COUNTY AGRICULTURE ASSOCIATION MEETING TO BE HELD SATURDAY

Changes in Farm Bill and Program Rulings will be discussed at the Haskell County Agriculture Association meeting which will be held in Haskell at 3:30 Saturday, according to Anderson, secretary of the association.

The group will discuss recent changes in the new farm bill just passed in Congress relative to the program for 1938 to 1940. Representatives of the Texas Agriculture Association who have been in Haskell recently say that the new bill is the poorest of any group but they are confident it will be amended.

Advantages and Disadvantages of Being President

The President of the United States gets a lot of honor, a nice salary and a lot of grief, and oftentimes one pauses to wonder if the high honor is really worth the cost. The Associated Press in the Clarkeville Times interestingly tells of a few of the joys of a president, and likewise tells of many of the things a president of the United States has to go through when he becomes president.

Why does anyone want to be president?

He lives in a house provided by the state but two-thirds of it is a museum.

He is surrounded by guards—secret service men for himself, a special police force for the house and grounds.

His mornings are given over to conferences.

There are cabinet meetings twice a week.

He may lunch at his desk so business will not halt.

Routine official writings exceed 25,000 papers annually, an average of 80 a day.

Afternoons see fewer visitors, but more business.

He presides at formal dinners. Ordinary dinners and luncheons at the White House take on a social-political aspect due to the exigencies of time.

Opportunity for a simple family gathering around the dining table is relatively rare.

The White House executive offices employ 81 persons. Servants number 20.

The presidency costs the government between $400,000 and $500,000 annually. The president receives $100,000 a year. $25,000 of which can be used only to cover his costs of transportation and "official entertainment." If his expenses under these heads do not total $25,000 the surplus is turned over to the treasury.

There have been 32 presidents. Six died in office, three from assassins' bullets. Being president can worry men, embitter them, set them apart from other men, sadden them.

Shriners Elect Sugden Imperial Potentate

View of part of the parade of Nobles of the Mystic Shrine in Detroit in connection with the recent convention. John W. Ashworth, eighty-seven years old, said to be the oldest noble at the convention is shown riding in the parade. Right, is Walter S. Sugden of Sistriville, W. Va., elected imperial potentate.

General William Tecumseh Sherman said if he was nominated he would not accept, and if elected he would not serve. After his first full term, President Calvin Coolidge declared: "I do not choose to run."

Nevertheless, the White House has attracted hundreds of men in public life.

There is a splendor in the presidency which communicates itself to every incumbent. What the president says and does is of paramount importance to the nation and the world.

The United States is full of men whose important utterances receive first page attention and start editorial and informal discussion. But there is only one person whose acts and words can have the effect which the president can produce, and that is the president himself.

The president is the leader of the nation. A present success can wipe out much past error. Until the day he leaves office the most

Youngest Eagle Tries His Wings

ineffectual, most timid president can make for himself a place in history.

Even after he leaves the White House, prestige surrounds a man who has been elected to the highest office. Railroaders prefer to make available private cars rather than ordinary "sleepers" when he travels. His movements are noted by the press; well-wishers continue to send gifts; he is the center of party conferences. The death of a former president sends all other news to the inside pages.

How He Is Selected

How does one get to be president?

A major consideration of nominating conventions, other things being equal is geographical. Certain campaign issues may make party leaders feel a nominee's election chances will be better if he comes from the West, instead of the East or the South.

A political background has been an essential qualification for regarded by both major parties any nominee—preferably political activity that has made the candidate's name a household word.

Governors are on of the main springboards to the presidency. The list of governors who became president includes: Jefferson, Andrew Jackson, Van Buren, Tyler, Polk, Johnson, Hayes, Cleveland, McKinley, Theodore Roosevelt, Wilson, Coolidge and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Fame derived wholly or in part from martial exploits helped to elect George Washington, William Henry Harrison, Zachary Taylor, Grant, and Benjamin Harrison.

From the senate came Jackson, Van Buren, W. H. Harrison, Tyler, Pierce, Buchanan, Andrew Johnson, Garfield, Benjamin Harrison, and Harding.

What Irvin S. Cobb Thinks about

Comfort in Traveling.

LATELY, on a cross-country trawl, two of us invaded one of the remotest corners of the desert.

Until our car broke down we crawled along some of the roughest backways in creation, then escaped on what by quaint irony was called an accommodation train over a side-spur of a prehistoric railway line.

When we hit concrete high roads and a 1 r - conditioned fliers, I caught myself saying our forefathers put up with plenty of misery in order to move about. And then I realized that what we had endured did not date back to former generations. So soon have we grown accustomed to luxury with speed we forget that most of America, fifteen years ago, lacked what we now accept as common traveling comfort.

Why, less than two decades ago, for my sins, I rode on a certain jerk-water railroad in the deep South. The last work done on its tracks was in 1864 by General Sherman—he tore 'em up.

I made the mistake of trying to shave while en route. When I got through, I looked like one of those German student duellists.

But, nowadays, even those who use homemade trailers seem almost happy at times.

Diplomatic Busybodies.

WHOLL be the next member of our diplomatic corps to open his mouth and put his foot in it clear up to his hip-joint?

It has been nearly two months now since our ambassador to Germany had a bad dream and before nurse could quiet him was proclaiming that a certain billionaire was willing to put up one of his loose billions to buy a dictatorship for this country. He failed to furnish the name and address. Maybe they got left out of the nightmare.

Hardly had paregoric wooed this distinguished sufferer back to hush-a-bye-land when our new representative in the Philippines began demanding that, when it came to drinking official toasts, his name must come higher up on the wine list or he wouldn't be responsible for the consequences. However, the excitement subsided before he could summon the Pacific fleet to bombard Manila. There's a rumor that Washington sent him word he needn't worry about being appropriately saluted—there'd be a nationwide Bronx cheer awaiting him on his return home.

Since then there's been a lull and the American public is getting impatient. We do so love a free show and especially when it's amateur night.

Hard-Bitten Females.

TOURING about over certain Western states where open gambling either is by law prohibited, or by custom winked at, I noticed this:

Generally speaking, the feminine patrons are the steadiest drinkers, the most persistent gamblers, the most reckless betters of all. And frequently their manners are the rudest and they faces the grimmest—determined seemingly to disavow the theory that their sex is the gentler sex.

On the other hand, the men patrons—descended, many of them, from old gun fighters, old prospectors, old path-finders—grow increasingly docile and subdued, absorbing less than their share of the hard liquor—maybe because they fear there won't be enough left for mama and the girls—and risking their dime where the gallant ladies plunge with dollars.

Sometimes a fellow, watching the modern professional from the protection of the sidelines, gets to longing for the bygone days when, as Kipling might have put it and, in fact, almost did, a woman was only a woman, but a good cigar was ten cents.

These Candid Cameras.

ONCE a citizen had a right to object to the publication of a flashlight view showing him beating his wife or exhibiting his appendicitis scar or taking out his upper or something.

That was before they began printing magazines for those who've abandoned the old-fashioned habit of reading and writing. And it's doing glamorous movie queens no real good when these betraying close-ups prove that maybe the glamor is only paint-deep.

Thus the last strongholds of our one-time personal liberty crumble. I used to think a passport picture was about the frankest thing we had in the line of intimate likenesses, excepting, of course, the x-ray.

But this candid camera business which catches you unawares and often without your underwears either—is the most fendish attack of all against our practically vanished privacy.

Many Counterfeit Bills Are Being Circulated; Warning Is Issued Especially On Twenties

Officers of the Haskell National Bank have received warning from the Treasury department against counterfeiters.

Many bills of currency, not legal have been passed in this territory recently and the general public is warned by this bank to be on the watch for them. Particular warning is issue as to attempts to pass or get changed $20 bills, as a number of these have been passed falsely in this section recently it is reported.

The bulletin gives information as to how to detect counterfeit bills. All genuine United States currency is printed on paper that has small red and blue threads which are placed into the paper during the process of manufacture when the paper is in pulp formation. However these lines are imitated in various ways, either by printed lines, or silk threads being placed between two pieces of paper which make the bill. On the face of all genuine bills in the upper right hand corner appears a check letter.

One of the methods of counterfeiting is to raise the denomination of a bill by changing the figures. But each size bill has a different picture on the back side of legal currency. For instance a $1 bill has the picture of Washington on the front of the note and the "One" is in large embossed letters on the back of it, whereas the $10 should have on the front the picture of Hamilton and on the back an engraved design of Jefferson and on its back an engraved design of Monticello, Jefferson's home, and a $20 would bear on its front the portrait of Jackson and on the back, the White House building. And other bills may be identified in that manner, even though the figures have been raised. A five-bears on one side the picture of Lincoln and on the other a picture of Lincoln memorial. A $50 bill has the picture of Grant on one side while on the other is "The U. S. Capitol" building; and a $100 bill has on its front the picture of Franklin and on the other side an engraved design of "Independence Hall," Philadelphia.

True currency may be identified also by certain check letters in the crners, which will be explained by any bank employee.

People handling money are urged particularly just now to be on the look-out for $20 bills on the Federal Reserve Bank, Dallas; on the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, Virginia, on the Federal Reserve of Kansas City and on the

Fill The Cookie Jar

Cookie jar is full these days, the dessert problem is no longer for you. For fruit or ice cream and many cookies as an accompaniment, no one could ask for a satisfactory sweet.

Cream shortening until it is very soft. Add the sugar gradually, creaming it into the shortening. Add the egg and beat well until the mixture is almost fluffy. Add the milk and flavoring and mix well. Add the dry ingredients which have been sifted together except for the small amount reserved for the final addition. Add final portion slowly, testing dough by baking a single cookie. When the right consistency is obtained, transfer dough by teaspoonfuls onto a baking sheet, leaving about 1 1/2 inches between cookies to allow for spreading. Put on the center shelf of a hot oven and bake for 10 or 12 minutes or until delicately browned.

Almond Crescents
1-3 cup finely chopped almonds, 1 1/4 cups flour, 1/2 cup powdered sugar, 1/2 cup sale-free fat, 1/2 cup vanilla, 1/2 cup milk, 1/2 cup salt.

Drop Cookies
1/2 cup shortening, 1/2 cup sugar, 1 egg, 1/2 cup flour, 1/2 cup baking powder, 1/2 cup salt, 1/2 cup vanilla.

Remove at once onto cooling rack, using spatula. Let stand until thoroughly cooled.

Surprise Cookies
2-3 cup shortening, 1-2 cup sugar, 1 egg, beaten, 1-4 teaspoon vanilla, 3 tablespoons milk.

2 cups flour
Cream together shortening and sugar. Add egg, vanilla and milk. Mix well. Add sifted flour. Chill the mixture. Roll out on a slightly floured board to 1-8 inch thickness; cut with round cutter. Put small amount of raisin filling in center of one-half the rounds. Moisten edges and cover with remaining rounds. Press edges together with tines of fork. Bake on a greased baking sheet in a moderate oven for 10 minutes.

Raisin Filling
Mix 1-2 cup chopped raisins, 1-4 cup brown sugar, few grains salt, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 tablespoon lemon juice and 2 tablespoons water. Cook slowly, stirring constantly until thick. Cool. If desired, chopped nuts may be added.

Coconut Kisses
Mix 2 cups shredded dry coconut, 1-2 cup sweetened condensed milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla and a pinch of salt. Drop by teaspoon on a greased baking sheet. Bake in a slow oven for about 15 minutes.

Lists 'Tourism' Second Largest Texas Industry

Texas, "the state that has everything," has been taking stock of itself as a merchant of "tourism," and has found that its traditions, scenery, hospitality and climate are just as marketable—for hard cash—as the cotton, wool, oil, meat, sulphur, gas and spinach that it has been supplying the rest of the country all these years.

Now entering its second year in the world's fair business, Texas finds that tourists constituted its second largest industry in 1936—the $446,000,000 that tourists spent in the state last year being topped only by the $450,000,000 oil industry of the state. Agricultural crops, at $384,000,000, and cotton, at $210,000,000 ranked third and fourth.

Furthermore, increased auto touring into and within the state accounted for a gain of $4,000,000 in state retail gasoline tax revenue alone, more than liquidating the state's $3,000,000 appropriation for the 1936 Centennial—a cool million profit for the state's own coffers right there.

As a result, says a report of the All-South Development Council, sentiment is fast crystallizing throughout the state in favor of a long term state advertising and publicity program, to continue and consolidate the gains scored through the Centennial and Pan-American expositions.

A major point made by Lieut.-Gov. Walter Woodul, chief proponent of a five-year, $3,000,000 advertising plan, has been that not only would the resulting tourist revenue pay dividends on the cash investment, but that permanent new residents, among them industrialists looking for sites for decentralization and expansion, would accrue and, he says, "We need more people and capital to give us the push."

That Texas can get her share of the four-and-three-quarters billion national tourist crop by dint of thorough advertising was proved by the "take" of Centennial year, bulwarked by analysis of the things Texas has yet to show the nation in the way of parks, caverns and playgrounds. That hard-headed industry will be as easily lured, however, in the face of Texas' unstable tax situation, is open to serious doubt, says the Council's report.

Industrialists and investors can not help noting that, while Texas' vast natural resources constitute the proudest theme in her advertising, there is as yet no visible change in the almost traditional tendency of the state government to depend more and more on natural resource industries to shoulder its mounting revenue burdens—to say nothing of threatened new franchise imposts.

Whether Texas' natural advantages are so vastly superior to those of other states now taking a diametrically opposite attitude toward industry—notably other Southern states—as to insure Texas as getting her rightful share of major industrial decentralization, is a question causing many Texas business leaders to advocate that a more definite, reassuring long-time policy in this respect be outlined and adopted, as "the very best form of advertising" for industries, the report concludes.

'WAY BACK WHEN' by JESSIE

SENATOR PITTMAN RUSHED TO ALASKA

SO OFTEN gold buried far away in some inaccessible part of the world looks easier to get than fortunes awaiting us right at home. Senator Key Pittman of Nevada started his career on a wild goose chase for gold, but came back to make his success in the occupation for which his schooling fitted him.

Key Pittman, who was born in 1872, attended law college in Tennessee. His career at that time looked as though it might consist of practicing law, obtaining an appointment as district attorney, and forging ahead in politics with the United States senate as a goal. But young Pittman could not see it that way, and the reason was the Alaskan gold rush in 1896. He rushed up to the Klondike! And what happened? Key Pittman landed at Dawson just ahead of the freeze almost penniless. In Nome it is said that he worked at one end of a bucksaw to make a living. Then, the people made him district attorney. Shortly thereafter, he returned to the United States, settling in Tonopah, Nev., where he laid the foundation of his fortune in the Tonopah Telephone company.

In 1913, Key Pittman, in his first political contest, was elected to the United States senate, where he has given a good account of himself for 24 years. His greatest interest is to better the position of silver, inspired of course by the great production of this metal in Nevada. He is also interested in promoting a six-year term for the President of the United States, with a rule against second terms.

Stories of wealth to be won in foreign fields sound so much more alluring simply because the fields represent the unknown and seem to offer more adventure. Probably while we are pining to be in one place, the fellow who is there wishes he were in ours.

Suitable curtains was the demonstration given to 13 Center Point Home Demonstration Club members and three visitors in the home of Mrs. T. M. Patterson Thursday, July 1.

Junior cowboy prize winners were Rudolph Middleton of Luders, age 12, first place, and J. R. Miller, Jr., of Coleman, second. Roy Wayne Savage of Tioga, 10-year-old steer rider, won first place in the junior steer riding contest.

Champions in rodeo contests announced Saturday night were Vance Davis of Garden City, champion calf roper, whose total time for the three days was 67 1-5 seconds; Frank Miller of Gail, champion wildcow-milker, total time 64 4-5 seconds; Dan Utley of San Angelo, champion bronc rider, winner in this group for the fourth consecutive year, and Bob Wilkinson of Throckmorton, champion steer rider.

Suspended Sentence Law Looks Back Well Pleased

ing article concern- Weibert of Seguin, state official and a Herman Weibert of appeared in the Houston July 4th. The sketch, by Leta Rider, staff writer of the Chronicle, is reprinted with the belief that it will be of interest by many of our readers.

1890, representative in the lower house of the legislature several different periods, state senator, state tax commissioner, secretary of state and other offices.

And now this conservative economist and political thinker watches with pride his conservative son, Rudolph Weibert, serve in the Texas Senate.

Others In Family And he watches another son, H. H. Weibert, run a bank, vast oil properties and help guide the University of Texas as a regent.

Two other sons, Ferdinand, Jr., and Arthur are ranchers. In addition to these four sons there are three daughters, Miss Ella and Mrs. Alvin Breustedt who live here in Seguin with their father, and Mrs. Katie Eilers of Austin.

The father fairly beams when he says this: "Rudolph never said anything to me but he knew. You know he was elected district attorney when he was not even here—when he was still in Columbia. Well, in eight years as district attorney he recommended and obtained 300 suspended sentences. And every one made good except one lone man!"

The reason Ferdinand Weibert is so well pleased with his son about that is that Ferdinand Weibert is the father of the suspended sentence law. As state senator in 1909 he was the author of the measure.

His View of It Here is the way he views it: "Take care of the mother and you take care of the world. If there is any hope for reform, then let her have the last chance. Send her boy to the penitentiary and you have a stigma on him forever."

"I am prouder of that suspended sentence law than anything I've ever done."

In that long record there are many other things he has done, such as getting Texas to adopt the Pasteur treatment, which has saved so many lives; his long study of taxation, and his fight for tax reform.

Mr. Weibert believes the present ad valorem tax system is wrong in principal and must be revised.

"What is property worth?" he asks.

Only What It Produces "It is worth only what it will produce. A man tells me this place cost him a million dollars, but that means nothing to me. What I want to know is how much it rents it brings in and what of this rental income will remain after insurance, taxes and upkeep are paid."

"Tax property above that and it is confiscation."

When he was in the Forty-Second Legislature, he got the house to pass his tax reform bill, which based ad valorem taxes on the income property produced.

"If we live taxes are a necessity," he points out. "You can't run a government without taxes. Who is to pay? It should be each man according to his ability. If my Mexican spends $300 a year, why shouldn't he pay a little bit toward the support of the government which protects him as it protects me?"

Looks With Confidence He points out that many foreign countries base their ad valorem tax on the income-producing qualities of property; that it is no new

Urges Caution Against Danger of Grass Fires

In order to avoid all possible danger of a serious conflagration resulting from grass fires, which are generally prevalent during this season of the year, City Fire Marshal McClintock urges that the utmost precaution be taken to prevent this menace.

Fire prevention is an individual responsibility, as was pointed out in a statement by President Roosevelt recently, in which he urged the cooperation of the public in preventing grass and forest fires.

In the event of a grass fire within the city limits, the fire department should be immediately notified, the Fire Marshal stated.

Bleaching Human Bones Reveal Another Mystery Murder on Desert's Sands

Bleaching bones on the sands of the Southwest have again been revealed by accident—and have added another mystery murder to the records of officers there. Desert murders have been recorded at an increasing rate in recent years. More than 50 such killings remain a mystery.

Revelation of the latest case came when a deer hunter on the hills and sands in Maricopa county saw a human shoe. From it protruded leg bones. He forgot about hunting, hastened home to call the sheriff.

Officers found still more bones, and positive evidence of foul play. "This is about two miles from where we found Wallace French's automobile, when he disappeared a year ago," the officers agreed. Wallace French was never found. So the officers called his brother, Chancery, and took him to the skeleton. Chancery easily identified his brother's hat, clothing, and dental work.

Nobody can say, yet, what happened to Wallace French. Why did he drive onto the isolated desert, unless with somebody who held a gun on him, or who lured him there on some pretense?

Murder Will Out The evidence points to murder any way deductions are made. Moreover, history suggests that the murderer will be caught in time. Many another killer has dumped the body of his victim on the Arizona or California desert, thinking it would never be revealed. Too often it has, and strange justice has stalked recent murders. Some of them have been put to death in the Arizona prison for just such mistakes within the past two years. Clues pop up in the most unexpected manner. Sands are moved by winds, and bodies are revealed. Or coyotes dig out shal-

STRANGE MEDICINES

Probably no science has been evolved from a greater mass of early superstition than that of medicine. Still, it is said that some of the oldtime prescriptions may possibly have had a certain curative value although appearance ridiculous at first glance.

A recent writer declares that the broth of red ants was once used for intestinal disorders, and that modern research finds that the formic acid in ants is a strong antiseptic, which may have killed intestinal germs.

Some believe that the sting of bees and wasps relieve rheumatism. These insects also secrete formic acid, the injection of which through the "stinger" may possibly have a beneficial effect.

Baked toad, ground to powder, was used by the Greeks as a remedy for heart disease. Chemists find that there are certain alkaloids in the skin of a toad which act as a heart stimulant.

Some other old alleged remedies have not yet been satisfactorily explained, however. Among the innumerable ones may be mentioned tying a pickled herring to each leg for dropsy; eating a dried and powdered magpie for epilepsy; carrying a buckeye in the pocket or sleeping with a black cat for rheumatism; various incantations for the removal of warts and so on.

Considering the mystery which formerly surrounded most diseases, it is not surprising that equally mysterious remedies have been suggested and applied. And while we have made amazing progress in medicine and surgery, the highest skill is still baffled by a few maladies that have been studied since the dawn of civilization.

ABOUT THE WEATHER

Recent hot spells in various sections of the country naturally have revived comparisons of heat with conditions of former years. In the United States the hottest spot on an average is a place in Death Valley, California named oddly enough Greenland Ranch, where on July 10, 1910, the temperature rose to 134 degrees.

The record for cold in this country is held by Miles City, Mont., where the mercury sank to 65 below zero in 1888.

Higher and lower temperatures have been recorded in Africa and Siberia, respectively, although Death Valley's high mark is within two degrees of the world's record, 136 degrees at Azizia, Tripoli, in 1924.

Some interesting cases of excessive rainfall and snowfall have been noted by the United States Weather Bureau. The hardest rain ever recorded was at Ophid's Camp in California, where an inch of rain, equivalent to 115 tons of water per acre, fell in one minute on April 5, 1926. At Porto Bello, Panama, 2.47 inches of rain fell in three minutes on May 1, 1908. The heaviest snowfall ever to occur at a place equipped for accurate observation was 25 inches in 24 hours at Washington, D. C., in January 1922.

The most equable and pleasant climate in the United States, and perhaps in the world, is enjoyed by Key West, Fla., where the temperature has never gone above 100, nor below 41 above zero. Its average for January is 70 and for July 84. Even in the heat of summer this island city is relatively cool, being fanned by breezes from the Gulf of Mexico, which seldom fail when they are needed.

BIG JIM TULLY

Big Jim Tully washed automobiles and did other commonplace jobs around a garage in New York for several years before his death, which occurred not long ago. He was not ambitious, and judged by the world's standards he did not amount to much. But he had a heart of gold. He was a friend of childhood.

Each week he drew $30 as wages, of which he used $10 for his modest living expenses and saved the rest. When the opportunity came, he hired a traveling merry-go-round man to set up in the neighborhood for as many days as the savings on hand would permit and turned the outfit over the poor children in the vicinity for their free enjoyment. This procedure was repeated many times.

When Big Jim died he did not leave enough money to pay his funeral expenses, but his children friends, some now grown up, chipped in and gave him a decent burial. Fifteen hundred ragged kids of the East Side caused a traffic jam through their insistence on paying a last tribute to their idol. Their little hearts were sad, and tears trickling down grimy cheeks bespoke their grief because the friend they loved was gone.

To the world at large, Big Jim Tully didn't amount to much, but he brought sunshine into the lives of many underprivileged boys and girls, besides teaching them a practical lesson in benevolence. How many of us have done more?

HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF!

"Death Traps the Eeler"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter

A FISHERMAN takes his living out of the water, and at times the water is pretty generous. But it's a treacherous element when it wants to be, and there are times when it takes back more than it has given. Sometimes it drives a mighty hard bargain.

Judd O'Rourke made his living for eight of nine months by wheeling it from the Saco river in Maine. Judd didn't take any too much from the river. Darned little more than he needed to live on. But when the river came around to collect, it wanted Judd's life in payment for those few months of subsistence.

It was in the spring of 1929 when Judd started to wrest a living from the river. He was digging clams and fishing for eels, down at the mouth of the stream. Eel fishing took quite a bit of equipment. One set line alone cost about eight dollars for material and a day's work putting it together.

A set line is a long rope, with weights on it every twenty feet to keep it down at the bottom of the river, and three or four hundred shorter lines attached to it at intervals. The shorter lines are baited to catch the eels which swim along near the bottom of the stream on their way out to sea with the ebbing tide.

Old Man River Presents His Bill.

Judd's set line stretched clear across the river. It was anchored by concrete blocks a few feet out from either shore, and at one end there was a float that told Judd where he could find it when he wanted it. You never take a set line entirely out of the water. When you want to gather your catch, you haul the line up at the buoy and work your way along it in a rowboat, pulling the line up in front of you and letting it fall back in the water behind.

All through April and May, Judd made his living digging clams and tending his set lines. And then, on the morning of June seventh, Old Man River presented him with a bill for what he had taken. The bill was for one human life, and Old Man River didn't pull his punches when he started collecting it.

That morning, Judd and his friend George Croft were rowing out to some mud flats for bait. On their way, they passed one of Judd's set lines and stopped to see if there was a stray eel or two on it. Judd caught the line at the buoy, pulled it up, and started working along it toward the other side of the river. He worked along until he was about half way across, and then the line stuck.

When It Looks Safe, It Sometimes Isn't.

Judd figured it was caught on a snag on the river bottom. Try as he would, he couldn't pull it up, so the two men gave up and rowed on to get their bait. But on the way back, Judd began thinking that he didn't want to lose a new eight dollar set line and decided to have a try at diving for it.

The river was only about fourteen feet deep at low tide, and all the clothes Judd had on were his boots and a pair of old pants with legs cut off at the knees. He took off his boots and then tied the boat's anchor rope to his waist and gave the other end to George Croft to hold. That rope was for safety's sake. The waters on the Maine coast are ice cold, even in June, and if Judd got a cramp he wanted George to be able to haul him up. But sometimes the contraptions we rig up for our safety are the things that do us the most harm.

Judd dived. He found his line and began working his way toward where it was snagged. He found the place. An old water-logged tree stump, rolled downstream by the current had lodged on top of it. Judd couldn't budge the stump. His lungs were bursting, so he rose to the surface. The only thing he could do now was to cut the line on each side of the stump and save as much of it as possible. Taking his fishing knife he dived again.

Trapped Beneath Surface of Icy Waters.

He reached the bottom, but the line on one side, and then, after rising to the surface for another breath of air, he went down again. But this time he miscalculated his distance. He reached bottom on the wrong side of the stump and had to work his way around it. "That took a few precious seconds," says Judd, "because now the current was becoming stronger and it was getting increasingly hard to hold my feet on the bottom. But at last I found the line. I cut it quickly, doubled my knees under me and shot toward the surface."

But Judd didn't reach the surface. He shot up about five feet, and then stopped with a jerk that took the air out of his lungs. That jerk scared Judd. "The first thing I thought," he says "was that a large squid had me. To this day I don't know why I should have thought that, for the largest squid I have ever seen weighed only a pound and a half. Then I looked down and saw that it was the anchor rope, tied to my waist, that was holding me. I knew it must be caught on the bottom, so I grasped it and hauled myself downward, hand over hand."

Judd's lungs were aching now. The air was gone out of them, and he knew it would be a long time before he could untangle that rope and get to the surface. Would he make it? Well—he was doing his best. That ten feet of rope seemed like five hundred. His heart was beating and his head was spinning. At last he reached the point where the rope was snagged, and then—calamity!

As he reached the snag, the rope suddenly tightened, drawing him up close against the stump. Up in the boat, George Croft had picked that moment to become alarmed and try to haul Judd out of the water. And with the rope caught in the snag, George was hauling him down instead of up—down to his death!

Judd began to struggle. But the rope only pulled him closer to the stump. It was so tight that Judd couldn't possibly free it from the snag and there weren't many more seconds left in which he'd be able to free it. His lungs were bursting and his stomach felt as if it were turning inside out. He began swallowing water—and at that moment he thought of the knife he had brought down to cut the set line. It was his belt. He got it out, cut the rope—and that was the last Judd remembered.

When Judd woke up, he was lying in the bottom of the boat and George was giving him artificial respiration. George had had the scare of his life when the rope suddenly went slack and Judd's body had come to the surface and then started to go down again. He had fished Judd out with a gaff and then worked over him until he brought him around again.

Wild turkeys must not be killed between April and September nor prairie chicken or pinnated grouse between February and August. No deer or antelope shall be killed for five years to come, and after that only from September to January. Netting of quail is prohibited altogether, and they must not be killed in any manner from March to October. Fish are not allowed to be taken in any manner except by ordinary hood and line or trot line.

It was a sad case of bereavement, as we understand she left, besides her husband, six children, all under ten years of age.

Rail Route Dream Born Fifty Years Ago Still Alive In Hope

(By Jeff Davis in San Antonio Light)

A 50-year-old dream of direct rail connection northwest from San Antonio to San Angelo, for which $100,000 cash was once on the barrelhead and for which the Insull interests once pledged $3,000,000, Saturday was still a paper transaction.

The Gulf and West Texas railroad, on which no rail has ever been set or spike driven, is now part of the Texas and New Orleans line, whose parent is the Southern Pacific Railway Corporation of California.

In the sale transaction the Southern Pacific simply paid off all debts and refunded money deposited by stockholders, and agreed to get the line into operation by March 15, 1934. Previous to March 1934, the Southern Pacific obtained from the interstate commerce commission extension of the commission extension of the completion, and operation date to March 15, 1939.

Still Hangs Fire

And right there the Gulf and West Texas railway project hangs. But the Southern Pacific need feel no misgivings at its failure thus far to materialize the San Antonio-San Angelo trail kingdom: the fields of industrial expansion are white with the bleached bones of men and committees who were going to shove through a rail connection to the northwest by come next grass.

As early as 1886 the old San Antonio and Arkansas Pass railroad increased its capital stock from $2,000,000 to $5,000,000 and President Lott began scribbling maps showing the new hypothetical line slashing its way over through Gillespie, Mason, McCulloch, Coleman and the Panhandle counties.

The citizenry at Comfort, Center Point, Boerne, Kerrville and Fredericksburg held meetings and on June 11, 1886, a mass rally was held in San Antonio at which six local men subscribed $50,000 in 15 minutes to the project.

Talk Is Only Action

Within a short time a total of $400,000 ($200,000 of it from San Antonio) was pledged. Then somehow or other the idea slowly chilled. No one ever seemed to know what happened, except that the thing never went through. Kerrville and Fredericksburg had an argument over which would get the railway, and a preliminary survey of the route to San Angelo via Kerrville was made, but otherwise nothing ever happened.

The San Angelo-San Antonio rail connection hysteria flared up again a short time later when some New Mexican capitalists announced they would shove the Santa Fe lines through San An-

Who Butters Your Bread?

How would you like to go without butter and eggs just for your breakfasts next week? No butter for your pancakes — and no eggs with your bacon! It wouldn't be any fun at all, would it?

In the old days, everybody in Haskell kept his own cow and his own small flock of hens. And in those days the farmers found very little market for his eggs and butter.

Times have changed, and our farmers must keep the growing population of the cities supplied with fresh eggs and produce. But he can't market them himself. He has to depend upon our Cream and Produce houses.

They not only furnish a market for the farmer's surplus, but they keep the cities supplied with the fresh eggs and the produce which they could have in no other way.

Haskell is a good market for cream and produce. Haskell county people have learned to depend upon our produce houses as a market and as a source of obtaining farm products. We need them in this community.

The great need of such a rail line was, and is, undeniable. Imagine a triangle resting on its apex, and Temple at the right, San Angelo is only 200 miles northwest of San Antonio; the proposed line will be over a 225-mile route. Passenger and freight traffic at present goes northeast on the Katy to Temple, and then to San Angelo over the Santa Fe, a total of between 400 and 500 miles.

Thus needing no more than a map of Texas to prove their point, the San Angeloans had no trouble in convincing San Antonians of the rail need. A mass meeting was held here and the San Antonio and Northwest railroad (changed to Gulf and West Texas in the application for charter) was formed with R. W. Morrison, utilities king, as president and James Driscoll, or Corpus Christi as vice president.

The irons were so hot for the striking that Porter Whaley, then manager of the San Antonio chamber of commerce and secretary and treasurer of the G. and W. T., went to San Angelo and raised $160,000 there in 48 hours. Brady got up its $90,000, Mason raised its $60,000, and the San Antonio quota of $600,000 was raised in a four-month campaign headed by Colonel W. R. Tuttle.

Martin Insull, it is hereby revealed in print for the first time, was contacted and told the directors he would put up $3,000,000 for the railway.

The G. and W. T. applied for a permit to construct and a hearing was held here before an Interstate Commerce commission examiner. The Texas Pacific field application for a permit to build from Abilene to San Angelo via Ballinger and at the same time asked the I. C. C. to deny the G. and W. T. application on the grounds that the lines would parallel in violation of the commission's provisions.

The Southern Pacific joined with the G. and W. T. application on the grounds that the lines would parallel in violation of the commission's provisions.

The Southern Pacific joined with the G. and W. T. and the commission ruled with the G. and W. T. and against the Texas Pacific.

The Fredericks and Northern (formerly incorporated as the San Antonio, Fredericksburg and Western) agreed to sell its 25 miles of track from Fredericksburg to Waring to the G. and W. T.

From here on, things began to get a little complicated. T. I. C. C. sanctioned the Fredericksburg and Northern sale provided the G. and W. T. agree to use the Santa Fe tracks between Brady and Eden jointly owned by the Frisco and the Santa Fe. W. H. Bledsoe, president of the Gulf Colorado and Santa Fe (the Texas unit of the Santa Fe) agreed on the use of the Santa Fe track.

Now the G. and W. T. had track from Fredericksburg to Waring and from Brady to Eden, all they needed was 100 miles of new track to complete the tracking.

In 1930 the Southern Pacific bought the G. and W. T. and refunded the $100,000 in cash that had been posted by stockholders and agreed to build the road by the spring of 1934. And now they have another rest until 1939.

No one lost any money anywhere (except, of course, the Southern Pacific has tied up more than $100,000 in the venture) and the only contracts obliterated and not discharged were the leases for right-of-way taken by some counties along the route.

Like perpetual motion, the Gulf and West Texas continues to intrigue and yet defy.

A few bruises were the only injuries little Billie Barbee of Charlotte, N. C., received when he tumbled through an open door on the second floor of his home and fell to the ground outside.

The various products the oil industry's technicians can fashion from the sticky black crudes that flow from Texas wells appear, almost, as magic to the layman. But it's not necromancy that combines and recombines the oil molecules into such diverse products as cold cream and gasoline; it is, rather, hard work and constant experimentation.

That, at any rate, is the theory Humble technicians work on. In Texas oil fields, in laboratories and refineries, on the open road, they seek continuously to improve the Humble products you use in your car, the Humble specialties you use in your home. Results approve their methods; Texas motorists say, Humble's policy of continuous improvement keeps Humble ahead.

Tucker Prepares Dove-Hunting Law For State That Conforms With Federal Law

Copies of a bill to conform the Texas open season on mourning doves to the new regulations of the United States Biological Survey were completed last week by W. J. Tucker, executive secretary of the Game, Fish and Oyster Commission, and placed in the hands of legislators for introduction in the event the Governor submits the subject to this session.

The Federal regulations are much more liberal than the Texas statutes, therefore, it is to the interest of the Legislature to effect conformation, otherwise Texas sportsmen will be denied part of the shooting time that would come to them. Since the Legislature would have only the chance of conforming the matter should not be controversial. Amendments to change the season or fix different ones in different parts of the State would be meaningless.

Under Federal Control

Mourning doves have been classified as migratory birds and that places them under the control of the Federal authorities. This classification also takes them from the jurisdiction of a State Legislature, except to follow the Federal regulations and thus double protection and prosecution for violations. In such instances it would be an offense against both Federal and State laws to shoot doves out of the Federally prescribed season. Unless compliance is had Texas sportsmen would be permitted to hunt doves only where the State law and the Federal regulations ran concurrently.

The Federal regulations abolish the zones prescribed in Texas and have two different periods for shooting doves, one from Sept. 15 to Oct. 15 and the other from Dec. 1 to Jan. 16. Under the nullified Texas law the open season in the north zone would have been during September and October and in the south zone from Dec. 1 to Jan. 16.

Under concurrence with Federal regulations doves can be taken in the counties of the old north zone from Sept. 15 to Oct. 15 and again from Dec. 1 to Jan. 16, which is the Texas quail season. Hunters are out then and the birds are then in the finest flesh. The hunters thus get an additional hunting season if the Legislature responds and conforms to the Federal regulations. The north zone embraces almost two-thirds of the State's area.

Hospital Bonds—

in the amount of over $100,000 for erection and equipping the Haskell county institution.

County Judge Charlie Conner Thursday morning notified the state PWA headquarters in Fort Worth regarding the outcome of the bond election, and will go to Fort Worth next week to confer with the state director, Julian Montgomery, concerning further steps to be taken to expedite if possible, final approval of the application.

Canvas Returns Saturday

The Commissioners Court will meet Saturday to canvas returns and officially declare the results of Wednesday's election. Decision will be made at that time as to whether the bonds will be issued immediately, it was announced. The bonds, when issued, will not bear an interest rate of over 4 3/4 per cent, and will be retired from the Permanent Improvement Fund.

First step to be taken toward erection of the hospital will be selection of a site by the Commissioners' Court, and awarding of a contract for its construction.

Will Be Operated By Board of Managers

After the hospital is built and ready for operation, management of the institution will be under the supervision of a Board of Managers, composed of five members who will be appointed by the Commissioners Court every two years. Membership of the board is to consist of at least two physicians and one woman. The board of managers will employ a superintendent of the hospital, set salaries of all employees, and otherwise handle all business of the institution.

Come On In The Water Is Fine!

A Few Facts About Our Water

As a precaution against bacteria the city water is treated with gas and chloride lime. The water is tested each month by an inspector of State Health Department and for more than three years no contamination has been found in your City water.

The water used in the swimming pool comes from the same source as the water you drink, receiving the same treatment, with the additional precaution of a slightly stronger solution of chlorinated lime and copper sulphate. 1.5 per cent of chloride of lime in 1,000,000 gallons of water every 24 hours is sufficient to kill any known bacteria—our treatment is stronger than this.

Copper sulphate is used to kill algae found in all open water and treatment for odor and taste.

These facts may be verified by the State Health Department and by City records.

The swimming pool is inspected regularly by the State Health Department and would not be allowed to operate if it was not kept in a clean and sanitary condition.
