Ernest Biegajski of Buffalo, N. This is the second such boat he has built with his soldier's bonus money. The 1936 model leaked so badly that only the timely arrival of the coast guard prevented its maiden voyage from turning into a tragedy.

S ANTA MONICA, CALIF.— In this favored land we are now starting to celebrate the customary seasonal rite of having our summer influenza. Summer influenza is distinguished from winter influenza by the fact that the former does not set in until September, thereby providing intervals for spring and fall to slip in between.

The symptoms remain practically the same. The eyes water copiously, but the nose runs second. The head stops up thoroughly, thus

The Art of Cussing.

OLD chum Burgess Johnson. once an editor but now a college professor, tells a credulous bunch of advertising men that Mark Twain was the champion all-time all-American cusser-could cuss five solid minutes without repeating him-

Pardon me, Burgess, but Mark Twain never did any such thing. Once I heard him at his out-cussingest best-denouncing a publisher who had offended him. He swore for five minutes all right, but over and over again he used the same few familiar oaths which the English-speaking race always have used. He didn't introduce a new or an original one. I studied the art of cussing, both by note and by ear, under such gifted masters of profanity as southern steamboat mates, New York newspaper men. London cab drivers, western mule whackers and north woods timber choppers.

With my hand on my heart I solemnly affirm that not one of these alleged experts ever employed any save the dependable age-seasoned standbys, to wit, seven adjectives, two strong nouns, one ultrastrong noun and one compound phrasethe commonest of all.

Romance for King Zog.

FOR about the fifth time comes a plaintive plea from Albania, one of those remote little border countries of eastern Europe where every nov and then peace threatens to break out. They have a king over there. At least they had a king at the time of going to press with this dispatch. His name is King Zog. This is neither a typographical error nor a vaudeville gag. The name positively is Zog. and radio comedians may make the most of it.

For many months he has been paging the world for a wife. The qualifications call for the lady to have $5,000,000. His majesty would also like for her to turn Mohammedan, but the main requirement is that $5,000,000 bank roll.

California's Coastline. WHILE it's quite a roomy coastline, California has at present only one coastline. This is a source of mortification to patriotic native sons, Florida having two such, one on either side, besides a dampish area in the middle known as the Everglades. Still, in a way, California's silvery strand continues to excel. Within easy speeding distance we have at least one beach resort where, when Palm Springs folds up on account of the heat, many of our artistic colony go to relax. So wholeheartedly do some go in for this that often you may stand off a quarter of a mile and hear them relaxing. Occasionally a relaxationist relaxes so completely that it takes weeks for him to get over it. His friends leave him at the seaside only to gather at the bedside.

The Changing World.

IT WAS Susan B. Anthony who dedicated her life to the cause of emancipation for her sex. But it was her grandniece who lately attained the headlines by suggesting that, with the addition of a buckle here and a ribbon there, a nightie would make a suitable evening gown for almost any occasion. Thus do we see how from one gen eration on to another is handed down the flame of genius and service to womankind. But, although the inspired suggestion is already weeks old, there still are no signs that it is finding advocates among the queen bees of the cultural hive. Maybe the reason is that a belle of the Hollywood artistic group would feel so ostentatiously overdressed if she wore a full-fashioned nightie to a social

Federal Intervention Asked

T WAS virtually certain that there would be some federal action in the steel strikes, with Gov. Martin L. Davey of Ohio and Mayor Daniel J. Shields of Johnstown, Pa., appealing desperately to the President for aid. Governor Davey, in a long telegram detailing the arguments on both sides, declared that the situation had gone far beyond the powers of one state to control. When a worker in the Johnstown steel mills was abducted by six strikers and stripped of his clothing in their automobile (he was later released), following weeks of rioting and bloodshed, the mayor decided that kidnaping was the last straw and appealed to Mr. Roosevelt.

Secretary of Labor Frances E. Perkins named a mediation board of three to meet in Cleveland and hear the cases of the union and the companies. On the board were Charles P. Taft, son of the former President and chief justice, a Republican and lawyer from Cincinnati; Lloyd K. Garrison, who served as the first president of the National Labor Relations board in 1934, and Edward F. McGrady, first assistant secretary of labor, and a known enemy of company unions, spy systems and the tear gas method of quelling strike riots.

Court Plan Walloped

THE senate judiciary committee made short work of President Roosevelt's Supreme court packing plan. Its report, in summary:

"We recommend the rejection of this bill as a needless, futile, and utterly dangerous abandonment of constitutional principle.

"It was presented to the congress in a most intricate form and for reasons that obscured its real pur-

"It would not affect the power of any court to hold laws unconstitutional, nor withdraw from any judge the authority to issue injunctions. "It would not reduce the expense of litigation nor speed the decision of cases. "It is a proposal without precedent and without justification.

"It would subjugate the courts to the will of congress and the President and thereby destroy the independence of the judiciary, the only certain shield of individual rights.

"It is a measure which should be so emphatically rejected that its parallel will never again be presented to the free representatives of the free people of America."

Informed Washington correspondents were of the belief that the bill hasn't a chance of being passed, even with amendments. It seemed not unlikely that, due to the confusion and conflict over White House proposals and statutes, there would be an adjournment of this session of congress shortly, perhaps to reconvene in special session beginning November 1. The breathing spell would give the administration an opportunity to align its majority more solidly behind the President's desired legislation to improve the ot of the underprivileged.

DESPITE the pleas of Harrs L. Hopkins, works progress ad ministrator, the full senate appropriation committee approved the Byrnes amendment to the relief bill, 13 to 10. The amendment to the $1.500. 000,000 bill requires local governments to pay at least 40 per cent of the cost of all WPA projects. or else sign a kind of civic "pauper's ath." The South Carolina senator's

Harry amendment was Hopkins seen as further evidence of the break between the administration and the conservative Democrats.

In the senate debate on the bill it quickly became apparent that Sen. Byrnes' "40 per cent amendment" would not carry. Sen. Joseph T. Robinson offered a compromise which would require states to pay 25 per cent of the cost of work relief projects. President Roosevelt had repeatedly made it known that he wanted no such rider on his relief bill, and it was Sen. Robinson's first break with the White House on an important issue.

Capital on the Move

THE Spanish loyalist government, after another terrific bombing of the city by insurgent airplanes of the German Junkers and Heinkel types, decided to move the capital from Bilbao to Santander, but to defend Bilbao to the death. The Basque battalions reorganized for a last ditch stand to protect the broken "iron ring" of the city's defenses from the forces of General Francisco Franco. The latter, it was admitted, already had penetrated the first line of fortifications near Fica and Larrabezua, five miles to the east. Several persons were killed and many houses destroyed by the rebel bombs and machine guns. Meanwhile the loyalists were claiming important advances along the Cordoba front, bringing them to the rich coal districts held by the insurgents.

All this because the Communist party, reversing its long stand at the last minute, agreed to accept Premier Blum's proposal that he be made financial dictator of the nation for six weeks. In that time he hopes to raise the 30 billion francs needed to finance the government throughout the year. Most authorities believe that six weeks will not suffice, that he will be forced to ask for an extension of his "full emergency powers." Blum hopes that the long awaited business revival

MAN AT WHEEL HOLDS TRAFFIC PROBLEM KEY

Don't cross your legs when your riding with a reckless auto driver. This is the advice recently given by Dr. Robert Funston, professor of surgery at the University of Virginia. And although may not seem to have much relation to the general topic of traffic safety, the professor had good reason to mention it. He has found that passengers who plant their feet apart on the floorboard and lean well back in the seat are less subject to leg and hip injuries in a crash.

Out at Iowa State College, practical research has shown that slight defects of vision may cause serious traffic accidents. Other scientists contribute the information that color blindness causes even conscientious drivers to run through red lights and cause costly collisions.

These interesting items do not prove that science alone has the answer to our enormous traffic problem. There is no one thing that can ever control a transportation mechanism which kills 36,000 and injures more than a million persons in the United States every year. But they do indicate that we are improving our teamwork and are adding to the sum total of knowledge needed to banish the traffic evil.

Other inklings that we are absorbing workable ideas in traffic accident prevention are provided by the national safety education program in schools. It has been proved possible through classroom teaching, to raise the average age of pedestrians killed or hurt in traffic from the school child level to above the 50-year-old level within 12 months' time. This feat is marred only by the fact that no way has yet been devised to bring adults into classrooms for daily safety lessons.

In the engineering field, greater strides have been made. A few years ago a red pin on a map was considered record enough for a traffic mishap, Now, thanks largely to Franklin M. Kreml and his pioneer work in Evanston, Ill., officials may preserve the minutest evidence of an accident. These thorough records enable experts to eliminate street and road hazards, fix responsibility for the crash, obtain a higher percentage of convictions and give the blameless driver a better deal in court

Scores of other ideas are being tried. Overpass crossings, high level sidewalks, rad straightening and leveling, better lighting, improvements in tires and car equipment all are worthwhile trends toward the common goal.

But mechanical ingenuity never will replace personal judgement, and the issue of life or death on the road always will lie principally in the hands of the man at the wheel.

Summer, bringing its glut of cars on the streets and highways, swings this problem into sharp focus and emphasizes the responsibility of individual drivers and pedestrians. It is a good time to decide whether we shall restrict the auto in its proper sphere in transportation, or allow it to grow on up as a murderous juggernaut.

FOR OLD TIMES' SAKE

A return to normalcy in drug stores is indicated by Fordham University's new model "Pharmacy of the Future," which, it is promised, will handle nothing but pharmaceutical products. Now there is nothing particularly wrong with the neomodern drug store, with its wide selection of odds and ends which the hurried householder can pick up in an urgent moment. But the sentimental victim of today's furious living, who yearns to steal as of old into a quiet apothecary for a refreshing sniff of tempting aromatic odors, finds that the hustling drug stores in current vogue just don't quite hit the spot. Without embroiling itself is any dispute over the merits of these types of business Fordham seems to have clinched a grand idea. But to be perfect, the "Pharmacy of the Future" should concede this one thing; on the back counter it should have three big glass jars, stocked with red white and pink peppermints.

The total eclipse of the sun which was observed at its best in the middle of the Pacific Ocean on June 8 was one of the most notable in history, its maximum period of totality being seven minutes and four seconds, only 26 seconds shorter than the longest possible. "The Unwelcome Fare" By FLOYD GIBBONS Famous Headline Hunter

TODAY a cab driver rings the bell and chalks up his name as a distinguished adventurer. He is Patrick J. Whalen of Bloomington, Ill., and on December 12, 1935, he had the adventure of the passenger who wouldn't take no for an answer.

Pat works for the Yellow Cab company in Bloomington and his brothy Jim is night manager of the company's office next to the interurban depot. Pat drives on the night shift, and on this particular shift, and on this particular December evening he was sitting in the office with Jim. | Red Hot It was a cold night. The interurban was due in a couple of minutes, and suddenly Pat noticed a man looking into the office. He opened the door and asked him if he wanted a cab, but the fellow shook his head.

Just then the phone rang and a call came in for a taxi out on the east side of town. Pat went to his cab to answer that call. Pat Was Put in a Hot Spot.

He had just turned the ignition on when he heard the door open. Standing beside the cab was the man who had refused his offer just a moment before. Pat started to tell him he had a call now and couldn't take him-but he never finished. Suddenly, the man pressed a gun against his side. "Don't make a move," he said, "or I'll drill you!"

The man opened the rear door and got into the back seat. "Get going," he snapped, "and turn right at the next corner. We're going to town." Pat managed to get the car started and around the next corner. It was a cold night, but Pat says he was sweating as if it had been 110 in the shade.

He drove out through town and each block they traveled took them farther from the crowded business section-and safety. As they reached the outskirts the man in the back suddenly shouted to him to go faster. But there was a governor on the cab and Pat couldn't go any faster. He told the man that, and he was apparently satisfied. But Pat was still nervous about the gun that fellow had trained on his back.

As Pat started to slow down for a red light, the fellow thrust the gun in his back again and told him to go ahead. Pat passed the light.

"I was hoping a policeman would see me run that light." Pat says, "but no such luck. Thought after thought ran through my mind. Maybe I should hit a telephone pole or run into a parked car, or do something else that would attract attention."

Good Places for a Murder.

But with that gun in his back. Pat didn't have a chance to do a thing. located here, and farther on are The road they were on was leading them straight for a cemetery and Mr. Munsey Cogdill of Mineral the impressive Los Chisos (The next a slaughter house-both ideal spots for a murder.

Pat was on the verge of screaming as they approached those two spots, but he whizzed right on past them and nothing happened. A little farther on, the man ordered him to pull over to the side of the road

"Now he'll shoot me!" That was the thought that raced through Pat's mind. They were really out in the country now-not a house in sight. Pat says he'll never know how he got out of that car. His teeth were chattering and his knees were knocking together. The man with the gun stopped behind him and they started to walk. They only walked a short distance. Then they came to a railroad embankment and the man pointed to it with his gun. "Climb up there," he said, "and start walking. And don't look back or I'll kill you on the spot."

Pat climbed the steep, snow-covered embankment. As he started down the tracks he could hear his abductor starting the cab. When he thought the man was no longer watching him he ran down the embankment on the opposite side and headed for a farmhouse.

"As I walked." he says, "I breathed in deep breaths of cold night air and considered myself the luckiest fellow in the world. The first farm house didn't have a phone, so I walked on to the next one. I called was called to."

How the Gunman Was Nabbed.

Pat told him what had happened. Jim told him he'd notify the police and send a car for him. Pat started walking toward town to meet the car.

"I don't know why I did that," says Pat. "I was just so jittery that I had to be doing something. I had walked three quarters of a mile when I saw a car approaching. Imagine my surprise when a police car came up and a voice asked, 'Are you Whalen, the cab driver?'

"That's me," said Pat, and the policeman turned a flash light on the back seat. There, handcuffed and sitting next to another officer was the fellow who had been holding a gun on him only a short while before. "His eyes were like little slits," says Pat, "and oh, boy, did he gave me a dirty look. I couldn't understand how they had caught him so soon, but Jim explained after I got back into town." It seems the gunman made a wrong turn and, not being very familiar with the city, landed back in town. He then decided to drive to the depot and catch a train. What he didn't know was that Mr. Hill, the owner of the company, is always at the depot at train time to check the driv-"When he drove up. Mr. Hill, thinking it was me, started toward the cab to call me down for disappearing. The gunman backed up the cab and tried to make a getaway, but as he rounded a corner he turned too short, hit a telephone pole, and another driver, Harley Green, grabbed him and took away his gun." The police searched Pat's gunman and found in his pocket the loot from a store that had been held up a short time before. He confessed to the robbery, but when they examined him they found him insane and committed him to Kankakee asylum. Pat thinks he was mighty lucky to get away from that bird alive. 'And when I see reports in the papers of people who have become victims of men like that," he says, "I know perfectly well just what they have gone through."

BRANCHING

The vast oil industry of Texas is primarily dependent upon the widespread use of the automobile for its welfare, but not entirely. Its ramifications are many. There is kerosene for cooking and for lighting; there are the industrial lubricants, ranging from heavy greases to special oils so carefully refined you could use them in a salad dressing if you chose; there are numerous specialties for the home and car-from body polishes to window cleaners: there are fuel oils, diesel oils, spray oils for fruit trees—the list is endless. And almost daily, the engineers, the chemists, the whole army of the oil industry's technicians are adding to it . . . It's a far cry these days from the "coal oil" can with a potato on its spout.

The Humble Company keeps abreast of all the new developments. Its Baytown refinery is one of the largest, most up-to-date, in the world. But Humble technicians still leave no stone unturned in their day-to-day efforts to improve the products you buy under the Humble sign.
