'Civilisation' Series Enlightens Students On Cultural Life Of Western Man

"Civilisation," the renowned color film series on the cultural life of Western man, written and narrated by art historian Kenneth Clark, will be shown at Western Texas College March 2 at 7:30 p.m. in the Science Lecture Hall. A Fourth film in the series will be shown March 9 in the same place. Admittance is free.

Western Texas College will receive the thirteen fifty-minute "Civilisation" films on loan free of charge from the National Gallery of Art in Washington, under a new program offered through the Gallery's Extension Services.

This distribution program has been made possible by matching grants totaling $181,056 from the National Endowment for the Humanities and from Xerox Corporation. Normal rental fee for this series would be $2,000 to $3,000 and purchase price would be $7,000 a set.

Under the program, which began this fall, the films are being distributed to colleges and universities with fewer than 2,000 undergraduates. Approximately 400 institutions can participate in the program each year with an estimated 3,000,000 annual audience.

Each college will receive the films in sequence, one a week. There will be two showings of each, both without charge—one for the college and one for the local community.

The film to be seen this week is entitled "The Great Thaw" followed by "Romance and Reality".

"The distribution program has been designed," said J. Carter Brown, Director of the National Gallery, "to make it possible for audiences all over the country to see the "Civilisation" films on the large screen and with the fidelity of their original film form. In addition, it will offer institutions a means of strengthening relations with their local communities by sponsoring the second showing for the general public. College presidents, rather than art, history or humanities departments, have been asked to sponsor the program, in order to emphasize its availability to the whole student body.

Western Civilization through the visual arts, music, literature, and political history, from the fall of the Roman Empire through the 20th century. The films were originally produced for the British Broadcasting Corporation, which sent Lord Clark, two producers, and a three-man camera crew on a two-year mission through eleven countries to film the series. In Lord Clark's words, the aim was "to define civilization in terms of creative power and the enlargement of human faculties."

The film's many subjects include the Gothic cathedrals, the age of chivalry, St. Francis of Assisi, the Renaissance and the Reformation, the baroque and rococo, bourgeois democracy in Holland at the Dutch painters, the Enlightenment in Europe and American, romanticism and revolution in the 19th century, and modern technology and materialism.

In honor of Lord Clark's many contributions to art education as Director of the National Gallery, London (1934-45), Slade Professor of Fine Arts, Oxford University (1946-50 and 1961-62), author of several books and creator of the "Civilisation" series, the National Gallery has presented him with its Medal for Distinguished Service to Education in Art.

Since its American premiere at the National Gallery in November, 1969, the entire "Civilisation" series has been shown nearly one hundred times and drawn more than 275,000 viewers at the Gallery. It is currently being seen throughout the United States on National Educational Television, supported by a grant from Xerox Corporation.

In the series, Kenneth Clark traces from an avowedly personal point of view, the story of

Open House For March 5

Acceptance of the Fine Arts Building and The Academic Science Building at Western Texas College will be observed on March 5, from 2-5 p.m. with an open house tour and a series of Fine Arts presentations by WTC students.

Tours for open house visitors will be conducted through all of the buildings on campus. Special emphasis on the tours will be directed at the newly accepted Fine Arts building where the Music Department will present music recitals, the Drama Department will present several dramatic presentations, and the Art Department will have showings of numerous techniques in art work.

The Schulmerich Carillon presented to WTC by Mrs. Forest G. Sears and her daughter, Carolyn Ann, will be chiming for the visitors. The control console is housed in the Fine Arts Building. Four weather proof speakers are installed on the roof of the two-story Learning Resource Center-Library. The carillon is used in lieu of the traditional electronic bell system. The carillon bells sound the traditional Westminster chimes and strike the hours on the hour during the day.

Plans are being made to have the members of Phi Theta Kappa, national junior college honorary society, conduct the tours of the campus.

Democratic Hopefuls Must Develop A Stronger Platform To Beat Nixon

by MIKE SIMPSON

The presidential election may prove disheartening to the conscientious voter who sincerely wishes to vote for the best man. This is so because there simply does not seem to be a best man. True, there is an overabundance of presidential aspirants, especially Democrats; but the race seems to boil down to a bunch of mediocre candidates who have mediocre platforms.

Vietnam Issue

The Democratic Party must find a candidate who can defeat Nixon. In an effort to do so, almost every Democrat in the nation has announced candidacy. At the outset of the campaign year it appears that the Democrats could carry the election on a single issue - the Vietnam War. Recently, however, the issues have changed, and the war controversy no longer carries the emphasis it did in previous months. This is due partly to the revelation of Nixon's secret negotiations and efforts to end the war. Nevertheless the Democrats continue to regard Vietnam as a primary issue. Unless the Democrats begin to emphasize some other topics, their chances of defeating Nixon will become very slim.

Republican Strategy

A recent article in NEWSWEEK revealed that the Republicans are basing their campaign strategy on the economy, school busing, and urban crime. Yet Nixon has not really made any appreciable progress in any of these areas. It was anticipated that Nixon's newly proposed peace plan would eliminate Vietnam controversies completely and thereby destroy the Democratic platform. Once this was accomplished Nixon could devote his campaign to the domestic problems.

Democratic Frontrunners

Regardless of what you or I as individual voters feel are the most important issues, it is still beneficial to look briefly at the major candidates, or frontrunners. Although there are approximately ten Democratic candidates to date, the men considered to be leading the pack are Edmund Muskie, Hubert Humphrey, Henry "Scoop" Jackson, and George McGovern. Of course George Wallace will create a great deal of action in the campaign, and will probably win the Florida primary; but judging from political attitudes of the entire nation, it is doubtful that Wallace will secure enough support to capture the nomination.

If you must place these men on a scale of conservatism vs. liberalism, as most voters tend to do now, George McGovern would probably be the farthest left, Humphrey a little left of the center figure Muskie and Jackson a little more to the right.

McGovern Gaining

George McGovern is steadily gaining in the polls and recently received 23 per cent of the vote in Iowa's Democratic caucus. Yet to be considered a threat to frontrunner Muskie, McGovern must do extremely well in all of the primaries. McGovern has thoroughly researched the nation's problems and carefully formulated his platform. Naturally he is against the war, but unlike the majority of Democrats, McGovern has a plan for income redistribution, elimination of welfare, tax reform, and an alternative defense budget. Despite his earnest efforts to solve the nation's problems, McGovern's popularity has suffered because of his inability to stir enthusiasm in voters. His campaign is basically low-key and lacks the flair that appeals to so many voters.

Hubert Humphrey

Hubert Humphrey is running a close race for the top spot and is hoping to take all the honors should Muskie trip in any of the primaries. Although he is considered liberal by some, Humphrey is not accepted by the leftists - particularly the young intellectual. This could possibly help him in conservative circles, but it is doubtful. A major detriment, though no fault of his own, is that many people still link him with Lyndon Johnson and the involvement in Vietnam.

Muskie Leads Pack

Edmund Muskie is the current favorite and presently holds a lead in 29 of the 50 states. Muskie has that appealing quality or charm that is lacking in many of his opponents, including Nixon. He comes across as cool, powerful, but extraordinarily human. The sincerity that he projects has won many voters, for they feel at last they have found a man who is running because he is an American, not merely a politician. Muskie has for the most part devoted his attention to Vietnam; and if his campaign has a weakness, it would be that he hasn't presented a solid program on the other major issues. He has expressed views on certain subjects, but nothing really distinguishable or unique. Yet of all the Democratic hopefuls, Muskie seems to be the best.

GOP Likes Nixon

Although there are other Republicans who would like the nomination, the GOP will play it safe and stick with Nixon. As of yet Nixon has not declared his candidacy, but his recent political moves - Phase II, the Vietnam proposal, and the trip to China - indicate that he is definitely trying to pave his way into the White House again.

Safety in Status Quo

Nixon is probably the favorite candidate and may be able to keep this favored position the remainder of the year. Nixon's popularity is built around the fact that he has thus far avoided any major blunders and has not really alienated very many people. Yet he has not actually accomplished anything. So although he has not done anything wrong, neither has he done anything right. People feel safe with Nixon, not because he is, or will be, a good President, but simply because he has not been a bad President.

At present I tend to agree with that reasoning. Although Nixon's programs have not had any startling results, they seem to be on the verge of progress. Also, until a Democrat can present something better, and I mean something definite and concrete, I see no reason to change horses in mid-stream. Of course my ideas could change, particularly if Muskie develops some programs that sound reasonable.

Cagers Win Last Two Games End Season With .500 Mark

The Westerner basketball team soundly trounced its final two opponents to end their first season with a 12 won-12 lost record.

A tight Westerner defense and smooth working offensive patterns enabled WTC to jump out to an early lead over a cold shooting Wayland College Junior Varsity. The Westerner performance was especially notable since Wayland was using three players Ernie Kahn, Clarence Hatcher, and John Brown who normally start for the varsity.

The Westerners took a 38-18 lead to the dressing room at half-time and quickly ran this to a 26-point lead at 56-30 before Wayland suddenly turned as hot as they had been cold. Don Snodgrass and Ernie Kahn hit eleven 25 foot shots in succession to cut the Westerner lead to ten points. A stall game during the last few minutes gave the big green an 80-71 victory.

Leaders of the Westerner assault on Wayland were Walter Hanibal with 21 points and 12 rebounds, James Houston with 12 points and 10 rebounds and Steve Sparks with 16 points. Joel Dyess and Johnny Neff flipped in 8 points each, Ralph Jackson had seven points and 9 rebounds and Mike Simpson contributed six points and 5 assists.

On Tuesday Feb. 22nd, the Westerners concluded their season by beating Lubbock Christian College Junior Varsity 92-79 in one of their better performances of the season.

The Westerners trailed only once, 2-0 before surging into a 5-2 lead which they steadily built into the final margin. Ralph Jackson played his finest game of the year, grabbing 16 rebounds, scoring 21 points and blocking two shots. Speedy Steve Sparks put in 3 and leading scorer Walter Hanibal ripped in 4 points and 12 rebounds.

The Westerners led 46-34 at half-time, withstood an LCC rally that cut the margin to six points, and pulled away in the last few minutes to win going away.

Hanibal and Jackson were aided by Joel Dyess and James Houston in completely dominating the boards and the entire team played great defense.

Most conference coaches were surprised by the Westerners strong first year showing and the big green, if they can recruit several good freshmen to go with their returnees, are considered a threat to take the title in their first Conference campaign next year.

Coach Sid Simpson says he hopes to recruit at least one tall center who can help on the boards and block a few shots and one really strong outside shooter to help break up zone defenses.

Carillon Given To College By Mrs. Forest G. Sears

The Schulmerich Carillon, presented to Western Texas College by Mrs. Forest G. Sears and her daughter, Carolyn Ann, as a memorial to the late Forest G. Sears, was installed recently and is being heard daily by students, faculty, and visitors on the campus.

The console is housed in the Fine Arts Building, with four weatherproof speakers installed on the two-story Learning Resource Center-Library. The carillon is used in lieu of the traditional electronic bell system.

Automatic daily programs on the carillon are provided by means of the Schulmerich "Auto-Bell" Roll Player. This instrument, which is neither a phonograph nor wire-recording device, actually plays the bells through the use of perforated plastic rolls. The rolls actuate the circuits which strike the bell units, duplicating the performance of an artist at the keyboard. Made of a durable plastic material, the rolls are formed as an endless belt, and the roll player can be set to play a single desired selection or an extended program.

Automatic operation of the roll player is controlled by a calendared clock which can be set to play the carillon at any time of the day. Selections are played on the bells during the day. The bells sound the traditional Westminster Chime and strike the hours on-the-hour during the day. The installation includes an automatic hour toll to strike the hours.

A special device known as a "Melody Player" has been included in the installation to sound as a prelude to the hour toll.

The carillon will be played for special observances such as during the Christmas season. The 75-note carillon ranges from G to G. Equipment and service provided in the carillon system include the console, 25 Flemish-tuned bells, 25 harp-tuned bells, 25 celesta-tuned bells, Westminster and hour strike, automatic roll player, 100 song selections, 5-minute program clock, and tower ring for the speakers.

A bronze embossed memorial plaque is to be placed in the lobby of the Fine Arts Building. The carillon system will play a prominent role in the dedication ceremonies of the college scheduled in late April or early May.

SARA FINCHER
... Cotton Duchess

Sara Fincher Chosen For Cotton Duchess

Students selected Sara Fincher to represent WTC as their Cotton Duchess at the 38th according to Mickey Baird, and director of student activities, sponsor for the Student Senate.

Miss Fincher was selected from four nominees including herself, Sharon Moore, Bonnie English and Terry Canon. Initial balloting resulted in a run-off between Fincher and Canon. The final election was held Friday, February 18 to determine the Cotton Duchess.

Miss Fincher was a 1970 graduate of Cooper High School in Abilene. While at Cooper she was a member of the National Honor Society, a UIL winner in choral competition, Senior Queen, a senior class officer, and received various other honors. She also represented Abilene as the city's Junior Miss of 1970. She attended Texas Tech as a freshman where she began working on a major in the field of music. She continued her academic excellence by making the Dean's List at Tech. She was also a member of Alpha Lambda Delta sorority.

She transferred to WTC the fall semester and is attending school on a music scholarship. She is a member of the WTC choir, TSEA, Los Vaqueros, Phi Theta Kappa and again made the Dean's list.

The Cotton Pageant and Ball will be March 24-25 and is sponsored by the Student Agronomy Society of Texas A&M. There will be an informal social Friday evening so that the duchesses may get acquainted. The contestants will be the guests at a tea and reception Saturday morning, and will be interviewed by the judges that afternoon. After the pageant which will be held in the Bryan Civic Auditorium, a formal ball will be held in honor of the new Cotton Queen and her court.

Students Need To File Graduation Applications

Students who intend to graduate or complete certificates this spring need to come by the registrar's office and file for graduation. Dr. Duane Hood, registrar, needs to know all students who think they may be eligible for either the A.A., A.A.S., or certificates by March 15. Filing fees will not be due until a later date.

The Associate in Arts Degree is offered to students completing:

- Communications 12 semester hours
- (Engineering majors-9 hrs.)
- Mathematics 3 semester hours
- (Engineering majors-9 hrs.)
- Sciences 6-8 semester hours
- Social Sciences 12 semester hours

- Humanities 3 semester hours
- Physical Education 4 semester hours
- Electives 20 semester hours
- Total 60-62 semester hours
- 3 hours may be in speech or journalism.

The Associate in Applied Science Degree is awarded to students who successfully complete an approved curriculum for a two-year technical-vocational program in addition to satisfying the general requirements.

And students who successfully fulfill the requirements of a terminal program of less than two years duration is awarded a certificate of completion.
