FFA BOYS EXHIBIT WINNERS AT RULE LIVESTOCK SHOW

Boys Plan To Enter Animals In Livestock Show Here During Fair

Prize winning livestock owned by members of the F. F. A., agriculture organization of Rule High School youths, was exhibited there Saturday morning. Twenty beef calves recently purchased by club members and other entries were shown and judged by Jimmie Byrd of the Soil Conservation Service at Vernon, stock judging expert.

Cash prizes of $3.00 for first place, $2.00 for second place and ribbons for third place winners were awarded in the various divisions.

All entries in the show are planning on exhibiting their animals in the livestock show at the Central West Texas fair and from comment of the judges and other authoritative stockmen several will cause close competition among other fine bred animals to be entered.

Grand champion of the show—a beef calf is owned by Joe Cloud, who also placed second in this division. Other winners in beef calves were J. P. Pamphrey, Jr., first, Allison, third and Fullbright fourth.

In the Jersey heifer division Frank Foursyde Jr. was first prize. Pete Place won first in the beef heifer division, Dickey Penick, second, and Benton, third.

The commission rules that amateur fights may be held only every two weeks.

Other fighters from neighboring towns will complete the thirty-round card.

Haskell Ginnings Total Over 3,500 Bales For Season

Cotton ginnings for Haskell totaled 3,510 bales Monday night and ginning was almost at a stand still following heavy rains over the entire county Friday night.

This is several hundred bales behind the number ginned at the same period last year. Pickers have been gathering the crop as fast as it opens, it is reported, but continued showers Saturday and Sunday have delayed picking and lower the estimated crop production of 45,000 bales.

Ginnings have almost doubled within the past week until Friday night, report the seven local gins.

Census report shows that 13,331 bales had been ginned in Haskell County prior to October 1, as compared with 3,982 bales for the 1936 crop, according to bureau of census.

Crowell Wildcats Win Over Haskell Indians 14-2 Here

Wildcats Too Smooth And Tricky For Sluggish Indians

Flashing into the second half the Crowell Wildcats marched down the rain soaked Haskell field twice in touchdown drives here Friday night to defeat the Indians 14-2.

A downpour 45 minutes before the game made the turf soggy and the galloping Wildcat backs were slowed down on sweeping end runs and sneak plays through Haskell's floundering line.

In the second quarter Orr, Crowell left half, dropped a bad pass from center and was tackled behind his own goal line and Haskell scored their only points.

Opening in the second half Crowell started a 56 yard drive down the field with a series of smooth running plays that were irresistible. Orr, fast stepping back, plunged from the 12 yard line across the goal. Fitzgerald kicked the extra point.

Again in the final period Crowell marched 44 yards down the field for the second quarter. Orr smashed tackle from the 12 and went over standing up. Fitzgerald again kicked good.

Branch, first string center received a broken cheek bone which seriously affected his eye in the second quarter. His condition, was believed serious, although not critical. Josselyn, Indian half, received foot injuries in the fourth period and was carried from the field.

With a dry field, Joy, Orr and Meason, with the smoothest combination seen here this season, would have probably scored two more touchdowns. Although out-weighted 20 pounds to the man the Crowell line opened holes at will through Haskell's right side, and Joy, 131 pound quarter, slipped through for continuous gains. John Lee Orr flashed his heels at Haskell's backs on reverse end runs and was almost as hard to catch as swivel-tipped Joy.

Fitzgerald, backing the line on defense, and going down on passes, on offense was the mainstay in holding Haskell to four downs.

Haskell, playing as a six-man ball club, could gain little through the line and their attempted aerial attack was futile. However they did save a laundry bill by playing in last year's suits.

Fair Sponsors Are Selected By Two Towns

Cowgirl sponsors from neighboring towns and cities to the Central West Texas Fair at Haskell, Oct. 20-23, have been named by Weinert and Anson. Entries from other towns are expected within a few days.

In the first raid nine negroes were arrested while sitting in on a poker game in the north part of town.

Following this raid fourteen more were arrested in a "private game" near Rochester by Sheriff Kemp, Deputy Mart Clifton and Riley Lowellen Saturday night. Five white and nine negroes were brought to the county jail to await sentence.

LOWER PRODUCTION COST
The Semi-Weekly Farm News

Collapse of the cotton market emphasizes the need for lower cost of producing this important crop economies must be effected in growing cotton if profits are to be certain. It is well enough from the farmer's viewpoint to have the Federal Government step in and guarantee him 12c a pound when the spot price is 8c or lower. These extra 3c of this loan, which the farmer now needs so badly, he must wait for until next fall after he has shown compliance with the proposed AAA acreage control program. Since the average cotton production cost in Texas is estimated at about 16c a pound, in some cases much more and in others somewhat less, the present cotton market is anything but a bonanza for farmers.

Admonitions have been numerous throughout the years to interest Texas and other Southern farmers in practicing crop diversification in an effort to make cotton that ardently sought goal of the great Henry Grady, a clean cash surplus crop above the living produced on the farm. The Federal program of practical crop control and a planned farming system afford the opportunity to concentrate on larger yields of lint per acre at the same time that other acres are used to provide the best possible living.

The crop control which farmers have sought is likely to be upon them in full measure next season. Terracing, contouring, starting of water in the soil, crop rotation and legumes, all will help to increase yields per acre of cotton and other crops. Lower cost of production should be every farmer's aim in order that he may the better meet price declines and avoid loss.

ECONOMY—WITH EXCEPTIONS

It is announced at Washington that the Treasury Department is to make a survey of all branches of the government, with the intention of effecting economies "in every direction." A comprehensive report will be made to the President on his return from the West, and sharp budget slashes are expected to follow.

All of this is very encouraging, and it would be much more so except for one thing. Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau says that the economy drive will not touch either the unemployed on federal relief or the regular workers on the federal payroll.

A most fertile field for economy is enclosed within those two boundaries. We could expect more of this economy drive if that field were not enclosed by "no trespassing" signs.

FILM PATRONS PROTEST

The sturdy people of Little Rock, Ark., seem to have started something—at least many will hope they have—with their newly organized Booing Club.

The Booing Club goes to movies as a body. It keeps the peace all through the program until the advertising films begins to appear; then it boos—loudly and lustily and at great length.

This idea fills, as they used to say, a longfelt want. The ordinary film fan, it is safe to say, has few crosses to bear which are any heavier than the one which takes the guise of the advertising film. The thing is a nuisance pure and simple, and until now there was nothing the poor patron could do about it.

But this Booing Club—well, it looks as if Little Rock has an idea that would be copied far and wide.

PITY FOR CONVICTS

America has had a lot of prison disturbances in recent years. On investigation, a dismaying number of them proved to be society's fault. The prison was out of date, overcrowded, filthy; the management was lax, the guards were venal, the politicians had interfered too much. And so on.

The newest outbreak, at Alcatraz, seems to stand in a class by itself. None of the above-mentioned defects applies there. Indeed, the trouble seems chiefly due to the fact that Alcatraz contains the toughest and most vicious thugs in America who don't like the way society has put them down for the count.

Alcatraz is a hard-boiled place; it has to be. In this one prison, if in no other, an outbreak by the convicts will bring them less public sympathy, not more.

HOME PROBLEM IN CRIME

Juvenile crime is usually blamed on thriller movies, magazine and novels. Usually this sounds a little less than convincing—for millions of boys have been exposed to such influences, year after year, without having their character determined.

But there does seem to be something in it, in the case of the 12-year-old Toledo boy who shot his school teacher. According to all accounts, this lad was steeped in the gills in the flamboyant lore of the underworld. Notes scribbled before the shooting leave little doubt that the youngster was dramatizing himself as a bold, bad gunman like those of screen, radio and magazine.

This being admitted, what is the answer—to remove all reference to crime from those media of entertainment? Perhaps—though that would be a trifle drastic. Problems like this are, after all, chiefly for individual parents. A father and mother can, if they will, see that their child retains his balance, even if he is getting a strong dose of two-gun melodrama.

"Struck by Lightning"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO, EVERYBODY: Here's a yarn about a man who was struck by lightning and lived to tell the tale. And that doesn't often happen. No, sir, not once in a thousand times. Once in a while someone gets a little shock, like touching a live wire, and that's bad enough. But when a man is slapped right in the face by one of those fiery bolts, and broiled and baked and cooked and ripped and twisted—well, it's slow music for him, ninety-nine and one-half times out of one hundred.

So, girls, when the next thunderstorm comes along and you feel like hiding in the closet or under the bed, and the boys laugh at you—just let 'em laugh. Nobody, in all these years of science, has found a sure way to beat the old debbil, lightning.

George E. Goodwin—he is still a civil engineer living at Hood River, Oregon—was one of those youngsters who never paid much attention to the storms that thundered and crackled around the peaks of the Presidential range of the White mountains in New Hampshire, his home sector. He used to laugh at the girls for being afraid in storms. And then he changed his mind.

Well, here's what happened to George. He was about nineteen years old when he lived in Gorham, New Hampshire, and was the grandson of a Baptist minister. Used to pal around with A. B. Patten, the Congregational minister, and Gilbert H. Trafton, son of a Methodist minister. Those three inseparables loved the White mountains—hiked to some new point each week-end. And then, one day they planned a grand hike along the summits of the Presidential chain.

High Up in the Mountains.

A frisky livery team took them to the foot of Mount Washington, 6,290 feet high. They began to climb. They reached the timber line, and patches of snow. The sun blazed down and burned up the morning fog. The Atlantic ocean shimmered on the eastern horizon. The cog railway ground its way to the timber line terminal and the three pals watched the arriving tourists with disdain. Upward and onward, over granite crags and gray boulders, they pushed their perilous way.

The Heavens Rocked With a Final Roar.

crossed the summit, and then tackled Mount Jefferson. Down again, across a draw, up and over Mount Sam Adams. Mount Adams, 5,895 feet high, was the next to be conquered. Below it lay the semi-circular mountain-rimmed valley known as the Great Gulf.

An ominous sight loomed in that valley. It was billowing with blue-black clouds that dashed like waves against the rocky precipices, five hundred feet below. Great vortices began swirling up from the cloud-sea, spouting streaks of lightning, as the thunder rolled almost incessantly.

Half seconds of ominous silence were followed by flashes a half-mile wide, which split and rolled back the clouds. Salvo after salvo of lightning bolts shot higher and higher. They seemed to burst like rockets—a blinding, bluish green like sparks from an X-ray machine. The faces of the companions seemed a ghastly blue in the weird light. The air, the trees—yes, the mountains, were trembling under nature's terrific bombardment. The atmosphere reeked of sulphur and brimstone. Distant peaks were enmeshed in nets of incandescent flashes. The deadly net was coming closer. The three men breathed with difficulty, as though in a vacuum.

In the Midst of an Electric Storm.

Then, from the opposite direction rolled another ghastly, blue-green sea of quivering fire. It rolled with the relentless speed of a phantom horseman of the sky.

No hope in flight. From that mountain peak, the billows of fire seemed to engulf the world. The three young men stood helpless, awaiting the clash of the tempests around the jagged rocks of the mountain peak.

George Goodwin sat down on a rock, scarcely eight feet from his friends. The heavens rocked with a final cataclysmic bellow and roar. George—perhaps a half hour later—became conscious of being intensely cold and wet. He strained his ears to catch what Trafton was saying.

"No, he isn't dead," were the words he finally made out. George wondered why he was lying flat on his back. He tried to cover his face, for huge hail stones were beating his body. It was pitch dark, save for occasional flashes of lightning in the distance.

Trafton and Patten revived young Goodwin. They told how sheet lightning had converged on a crag and flowed down over the mountain like molten lava. They had seen George hurled from his seat on the rock. They had smelled the stench of burning flesh and clothing. They had thought him dead and had waited their turn at death. Both were numb—half paralyzed.

Goodwin tells me that his benumbed body gradually became sensitive to intense suffering. His companions dragged him back along the long mountain trail they had sturdily climbed. George's arms were held over their shoulders. His right leg dangled hopelessly. He was shrieking with pain.

Badly Burned, but He Lived.

Half-way down the mountain was a shelter hut. Refugees there, and his companions, applied the first aid that saved George's life as it hung by a spider-web.

A dim, smoky lantern revealed the effects of the deadly blow of the lightning bolt. George's hair was burned into a solid mat. His shirt was shredded and burned to pieces. His coat was burned through to the flesh. The seams were ripped, as though with a razor blade. His trousers were in ribbons—the buttons melted into shapeless blobs of metal. A gold ring on his finger was fused into a shapeless mass. His shoes were ripped and torn—the brass eyelets melted—the brass clasps on his purse might have been in a smelter, and the brass trimmings of his pocket knife had dripped into shapeless suggesta. Even the steel blade of the knife was snapped into fragments.

Beneath George's clothes his skin was baked so black that it cracked when touched. A strip of flesh, three inches wide, had been torn from his neck, across his chest and down to his left thigh bone, with a forked gouge, two inches wide, all the way down his leg to the heel.

Four months George lay swathed in bandages. Then youthful vitality won his battle for life. Hale and hearty today, he braves many mountain storms in the Pacific Northwest. But he doesn't laugh at them. —WNU Service.

'WAY BACK WHEN

STAR PITCHER WAS A COTTON PICKER

JEROME HERMAN (DIZZY) DEAN was born in Lucas, Ark., in 1911. Son of a poor cotton picker, he was forced to quit school when he reached the fourth grade, because the family was so poor that the 50 cents a day he could earn in the cotton fields was a necessity.

Under-nourished, poorly clothed and uneducated, as he was, Dizzy Dean always had confidence in himself. Perhaps that explains why he was able to develop what small advantages circumstances in life allowed him, and develop them to championship quality. Confidence and a strong right arm hardened in the cotton fields were Dizzy's equipment for facing life.

He learned to throw a baseball with amazing speed and control. In 1929, he was signed up by Don Curtis, scout for the Cardinals' Texas league. The salary was comparatively small, but it looked like a fortune to the former cotton picker. After training in Houston, he was shipped to St. Joseph, Mo., where his confidence and fast pitching won 17 games. Transferred to Houston, he developed rapidly and soon became star pitcher for the St. Louis Cardinals. Meantime, his brother Paul, or "Duffy," also won a pitching berth on the Cardinals. Dizzy was always the more spectacular, the higher paid, and the more widely publicized. # Why Newspaper Ask For Early Copy

The Advertiser Is Unfair to Himself When He Sends His Advertisement to the Newspaper Office Just Before the Dead-Line

Early "Copy" Late "Copy"

1. Better position.	Risk of poor position.
2. No errors.	Risk of typographical errors.
3. Time for store corrections.	No opportunity for store corrections.
4. Good typography.	Risk of poor typography.
5. Prompt delivery to reader.	Risk of late delivery.
6. Fair to mechanical staff.	Unfair physical and mental strain.
7. Advertisement well written.	Advertisement hurriedly written.
8. Advertisement inserted.	Risk of omission.
9. Overhead normal.	Often cause of rate increase.
10. Illustrations correct.	Risk of misplaced cuts.

- While a newspaper is a marvel of mechanical efficiency, there are limits on what can be done by a given force of printers, stereotypers and pressmen in a short, crowded period of stress.
- There is plenty of time to give every advertiser good service when early copy is sent in.
- The Free Press believes that its advertisers desire to be fair to the printers, stereotypers and pressmen who serve them as well as to be fair to themselves.
- Visitors to the mechanical department are invited so that the process of handling advertising may be thoroughly understood and the mechanical problems fully realized.
- Your co-operation will be greatly appreciated by the entire personnel of The Free Press.

ROUNDUP

ROUNDUP STAFF
 Elva Couch Editor-in-Chief
 John Alex Mayfield Associate Editor
 LaVerne Guess Society Editor
 Clyde Crume Boy Sport Editor
 LaVera Guess Girl Sport Editor
 Waid Blair Joke Editor

PRODUCING THE STAFF

Editor-in-Chief
 Elva Couch was elected as our Editor-in-Chief Tuesday. She has been connected with the Haskell school up until when she joined the staff. She is very popular with the students and faculty and has a winning disposition. We are all glad to have her on the staff. She has all the qualities of a good editor and we are sure she will contribute to the paper as well as a reporter. She served as reporter for the last year and was one of the best players on the basketball team.

Associate Editor
 John Alex Mayfield was an associate editor of the staff last year and is counting on his abilities this year as associate editor. He has been attending school at Haskell since last year. He was a member of the basketball team and a good player. He was president of the Junior year and reporter of the staff this year. Mr. Coody was on the staff last year.

Society Editor
 LaVerne Guess was recently elected society editor of the "Roundup". She attended Haskell until last year and came to Mattson. LaVerne is a senior this year and will feel a loss when she leaves. Kindness, loyalty, and a sense of duty are three of the characteristics of her. She was editor of the "Roundup" last semester. She is a member of the Home club and captain of the team. Everyone feels she will be an excellent editor and will cooperate with the other editors, since she has experience along that line.

La Vera Guess—Girls' Sport Editor

This is La Vera's first year to be a member of the staff. She was formerly a member of Weirner High School. La Vera won second place in essay writing in interscholastic league. She played on the junior and senior girls basketball team last semester. La Vera is head of the social committee of her class. Everyone thinks she will be a grand sport editor since she is deeply interested in sports.

Clyde Crume, Sport Editor
 Clyde is our former joke editor and we feel sure he can fill this position as well as he did the joke editors. He has taken an active part in all of the activities of Mattson school since its organization last year. He excels in athletics of all kinds, and he is a good student. His "grin" and practical jokes make him popular with the student body.

Waid Blair, Joke Editor
 Waid was chosen to be the joke editor. He is a "jolly" junior. Waid is new to that position on the paper, but he is very competent. To be a good sport is almost everyone's chief ambition. Waid has accomplished that and he is also one of the best football players. He was a basketball player.

This concludes the introduction of the staff proper, but it might be added that Miss Crume is sponsor of it. May you have the best of success.

SOCIETY

SENIOR PICNIC
 The Senior class picnic last Friday afternoon was enjoyed by everyone present. The seniors met at Rice Springs Park about six o'clock. That was where the picnic was held. After the picnic they all went to the football game that was played between Haskell and Rule. Everyone reported a grand time.

JUNIORS PLAN SOCIAL

PEP SQUAD

The pep squad of Mattson High School has been organized and is well underway.

We had some difficulty in deciding on the type of suits we would use. After much confusion our sponsor, Mrs. Clifton and the girls decided on black mannish gabardine suits and silver kerchiefs.

Our pep leaders are Bobbie Lewis Haynes and Lou Etta Stanford. With these girls as leaders we're sure the pep squad will be a success.

ON YE MUSTANGS

The Mustangs are training hard for their coming game with the bounding steers from Rochester. They are set on taking the Steers to the "Corral". Of course the Steers have a chance of winning but if you have been around the corral a while you will know that it will be a fight to the finish. You have to have confidence before you can succeed and the Mustangs have plenty of that. "Now, Watch Them Go."

To Name Committee For Farm Purchase Loan In November

A county committee for loans under the Bankhead-Jones Tenant Act will be named in November. It was reported by R. E. Skipworth, county supervisor for the Farm Security Administration, who has been receiving numerous inquiries from farmers to buy land under this new act.

"As only ten million dollars was appropriated for such loans during the remainder of 1932 and the first half of 1933, less than one farm to the county, on the average, will be financed during this period," the supervisor said. "However, the appropriation authorized for the second year is two and one-half times as great, and five times as great for the third year."

A state committee will be named within the next week or two, and county committees will be named soon thereafter. It is expected that the first applications can be acted upon by November 30, the supervisor said.

The county committee will be composed of three farmers. Their duty will be to receive and pass upon applications, and also to pass upon the value of the farms which the applicants propose to purchase. No land owned by a committee member or a relative of his may be approved. Those eligible for loans include only tenants and farm laborers who are now receiving, or have until recently received, their chief income from farming.

The FSA supervisor said that as soon as the committee for this county is named, it will be published, and further details given as to making application. Until that time, no action can be taken by would-be applicants.

"Because of the small number of loans that can be made for purchase of land, chief work of FSA will continue to be making and supervising farm and home plans for low-income farmers, and loans with which to buy livestock and equipment," the supervisor said. "Such loans, however, can be made only to farmers who are unable to obtain financing from any other source. There are now 44 families in Haskell county receiving this form of loan and supervision."
