreign countries are increasing their acreages annually and some European nations, notably Germany, are using synthetic fibers in place of cotton. This last year synthetics used totaled 500,000 equivalent bales of cotton.

"In spite of the unprecedented high consumption of all cotton in the world this year of over 30,000,000 bales it is possible that world carryover of all cotton may be slightly increased due to an all-time high world record production," Dr. Cox added. "World carry over of American cotton bids fair to be reduced by about 1,000,000 bales, but in spite of this the buying power price of American cotton is now less than it was at this time last year due to a strong rise in the price of other things. Last year at this time the actual price of New Orleans spots was 11.80c and the relative buying power was 15.17c. This year the price of New Orleans spots is 12.26c but the buying power is only 14.03c.

"Total supplies of cotton in the United States June 1, were 5,959,000 bales compared with 6,978,000 last year, 8,568,000 two years ago and an all-time high of 10,905,000, June 1, 1933. It is interesting to note that the buying power price of cotton is now less than it was in June, 1933 (14.72c) the date of the all-time high June supply of American cotton.

"Reductions in the supplies of cotton in the United States and of American cotton in European ports and afloat to Europe from June 1 last year to June this year amounts to 1,037,000 bales.

"During the last seven years a change of 100,000 bales in these items of supply has caused an average change in the index price of cotton of 19.68 points. If the same ratio should hold good now the index price should be 17.14c and the unadjusted price of middling 7-8 inch New Orleans spots should be 14.98c. When calculated on the basis of average percentage changes the price is 15.30c. The spinners ratio margin increased during May to 204 from 194 in April. During May, 1936, the index averaged 165. The pence margin reached another all-time high 7.46d compared with 7.11d during April and 4.16d for May last year."

Races—

Jimmy Hall held second place lead over Hodges, who came in third.

The fifth event, out from eight to six laps, was easily taken by "Red" Hodges in 3.39.

Buchanan finished in second place, with Ted Parker third.

Morris furnished ample thrills for the persons in the grandstand in his spectacular competition with Hodges as their machines passed the grandstand. Morris appeared to be running "neck and neck" until the last lap. Hodges took first place with an elapsed time of 5.42.

Bill Morris came in for second place, followed by Gene Frederick in third position.

Sunday's Races

Herschel Buchanan, from Shreveport, La., wheeled his little red entry to the sweepstake championship in the final event of the afternoon Sunday. He negotiated the 20 laps in 11 minutes and 40.8 seconds. In the time trial he made the best time of 33.4 seconds over the track.

Red Hodges of Dallas, driving with glass in one eye which was caught when a gravel broke his goggle, came back to win the first race after the accident. It was the second event after time trials and he made the eight laps in 4 minutes and 14.2 seconds. Buchanan was second, Ted Parker of Dallas third, and Johnny Holland, Dallas, who cracked up Saturday, fourth.

Parker and Slim Simms of Dallas narrowly escaped serious injury when their racers cracked up on the back stretch in the sweepstakes. Both walked out under their own power and both cars were also moved off the track, allowing other entries to continue without interference.

Texas West of Junction City, Kan., finished a close second in the final race after finishing second in a 5-lap race and winning the four-lap handicap.

Johnny Holland of Dallas won the race for non-money winners, and Simms and Parker finished, two and three.

Gene Frederick of Dallas, while driving perhaps the fastest straight-away machine, was able to finish no better than second in event No. 2, third in the handicap and fourth in the sweepstake.

"Wild" Bill Morris of Lincoln, Neb., the renowned fence-buster and heavy money winner the first day, was unable to compete Sunday after throwing a rod out of the specially-constructed D. O. Hal racer.

Sponsors of Races

The two-day race event was staged under direction of the Southwestern Auto Racing association and sponsorship of the Central West Texas Fair association, with Eugene Tonn as promoter.

At conclusion of the meet Sunday it was announced races would be staged here again this fall at the fair and that the track would be oiled and placed in top condition before that time. The dust was a great handicap to drivers, making it almost impossible for those in the rear to pull into a lead position because they were driving blind. It was a follow-the-leader game, with the driver drawing an inside an from position winning in most instances.

Judges were B. W. Chesser, Theron Cahill and W. H. Murchison, J. E. Walling and Kenneth Thornton were timers. Les Butler was official starter, and scoring was by W. L. Scott and Rogers Gilstrap.

Mrs. B. Baker and daughter, Betty, visited friends here the past week-end. They were accompanied home by Marcia Biescoe for a few days visit.

Health Department Suggests Means of Preventing "Summer Complaint"

The season of the year when the most complaints are received on account of diarrhea and dysentery or "Summer complaint" is here and the Texas State Department of Health has issued a warning to parents in regard to this, and offers the following suggestions to prevent its occurrence among babies. The chief cause of diarrhea include impure milk, over heating, fever from any cause, too much sugar or cream in the diet, overfeeding and underfeeding.

Mother's milk is the safest food, however, if other milk must be used the supply should be clean and pure. The water should be clean, pure and boiled. Any other articles of food should be fresh and clean and no unsuitable articles of food such as cake and candy should be given.

If a feeding formula is used, it should be one prescribed by a physician and it must be prepared with extreme attention to cleanliness and kept cold until used. The baby should be fed at regular intervals and should not be forced to eat when he is not hungry. The baby should be kept cool and comfortable in hot weather should not be overclothed and should be given plenty of clean water to drink. Any infections which develop in the nose, throat, ears or other organs should receive prompt attention from a physician.

If diarrhea develops, feedings should be stopped or greatly diminished and an abundance of water should be given. Cathartics should not be given except on the advice of a physician. If the diarrhea does not improve within a short time a physician should be called and a complete examination should be made.

The three F's, flies, fingers and food, are the three sources of danger to the baby. Flies carry disease germs to the baby and to its food. Fingers and hands that are not thoroughly washed before preparing the baby's food are likely to be germ carriers also. All milk and water that is intended for the baby should be boiled for five minutes.

Snake Venom Keeps Many Out Of Hospitals

Dr. Roy Upham of New York City said today that "many thousands of women" suffering from mental disturbances as they approach middle age were being kept out of insane hospitals by the use of snake venom.

Pains from inoperable cancer, he continued likewise were alleviated by the use of the same venom. Dr. Upham, attending the annual convention of the American Institute of Homeopathy, in an interview discussed a paper on snake venom he is to deliver.

The venom for mental disturbances, he said, is given hypodermically or by mouth. In the case of afflicted persons were paralyzed by the venom so that they would not conduct pain.

In contrast with certain other drugs used to relieve cancer, Dr. Upham declared, snake venom has no side reaction and was efficacious for a longer period of time.

In the case of mental disease, particularly in women, Dr. Upham said, snake venom had proved to be a direct curative. In cancer, he said its value was palliative.

In mental disturbances in women, he explained, the venom altered cellular activity in the body, restoring persons to normal mental condition. In men he continued, the venom was used to cure disturbances of the digestive tract.

During the convention, Dr. Thomas Hodge McGavack of New York City, said rheumatic fever was an infectious disease probably due to a streptococcus. He pointed out all clinical manifestations of the fever were allergic in nature and added it was also probably due to deficiency of vitamin C.

Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Davis of Rule attended the bathing beauty revue in Haskell Monday evening.

Robert L. Gilliam of Fort Clark, Texas, is spending a month in the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Gilliam.
