More Than 11,000 Bales Cotton In Haskell Storage

With four large warehouses already filled, and construction started this week on the fifth building, Haskell is rapidly becoming a concentration center for a large quantity of West Texas cotton. Approximately 11,000 bales of cotton have been stored here, on which Government loans at the rate of 6c per pound have been secured. Loan requirements specify that cotton must be of uniform staple, and must be stored in bonded warehouses to be eligible for the six-cent loan.

After a tentative survey of this immediate trade territory revealed an ample milk production to assure profitable operation of the venture on a cooperative basis.

The 25-year-old bridge, only a few miles west of Rule, is the only traffic outlet from that city to a large farming and ranching section in Stonewall county.

Payment of Poll Tax Lags Behind Number for 1936

With the deadline for payment of 1937 poll tax effective since midnight last night, totals available in the office of Tax Assessor-Collector Mike Watson late Monday indicated that qualified voters this year would not exceed 3,800—considerably under the total of 4,120 who paid their poll tax in 1936—the last election year. In 1937, an "off year" poll tax payments totalled 2,050. At 5 o'clock Monday a total of 3,350 poll tax receipts had been issued, Watson stated, and the office was kept open late last night to accommodate the usual last-minute rush of persons eager to have a hand in selection of state and county officials in this year's elections.

Plans for the hospital building will be presented by Mr. Butler, and other details concerning the structure will be discussed during the meeting.

Trice Hatchery Expects Heavy Run This Year

Operating one of the largest hatcheries in this section, W. P. Trice, former county agent of Haskell county, announces that the Trice Hatchery was recently placed in operation for the season and that first deliveries on customer orders would be made within a few days. The plant has a maximum capacity of 50,000 eggs in the five Buckeye incubators available, and increased demand during the past few years has required constant operation of the entire plant during the peak of the spring hatching season, Mr. Trice reports. Despite unfavorable conditions last year, attributed to shortage of home-grown poultry feed and unseasonable weather, an estimated 150,000 chicks were shipped from the local hatchery during the five-month season from January through May. Bumper feed crops last fall have brightened prospects for poultry-raisers, Trice states, and he is anticipating a heavy run this year. Early demands on the supply of baby chicks is also heavier than in several years, he added. The hatchery is located near the northwest city limits of Haskell, and visitors are welcome to inspect the entire plant.

Davis, Jr., treasurer of the fund in Haskell county. Between 150 and 200 persons witnessed the games Friday night, played in the new High School auditorium. In the first game, Haskell Junior boys team defeated the Rule Junior team, while in the Senior bracket, Haskell lost to Rule.

South Ward PTA Sponsor "Wells Fargo" at Texas

Commissioners Court and County Physicians To Study Details

Property-owners of the county in an election last summer approved the issuance of bonds for the erection of the county institution. Later a difference in selection of a site for the building, with Commissioners first voting by a majority to locate it in the east part of the town, ended when a majority vote favored changing the location to the west side of the city after city officials had stated that cost of extending water and sewer lines to the east side would be prohibitive. If the building plans submitted today are approved, date for awarding construction contract will likely be set for an early date.

Pioneer Rancher Of This Section Claimed By Death

Henry Wellington Lenoir, 63, pioneer rancher in this section and well-known in Haskell, died Wednesday of last week at the home of his son, H. L. Lenoir in San Angelo. The heaviest fine, $25 and costs, a total of approximately $38, was assessed against a defendant charged with swindling. Minimum fine of $1 and costs was imposed in a majority of the cases.

FARMERS MUST EXECUTE WORK SHEETS AT ONCE

The following communication from the County Agent's office is important to every farmer in Haskell county who has not executed work sheet covering land expected to be cultivated this year: "Recent instructions from the State Office inform us it is highly important that work sheets be executed AT ONCE covering all farms not covered by work sheet in 1937. Unless this work is completed immediately in all counties the 1938 Program will be unnecessarily delayed. "We understand there may be a special wheat goal in 1938 so it is just as important for the wheat farmer to sign a 1937 work sheet (if he hasn't already done so) as it is for the row-crop farmer. "Anyone farming land in 1938 he did not farm in 1937 should find out immediately whether or not the land was covered by work sheet and if not see that one is executed."

French Robertson Returns To Haskell

"Cotton Must Go Abroad"

In the current issue of West Texas Today, monthly magazine of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce is an article by a veteran exporter—an article that should be read by every West Texan who is interested in cotton.

Because the author, George Sealy, president of the Galveston Wharf Company, presents some facts that can be answered only with better cotton and more horse sense in raising cotton. The veteran cotton man offers five suggestions for bettering the cotton situation. You will find all of them, and many more interesting facts and comments, in the following paragraphs. This is a full reproduction of the Sealy article.

Texas, the greatest cotton raising State in the Americas, is in the position of having to export approximately 90 per cent of its lint. Within the last few years the demand from spinners in Europe and Asia has fallen off at least 40 per cent. Many factors enter into this decline in sales.

Our position is more unfavorable for the disposal of 1937 crop than ever before in view of the fact that approximately forty other countries have produced a combined crop which, according to the latest estimates, will exceed the total American production by more than one million bales.

Who buys our American cotton? England, Germany, Japan, France and Italy purchase just about nine times more of our cotton than do the mills in this country. The reason is because cotton may be delivered to Europe or Asia by boat while most of our staple consigned to American mills goes by railroad. As a rule, shipment by boat is cheaper than by railroad. One must also remember that foreign countries pay just as much for lint as do American consumers. The cost of transportation makes it cheaper for foreign spinners to buy Texas cotton.

Texas uses less than 3 per cent of the cotton raised in this state. The larger American mills are located in the eastern states. Here are pertinent reasons why Texas cannot get the bill mills away from the East: First, there are more mills in America than are required to supply the needs of the people. Eastern mills are far closer to the consumer population than Texas mills, and the finished goods can be delivered cheaper from these points. Second, 500 pounds of raw cotton can be shipped from Texas to Boston for about $3, but to ship 500 pounds of Texas-made overalls would cost about $10 in freight. The Texas cotton farmer, like the Texas mill, is too far away from those millions of Americans who use cotton goods.

Cotton fields of the South cannot be moved.
Neither can Texas wharves and warehouses be located any closer to New England. But, both planter and shipper can raise and transport cotton to any place in Europe, China or Japan just as cheap or cheaper than to the eastern states, and the sale price will be as much or more.

Texas must consider that the possibilities of materially increasing American consumption of our cotton is remote. Some fifteen states in the South are growing cotton and, the same as Texas, they are looking for an American market first. The big mills in the East are not going to move to Texas to use our cotton; nor can we expect anyone to continue to shell out millions to rent our idle lands. Some day the Texas planter will awaken to the realization that he is his own best friend. He may listen to anyone, but he will have to do his own thinking after he knows the facts.

Since the production of cotton became a world industry in 1854, the Galveston Wharf Company has handled more cotton over its docks than any other organization or city in the world. Not enough for farmers realize that the Texas ports do not want larger crops for the infinitesimal commission on each bale handled, if the farmer must suffer. As a matter of fact, if the cotton farmer does not prosper, the ports certainly can not prosper.

Here are some suggestions offered in good faith by those who handle your cotton:

1. Ask your senators and congressmen to vote a bonus based upon the world price of cotton plus a reasonable protective tariff for lint sold in this country. This tariff should be flexible, similar to import tariffs.
2. Diversify and rotate your crops. Raise feed, meat and vegetables so that you may be able to sustain your family at home.
3. No farmer can grow good cotton with bad seed. Join the leaders in your community in the planting of any type of pure bred cotton that will command a better price on the local market and then see to it that your acre is paid according to grade and staple.
4. Thousands of bales go to Europe with open sample holes and dirty bagging. You pay the penalty. Ship a better bale.
5. As a cotton planter, your guess is as good as anyone else's as to the number of acres you should raise. Your government is not Santa Claus, and it cannot continue to pay you to allow ground to lie idle that might be planted to some other crop; neither can it foretell at the beginning of any given year what growing conditions may be or what will be your yield per acre.

Three years ago you of the South were told that other nations could not materially increase their cotton production. Apparently this was a bad guess because cotton areas in the rest of the world are now tendering more than nine million bales above what they had to offer then. If American cotton farmers could be endowed with the magic power of foresight, we might regulate prices at home and abroad and give East Texas farmers, who today eke a meager living from the soil, the opportunity to diversify instead of putting all their acres in cotton.

The federal government has certainly attempted to assist you yet nine-cent loans do not always make nine-cent cotton prices, nor has a cultiva-ment of twelve million cotton acres in the South produced a smaller crop this year.

Crop control of coffee, rubber, sugar and wheat has been dismal failure by every nation making such an attempt, and even America could not and never can control the world price of cotton, and, Mr. Farmer, ninety per cent of your cotton is sold at world prices because you can't sell it anywhere else.

It is absurd to believe that foreign spinners are deliberately trying to buy American cotton below what it costs to produce it. The owners of these mills are in business to make a profit. They are going to buy the type of lint that meets their requirements at the lowest possible figure, and they are not interested as to the country in which that cotton is produced. It is a significant fact that either in lean or full years the American spinner has only taken about one-tenth of the total Texas crop. The answer is clear. Either we must find a profitable market for the other nine bales, or adjust our price level on sales with other nations, who might continue to buy them or else they won't be sold.

If you were given a bonus upon your share of cotton sold in America you could then meet foreign competition.

Just ask yourself one question: If America won't buy all my cotton, who will?

ings. That's justice with a bark to it.

to me about it I had no way of knowing they were here. Anyway I have to spend most of my time working for the people that are paying me.

With 30 years police experience observation and hard study, I can recall only one "clock carrier" that found a burglar in a store.
This one brings sad memories because he was a close friend of mine. On that eventful Saturday night—Oct. 23, 1926—when Keifer Beauchamp, on his regular clock round, walked up behind that store he had no way of knowing what waited for him behind dark windows. They shot him down like a beast.

One year later Sheriff Tom Gilbreath and Officer Nain Pate from Comanche county and myself apprehended the killers and they are now "doing life" in the Texas penitentiary. Keifer Beauchamp was a real officer out of a job. He had a strong, fast-working mind, nerve like cold steel; physically he was powerful. He was good-natured and conscientious but when angered would change like a Bengal tiger.

It didn't cost the fire insurance companies or the citizens of Haskell anything for Keifer Beauchamp to die. Just another good policeman gone; just another widow and her baby to turn broken-ly from his grave, to face a cold world without funds, forced to turn to a few true friends for a new start in life. BUT FIRE INSURANCE RATES IN HASKELL WERE KEPT LOW.

In my life I have contacted thousands of criminals — some of them holding public office, many of them in business, and a few of them in jail. The reason I carry firearms is for fear that a dog might try to bite me while walking the alleys, or an unscrupulous hi-jacker might take my clock (and that would make the City Council sore).

I am making most of these statements to our town CRITICS, merely wanting to prove BY THE PUBLIC that I am just an honest "concrete-pounder" and you are a feeble-minded fool.

MEN... if You Promised a Penthouse, stay out of the Doghouse by giving her Electric Cookery

Men, if your wife had illusions of grandeur when she married you... worshipped you as a super-man... then remember this: A disillusioned feminine heart is more to be feared than a woman scorned!

If she expected a penthouse, you're apt to land in the doghouse... unless...

All-electric houses no longer are illusions. And they're grand! Penthouses, of course, are rare in West Texas. Instead, we have electrified homes. They're better. And, fortunately, any home has all the grandeur of a penthouse if equipped with the right kind of servants... Electric Servants. Electric cookery, refrigeration, dishwashing, water heating, sweeping, entertainment, food mixing, coffee making, sun tanning and clothes washing—all make every home equal to the luxurious penthouse... a feminine dream born of fiction and suppressed desires. So, men, don't disillusion your wife by condemning her to another year, midst hated kitchen drudgery.

WOMEN... Why Wait Until 1960 to Cook Without a Fire?

It was recently predicted that "cold" or "magnetic" heat would be practical for general cooking purposes about 1960. It was demonstrated how an egg can be fried without fire by using high frequency current magnetically transferred to the skillet from an electric coil. That is "cold" or "magnetic" heat.

And that, ladies, is merely another form of Electric Cookery, which today is practical and available in every home already having the many other advantages of Electric Service!

CALROD is the name of Hotpoint's patented metal-sheathed flat-top cooking coil that has revolutionized electric cookery. It has brought new speed, new cleanliness, new economy and longer life to electric ranges.

In the Picture: With an electric range, a bacon-egg-toast-coffee breakfast can be prepared in less than 10 minutes. Fix bacon and toast in oven while eggs fry and coffee percolates. Electric fuel for this type of breakfast costs less than three cigarettes.

1. You have five cooking speeds in 1938 models. Use super speed to heat skillet.
2. Turn switch to half speed for frying... or for fast boiling.
3. A second egg may be fried with switch turned to quarter speed... an ideal heat for steaming fresh vegetables.
4. A delicious breakfast without smoke or fumes in kitchen or dining room! For other meals, you have two other low speeds for economical cooking of food.

"Clock Man" Has No Chance To Combat Skill of Yeggs, In Opinion of Local Officer

Concerning recent burglaries in Haskell, the following communication from Al Cousins, city night officer, is submitted over his signature, and addressed to the citizens of Haskell.

The letter is reprinted in its entirety as the expression of the writer. The complete communication:

After being requested by a number of friends and business men by whom I am employed that I make some suggestions and comments on the recent knob-knockings and burglaries in Haskell I submit the following:

I will suggest as a clock man that a few dollars a year invested in a light in your store during the course of time will pay the greatest dividend of any investment you could have. Place the light directly under your sign—Eight if you have one, or near your safe where it can be seen from the street. Burglars are afraid of light. They are not afraid of a "clock man" when they know he is in the alleys. They have timed him and know how long it will take him to complete his round. The time for a "cracker" to do his stuff is from 5 to 20 minutes; the time for a "clock man" to make his round is from 25 minutes to one hour.

Don't get a "clock man" confused with a police officer. There is as much difference between the two (with no discredit) as there is between a singing school teacher and The Prince of Wales. A "clock man" is a bluff. You can fool ignorant people, children, negroes and tramps about a clock carrier being a sleuth, but you can't fool the wise guy that selects the proper kind of a night, with his efficient aides, who drives into town to take up the cash. He KNOWS your only protection is a clock and all is well with him.

A "cracker" could say to a "clock carrier" in Haskell: If you will make your usual round I will "shake" this joint. The "clocker" starts on his round—the "cracker" starts on the job. He jimmies the front, throshes the can, takes the collection and blows. The "clock man" makes his round in about 40 minutes and arrives back at about the time the "cracker" is passing through Stamford.

If I am on police duty I watch every suspect. If I am on clock duty every suspect watches me. It is very essential to have a clock nightwatchman. It gives a reduction on insurance and is a good investment. If those pesky bandits that were here a few nights ago had told me they were going to throw the Perkins-Timberlake job I would have gotten someone to take the clock one round and I would have gladly engaged them in a powder and lead argument with all the thrills that come to a fool from such an episode. As they didn't say anything

STANG'S CORRAL

Girls basketball girls team is shaping-up. We really didn't know what it'd do until this past week when they played in the state at Weir. They played superior playing and snatched in each of the games. In the finals they defeated Sunset after a hard-fought consolation. In the final, winning consolation are presented with a cup of consolation. Frances earned a gold basketball trophy.

"EARS"

I know how many times stopped and said to myself "odd ears that person". I know how many times I would think this person has a pair of ears that are different from the rest. There are large ears, small ears, and ears that are a person's pride. I have seen people with small ears and a long ways from them.

OLE MATTSON HIGH

That is a queer title to write about, since, after all Mattson isn't even two years old. We enjoy going to school so much and everyone is so contented that it seems Mattson has been in existence quite a while. The students and teachers are just one big happy family.

IS SHE ON THE TEAM— ...OR IN THE BLEACHERS?

Bread and Milk are the foods children need in largest amounts

Bread and growing children are perfect team mates. They like each other—and together they bring home lots of victories.

For bread supplies many of the things growing bodies need—carbohydrates, for energy to win the game, proteins, for growth, and the replacement of tired, worn out tissues; and it contributes to the mineral salts necessary for the all-round development of a strong constitution. Bread builds husky muscles, too.

Because it is more nearly well-balanced in protein and carbohydrate than any other food, bread can well make up at least a FOURTH of a child's diet. The child who eats six slices or more a day is the gainer.

Children need food that is quickly turned into energy and food that maintains their energy between meals. Bread never lets them down.

What's more, no other common food except sugar is MORE QUICKLY digested. It leaves no harmful residue and puts no strain on young digestive organs.

There is no BETTER or CHEAPER way than through good white bread of giving to growing children the things their young bodies need in greatest amounts: a good source of food energy and muscle-building proteins.

Selection of One-Variety Cotton For Haskell County to Benefit Farmers

For a number of weeks the Haskell County farmers, in cooperation with County Agent, B. W. Chesser, have been considering One Variety Cotton Standardization for 1938. The various communities in Haskell County elected Committees some time ago.

On January 26 Mr. Chesser and the Committees held a meeting to compare data they had assembled and tabulated, and adopt some definite plan to carry out the wishes of the farmers of Haskell County. Committees present included M. E. Carothers, President of the Haskell County Farm Board, Jess J. Bell, Chairman of the Rule Agriculture Conservation Association and County Committeeman, Jim Rose, Committeeman of the Foster Community; Roy Overton, Committeeman of the Post Community; M. A. Burpas, County Committeeman and Chairman of the Cliff Committee.

After considerable discussion, and comparing the results of different varieties in the various communities, it appeared that the Qualla Variety was giving very high average results in all parts of Haskell County. This variety is also especially noted for ability to resist drought.

The spinning qualities of staple is a very important marketing consideration, but it appeared that information on this subject was not widely distributed. Several years ago the Textile College at Lubbock, Texas did considerable research work on the uniformity of staple with a number of varieties. This work covered a period of some two or three years, and Qualla Staple showed the greatest uniformity of any variety which is grown to any extent in Texas. The Textile Engineers are of the opinion that uniformity is an inherited characteristic. The length of the staple varied slightly, from season to season, but the uniformity remained practically the same.

It further developed that H. Conrads, the Originator of Qualla Cotton has, for the past several years, followed the policy of having his cotton tested by Modern Textile Laboratory Tests which cover Uniformity, Maturity Count, Fineness of Fiber and Spirality of "Twist."

As the Qualla Cotton is being especially bred for all desirable spinning qualities and at the same time seems well adapted to all parts of the County, resisting drought to a remarkable degree, producing big, easily picked bolls and giving high average yields, the Qualla Variety was adopted for One Variety Standardization.

The question then came up about the supply of seed and how this would be handled. The Committee had already been informed that H. Conrads, the Originator of Qualla, could take care of their requirements. But how would the business be handled? Investigation had showed there were two plans which have been used by various One Variety Organizations in Texas. One plan is for the organization to buy a considerable amount of seed, possibly one or two car loads. These seed are then shipped to some central point for general distribution. The Association assumes the responsibility of getting the seed delivered to individual members and looks after the handling of the seed.

The second plan was a plan whereby a Committeeman is appointed in each community. This man acts as a contract man for his community, with the central organization. He also books the orders for seed from each individual member in his community.

A comparison of the actual cost and the amount of work involved, showed the second plan was really more economical than the first. At the same time, by adopting the second plan, each member would have his individual order shipped to his most convenient Railway Station, and shipping time could be arranged in accordance with the convenience of the individual member.

If the first plan was adopted the seed would be shipped all at one time to some central point. This would be convenient for some of the farmers, and rather inconvenient for the others.

After carefully comparing the merits of the two plans, the second plan was adopted. By adopting this plan, each community has a Committeeman whose business it is to keep his community informed on all Association Plans and at the same time he assumes the responsibility of seeing the farmers in his community and helping them take care of their individual requirements on seed.
